Fighting Two Wars

NEW YORK, April 18 — (AP) — A much smaller picket line was on duty Monday night outside the Waldorf - Astoria Hotel, where Northern Ireland's Prime Minister, Sir Basil Brooke, is stopping.

Judge Matthew Troy, leading the picket protest against the partition of Ireland, explained the reason:

His pickets had to divide forces, so some of them could picket the British Automobile Show at Grand Central Palace.

Nova Scotia Going Into Red

HALIFAX, April 18.—(CP)—After 10 years in the black, Nova Scotia faces an estimated deficit of $1,835,000 this year. It may have to impose new taxes to prevent larger deficits.

The deficit was announced Monday night by Premier Angus L. Macdonald as he brought down his budget for the 16 months ending March 31, 1951.

He told the legislature that even bigger deficits can be expected if government costs continue to increase faster than revenues.

The premier, who also holds the treasury portfolio, announced no new taxes. But he said the government had seriously considered starting a sales tax "and it may be that we shall find it necessary at some future time to resort to this type of taxation."

He forecast revenues of $47,655,000 for the 16-month fiscal year. Estimated expenditures were $49,490,000.

During the previous fiscal year—the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1949—revenues were $35,404,000 and expenditures were $33,387,000, leaving a surplus of $112,855.

The estimates were larger partly because of the additional four months of the fiscal year caused by a government decision to change dates of the fiscal year. The current fiscal year will run from Dec. 1, 1949, to March 31, 1951.

Driver Confesses Murder Of Woman

SAN JOSE, Calif., April 18 — (AP)—Sheriff Howard Hornbuckle said today an unemployed truck driver confessed that he bludgeoned flame-haired Helen May Piper to death and hurled her body down a bluff. Hornbuckle said Harry A. Wilson, 28, ex-convict friend of the thrice-married waitress, made this statement. Wilson beat the 27-year-old mother of three children with a hammer after an argument Thursday over use of his car. The two had been drinking.

Investigate Accident On Fire Chief's Car

TIMMINS, April 18 (CP) — Council Monday night slated an inquiry into a charge that the fire chief's car was involved recently in an unreported accident.

The decision came after the Timmins Firefighters' Association protested the action of council in forbidding the fire chief his car in his off-duty hours.

Councillor J. P. Bartleman demanded the accident investigation following "rumors" that a man received a broken arm and that the car had been damaged in an accident that wasn't reported to council.

Magistrate Dismisses Two Fraud Charges

Two charges of fraud against Anthony Boccabella, of Toronto, were dismissed today by Magistrate W. R. Philp, when complainants declined to proceed. Accused pleaded not guilty.

Boccabella was charged with issuing two fraudulent cheques, one to a Peterborough jeweller for $130, and one to a Havelock hotel.

W. J. A. Fair, counsel for accused, said a bank draft had been sent from Toronto to cover both cheques.

Fine Driver $25 Following Crash

A Lakefield man was today convicted of careless driving by Magistrate W. R. Philp, and fined $25, and $9.75 costs. His licence was suspended for four months.

Clarence J. Markwick pleaded not guilty to the charge, which arose out of an accident last July 9, in which Walter Purdy of Peterborough had both feet badly smashed.

Mr. Purdy testified he was driving south on Highway 28 near the Third Line of Smith Township. "There was a bus parked on the east side of the road near a crossroad. I saw Markwick's car away back on the road. When the collision hapepned, he was over on to the west side of the road," he said.

Markwick told court he was on his own side of the road, and about 20 or 30 feet behind the but, when it started to pull away. "I was going about 15 or 20 miles an hour."

Bus Driver Ray Hinan said he did not hear the crash, although both Markwick and Mr. Purdy testified it happened about 20 or 30 feet from the rear of the bus.

"I think the bus driver knows more than he is telling," remarked Crown Counsel John Bradshaw.

Summing up, His Lordship said: "The time may come when cars who are so close to accidents and who see nothing, will have to be reported to the Department of Highways."

"I believe Mr. Purdy was on his own side of the road. I do not see how he could have been anywhere else, with the bus pulling away." Magistrate Philp said.

Markwick said earlier he thought he saw Purdy's car partly on the wrong side of the road.

OBITUARIES

WM. ANDREW ROBERTSON

A farmer in Otonabee all his life, William Andrew Robertson died suddenly at his home on Sunday. Born in Otonabee township 61 years ago, the son of the late James Robertson and Margaret McIntyre, he married Margaret Edwards, who predeceased him 15 years ago.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Victor Edward, Otonabee, Mrs. Fred Cooper and Miss Wilma of Toronto, and Mrs. Donald Manley, Peterborough, and one sister, Miss Mary at home.

Funeral service will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday at his home, Lot 20, concession 2, Otonabee, and will be conducted by Rev. George Murray of Keene United Church. Burial will be in Fife's cemetery.

MRS. ROBERT MACKEY.

Mrs. Robert Mackey, 76, of Norwood, died today in Whitby, following a lengthy illness. She was born in Seymour township, Marjorie May, daughter of the late William Craaighead and Mary Thompson, and has lived a lifetime in Asphodel and Seymour townships.

She leaves her husband, Robert Mackey, and one son Lloyd, both of Norwood. There is one sister, Mrs. Howard Buck (Christina) of Havelock, and two brothers, John Creighead of Belleville and George of Campbellford. Mrs. Mackey was a member of Norwood United Church.

Funeral service will be held on Thursday at the Tedford Funeral Home at 2 p.m. The Rev. E. E. Pugsley will officiate and burial will be at Norwood cemetery.

MISS ANNIE MAUD COLLINS

Miss Annie Maud Collins, of 242 Romaine St., died today at her residence following a lingering illness. She was born in Peterborough, daughter of the late William Collins and Elizabeth Connell, and has lived here a lifetime.

She leaves five sisters, Mrs. Ada Booth, the Misses Mary, Emma and Clara Collins, all of this city, and Mrs. W. L. Gowie (Agnes) of London, Ont. One brother, George, also resides in Peterborough.

Miss Collins was a prominent member of St. James' United Church, a former choir member and, for many years, a Sunday School teacher. She was employed by the Canadian General Electric Company for 48 years in the porcelain department. In that section Miss Collins was head of packing from 1918 until her retirement in 1947. She was a member of the Quarter Century Club.

Funeral service will be held at the Comstock Funeral Home on Thursday, at 2.30 p.m. The Rev. F. W. Craik will officiate and burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Anti-Dumping Laws

OTTAWA, April 18 — (CP)— After asking the question several times, G. K. Fraser, (PC-Peterborough West) Monday in the Commons finally got an answer to whether the government is actually applying anti-dumping laws against Japanese goods.

Directing his question first to Trade Minister Howe, Mr. Fraser was told that Mr. Howe did not administer "dumping."

Redirecting his question to Revenue Minister McCann, Mr. Fraser was told that the government has applied the act on Japanese goods.

Asked whether the law was applied in relation to "fair" Canadian prices or Japanese prices, Finance Minister Abbott replied tersely:

"Read the Act."

the price of basic foodstuffs, and announcing that the costs of the National Health Service must be kept at their present level.

His income tax concession was clearly aimed at assisting Britain's lower paid workers, now restless under the government's wage-freezing policy.

Tax Inquiry

The only further promise of possible relief he gave to taxpayers was that there would be an inquiry into the tax as it affects those in old age and retirement.

Beer drinkers who anticipated a reduction in beer duty were disappointed. The only cheer for them was the Chancellor's announcement that stronger beer is to become available.

Motorists got a break when the Chancellor announced that the gasoline ration, which limits private travel to 90 miles a month, would be doubled. But there was a joker—the tax on gasoline and other light oils is to be increased by 9d (about 10 cents) a gallon, bringing the cost of gasoline to 3ss (45 cents) a gallon.

Car Prices Down

The price of more expensive private automobiles was lowered by easing purchase sales tax from 66 2-3 per cent to 33 1-3 per cent.

Cripps estimated expenditures for the fiscal year beginning last April 1 at £3,455,000,000 ($10,710,500,000). This is slightly higher than last year's expenditures of £3,375,300,000.

He estimated total revenues at £3,896,000,000. This would give a surplus, in ordinary government expenditure, of £441,000,000.

The income rate in higher categories of 9s. in the pound was left unchanged.

The Chancellor turned a cold eye on "all the attractive suggestions put forward for remission of taxation which, if added together, would reach about £1,000,000,000."

Retroactive Tax

He soaked individual industrialists with a retroactive tax that will take almost half of huge bonus payments they received last year in the belief these were tax free.

Hardest hit were automobile bosses Sir John Black, managing director of the Standard Motor Company, and Leonard P. Lord, of Austin Motor Company.

Both received £100,000 payments from their firms last year for promises never to make automobiles for any other firm. Cripps levied surtax on these payments.

No Increase

Of state medicine — under which the government provides fee-less treatment — Cripps said "It is not possible....to permit any over-all increase in the expenditure on the national health service."

He promised, however, not to impose a one shilling charge on each state prescription. This charge was announced last autumn, but had not come into force pending the working out of methods to levy it efficiently.

Cripps fixed a top level of £410,000,000 on food subsidies. No immediate increase in food prices will be necessary, however, because the new ceiling is based on economies already made during the last six months, Cripps said.

Food Better

Food prospects look much better. Cripps noted that 1949 showed "a marked improvement" and the present outlook is good "despite our difficult negotiations with the Argentine."

He said that the better position of Britain's dollar reserves is due largely to sharp cuts in British spending and bigger earnings by colonial areas, such as Malaya and the African colonies.

Last autumn's devaluation of the pound had turned out better than expected, Cripps said.

HOG PRICES

TORONTO, April 18 (CP) — Hog prices have not yet been established this week at Stratford.

Reassessment A Racket Now Dunbar Warning

COBOURG, April 18 (ENS) — Re-assessment has come to be a racket in some places," declared the Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of the Department of Municipal Affairs in an address yesterday to the meeting here of District 5 of the Ontario [illegible] tion. E. A. Hircock of Cobourg was chairman and about 50 assessors were in attendance.

"I want to warn you assessors that re-assessment has come to be a racket and is spreading into the smaller centres. We will not stand for it if we have to go so far as do the assessment work ourselves."

"A man came into my office recently and asked me to recommend that the government permit issuance of debentures down as low as $2,000 for assessment purposes so that he could say to outlying parts, that it was alright to issue debentures for $2,000. No wonder it is becoming a racket.

"We are ready to assist any municipality in assessing, and we helped out in the case of Cobourg's new assessment. Don't let industry threaten to move out of town because their assessment goes up. If they say they will move to another place, remember that no municipality can grant a fixed assessment without a vote of the people. They are just bluffing and it works too," declared Mr. Dunbar.

Speaking in connection with the government assessment manual which is being prepared, Mr. Dunbar said the manual was being compiled to assist assessors but it was admitted that it was not perfect and that it would take years perhaps, before it was. Mr. Dunbar, pointed out that the Assessment Act had been amended so that assessors would be obliged to call twice at a house before the questionnaire was filled out.

The Department was going to see to it that the assessor sees every property that he assesses. Some municipalities were kicking about assessment costs and complained about the cost of the card system, he said, but added that actually the card system cost comparatively little. He urged that the assessor be taught reassessing properly, and with the assistance of the provincial assessor.

When an outside man came in to assess he was not entirely familiar with local conditions and after he left, the local assessor was left with all the worries.

Mr. Dunbar told the meeting that the department would make

No Party, Intruder Charged With Assault

CAMPBELLFORD, April 18 —(ENS)— As Mrs. Thelma Mosthaf, her son, a lady staying in the home as a paying house-guest, and a nephew, were quietly having the usual Sunday evening meal, an intruder disturbed the quiet. He was Fred MacArthur who came to the door and was admitted because his wife is a personal friend of Mrs. Mosthaf. Contrary to a report in Monday's paper, there was no "party" going on at the Mosthaf house Sunday evening. No drinks had been served.

As soon as MacArthur entered the house, it was apparent that he was in an unruly mood. Mrs. Mosthaf thereupon phoned his wife, and Mrs. MacArthur came over to take her husband home. When Mrs. MacArthur arrived, he became belligerent, refused to go out quietly, and a fracas ensued. As a result the police were called and the man was taken away.

At the request of the police, charges were laid against MacArthur. The charges read out in police court on Monday were of assaulting two women and one man, the complainants being his wife, P. Ingram, and Mrs. Mostaf.

MacArthur was released on $300 bail, and will be tried April 27th.

Two Men Killed

MONTMAGNY, Que., April 18. (CP)—Two men were killed in a highway accident near here Monday. Rene Raymond, 27, driver of Veterans' Taxicab from Montreal, died in hospital at Lewis, Que. The second man killed, who was riding in the same car, was not immediately identified. It was not known if other passengers were in the car.

show the "slightest evidence of any concern" over the fate of the 10 missing Americans.

He praised the non-communist Scandinavian countries for their active efforts in the rescue search.

More sharply worded than the note itself, the supplementary statement also said Russia "ostentatiously" decorated the Soviet airmen "in a manner calculated to give the impression that they are being rewarded for shooting down an American airplane."

It declared the Soviet government's attitude all through the investigation "shows clearly the insincerity of its oft-proclaimed desire for peaceful relations with the United States and the non-Soviet world in general."

Has Appointment

In Moscow Ambassador Kirk had an appointment with Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister, Andrei A. Gromyko, at 9 a.m., EST, to deliver the note.

The state department made the note public here later following Moscow's procedure in publishing the initial protest April 11.

In their original protest, the Russians described the plane as of the B-29 type.

Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky said it ignored orders over Soviet territory to land and fired on Soviet planes. He said a Russian plane returned the fire and the American plane disappeared toward the sea.

Trading Is Brisk In Mining Stocks

TORONTO, April 18.—(CP).—Mining stocks traded briskly and prices slowly climbed as the session progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today. Base metal showed the widest gains and golds and base metals brightened slightly in the brisk activity. Volume for the first three hours was 1,832,000 shares.

Nicholson Mines, a uranium prospect, slumped six cents at 69 cents in heavy trading following news of increases in the price for uranium oxide. Evidently the market had expected the increases. In recent weeks, Nicholson gained strongly. Senior golds were brighter and a few junior producers added pennies.

Consolidated Smelters and Hudson Bay featured base metals with fractional advances. Waite Amulet gained 35 cents at $8.85 and Sherritt Gordon and Golden Manitou were higher.

Scattered fractional advances among a few leading industrials pulled that list higher for a second successive session. Liquors, papers and steels brightened, while utilities, textiles and banks eased.

Royalite added ⅝ at 13⅜ in a quet western oil list.

British Election May Hinge On New Budget

LONDON, April 18 (CP)—The Labor government unwraps its new budget today. For Britons it will bring them good or bad news—whether steep taxes on business and the well-to-do will remain; whether the working man will get some concessions.

What it contains will possibly spur the Conservatives to drive for a new general election.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will announce any changes in taxes, now taking about 45 per cent of the national income.

Britons now pay income tax at a rate ranging from three shillings in the pound at the lowest level to 19s. 6d. at the top super-tax level. The basic rate of income tax is 45 per cent after the usual dependents' allowances.

The budget covers the fiscal year starting April 1 of this year.

Sir Stafford has a surplus of £62,000,000 ($192,200,000) for the 1949-50 fiscal year.

The new budget gave Winston Churchill's Conservatives a major issue on which to attack Prime Minister Attlee's government. Holding power by a mere four-seat majority in the 625-seat Commons, the government must re-found an alarm clock wired to ignite a box of matches, which in turn would explode several gallons of gasoline contained in design if outvoted on a major issue.

The budget will be debated through Monday. But political observers do not expect the Tories to press for a vote until the finance bill based on the budget comes up in about two weeks.

There appeared little room for any spectacular tax cuts.

The government already has estimated its expenditures for the 1950-51 fiscal year at more than £3,000,000,000.

Sir Stafford will make a broadcast tonight to explain the budget to the public. Oliver Stanley, a leading Conservative member of Parliament, will give the opposition view in a broadcast tomorrow.

Rotarians Told Of Protection For Businessmen

CAMPBELLFORD April 18 — (ENS)—Art Harkness, manager of the Toronto Better Business Bureau was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club meeting Monday Mr Harkness spoke on The Public Service of Private Business He told of the formation of the Better Business Bureau and the services it renders the public

The slogan of the bureau was Investigate Before You Invest. In other words, said Mr Harkness, don't buy any "moose-pasture" mining stock. The backbone of the organization was the protection of the public against fraudulent practices and false advertising.

The National Advertising Club of Boston in 1911, began a war on false advertising. The idea caught on and theB.B.B was an outcome of this.

There were about 100 branches of the B.B.B. in the United States and about seven in Canada

The bureau was a non-profit organization with no legal, political or judicial power, did not promote any business or organization, was constructive and impartial in its judgments. Services were rendered free of charge to the public. It was supported by business organizations

About 26,000 complaints and queries are handled each year by the Toronto office and most are ironed out by bringing buyer and seller together wherever this is possible. Mr. Harkness explained If this fails, tnen the bureau steps in and takes steps to prevent further trouble.

Mr. Harkness likened today's racketeers to those mentioned in the Bible. He told of a couple of instances whereby the law could do nothing about false advertising prior to the passing of the Federal Trade Commission Act and later the Federal Drug Act and the Securities and Exchange Act.

In one case an advertiser said he would sell one complete sewing machine delivered to the door for 25 cents. Those who answered the add were mailed one ordinary needle. Another case was stated whereby an individual guaranteed to deliver one genuine steel engraving of a famous general of the time for the ridiculously low price of 25 cents and those who replied were mailed a Canadian one cent stamp.

The bureau saved purchasers more than a quarter of a million dollars last year and from time to time puts out informative booklets on a host of subjects, advising the public on everything from how to save on coal consumption, to used car and stock swindling.

Rotarian Franklin Linton thanked Mr. Harkness for his informative talk, and asked President Charles Calvert to express the thanks of the club The speaker was introduced by Walter Wiggins

Jim Heathcoate reported he had selected a committee to look after an auction sale the club plans to sponsor. It is hoped to be able to have the sale in the near future. It will be one means of raising money.

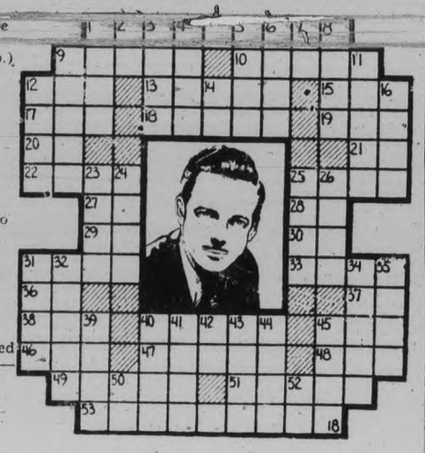
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Not Democratic

TOKYO, April 18 — (AP) — Democracy's inroads aren't universal.

The Japan Public Opinion Research Institute said today 28 per cent of Japanese husbands still yell "Oi" to summon their wives.

"Oi," is the equivalent of "Hey, you!"

Slaughter Poultry

NEW WESTMINSTER, BC., April 18. (CP) — Thousands of head of poultry have been slaughtered in an attempt to stamp out Newcastle Disease which threatens the $15,000,000 poultry industry in the Fraser Valley. Nearly 50,000 birds have been killed by inspectors of the Dominion Health of Animals branch. The Dominion Poultry Branch is paying farmers two-thirds of the loss.

Coroner's Inquest

MONTREAL, April 18. (CP)—A coroner's inquest will be held here today into the death of 18-month-old Pierre Lacas whose body was recovered from the St. Lawrence River Sunday, police reported Monday. Key witness will be Mrs. Joseph Lacas, 51, who told police three months ago that she had drowned the child and his three-year-old brother Jean to prevent their unmarried mother from placing them in a foster home.

Montreal Air Attack

MONTREAL, April 18. (CP)—Toronto and Hamilton will "secretly" attack Montreal by air next week-end — but it will be all in fun. Vampire fighter aircraft of No. 400 Squadron of Toronto and No. 424 Squadron of Hamilton will try to return the licking they took last fall when Montreal planes of the RCAF swooped over Toronto and area in a Montreal-Toronto air exercise.

Fish Frozen In Lake

BEAVERTON, April 18—(CP)—Thousands of fish were frozen in ice during the winter freeze-up of water in the Trent Canal north of here. The canal will be filled with water for the opening of the navigation season May 15.

Cabinet Asked To Consider New Canada Flag

OTTAWA, April 18 (CP)—The Commons asked the Cabinet Monday night to consider establishment of a committee to report on choice of a distinctive Canadian flag. However, informed quarters indicated no such committee will be established at this session

There were no dissenting voices in the sparsely-filled chamber as a private member's motion by Jean Richard (L, Ottawa East) was adopted after brief debate. The only speakers were Mr. Richard and Bona Arsenault (L, Bonaventure).

Outside the chamber, government sources said it is unlikely the cabinet will act on the resolution. They noted that Prime Minister St. Laurent recently told a Labor delegation Canadian opinion still has not crystallized on the flag issue.

Nothing Happened

The debate recalled a government motion in 1945 which led to establishment of a joint Senate-Commons committee to report on a distinctive flag. The committee sat, got hundreds of suggestions but nothing tangible came of its deliberations.

As the chamber studied private members' motions at the night sitting, it also quickly endorsed one by Mr. Arsenault seeking establishment of a distinctive Canadian system of medals and decorations. His motion asked that consideration be given to the advisability of setting up a special House committee to report on such a system.

It, too, recalled something from the past—creation of the Canada Medal for award to Canadians and non-Canadians for especially meritorious service to the nation. It was agreed about years ago, but not a single one has ever been awarded.

The Government sources said the matter is under consideration.

Misuse Of The Mails

The arbitrary action of the Postmaster-General, the Hon. Edouard Rinfret, in denying the use of the mails to a number of Toronto firms has provoked wide discussion. A section of the press has concentrated on the manner in which this action was taken, and has expressed strong disapproval. Nevertheless, after reading the article on the subject in the current issue of The Financial Post we feel that the firms concerned got off lightly; it would have been much more unpleasant for them if action for fraud had been entered against them. They were using the mails, if not to defraud, at least to distribute misleading and disingenuous information about investments. The Postmaster-General's action, if high-handed, also contained an element of mercy.

* * *

The investment houses which have been denied use of the mails were distributing this sort of thing: offers of gold stocks on mines which had not been properly investigated, but with fancy claims based upon small samples of ore; exaggerated information about the prospects of an oil company; offers of shares in an untested gold field at a price higher than that prevailing in the open market; offers of shares in a forest industries company which owned no property; uranium stocks, accompanied by glowing and unsupported claims for the future of that substance. Such offers are simply bait to catch suckers.

* * *

Indirectly, such offers are a proof of the prosperity of Canada at present. Habitual investors do not buy such stocks. They study the market closely, they buy through one broker, and they keep away from offers of huge profit. Further, successful investors do not buy, for instance, gold stocks without knowing something about gold mining and without the best assurances that the mine in which they are investing has a reasonable chance of producing respectable quantities of high-grade ore. The companies which have been denied the use of the mails were attempting to appeal to an inexperienced type of investor—the sort of person who is found only in good times when people of modest means have capital to lay out. Such people are usually investing their savings, or insurance money, or some other capital which they would be wise to put in bonds or in the bank. They do not understand the stock market, and it is not a safe place for them to experiment. They only become adventurous when times are good, and in their inexperience and, it must also be said, their greed for big and quick returns, they are game for all sorts of dubious investments. They deserve protection, and the Postmaster-General, by sudden and rather arbitrary action, has given it to them. It would not be a good thing if this power were used too often, but we do not think that anyone can say that in this instance it has been misused.

Millions More To Feed

The population of the world increased 9.3 per cent. from 1937 to 1947. (This estimate does not include the U.S.S.R. for which accurate statistics are not available.) In the same period world food production increased by only two per cent. The disparity between the two spells death from starvation to hundreds of thousands of people.

Our Bip Pares map and graph on this page show the situation by continental zones. It is notable that in the area of the largest population—Asia—and in the most densely populated continent—Europe—the increase in the production of foods is least. In Europe the situation is due to the dislocations of the war—including the destruction of arable land and tilling machinery. In Asia the lack of food production for the millions is due first to the high natural increase in population, and to resistance to change of traditional agricultural methods.

Although the rate of food production has increased slightly since 1947, the rate is not sufficient to keep pace with the annual one per cent. increase in world population. Before the war large populations, particularly in Asia, were seriously undernourished. The situation is now more critical, and will increase in gravity until these underfed nations either decrease their annual birth rates or get more food by better production methods and through help from areas where food is in good supply—for instance, South and North America. These two continents are in the dollar area, and economists seem unable to devise any permanent ways of marketing American surpluses in Asia, and even in the poorly-fed parts of [illegible]

The United States effort to assist underdeveloped nations to help themselves may in time improve the situation. According to Mr. Colin Clarke, who recently addressed U.N., world food production is theoretically capable of an annual fifteen per cent. increase. Practically, this increase cannot be reached because of lack of labour, machinery and scientific knowledge in many parts of the world. Within the next twenty years, however, if western nations and the U.S.S.R. spread their knowledge, machinery and teachers to the more poorly developed regions, where the largest populations are often to be found, the rate of food production may be pushed from the low 0.2 per cent. increase into line with the one per cent. increase in population; or the rate of population increase may be checked to bring parity with the food supply.

Peterborough Discovers The Pleasures of Painting

"One is never tired of painting, because you have to set down, not what you knew already, but what you have just discovered. There is a continual creation out of nothing going on". William Hazlitt, writing on The Pleasure of Painting, said this more than a hundred years ago. It was said Thursday evening in other words by one of the amateur painters at the Peterborough Men's Sketch Club's fourteenth annual exhibition. It is evident in the happiness with which they go at their hobby, as well as in the pleasing results achieved, that this small group of local industrial, business and professional men, find pleasure and refreshment in brush and palette.

More and more people are turning their hands to painting, finding in it not only relaxation, but that the struggle to bridge the gap between conception and realization is an absorbing, creative task which banishes other cares and gives, in some measure, a satisfying sense of achievement. A box of paint, a brush and an open eye, are the chief requirements, and only essential ones, to start a person on the road to this rewarding pastime.

Although the members of the Men's Sketch Club are very modest about their work, and insist that they are just people painting for fun, their progress in technique and subject-matter is strikingly evident when one compares the present show with their work of a dozen years ago. And even if they were only "killing time" with a paint brush out of doors under the summer sun, it seems to us at least as socially praiseworthy as killing animals with a shot-gun or fish with a gaff.

Hazlitt says in the essay from which we have quoted above that "The most sensible men I know, taken as a class, are painters; that is, they are the most lively observers of what passes in the world about them, and the close observers of what passes in their own heads." It is not unduly flattering to the members of the Men's Sketch Club, and to the goodly number of other amateur painters in the city and district, to say that they are "sensible men".

Truman Faces Major Political Test

From LEIGH STROUT
In Washington

THE colourful ritual of American politics requires that in the next three weeks (on May 7) President Truman should start out in a special Pullman railway coach with windows so thick they will stop machine-gun bullets, hitched to a special train one-third of a mile long, and make a barn-storming tour across 3,000 miles of the American continent. The trip will be made primarily for political purposes but will be called "non-political". It will test Mr. Truman's personal hold on the [illegible] moment in domestic and world affairs. Every major newspaper will have its representative aboard to gauge reaction. In fact, it is the first move in the 1950 Congressional campaign in which each of the 435 members of the lower House and one-third of the 96 Senators come up for election in November.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE technical task of routing the Presidential train over the rivers and mountains of America at full speed without disrupting normal traffic is as complicated as moving a circus. The train will have 16 huge American Pullmans, the last one being reserved for the President himself. This looks like the others but weighs half as much again because it is armour-plated. The window-panes seem normal but are three inches thick. Mr. Truman will come out to speak on the rear platform from which loudspeakers may conveniently be slung out. He will address the crowds along the way as well as make four or five formal addresses. Indeed, the train is a great publicity organism. It carries one Pullman which is used wholly as a Press car. It is possible to sit in this coach with a typewriter and hear everything Mr. Truman is saying to the crowd in the rear by means of amplifiers installed in the ceiling.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is always an enclave of British correspondents on these trips; men experienced in the curious ways of America and able to talk the special tongue of politics in two languages. The cartoonist David Low was along in 1948. There are Canadians also, and often an Australian or two.

✧ ✧ ✧

FEW experiences give such insight into America. The train leaves the eastern seaboard that Europe knows, crosses the Alleghanies (mountains), rumbles over the fat, flat cornbelt busy with spring ploughing, reaches the Mississippi, rushes by moonlight over the prairie sagebrush, climbs the long, slow, lonely midcontinent rise with an extra engine tugging in front. Then it reaches the Great Divide and hurtles down through one or another of the West Coast mountain passes where the floor of the valley is a mile high, the sky seems close enough to touch and all the streams are cascading suddenly in the other direction toward the Pacific.

✧ ✧ ✧

MR. Truman is not up for re-election himself this autumn. His Party is, however, and his own political prestige is deeply involved. At the "mid-term" campaign now opening it is not uncommon for the party currently in power to lose some seats. A "normal" reduction in the House might be 20 or 25. Since the Democrats now have 261 seats to the Republican's 169, a loss no greater than this would still leave the Truman Administration in control. But the Republicans hope for something very much bigger.

✧ ✧ ✧

FROM the standpoint of the outside world the chief danger to be feared is one of those two-year intervals of political stalemate which are possible under the American Governmental system where the President belongs to one party and the legislature to another. Such an interval occurred in 1946 when the Republicans won control of the Lower House in the mid-term election. They were able to exercise a virtual veto on Mr. Truman until his unexpected re-election in 1948.

✧ ✧ ✧

AMERICAN political issues are still primarily over domestic problems, though Senator McCarthy's charges about alleged Communist infiltration into the State Department have emotionalized some aspects of foreign affairs. Europe and its problems seem far away to interior America and most newspapers give only the sketchiest accounts of Messrs. Attlee and Churchill. Canadian affairs are equally disregarded. On the American home political front the differences divide in a general way between liberals and conservatives but here again it is not easy to follow them from a European standpoint. Constituencies often elect Congressmen on purely local issues. Where there are only two political parties in a continent-sized country the issues that separate the rivals tend to blur, particularly at these mid-term elections. The rival parties become in themselves coalitions. The electorate is apt to use its vote to express its local economic grievances.

✧ ✧ ✧

AMERICAN farmers are anxious about shakily balanced government-support prices. Workers want an expansion of unemployment insurance and the social reform legislation which Roosevelt instituted. Businessmen are genuinely concerned over the unbalanced budget, they want taxes and government expenses pruned. The middle-income group continues to feel a housing shortage and Mr. Truman will denounce the political coalition which defeated his housing aid bill and which threatens Federal rent controls.

MR. Truman's big trip will be educational and denunciatory. He will denounce his political enemies. And he will try to explain such matters as the Marshall Plan and Asiatic policy in his own programme. It is too soon to predict the outcome. The American mood is divided. It craves economy but faces extraordinary defence costs. It resents the burden of aiding an obscure outside world but at the same time feels a sense of insecurity unparalleled in peacetime. As much as anything, it is Mr. Truman's effort now to reconcile these conflicting desires in language which the voters—most of whom have never seen salt water or heard surf rolling up a beach—can understand.

When Peter McArthur Wrote For Truth

(WILFRID EGGLESTON IN THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

COPIES of the humorous New York weekly, Truth, for the years 1895-6-7 were recently turned over to the Parliamentary Library at Ottawa by Dan McArthur, news editor of the CBC. Truth, which older readers will remember as a kind of a forerunner of The New Yorker, was said to be the first paper ever printed by photo colour process.

Its interest for Canadians in that period is due to the fact that Peter McArthur became its assistant editor in March, 1895, editor-in-chief a few months later; and that during his term of office he encouraged the work of several budding Canadian authors.

Stephen Leacock, for example, contributed his first humorous sketches to Truth during McArthur's tenure there; indeed, in the annual issues 1895-97 it is possible to trace the evolution of Leacock from the earliest faltering and self-conscious efforts to the assured impudence of "Boarding-House Geometry," a skit which saw the light in Truth in 1897 (April 15) and which marks his first palpable triumph as a wit of international reputation.

No fewer than fifteen signed contributions by Leacock appeared in the magazine during the months when McArthur was editor; and there were in addition a good many, it may be surmised, slighter anecdotes and jokes which were used unsigned.

Peter McArthur himself appears in a dozen pieces during the same period, indentifiable either by initials or full name. At first these were sophisticated urban pieces, not of great interest today, obviously written as a chore rather than a pleasure. But on August 29th, 1896, the McArthur we came to know so well in The Toronto Globe rural essays emerges briefly in a simple and winsome "Farm Song."

The decade of the 1890's was a period when Canadian literary figures flocked to New York as homesick expatriates, or residents of Canada forwarded their contributions there. Leacock was teaching languages at Upper Canada College; Roberts and Carman were living in New York, Lampman and Duncan Campbell Scott were comparing poetic notes as civil servants at Ottawa. All of these appear in the columns of Truth, at times given outstanding play.

IT was in Truth, issue of December 14th, 1895, that perhaps the most famous poem of Scott's first appeared. It was "The Piper of Arll" and occupied a double-page spread at the centre of the magazine, with six illustrations gracefully composed and arranged with the verses to provide what must have been one of the greatest moments of Scott's life.

Three of Lampman's poems first appeared in Truth; all of them short and slight. Charles G. D. Roberts contributed eight. Most of these were like McArthur's poems and sketches; light urban magazine concoctions, meant to be read once and forgotten; but on September 5th, 1896, Roberts also grows nostalgic for his boyhood haunts with "The Stack Behind the Barn."

Bliss Carman contributed the same number, eight, during McArthur's incumbency. None of them rose much above the kind of ephemeral magazine verse or potboiler one would expect in such a setting. McArthur had to remember his audience.

But the loyalty of the Canadian editor to his field can be gauged by the issue of April 22nd, 1897, when three successive pages of the magazine bore submissions by Roberts, Leacock and Scott.

Those were momentous days for Peter McArthur. A month after he had become editor-in-chief and the manager of Truth he was married to Miss Mabel C. Waters, of Niagara, Ontario.

✧ ✧ ✧

The McArthurs stayed in London for a couple of years and then went back to New York, where Peter became interested in advertising. He was one of the first of the "idea" men. He started an agency of his own, but ran into difficulty in the financial crash of 1907.

✧ ✧ ✧

It was then that he returned to the old homestead at Ekfrid, from which he wrote those rural letters in The Toronto Globe and The Farmer's Advocate which are amongst the most charming essays in Canadian literature.

Habitant Syrup Farmer Taps Unique Sugar Bush

By BERNARD DUERESNE

QUEBEC, April 18.—(CP)—Farmer Leon Jacques of St. Joseph-de Beauce, has begun tapping the trees in his uniquely planned maple grove, collecting on an idea his father had 38 years ago.

Every spring maple sugaring time in Quebec province about 2,500 farmers tap an estimated 21,000,000 trees on their land, an operation which brings the about $7,000,000 annually. The watery sap is boiled down to rich maple syrup and sugar.

Most farmers profit by the industry because nature has placed maple trees on their farmlands.

But for the Jacques family maple sugaring has become a well-planned, long-term, business for they planted their own maple trees.

Joseph Jacques, Leon's father, planted about a dozen maple trees in 1912, as they grew he added more every year. Now, Jacques has a 2,500-tree grove on his farm about 15 miles south of Quebec.

Jacques tapped only about 300 trees this year because it takes about 35 years for a maple tree to reach maturity and produce maple sap. However, he expects to tap about 600 next year.

Farmer Jacques is working toward the betterment of his maple sugar operations. Like most maple sugar [illegible] bought more than 300 two-gallon aluminum pails with which to catch the sap from the trees. These aluminum receptacles replace the old tin ones formerly used.

The change has been subsidized by Federal and Provincial governments because the lead alloy welding of the old tin pails affected the maple syrup's flavor. Though not harmful, foreign particles left by the alloy were an obstacle to maple syrup exports to the United States.

Earl Carries Banner For U.K. Model Railwaymen

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Several thousand British youngsters (ages approximately three to 90) lost a certain self-consciousness about their hoppy the other day—the 11th Earl of Northesk had put it on a new plane.

The nobleman chose the opening of the Model Railway's Club's annual show in Central Hall, Westminster, to announce he is extending his interest in the pastime in a big way.

Already a keen railway modeller, as they're known here, he said his next project is the construction of an outdoor model on his 250-acre Berkshire farm. If the train bothered his prize herd of Guernsey cows, it would be just too bad—for them.

Members, accustomed to taunts of "kids stuff," "so you play with toy trains," and the like, took new courage from Lord Northesk's plans.

Makes All Himself

There will be 3,000 feet of track—nickel steel to resist weather. His collection of locomotives, 200 freight cars and 50 passenger cars—all made by himself, will be increased.

The 49-year-old enthusiast, former officer of the Coldstream Guards, was one of several hundred Model Railway Club members whose present trackage in Westminster Hall runs to several miles' length, with more than 3,000 models on display.

Most of the exhibits are landscaped and some underline the model railroaders' passion for realism by being replicas of slices of the British countryside.

Similarly with models — built on scales varying from two to seven millimetres, with greater number favoring four—is detailed reproduction noted.

Not Nationalized

Unification of Britain's former private companies into state-owned British railways, whose policy is operation with a few standard types of locomotives, is regretted by club members who still draw for models on the individual lines evolved by the old systems.

Attendance last year at the club's show exceeded 30,000 with a 50-50 proportion between adults and children.

Lord Northesk, commenting on the number of adults who get a bang from the hobby, said:

"My wife thinks all model makers slightly mad, but I must say she is very reasonable."

Canada's Oil Becoming Free Of U.S. Control

LONDON, April 18 (Reuters)—The Conservative Daily Express says in an editorial today there is "a lesson for Britain" in Canada's efforts to make all her western area, independent of United States oil supplies.

The paper, of which the controlling shareholder is Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook, said that in Canada "adventures, under the influence of progressive and enterprising company directors, are in process of making all western Canada independent of the United States in respect of oil supplies.

"Ten years ago such a project would have been considered impossible of fulfilment. Five years ago it was still a plan."

Now, from Alberta, oil gushes forth in abundance. By the end of next year Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, and Western Ontario will need no oil from the United States. And as soon as pipe lines are laid, other provinces will join them in their independence."

Youths Appeal Case

MONTREAL, April 18. (CP) — Three youths, each sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary on a charge of rape, Monday appeared before the Court of Appeal for the second time in five weeks to plead their own case against conviction. William J. Quail, Frank Holmes and his brother Thomas, appealed in vain last March 15 when they sought to "reconstruct" the records of their case. They claimed then that court records had been falsified in part.

Wind Saves Ship

HALIFAX, April 18. (CP) — A chance shift in the wind saved the disabled 2,861-ton freighter Federal Trader from possible disaster on the treacherous, shifting sands of Sable Island which have already claimed more than 200 vessels. This was the story Capt. Donald Butterwick of Sydney, NS, told reporters Monday night. His ship was towed into port by the ocean-going tug Foundation Vera after drifting 19½ hours.

Uranium Price Supported Until 1958

TORONTO, April 18 (CP) — Canadian mining men expect to learn today what kind of a boost will be given to the hunt for uranium, from which comes atomic energy.

The details are expected from W. J. Bennett, president of the Federal government's Eldorado Mining and Refining, Limited, who will speak to the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Already, from Ottawa, they have learned something. Trade Minister Howe Monday told the House of Commons that the period of a guarantee [illegible] tended from March 31, 1955, to March 31, 1958.

He also said that Eldorado has established a formula to be used as the basis for negotiating special prices above the present $2.75 a pound for uranium oxides, and that the details will be announced shortly.

It is these details which Mr. Bennett is expected to announce today in an address which shows on the program as "remarks on purchasing policy."

At Monday's opening session of the three-day mining convention Hon. Welland S. Gemmell, Ontario Minister of Mines, advocated a higher uranium price.

W. H. Losee of the Bureau of Statistics, said Canadian mineral production rose last year to an all-time high of $890,000,000.

Brickcote
COMES TO PETERBOROUGH

We are pleased to announce the appointment of

D. LAWRIE MAHOOD
539 KING GEORGE ST. DIAL 22290
as authorized representatives

★ YOU CAN'T TELL THE DIFFERENCE FROM BRICK!

Brickcote is a patented superior brick finish — a masonry brick coating that duplicates the appearance, permanence and durability of actual brick. It can be applied in patterns, soldier courses, wire cut designs, etc. It even looks and feels like brick!

★ AVAILABLE IN REGULAR BRICK COLOURS!

All the regular brick colours of red, white, rust and buff are obtainable in Brickcote — which is made of powdered brick and other ingredients. Brickcote offers new beauty for new and old homes!

★ COSTS BUT A FRACTION OF A BRICK JOB!

With Brickcote, you do not need hard-to-get materials or expensive skilled labour. You also save time, since in most cases a complete house can be finished in a day. Lastly, you save money — a complete Brickcote job put up by a special crew costs much less than a regular brick job.

CONTINENTAL POLIO PROTECTION ACCLAIMED BY PARENTS!

PAYMENT OF ACCIDENT, SICKNESS AND TIME-LOSS CLAIMS HITS AN ALL-TIME HIGH!

CONTINENTAL PROTECTS RECORD NUMBER OF CANADIANS!

FINANCIAL STATEMENT SHOWS CONTINENTAL IN SOUND POSITION!

Your Continental Casualty man reports on 1949!

1949 was a year of achievement for Continental . . . a year in which the Company for the first time offered Canadians protection against the medical expenses of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis), one of mankind's most feared diseases.

Public reaction to this new protection was overwhelming. Thousands of families are now covered by the Continental Polio Protection Plan . . . thousands more will take advantage of its benefits in 1950. We urge you not to wait until headlines are telling the tragic stories of polio victims. Mail the coupon below TODAY! It will bring you details of how a $5 premium for an individual . . . a $10 premium for a family provides up to $5000 protection against polio-incurred expenses for a full two-year period.

The Polio Protection Plan, of course, is only one example of Continental's Better Health Insurance. The Company's reputation for prompt settlement of claims and unexcelled service to policyholders is based on the sound financial structure depicted in the accompanying annual statement.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

An interesting exhibition puck game is slated for 8.30 tonight in Civic Arena between IOOF and the Petes, proceeds going to the PMHA. A number of pro pucksists will strengthen the local squads, along with chaps like Red Sullivan, Jake Wade, Arn Dugan, etc. With Dit Clapper and Reg Hamilton referees. Sid Smith of Leafs will be here and possibly Turk Broda and one or two more, if they can make it. Also there will be that much-talked-about skating race with [illegible] for a prize of an [illegible]. Pete Crowley, Murray Fife, Bill McMaster, Joe Blewett, Junior West, Joe Nolan, Red Sullivan, Arn Dugan and Keith Montgomery, if his leg is okay. Should be quite an evening's entertainment and rates a big crowd.

Some notes from Al Rose's Brantford column after he spent a few days here last week: "The Liftlock City must be a glorious place in the summer time. And the immense size of the C.G.E. plant and the machines almost knocked me out. Dave Kerr has the Empress Hotel and it promises to be one of the best in the east. Called on Dit Clapper, Bert Lockington, Fred Shaw, T. G. M. Jamieson and others. A lot of Killingbecks in Pete town. Cec. Perdue, Examiner sports editor, has a big chore. The city is a hotbed of lacrosse. Fitzgerald of St. Catharines has been hired to teach the youngsters how to play. He will also play with the senior club. Senior baseball will go well, too, with new lights this year."

"Big Athletic Centre"

And he adds: "It's a big athletic centre. It has the famed girls' ornamental swimming club that makes a big hit in the U.S.A. The basketball team bowed to the Soo Algos in the northern city. That's the team that missed the Grads this year. It has the money set aside for a new civic arena and is just about ready to get going if the men interested can agree on a site. Their present rink is small, like ours, with the fire marshal's restrictions keeping them out. We enjoyed the visit and feel that much that has been said by the ex-Peterborough residents is not exaggeration." Well, thanks, Al, and come up this way often.

Late arrival, too much steak and a slow start—how are those for alibis for Legion's one-sided loss last eve in Brantford? Took 'em half the game to hit their old form, and then 'twas much too late. The rugged Nats only outscored them 3-2 the last two periods, but, brother, that first frame! A 6-1 breeze for the Brants and that was that. Bus trouble here started things off wrong, and they were late getting away in private cars. One car gave trouble en route, and then the tired players decided to eat shortly before arriving in Brantford. No pre-game warmup, and bingo! the Nats struck savagely right from the faceoff. Legion couldn't do anything right that first 20 minutes whilst the Nats couldn't miss. A sad tale, indeed.

"Hungry And Hustling"

"They'll hit the ice Wednesday on time, and they'll be hungry and hustling," Coach Jim Ellis promised grimly afterward. He left later than the team, and found they had shoved their supper hour back till around seven o'clock. Whereas in the first game there, Jim had supper over by 4.30, and they were stepping fast from the start of the game. It makes a difference against a big, fast and smart squad in final playoffs. Ah, well, just a bad game for the Legion, and the series is only tied now at two each. Legion still have a fighting chance if they keep hustling Wednesday. It'll be in Brantford, too, as they insisted yesterday that the toss was for the fifth—as well as the seventh—whether or not it was a possible deciding game. The OHA backed 'em on this, so they won't show back here until this Friday p.m. That could well be the deciding one either way.

Mrs. Fred Bibby of Toronto, president of the LOBA, who attended that Stratford-Towne Togs' girls' cage playoff here Saturday, has informed local officials that a report from Stratford is quite incorrect. She denies emphatically that she was dissatisfied with the refereeing here — when Togs took the title—and she intends demanding a retraction of this report. As often happens in hoop playoffs, the losing team is too ready to launch a protest against the officiating. Stratford YW can follow suit, but they certainly shouldn't misinform the public and misquote the association president into the bargain. That just isn't cricket.

Church Softball

A belated notice to the press calls for a re-organization meeting tonight at 7:30 in the YMCA for the Church Softball League. All churches are urged to have representatives so that the church boys may be benefitted. If the regular representative cannot make it to this meeting, he is asked to send another interested person in order that the summer sport may get started properly now.

Volleyballers Go

The YMCA Volleyball League finished its schedule with the following teams making playoffs: Cliff Cadd with 67 points, Howard David 56, Albert Dryland 50, Steve Csumrik 34. Play is for the Lillico Trophy with playoffs as follows on Saturday: Cadd vs. Dryland at 2:30, David vs. Csumrik at 3:15, and winners in final at 4:30.

CAHA Secretary Has No Details Of Two Protests

MIDLAND, April 18 — (CP) — George S. Dudley, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Monday night he is awaiting details of two protests arising from alleged use of ineligible players in eastern Canada playoffs.

Thurso Lumber Kings, he said, have not yet replied to a protest lodged by Rouyn Flashes. Rouyn, eliminated by Thurso in the intermediate playoffs, charged that right-winger Maurice Gougeon, of Thurso, was ineligible because he was not released by Pembroke Lumber Kings until after the Dec. 15 transfer date.

Dudley said he also is awaiting the formal protest of Montreal Canadiens about Guelph Biltmores' use of Cliff Hicks, Jerry Theberge and Andy Bathgate in Memorial Cup competition. Canadiens claim the three are "illegal imports."

Canadiens now lead Guelph, two games to one, in a best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canada junior title.

Biltmores Deny

At Guelph, Roy Mason, manager of the Biltmores, Monday night denied that three of his players are ineligible. Frank Dilio, registrar of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, had said earlier he would file a protest with Mr. Dudley that the three are illegal imports.

"Dilio is talking through his hat," Mason said. "It's funny we played two games in Montreal and there was no mention of a protest," he said.

The Guelph manager hinted that he has evidence that will prove one Montreal player, defenceman Kev Conway, is beyond the junior age limit. He said he will present his claim to W. A. Hewitt, CAHA registrar-treasurer, in Toronto.

The final resumes in Toronto tonight with the fifth game reverting to Montreal.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

This incident happened about 10 years ago, and it is as true a story as ever came out of the curling rink.

For personal reasons we will call our friend, Mr. A. It was early in the season and was Mr. A's first appearance since his recent marriage. The boys were gathering for the usual Saturday afternoon bonspiel and were anxious to get started.

In due time the rinks were chosen and the curlers went out on the ice. When they had completed their three 5-end games, and when all scores were recorded it was found that the rink on which Mr. A. was playing had finished in first place. This meant that each member of the rink would receive a chicken for their efforts. When all the winners received their prizes — the boys went home and the rink was closed for the supper hour.

When we arrived at the rink that evening there were many on hand for the usual Saturday night mixed 'spiel. We noticed in the gathering our Mr. A. and asked him if he would care to join in the games, this evening. He replied, somewhat shyly, that he didn't think so. Soon the rinks were drawn up and all went out and began playing. It wasn't very long before Mr. A. began walking towards us and as he did so we noticed he was looking all around, just to make sure nobody else was near. As he approached he said very timidly: "Mr. Martin, my wife sent me back with this chicken, she wants you to clean it."

Even to this day when we pass our friend on the street there seems to be an understanding between us.

We believe that the lady curlers had one grand time at their annual banquet, last Thursday evening.

Sunday Sports Passes In Toronto

TORONTO, April 18 (CP) — A by-law permitting Sunday baseball at Toronto's Maple Leaf Stadium was passed Monday by city council. The council turned down an amendment that would have required the stadium to charge half-price for admission on Sunday.

The Sunday Sports Act passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature, allowed municipalities to decide by a referendum vote whether they will allow sports to be played on Sunday. Each municipality may pass by a by-law setting out which sports may be played. Sports may be played Sunday only between the hours of 1:30 p.m. and 6:00 p.m.

The Toronto by-law so far allows only the playing of baseball in the stadium. Amendments may be introduced to permit other sports in other locations. The by-law specifies no inning may be started after 5:50 p.m. The provincial act specifies that times set down will be standard or daylight time whichever happens to be in effect in the municipality.

The first scheduled Sunday baseball game is an International League May 7 between the Toronto Maple Leafs and Jersey City Little Giants.

Committee To Pick Petes' Puck Officers

A nominating committee to bring in a suggested slate of officers was appointed last night at the annual meeting of the Peterboronugh Hockey Club. It was a well-attended session with a large number of players present, including some juniors, Joe Nolan of Belleville—here also for lacrosse—Jake Wade and Arn Dugan, the latter two playing their hockey away from here last year.

The nominating committee consists of Robert (Red) Creighton, Bill McMaster, Johnny Russelle, and Baz Phelan. The latter, along with Sam Miceli, Red Creighton, and Fred Scates were delegated to attend the annual OHA meeting in Toronto on April 29. The local club again nominated Frank Buckland to the executive of the OHA, of which he is presently a member.

Winnipeg Stellars Monday night at home took a stranglehold on the Canada Junior Men's Basketball final, edging Windsor AKO's 43-41 to take a two-game lead in their best-of-five series. Third game is today.

Soccer Executive Works With OEL

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough and District Soccer Association Monday in the YMCA with Tom Garland, president, in the chair it was unanimously agreed that the old board composed of Tom Garland, president; William Gracie, vice-president; and Stroyan Leith, secretary, along with each club representative form the games and schedule committee to co-operate with the Ontario Eastern League schedule in regards to dates.

U. E. and O'Halloran's were the only clubs officially entered with the local association. The Quaker Oats will hold a meeting Tuesday evening to consider the question of entering a team in the league. The Petes will be back again as usual with some new talent this season. There has been no official information from the Canadian General representative. They will hold a special meeting Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock.

Give No Forms

Alf Featherstone, representing the UE, demanded that the secretary hand out the registration forms immediately so that they could make arrangements for their first Eastern League game within the next two weeks. On a vote is was decided that the secretary give no forms out until all the teams are registered and they receive the registration forms at the same time thereby giving each club the same opportunity to get players.

The secretary was instructed to write Mr. MacGregor, OFA secretary, requesting that he give a ruling as to whether the Eastern League teams play in the local league or not.

The final date of entry was settled as Monday evening in the YMCA at eight o'clock when final details will be given from the Petes, Quaker Oats and Canadian General.

Artists, Teachers Tied Atop Y Loop

Scoring a 6-0 win over Jay Bees enabled Aberdeens to move into a first-place tie with Artists in the YMCA Men's League last night. Artists defeated Commercials 4-2 to put that squad down into third place. These two teams turned in the closest games of the night very few pins separating them in the three games. Quakers and B'nai B'rith defeated Canada Packers and Tips Tops 4-2 in the other fixtures.

Isadore Black took down the individual honors with a hefty 796 triple and 305 and 312 singles. Bob Dyer was next in line with 782 (310), Vic Coleman 741, Eddie Dixon 729, Mike Doris 721, V. R. Henry 720, Bev Callan 712 and Jack Dormer 701. Percy Johnson had a 308 single.

Artists were top team with 3219 for three games and Tip Tops best in singles with 1204.

Legionnaires Trimmed, 9-3 By The Brantford Nats As Series Tied At Two Each

Striking early and hard, Brantford Nationals piled up a big first-period lead on home ice last night to trim the Legionnaires 9-3 before 2,300 fans. It sewed up their best-of-seven OHA senior "B" finals at two games each, the next one being in Brantford tomorrow, as they won the toss for the fifth fray. The sixth will be here on Friday.

The husky Brants smashed through for three goals in less than seven minutes from the first faceoff, and they dominated play all through the initial inning for a 6-1 lead. They started strong again in the second frame, but the Ellis outfit finally got going better than halfway through and it was a pretty even heat, though the Nats had a 3-1 scoring margin. Legion outplayed the homesters in the third, though only having a 1-0 edge in the sniping department.

Late Arriving

The Legionnaires were late in arriving, as their bus broke down before they left Peterborough and they had to scurry around and find private cars. They had some car trouble en route and ate late, shortly before arriving in Brantford. Due to their tardiness, they hadn't their usual pre-game warmup, and were beaten before they got their ice legs. The Brants poured it on from the start and used their extra weight to advantage. The ice became heavy later and this also favored the huskier homesters.

Holota, Watson and Campbell each hit the twine twice for the victors, with Natiuk, Jamieson and Laconte getting one each. The latter, Simpell, Stemler and Linn had two assists apiece, with one each going to Smith, Natiuk, Watson, Stephen, Holota and Messmer, practically all of the Nats being in on the scoring picture. Coombs, Rochetta and Greenlaw got the Legion goals, an assist each going to Hill, Stewart, Crowley and Parnell.

Rolled It Up

LeConte raced in early to score on a slap shot with Simpell's forward pass as the Brants buzzed around hard from the start. Holota made it 2-0 shortly on a partial breakaway with Messmer as Legion were caught up the ice. Jamieson's screened shot beat Nicholls, Stemmler and Holota drawing assists. Stewart went off for interference but Legion held them out till his return. Then Watson cuffed home Stephen's rebound and it was 4-0. With Doug Mortimer off for high-sticking, Campbell counted from LeConte and Linn. Later, Coombs finally put Legion on the sheet with a backhander from Hill and Stewart in a scramble. Natiuk ended the heat at 5-1 on fast combination with Simpell and Watson, the Legion forwards again failing to come back in time.

The Rochetta line pressed to open the second, but the Nats hit in there hard once more to tally a pair. Watson got one from Natiuk that Nick partly stopped but it slid over. Campbell added another on a slap shot off a pass-out, LeConte and Linn aiding at close range. The score mounted to 9-1 when Holota's angle drive caught a net corner with Stemmler and [illegible] in play. Legion [illegible] in there, too, to give McGrattan more work, and they almost clicked on several occasions. Rochetta finally fooled him neatly in close on a passout after good combination with Crowley and Vitarelli. Greenlaw was robbed near the finish.

The Hill line pressed to start the third and later a thrust by Rochetta and Vitarelli nearly paid off. With Messmer off for interference, Greenlaw stabbed one home from Parnell to end the scoring. Jamieson later got it for charging as play got rugged on heavy footing. Hill got the nod next for tripping and Linn followed for using a broken stick. Godfrey then got the air for interference, with a misconduct tacked on for arguing too hard. Both sides were tired out on sticky ice at the last, with Legion having more of the play, but far too late.

Legion— Goal, Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Burns; centre, Rochetta; wings, Vitarelli and Crowley; alternates, Parnell, F. Mortimer, Greenlaw, Hill, Stewart, Coombs, D. Mortimer, and Montgomery.

Brantford — Goal, McGrattan; defence, Smith and Simpell; centre, Stephen; wings, Natiuk and Watson; alternates Leconte Linn, Campbell, Pigeon, Holota, Stemmler, Jamieson, and Messmer.

Referees—F. Eldvari and J. Liscombe.

The summary:

First Period
Brantford—Leconte (Simpell)	3:12
Brantford—Holota (Messmer)	6:31
Brantford—Jamieson (Stemmler Holota)	6:47
Brantford—Watson (Stephen)	9:49
Brantford—Campbell (Leconte, Linn)	10:54
Legion—Coombs (Hill, Stewart)	13:41
Brantford—Natiuk (Simpell, Watson)	16:34
Penalties—Stewart, D. Mortimer.
Second Period
Brantford—Watson (Natiuk)	7:40
Brantford—Campbell (Leconte, Linn)	8:02
Brantford—Holoto (Stemmler, Smith)	12:48
Legion—Rochetta (Crowley, Vitarelli)	13:39
No Penalties.
Third Period
Legion—Greenlaw (Parnell)	10:07

Juniors Hot As Marlboros Shellack Sherbrooke 11-3

TORONTO, April 18 (CP) — A pair of junior puck stars continue to dominate the goal-getting —and game-winning—activities of Toronto Marlboros who today appear to have all but wrapped up the Eastern Canada Junior Hockey title.

Marlboros handed Sherbrooke Saints a stinging 11-3 set-back to take the third game of their Eastern Canada Allan Cup final. The Dukes now lead the best-of-seven series 3-0 with the fourth game slated for Montreal Saturday night.

As had been the case in other games played by the Dukes to this point, juniors George Armstrong and 18-year-old Danny Lewicki were the sign posts to another Marlboro victory. Armstrong, just 19 and from Skead, Ont., potted four goals and assisted on two others while Lewicki, from Fort William, picked up four assists. The pair moved into senior company towards the end of the regular season after playing with the junior Dukes.

Forechecking Collapses

The crowd of 9,784 fans watched the game turn into a shooting gallery in the final session as the Sherbrooke defence and forechecking fell apart. Marlboros had a 3-1 lead going into the final 20 minutes of play but by the 5:07 mark, they held a 7-2 margin.

Armstrong banged in two goals to [illegible] the scoring in the first period. Blair netted the other to give the Marlies a 3-0 lead.

Sherbrooke, holding their own for forty minutes of play, netted their first goal just past the half way mark in the second frame when [illegible] Bernie Vinet and Adjutor Cote.

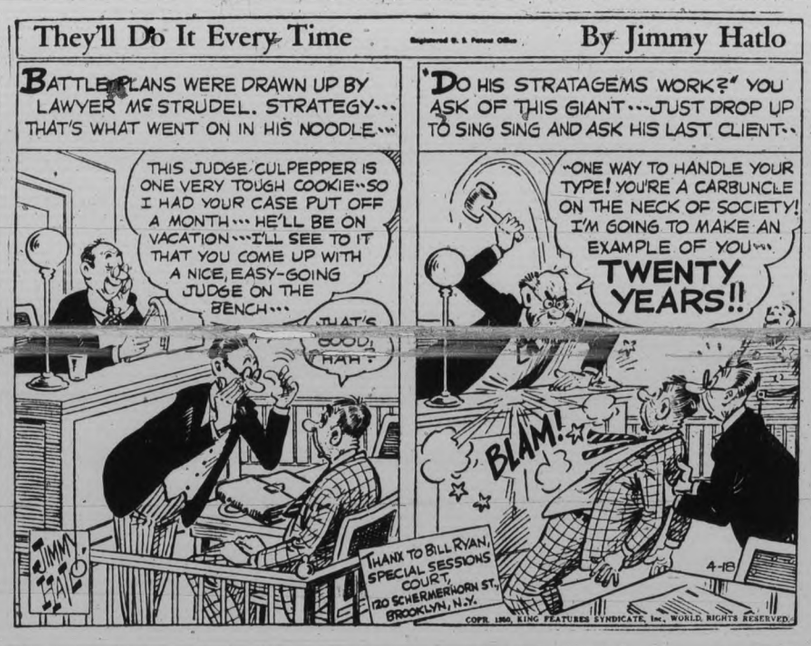
Scoring Spree

At the 56-second mark of the third, the Marlboros went on a scoring spree.

Scotty Mair started it, scoring from close in after a passout from behind the Saints' net by Red Johnson.

From the face-off of the next play, Reg Sinclair beat Pat Boehmer in the Dukes net for Sherbrooke's second of the night. Marlboros' Armstrong, Johnny McLellan and Al Buchanan replied with tallies in the next four minutes.

Sherbrooke picked up their third goal when Jacques Prefontaine scored. Armstrong, Buchanan, Rocky Sullivan and veteran Bill Hollett sailed in for the final tallies of the rout.



All-Star Puck Tilt Set For Tonight

Everything is set for tonight's all-star hockey game between the IOOF and the Petes at Civic Arena at 8:30 o'clock. The game is being played in aid of the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association. The organization sponsoring the youngsters have a deficit which they would like to wipe off and hope to do so with tonight's match.

skating race, interest is high among the fans as to whom will take the dash. The Legion team will be down in a body to cheer their entries with Bill Crowley being more or less a favorite to take the cash prize. Crowley is probably in the best shape of the lot, but Bill McMaster says he has been working out regularly and will be no set-up. Joe Blewett is also reported in good condition along with Murray Fife and a number of others.

Manager Red Creighton announced his line-up for tonight's battle with Bill Edgar likely to start in the nets or a new goalie Red has lined up. McMaster and Nolan will be the starting defence with Arn Dugan at centre, Jack Mortimer and Teeter Collins on the wings. The other lines will be Red Sullivan at centre with Murray Fife and Fred Garvey on the wings; the three Wests, Junior at centre and Dean and Bob on the wings. Jake Wade and Buck Legrow will be the other defence.

The Oddfellow Juniors will have a number of extras beside their regular team. Dit Clapper, Sid Smith and Red Hamill will be with the juniors and Turk Broda, if he can skip a previous engagement, will be in the nets for part of the game. Reg Hamilton, former NHL star, will handle the whistle. Reg is scout for the Chicago Black Hawks and will be looking some of the boys over for the Hawks.

Fans are asked to turn out and give the minors a hand as all proceeds of the game go to that organization.

Gananoque Nips First Finals Win

KINGSTON, April 18 (CP) — Gananoque Gans edged Tillsonburg Chevwoods 3-2 Monday night in the final game of the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A round-robin playoffs and although it was their first win they still had a slim chance of advancing to the finals against Port Colborne Merchants.

The Gananoque executive has lodged a protest that Port Colborne goaltender Rafferty is ineligible for play and if it holds up in the committee room, Gananoque will have four points and displace Tillsonburg as runners-up.

Monday night's contest, witnessed by 1,000 fans, opened at a fast clip and before the first period had ended, Gananoque owned a 3-1 lead.

Barrie 'B' Flyers Win Over Guelph Biltmores

BARRIE, April 18 (CP)—Barrie Flyers clinched first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B round-robin playoffs with a convincing 6-2 win over Guelph Biltmores Monday night. Guelph is in second place.

The home-town Flyers built up a 3-0 lead by the end of the second period and took the scoring edge into the third period. Dan McDonald paced the winners with a two-goal performance while Bill Sexton, Don Emms, Dan Poland and Des Kelley clicked for singles. Chuck Henderson and Don Murphy scored the Guelph goals.

Baseball Season Curtain Up Today

NEW YORK, April 18 (AP) — Ted ($125,000) Williams and Joe ($100,000) DiMaggio start earning those bulging salaries today as the major league baseball season opens on eight fronts.

Some 480 major leaguers will start earning their pay with the first pitch of baseball's jubilee year. An opening day turnout of some 260,000 fans will help the bosses foot the bill.

With DiMaggio in the opening line-up for the sixth time in 12 active years (not counting three in the army) the world champion New York Yankees visit Fenway Park in Boston for the first of four games with the Red Sox. Most of the experts and oddsmakers pick the Sox to win it all this time.

Brooklyn, favored to repeat in the National League, also opens on the road at Shibe Park in Philadelphia where the Phillies took them to extra innings last October before yielding the clincher.

A night opener at St. Louis where the Cards take on Pittsburgh Pirates is something new, a trend of things to come when all major league weekday games will be played under the lights. Many more night games will follow—a total of 409 during the 24-week season.

Tops in interest on the opening program is the Yankee-Red Sox clash at Fenway where Boston wound up its home season last fall with 21 straight victories.

Manager Joe McCarthy has his southpaw ace, Mel Parnell (25-7) ready to get the Sox off on the right foot. The last two years Boston's hopes were dimmed by shoddy starts.

For the Yankees, Casey Stengel is pitching Allie Reynolds (17-6) sturdy righthander hero of the world series. Casey says Tommy Henrich, sore knee and all, will start at first base.

Detroit Strong Favorite To Take Third Victory

DETROIT, April 18.—(AP). — Anxious to wind it up fast, Detroit Red Wings take another whack at New York Rangers tonight in the Stanley Cup championship series.

The National Hockey League champion Wings, enjoying a 2-1 edge, are strong favorites to grab their third win and get a good grip on the prize mug.

A crowd of 13,000 to 14,000 at Olympia is expected. Despite the distractions of the new baseball season, the Motor City is still hot over hockey.

A third triumph for Detroit would put New York in a desperate situation. All the remaining games of the best-of-seven series will be played here.

Several other factors add up in the Red Wings' favor.

Wings Rested

Although still crippled from injuries, the Wings seem rested and confidence runs high. On the other hand the Rangers, beaten twice, admti concern.

Ranger coach Lynn Patrick must find a way to get the Rangers back on the beam after what he frankly called was a "bad night" in the 4-0 loss Saturday night.

Also, the Wings seem to have found New York goalie Chuck Rayner's number.

At the start of the series the dopesters said that Rayner's performance might swing the balance. But the Wings have beaten him nine times in the three games.

Lumley Standout

Meanwhile, Detroit's Harry Lumley has been a standout.

The Wings also have 'been getting a whale of a job from forward Jerry Couture, who has saved his best stuff for the Ranger series.

Couture has scored four goals in Detroit's 10 playoff games Three of these have been against New York. In the Wings' emergency over injuries Couture has played on nearly all of coach Ivan's attack-line combinations.

Snake Bouquet

WINDSOR, Ont., April 18 (CP) —Posies may be out of date as bearers of lovers' greetings. A Windsor father complained to police that his daughter had been sent a wriggling garter snake, wrapped in a prettily decorated cardboard box. The father said he suspected a former boy friend, who had been ordered to stay away as the donor of the gift. The rejected suitor claimed the snake was not his idea.

U.K. Desertions Average 200 Monthly

By ALAN HARVEY.

LONDON, April 18 (CP)—Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell wants to find out why men are deserting Britain's armed forces at the rate of about 200 a month.

There will be an official inquiry told the House of Commons.

Shinwell said he is "very much disturbed" by the rate of desertions.

He said he does not think the problem can be solved by an amnesty for the 19,477 deserters now "nominally" at large. Such an amnesty had been granted after the First World War, but there had been no national service problem then.

This was a reference to Britain's compulsory call-up, under which those qualifying must serve 18 months in the services. Other government replies in the House have shown that it thinks an amnesty now would tend to undermine the system of peacetime conscription.

The 19,477 men now at large comprised 1,267 from the navy, 13,844 from the army and 4,366 from the RAF. But the numbers were probably misleading.

"The nominal total is greatly inflated," Shinwell said. "More than 10,000 of the men came from the Irish Republic and most of them have probably found their way back to their former homes."

Many had deserted abroad. The total probably included some "multiple" desertions—men who had gone absent more than once.

"Taking these factors into account, there are perhaps not more than 7,000 or 8,000 deserters at large in this country at the present time. The true figure may well be smaller."

But desertions now averaged 2,400 a year or 200 a month.

In Debt $6,000

Detective Ned G. Logdson, who arrested Grant, said the aviation engineer told him he was $6,000 in debt. He quoted Grant as saying he planned to collect $25,000 in insurance taken out at the airport on his wife and two children.

Grant is held on investigation of attempted murder.

"The last few weeks he's been very nice to me," police quoted Mrs. Grant as saying. "Last week he told me to buy a new dress. I wondered why he was being so nice. I guess this must be the answer."

The Grants were married eight years ago. Their daughter, Marie, is six and their son, Robert, is five.

Clock In Bomb

Capt. Ray Pinker, head of the Los Angeles police crime laboratory, said the bomb was cleverly constructed.

"There's a clock inside it," he said. "It is connected to batteries and a high-resistance bridge. At a set time the clock would have turned on the current and an ordinary book of paper matches would have been ignited. The bag in which the mechanism was contained was crammed with inner tube sections filled with high octane gasoline. The matches and the gas would have done the trick —set fire flaming in the rear cargo hold."

a grant of $1,500 to each county to assist in the county assessor set-up. The government does not make the decision in regard to appointment of a county assessor, he said, but would supply the municipality with a list of capable men from whom to pick out their assessor. The department felt that in some of the smaller places the assessors were not paid enough and it was not realized by the municipality how important a job was that of the assessor.

Speaking of his trip to the convention at Lima, Peru, he said that it appeared to him that the people down there were not particularly well-versed in municipal affairs. They were more interested in devising ways of extracting more revenue from outside capital invested.

"I told the convention down there that we in Ontario gave the outside investor a square deal as we want to encourage outside capital to come in. Where would we have got with our mines and pulp mills if it had not been for outside capital?" Mr. Dunbar said.

"When you send a delegation see that you back it up," urged Mr. Dunbar. He recalled that in connection with the chain store agitation over their wholesale-retail status, the chain stores conducted an active lobby.

"Those who were opposed, after much talk beforehand, decided to do nothing and Dunbar was left holding the bag," he said.

Harold Bateman of Belleville, president of District 5 of the assessors' association, pointed out that the membership was now over 4,000 member in Ontario. It was realized that there were troubles in getting equalized assessments and in convincing ratepayers of the necessity of paying their proper share. An effort should be made to realize what the county judges were thinking. Building construction and costs of materials should be studied. He said that he could not agree 100 per cent with the idea of high assessments and low tax rate until sale prices of properties had levelled off and that would take a year or two yet.

Cheese Production Up

OTTAWA, April 18, (CP) — Production of processed cheese during March amounted to 3,968,000 pounds, an increase of 31 per cent over the 3,019,000 pounds produced in February, and 22 per cent above the 3,251,000 pounds left holding the bag," he said. recorded for March last year, the Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

Collect Hotel Tax

TORONTO, April 18, (CP) — City officials said Monday night that a Manitoba court ruling that business taxes can be collected on the Canadian Pacific Railway-owned Royal Alexandra Hotel will spur them on in an effort to collect a similar tax on the CPR's Royal York Hotel here.

Urges Censoring Licentious Books

OTTAWA, April 18 —(CP)— The Canadian Catholic Conference, made up of Roman Catholic bishops and archbishops, today urged before the Royal Commission on arts and science that there be some "effective censorship" of publications available to Canadians.

The brief said that the Catholic Church in Canada, "speaking as she does for 45 per cent of the country's population" is interested in the work of the Royal Commission.

On publications, the brief said:

Gravely alarmed at the ravages caused by pornographic papers and magazines, by licentious books and pamphlets of all kinds which emanate both from within our county and from without, we solemnly raise our voices to ask those whose duty it is to preserve good order to check by every means possible the wave of immorality that threatens to engulf our Christian people.

"We are happy to be able to felicitate the competent public authorities on the measures already taken to contain the evil, but we urge them at the same time to find and to institute some form of effective censorship that will condem all dangerous publications. Since the state has a role to play in the promotion of public morals, it must keep a vigilant eye on such enemies of the common good."

Council Cancels Cafe License, Conditions Bad

City council ordered Monday night the immediate cancellation of the license of Paris Cafe.

This peremptory action was taken "as the only means of removing conditions at this restaurant which are not desirable for Peterborough".

Ald. Herbert Young said he was [illegible] coroner following the sudden death of a man who had succumbed to a heart attack.

"There were four people in "four by six" rooms in addition to the family living in front on the second floor, and four roomers on the third," Ald. Young told the council. "There were no sanitary conveniences on the second and third floors. It was not satisfactory in regard to health, and I considered it a fire trap."

Chief Constable John Thompson, Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, City Clerk Outram and Food Inspector Worton met last Friday to discuss the Paris from their separate experiences. Their recommendation was that the license should be revoked.

Customer Criticizes

Mayor Swanston remarked that the members of the council had probably read in the press a letter from a Lindsay corespondent criticizing the Paris as he had seen it recently as a customer. "I have had other telephone calls from out-of-town people who have gone to that cafe. I think Chief Thompson has been at sea as to how far we could go in dealing with this place. I asked the chief, medical officer of health, city clerk and Dr. Worton to go into it thoroughly, and this is their recommendation."

"Is closing it the only way to clean up that situation?" Ald. Adam Sands enquired. "Have any efforts to remedy it been made by the health and police departments?"

"That has been done," Mayor Swanston replied.

Ald. Sands: "How far can we go in cancelling a license like this? We ought to be sure after the recent experience with used car lot license."

Council Given Power

City Clerk Outram replied that the Municipal Act provided that the council could revoke a license without giving cause.

Off the record of the meeting it was said that Chief Thompson had directed some time ago that one of the constables make a trip through the Paris every half hour at night.

Ald. Sands' motion was unanimously adopted, with all the members present.

Ball Manager Tells Jaycees Lights Will Pay

Cost of the installation would be about $35,000 and the ball club itself has agreed to collect $15,000 of that amount. The balance would come from city funds

With the city getting 25 per cent of the gross gate receipts from these ball games the whole installation should be paid for in five or six years, said Mr Murphy. And from then on the city will have its 25 per cent as clear profit.

"Riverside Park can be used for more than just senior baseball," he said. "The floodlighting would be handy for outdoor wrestling, boxing, bingos and other projects. It would be up to the committee in charge (a joint body of the Recreation Commission and others from the baseball club) to promote the park."

"If this is done I'd say that the $3,500 paid back to the city each year would be augmented considerably."

Foodlights Draw Fans.

How did he arrive at that figure? Well, the baseball club estimates an average attendance of 1100 a game over the 30-game schedule. And that's twice as much as the Saturday-afternoon average attendance a couple of years ago. Seating capacity is 1800.

Last year there were only bleachers for the fans to sit in On the broiling hot days of midsummer there was no shelter for the fans and they stayed away in droves. Not only that but the club was "unusually unlucky" with a large proportion of rainy days.

The result: the club was $700 in the red.

"And there's no reason to think we'd do any better this year," said Mr. Murphy.

In 7-Team League.

Peterborough is entered in a seven-team league—four entries from Toronto ,one from North Toronto and another from Oshawa. The only time baseball has paid in this city is on Saturday afternoons, he continued. And in a league that size you can't get all Saturday games.

One "out" might be twilight games, but this idea was rejected. The working man or Mr Average Fan doesn't have time to get home from work eat, wash up and get to the park for the beginning of the game.

There's only one solution and that floodlighting, he affirmed.

The baseball club has already more than $10,000 in signed pledges. "And they know they are getting the rest."

A fulltime coach must be hired. His job would be to play baseball and teach the younger players.

Lights Would Be a Credit.

The $35,00 floodlighting would consist of 160 giant lights, 10 clustered on a pole. Similar units are installed at Kingston and Ogdensburg, N. Y. Belleville has a 120-light system.

"A lighting system like this would be a credit to Peterborough—in no sense of the word would it be small time. "If Peterborough wants to have baseball similar to other cities it will have to meet those standards, he said.

He wound up his address with the statement that sport is necessary and the general interest in it may be one of the reasons why the working man on this continent is happier than his brothers in Asia and some European countries.

Bernie Morin and his fellow Jaycees greeted the conclusion of the speech with an enthusiastic chorus of "Take Me Out To The Ball Game."

All that was missing was the peanuts.

Vicomte du Parc Tells Club Belgium Weathering Storm

If the cold war can be won by the free countries of the world, chances of a third world war will obviously decrease. This is the opinion of the Vicomte du Parc, Ambassador of Belgium to Canada who spoke in Peterborough Monday evening at an open meeting arranged by the University Women's Club.

"The cold war is being waged, not only in Europe and in the Far East, but in every country in the world" he said. "It is not only a political one, but also, and above all, a moral one—a struggle between two conceptions of life. On the one hand democracy, decency, liberty of life and of conscience; on the other, slavery of body and soul."

Summed up, the world is faced with a struggle between good and evil requiring the utmost effort of every one to win. "I am confident of the outcome because I feel we have right on our side" said the Vicomte. "The ultimate result is to a great extent beyond human control."

Gold Made it Strong

The Ambassador has been asked to speak on the reconstruction program in Belgium, and of the economic union, Benelux, with Holland and Luxemburg. He explained that because most of his country's gold had been in safety abroad, she was in a strong financial position when liberated in 1944 and was immediately able to supply the Allied armies with all her available resources and services. The result was a credit balance of 125 million dollars on lend-lease account with US which abled purchased of food supplies and raw materials to feed her population and start industries working again. So, by the middle of 1946 Belgium's over-all industrial production had reached 96 per cent of the pre-war average and by January 1948 had reached the present level of 123 per cent. Foreign trade in 1949 was the highest on record the Vicomte said.

Difficulties in this rosy picture are the same as those at present in Canada; a certain slowing down of business and resulting unemployment. However, there are no signs of a depression, so, considering the troubled state of the world, conditions in Belgium seem very satisfactory, he said.

Tribute To Marshall Aid

"If this is the case it is certainly due to the help given not only to my country, but to all Western Europe, under the Marshall Plan, and the United States showed very great foresight in recognizing the necessity of extending economic aid to those countries." the Ambassador stated. For Belgium the '48-'49 credit was fixed at 250 million dollars and out of this amount she placed 207 million at the disposal of other countries to supply them with the Belgian francs to continue purchasing her products. The remaining amount was used to finance schemes of national interest, such as road construction, re-equipment and development of ports and railways.

For the year which ends July 1, 1950, Belgium is receiving no direct aid under the Marshall Plan, but a credit of 200 million dollars is being entirely used to finance her exports in the form of credits to her customers.

Lower Trade Barriers

Through the Marshall Plan, Western Europe is returning to normal conditions, and without it would be facing hunger and despair, the Ambassador stated. For the future he urges suppressing to the fullest possible extent tariff and trade barriers of every kind. This may, he feels, take a long time to bring about because of difficulties arising in spite of the good will shown on all sides.

"The best solution, in fact I believe the only one, is to start by regional agreements and several schemes have been put forward: the Benelux Union, an economic union between France and Italy, a Scandinavian Union called DA No SVE between Denmark, Norway and Sweden."

Benelux Analyzed

The Vicomte analyzed only the Benelux agreement which was decided upon when the three countries were involved in war and signed by the same men who last year signed the North Atlantic Pact. These countries took their first definite step in 1948 when they applied the same tariff to all imports from abroad and did away with custom duties between themselves. Other problems being worked out are abolition of quotas between them, suppression of subsidies to industry and commerce, coordination of investments, adoption of common fiscal and social policies and finally adoption of a common financial policy.

Own Security

The Vicomte explained that Belgium's main objective in their foreign policy is toward their own security. The first positive step to meet the new dangers appearing since the second war was signing of the Brussels Agreement, though they realized a pact of this kind not linked with United States and Canada could not achieve its purpose. For this reason they hailed with enthusiasm the North Atlantic Pact and share Canada's faith in it to preserve peace.

Main ideas expressed in the last few months by Canadian and Belgian foreign ministers are much alike and the Vicomte expressed the opinion "This shows our countries not only follow the same policy, but their way of thinking is identical. Obviously, people who think alike must understand each other perfectly and this understanding is of great significance."

Addressed In French

Miss Margaret White, member of the University Women's Club, gave the Ambassador a thrill and proof of this understanding when she expressed appreciation of his address in French, his native tongue, as well as in English, which he had used throughout in deference to his audience.

The distinguished guest was given an outstanding introduction by Dr. Frances Stewart who outlined his career in high positions since entering diplomatic service in 1920, and listed the 20 decorations he has received, among them the Medaille Militaire and the Croix de Guerre from France.

In his address the Vicomte referred to the recent bestowal of Belgium's highest decoration, the Grand Cross of the Order of Leopold, on Mr. Mackenzie King. This was intended as a tribute not only to the great statesman but to the Canadian nation as a whole, he said.

Mrs. J. E. Watters, first vice-president, was chairman of the meeting.

Plan Re-Zoning Park Hill Road, Water St. Area

Neighborhood opposition to a proposed Imperial Oil Co. gasoline station at the northwest corner of Water St. and Park Hill Road veered in the direction of re-zoning at Monday night's meeting of the council.

A letter from W. B. Gordon and other residents of that section requested that the west side of Water St. from Argyle St. south to the boundary of Tudhope's garage, also Park Hill Road between Water and Inverlea St., and finally the block bounded by Water, Inverlea, and Dennostoun Sts. and Park Hill Road, be declared residential, and zoned as residential No. 1. Coupled with it was the recommendation of the city planning board that the designated area be zoned residential No. 2.

Imperial Oil had recently applied to the council to build a service station at the northeast corner of Park Hill Road and Water St. That strip along the north side of Water St. immediately east of Water St. had been zoned for neighborhood commercial business. Twenty years ago a bylaw of the council expressly excluded a gasoline station from the northeast corner.

On recent application for reconsideration, the city planning board recommended the change to residential zoning.

Residential Areas

Both R-1 and R-2 are of residential designation, but R-2 permits dwellings to be built with narrower spacing between them, and also, in departure from exclusive residential use, permits such buildings as churches to be erected.

A motion by Ald. A. B. Burrows and Ald. H. F. Waddell proposes residential change in the zoning bylaw, which has yet to be adopted "to re-zone that area."

Ald. T. D. Miller asked whether the city planning board would permit a service station on any other corner of that intersection.

"We can cross that bridge when we come to it," Ald. Sands remarked.

The two other corners are at the southeast and southwest of Water and Park Hill Road.

Council Wants Firm Figures On Lighting

That pair of doorbell ringers, Vern Dawson and George Clarke, as they have come to regard themselves, in their undertaking of trying to restore baseball both in facilities and popularity, looked in on the council Monday night for a progress information.

They were handed the report of the executive committee which had considered the financing of floodlights for Riverside Park. It was read in council by the chairman, Ald. H. Waddell:

"Your committee has studied reports on various aspects in regard to the proposal to put flood lights in Riverside Park, and begs leave to report and recommend as follows:

"That before the council places an order for flood-lighting equipment there should be a definite report from the executive of the Peterborough baseball team, through the Recreation Commission, that the $15,000.00 to be raised by the team and its supporters is really available.

"That before the council orders the flood-lighting equipment there should be a detailed plan from the Peterborough Recreation Commission providing for repayment to the city in a short term of years, that portion of the cost of the flood-lighting which the City Council would be called upon to pay.

"That in order to accommodate the crowds necessary to attend baseball games at Riverside Park for the next four or five years, in order to defray the cost of floodlighting equipment, it would be necessary to provide proper stands for seating and other conveniences and there should be plans for these facilities and detailed estimates of their probable cost.

"That since Riverside Park has peculiar ground structure, in that the park is subject to flooding and is fill, there should be a definite estimate of the cost of floodlighting equipment installed in Riverside Park in accordance with plans specified to meet these conditions."

Mr. Dawson said the Baseball Club was asking for pledges rather than cheques at present in its canvass for $15,000. "We said we would raise the money, and we will."

No Tax Burden

The substance of the executive committee report Mayor Swanston said was the wish of the council that the Riverside Park project should not cost the ratepayers anything.

"What the Club would like to know," said Mr. Clarke, "is whether the city is coming up with $20,000, and we'll definitely have the $15,000. But time is fleeting. Half the ball season will be over before lights are up, and it hardly seems fair to the Club.

"We'd like to have some assurance the city is coming with us in this effort."

Ald. Dodds: "I'd like to see Mr. Dawson and Mr. Clarke feel a little more confident in the council."

His opinion was to the effect that the council's proposal of financing details would be favorably received by the Recreation Commission who had control of the operation of the Park.

"I think we can raise the $20,000," said Mayor Swanston.

Ambassador Received

Following the city council meeting Monday night, Mayor Swanston and the members held a civic reception for Vicomte du Parc, Belgian Ambassador to Canada, who was in Peterborough as speaker at a meeting of the University Women's Club.

The Ambassador was accompanied by his wife, the Vicomtesse. Meeting them were the members of the council and their wives, also members of the city staff and their wives and some of the ladies of the University Club.

The Vicomte expressed a wish to return to Peterborough in the fall for duck hunting. In a conversation with City Engineer Chalmers, who spent some months in Belgium on war service, it transpired that the du Parc residence was only three doors from where Mr. Chalmers was staying. The social hour was arranged by Ald. Adam Sands and his reception committee.

2 Drowned Deer Says Defence; Court Fines $100

David MacDonald of Glen Alda, who told court he had taken two drowned deer from a northern lake, was today fined $100 and $3.75 costs for having deer in the closed season.

In sentencing MacDonald, Magistrate W. R. Philp noted: "I find nothing in the Crown's evidence to make me disbelieve the evidence of the defence." He allowed MacDonald one week to pay.

A second charge of possessing two female deer was dismissed when the Crown offered no evidence.

Conservation officer Robert Trotter testified MacDonald had told him he had taken the two deer from the lake.

Sale Is Authorized $615,000 Debentures

In authorizing Monday night the sale of $615,000 debentures to pay for the sewage disposal plant job, city council increased the rate of interest from 1¾ p.c to 2¾ p.c.

The original issue was to be $375,000, but war time conditions caused delays. Meanwhile costs of material and labor increased, and the contract was finally let to George Hardy Construction Company.

Progress payments to the contractor are drawn from the city's current account at the bank, incurring the bank's interest rates, until the council proceeds to borrow the funds it needs for the work.

Since the first authorizing bylaw was passed, the interest rate has increased by one per cent The opinion was expressed that the council would be some money in picket if debentures were sold as soon as possible, and thereby made available at the debenture interest instead of the bank charge.

$2,000.79 Collection From Parking Meters

Parking meters collected last month $2,000.79 bringing to $76,387.08 the receipts since they were put into use May 12, 1947.

This was one of the items listed by City Clerk Outram in his report of collection through his office during March. Various licences amounted to $1,461 of which billiard tables contributed $700; police court $1,064.60 and miscellaneous fees $1,131.50.

There were 421 parking penalty tickets at one dollar each.

Authority Given Sign Contract For City Hall

A bylaw introduced in Council by Ald. H. Dodds on Monday night gives authority for the execution of the agreement between [illegible] the Eastwood Construction Company "concerning the construction of a city hall."

Mayor Swanston and City Clerk Outram are thereby directed to sign the agreement on behalf of the ratepayers. That is the general authority committing the city and the contractor to this work which is to cost $643,000.

If some ratepayer wonders what happens next, when the ground is cleared of houses, it is likely that the special committee composed of Aldermen Waddell, Gillespie, and Dewart, as a contact or linking group in liaison with the contractor, assumes the responsibility of getting the job in motion. Actually, of course, the architect enters into the first stage of construction, determines the exact lines of foundation and where the building is going to be placed on the site, examines the list of sub-contractors, inquires of the contractor when he expects to be ready to begin work, and so on.

Elect Edworthy President J-C

W. F. (Bill) Edworthy was acclaimed president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce Monday night. He succeeds Doug Vaisey who automatically stepped down after a year in office.

Mr. Edworthy is a methods man in the mechanical section of the wire division at CGE. He has been a Jaycee for two and a half years. Last year he was first vice-president and the year before chairman of membership

There were elections for executive offices of second vice-president and treasurer. And eight candidates ran for the six director posts.

Following is a list of Jaycee officers for 1950-51:

W. F. Edworthy, president; Don Clarke, 1st vice-pres.; W. A. Curtin, 2nd vice-pres.; Leonard Martin, executive secretary; and Gordon Patterson, treasurer.

Directors are Ken Billings, Keith Mitchell, Charles Boulter, Norman Chate, Joseph Merino, and Jack Thompson.

The 11 officers will be installed at the May meeting.

Six Initiated

Six new members were initiated, the largest number at any time since the Jaycees were formed. They are: W. (Wimp) Borland, Bob Cutmore, Keith Mitchell, Bruce Edwards, Jules Lovitz and Les Groombridge.

President Vaisey presided at the initiation assisted by president-elect Edworthy and Gerald Grady.

Various members reported on preparations for the annual Jaycee Region 6 convention being held here May 6-8. It will be the biggest job of entertaining ever undertaken by the local club.

$75,000,000 Drug Trade Flourishing In Canada

By MEL SUFRIN

OTTAWA, April 18 (CP)—"I'll give you 10 G's if you beat it," rasped a desperate voice as two police officers accosted a man bending over a package of capsules in a Toronto laneway.

The $10,000 offer was refused and the activities of one of Toronto's major distributors of illicit narcotics was terminated for at least four years.

This episode occurred in September, 1947. A typed [illegible] from the files of the Federal Health Department's narcotic control division, it serves to show that illicit drug peddling is big business in Canada.

Kenneth C. Hossick, chief of the division, estimates that drug addiction costs Canada at least $75,000,000 a year. The figure is based on knowledge that there are some 3,500 known addicts in Canada.

To obtain even minimum doses of narcotics, an addict must spend $5,000 a year. He doesn't get it from working. The thefts he must commit to keep himself supplied with drugs are astounding.

Even a $1,000 fur coat, easily disposed of on the underworld market, will seldom bring more than $250. So the addict is usually forced to steal three or four times as much in value to get the necessary money.

In Vancouver alone it was estimated that merchants lost about $3,000,000 one year from thefts by addicts.

Heroin is the most widely-used narcotic in this country. It takes little time to enslave a person who samples it. This terrible mastery makes the [illegible] trade one of the most absurdly over-valued underworld businesses.

In legal channels one ounce of the drug is worth $11. In the underworld it will bring $20 a grain. When it is scarce the price [illegible] one ounce the original $11 worth of narcotic fetches no less than $8,750 in illicit channels.

In addition, drugs are normally adulterated by cunning traffickers so that actual cost to the desperate addict is really even higher.

Not all the cost to Canada results from thefts. Take the case of one addict with 24 convictions, including eight for narcotic offences and eight others for theft. Estimated cost to the country of dealing with this man, including action and penitentiary confinement, was $24,453. Multiply that by the 200 criminal addicts now in federal penitentiaries and it provides some indication of the terrific cost.

While economic cost can be quoted in dollars, the cost in human suffering and life cannot readily be reckoned. Death by violence, however, is not uncommon sidelight of drug traffic.

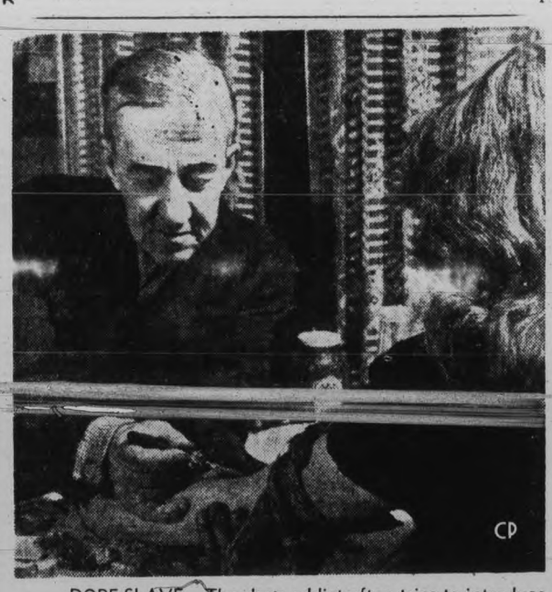
This was illustrated in the case of two men and a girl who were suspected of having attempted a daring $11,000 payroll robbery in downtown Hamilton. The hotel room of one man and the girl was searched and a quantity of heroin was found. The couple was arrested and granted bail of $10,000 each. Soon after, the couple jumped bail.

They were located in Cincinnati, Ohio, and the matter brought to the attention of U.S. federal agents. They proceeded to the hideout of the couple and a gun battle ensued in which the man was killed. The girl was sent back to Canada and sentenced to two years in jail.

US ENGLISH PRESS

There are 1,781 English language daily newspapers in the United States with a combined circulation of 52,285,297.

FORCED TO STEAL—Drug addiction costs Canada more than $75,000,000 a year and most of the loss is attributed to thefts by addicts. Their craving for dope, selling at $8,500 an ounce, virtually forces them to steal high-priced goods. Here is a typical trick of a pair of addicts in this posed photo. The girl holds the attention of the clerk while her partner snatches a $20 silk scarf.



DOPE SLAVE—The dope addict often tries to introduce his girl friend to the drug habit. He knows that she will have to depend on him for her drug supply for a while at least and will work hard for him. Scenes such as this posed photo, showing dope being administered by hypodermic needle, are fairly common in Canada which has about 2,500 known criminal addicts.

Provincial MPs Urged To Back Conservation

GALT, April 18 (CP)—Fletcher S. Thomas of St. Thomas, chairman of the Ontario Legislature's select committee on conservation, said Monday private individuals have a responsibility in conservation matters.

Mr. Thomas, Progressive Conservative member for Elgin, spoke at the annual convention of the Grand Valley Authority. He discussed the work of the committee, which last month made public a report recommending sweeping changes in the province's conservation methods.

". . . You and I back on the farms have the local leadership to carry out this program at the field level. The councils and authorities will have to tie in their efforts to carry on at provincial level, under the direction of competent conservationists in the various departments."

Reforestation and development of grassland, with small dams and farm ponds, were the immediate answer to the problem of saving water.

Flying Saucers Raid Timmins

TIMMINS, April 18 (CP) — Newspaper telephones buzzed on Monday night as residents reported the third "raid" of flying saucers on this Northern Ontario community since April 1.

Described as "the size of a house" and flying at about 700 feet, four Timmins residents reported the phenomena within an hour after it was seen at 9 p.m.

One of the witnesses said that the "saucer" first appeared on the sky alone, then darted away to return with another similar object.

Both appeared as blobs of light against the clouds. The "raid" lasted about 15 minutes.

April 7 scores of Timmins residents reported seeing a "ball of flame" which they thought was a saucer. About a week before that, four lumber workers saw what they said was a saucer flying in broad daylight north of the town.

Doctors Save Jet Pilot's Foot

WINNIPEG, April 18 (CP) — RCAF officials Monday said that Flying Officer Vic Barber, whose jet fighter crashed Sunday in the residential area of West Winnipeg, hod not lost his right leg as earlier reported by The Canadian Press. His condition, however, still remains "serious."

Lorimer Fairhall, 41, was killed as the plane knifed through his small garage in suburban St. James as he was tuning up his car. Another man was slightly injured when the plane finally crashed to a halt against the rear of his home.

RCAF said FO Barber's leg, badly shattered, had been saved by doctors.

The Canadian Press report was based on the comments of a registered nurse at the scene of the crash. She said the pilot's right foot had been severed above the ankle. Another eyewitness said part of the pilot's foot had been found near the plane.

Mine Union To Take Strike Vote In Dispute

DELORO, Ont., April 18 (CP) —A strike vote is to be taken among employees of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. Following failure of negotiations between the company and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers to arrive at a contract, the union anounced today.

The union asks a wage increase, claiming that workers in other refineries earn from 20 to 40 cents an hour more than Deloro employees. The company claims it is operating at a loss and has rejected the wage demands.

Deloro is 26 miles northwest of Belleville.

Eskimos Starving

CHURCHILL, Man., April 18.—(CP)—An army doctor for nearby Fort Churchill has found widespread sickness and malnutrition among Eskimo settlements about 500 miles north of here, it was learned Monday. First reports indicated at least three deaths recently among Eskimos in igloo settlements on Southampton Island, North West Territories.

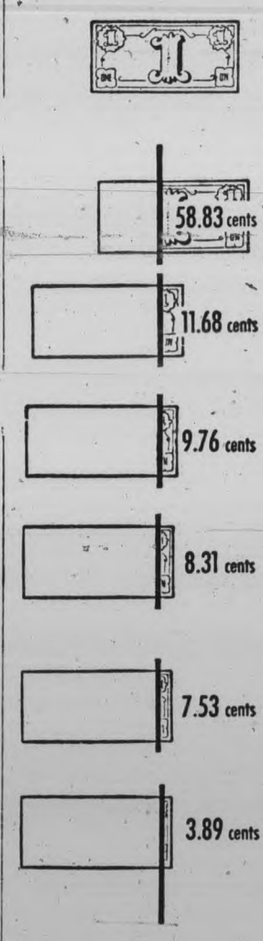
Where does the money go?



At times most of us have looked at purse, wallet or bankbook, and wondered: "Where does the money go?"

You may have wondered, too, where does our money go—the money we receive for gasoline, fuel oil, lubricants and other products we sell. Well, last year each dollar we received went this way:

CRUDE OIL and other raw materials took more than half of each dollar.

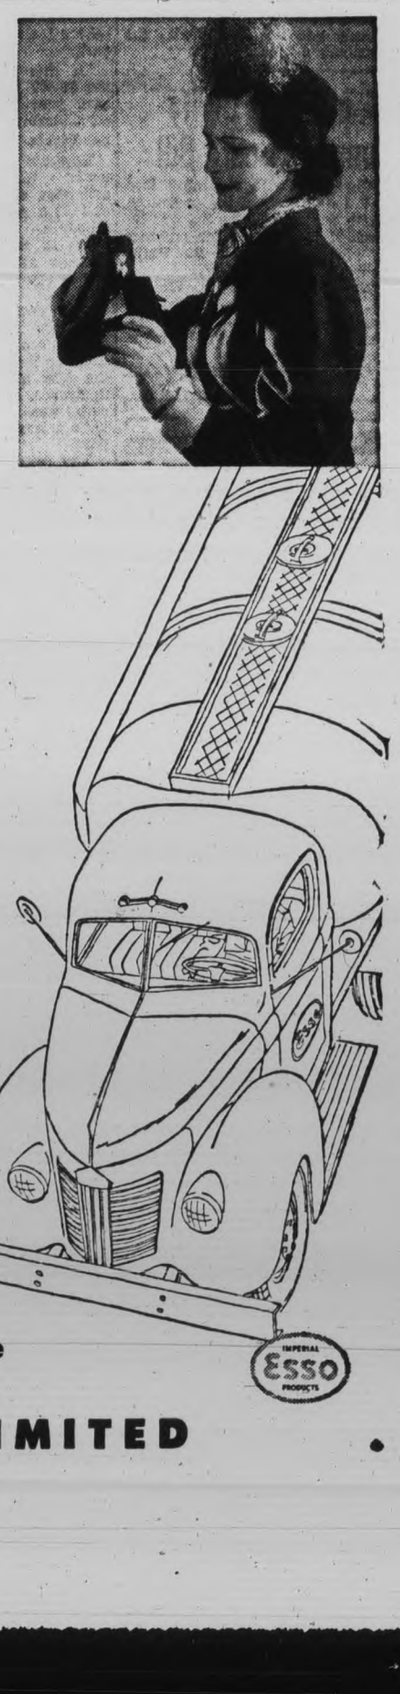
MANUFACTURING AND PACKAGING took more than 11 cents. Costly equipment and skilled workers were needed to make the 640 products we supplied for thousands of uses.

TRANSPORTATION took the next big bite of the dollar. Products moved over wide areas to serve every community in Canada. During 1949 we paid more than $34 millions for railway freight alone.

MARKETING was next. Marketing brought you the products you needed when and where you needed them . . . power, heat and lubricants for factory, home and farm. Marketing supplied your neighborhood dealer, that independent businessman, so that he could serve you conveniently and dependably.

TAXES to provincial and federal governments took 7.53 cents. And this did not include gasoline tax, which—depending on where you live—took from 21 to 33 cents out of every dollar you spent for standard grade gasoline.

PROFIT was 3.89 cents out of each sales dollar. Of this 2.25 cents went to shareholders as dividends. The rest—along with money we borrowed and obtained by sales of investments—was put back into the business to replace worn out equipment, to provide new equipment and make sure that we can continue to supply your needs in the future.



Bringing you oil is a big job ... and a costly one

Trade Minister Howe Would Like More Uranium From Newly-Developed Mines

OTTAWA, April 18 (CP). — Trade Minister Howe said Monday the government would like to have more urnaium. He announced two new steps to spur the hunt for the vital atomic ingredient.

He told the Commons the period of a government-guaranteed price is being extended from March 31, a formula has been worked out for 1955, to March 31, 1958, and that negotiation of special prices to be paid by the crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd.

Asked by Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) if the government is satisfied with the present quality of uranium ore being produced, he said:

Not Dissatisfied

"The government has no reason to be dissatisfied. We would like to have more but we have sufficient for our own purposes and have a surplus to sell to other friendly governments."

(Canadian uranium is used at the Chalk River, Ont., atomic project and sold to the United States and United Kingdom governments at undisclosed prices.)

G. S. White (PC-Hastings-Peterborough) asked if the Minister would care to comment on the price paid in the US as compared with the Canadian price?

Mr. Howe said that point will be made clear when the special formula is announced, probably today.

"It has been approved by myself but it is rather complicated. I am told it is quite intelligent to mining men but it was not to me and therefore I suggested that the people who understood it had better announce it."

Mr. Howe recalled his announcement of March 16, 1948, that the government's guaranteed price for th urnaium content of ores or concentrates would be at the minimum rate of $2.75 a pound of contained U308 f.o.b. rail. At the same time he had stated that "under special circumstances consideration may be given to the payment of a higher price or to the acceptance of ores or concentrates of a lower grade."

Says Democracy Not Enough Without Religion

Too long people have believed that democracy can thrive on freedom and liberty alone, the Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church, told the Rotary Club, Monday. His topic was "Democracy and Religion."

Mr. Douglas explained that unless people can somehow gear their social relationships within the democracy to provide cohesion and at the same time provide sufficient flexibility to guarantee genuine individual freedom, the western democracy will have no future.

To look for such cohesion, Mr. Douglas said that the people will have to turn back to the fundamental principles upon which democracy is built. To have a good democracy there must be good men and women, he added. "That is where religion and democracy come together."

Mr. Douglas defined religion as "the practice and possession of religious beliefs." The word religion is derived from a Latin word meaning "that which binds together," he said. Common points of religion and democracy are: (1) both believe in the common mass; (2) both believe that the individual owes a debt to society; (3) both believe in well-balanced lives for everyone; (5) both believe in training for responsibility; (6) both believe in the freedom of the individual.

"The real cause of the breakdown of democracy lies in the imperfection of man, pride, greed, prejudice, ignorance — the seven sins all contribute to internal disruption. No external enemies can harm us so much as these persistent evils in our midst."

No military or political changeover, said Mr. Douglas, will rid people of individual sins. The cure lies in religion.

Different Levels

The vital relationship between democracy and religion, he stated, is that they work at different levels upon the individuals. Democracy operates upon man in his relationships in society, but religion covers the whole range in the life of the individual.

Democracy was defined three time: (1) a philosophy of life which believes in the dignity and freedom of every man and in its working out in society gives liberty under law; (2) government of the people, by the people and for the people; (3) the essential doctrine of democracy is that each man, as a free human soul, lives his own free-will in the service of the whole people.

Mr. Douglas noted that democracy is not only a form of government functioning in a country, but a way of life and a way of looking at life. Democracy in North America, he said, has come to mean concern for the conduct of the people.

The Rev. Ivan Morgan introduced Mr. Douglas, who was thanked by John McColl.

President Harley Keefer announced that the new district governor is Arthur Ferguson, past president, and charter member of the Gravenhurst club. Mr. Ferguson has perfect attendance at Rotary Club meetings.

James Thompson of the Crippled Children's Easter Seal Fund reported more than $4,460 in donations to date. Further donations have been promised.

FRENCH CANADIAN BOOK: "What is the name of the new French Canadian book which is supposed to resemble Maria Chapdelaine?"
We think possibly the book to which you're referring is "The Outlander" by Germaine Guevremont. Critics say it does resemble the Louis Hemon book in its quiet pastoral simplicity of language.

SHORT HAIR FOR WOMEN: "Is the vogue for short hair for women on the decrease? I've read that Elizabeth Arden condemns it heartily."
She does. And in no uncertain terms. However, women are still having their hair cut shorter and shorter. It's a cool neat summer fashion which seems to be on the increase.

HURON OLD BOYS: "The Huron Old Boys are holding their annual bridge and euchre this month. We would like to serve something different as this is the golden jubilee year of the association. Usually we have assorted sandwiches, cake and coffee. It will be an evening party."
How about spiced tomato juice, chicken a la king, tossed salad, hot biscuits, gold cake with icing and coffee.

FAT MAN: "What help for a fat man who weighs 240, loves to eat and must diet? My wife says she is ashamed of me."
Every hope in the world, sir. We've sent you a choice of two diets, but do check with your doctor before you embark on either one.

Bedwell-Whetung Rites

The marriage of Nona Madolin daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Whetung and the late Mr. E. R. Whetung to Jack Edgar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bedwell of Toronto, took place Saturday afternoon in Carmel United Church, Crowe's Landing and was solemnized by the Rev. F. W. Horton.

The Church was decorated with tall standards of white snapdragon and ferns and guest pews were marked with tulle bows.

Music was played by the groom's sister Miss Eunice Bedwell who wore a fuchsia gown and matching corsage of butterfly roses.

Mr. George Boynett of Toronto sang "Oh, Blessed Wedding Day", and "If God left only you."

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law Mr. V. J. Montgomery the bride wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace over blush pink slipper satin. The skirt was slightly hooped and extended in a train. Her fingertip veil of imported French Tulle illusion was held by a pearl studded tiara and she carried a cascade of white camellias with ivy.

The attendants were in pastel shades of lime and lilac. Miss Beatrice Morrow as bridesmaid wore an ankle length gown of lime rayon sheer over white taffeta sleeveless with wings and sash of grosgrain at waist and matching headdress. She carried a cascade of Joanna Hill roses and Linda Lou mums done on a matching cascade frame of satin. The maid of honour Miss Marjorie Hawthorne, was dressed the same only in lilac.

Mr. Bill Cameron of Toronto, attended the groom and the ushers were Bob Zeidenberg and Don Whetung.

The reception was held in the Maurine Dining Room at Birchmuir Lodge, Crowe's Landing, Stony Lake. The bride's mother, received in grey crepe with navy straw hat and a corsage of Christmas beauty roses. The groom's mother assisted, wearing a cinnamon beige gown with matching accessories and corsage of Joanna Hill roses.

The couple are spending their honeymoon in the Laurentians. For going away the bride chose a printed turquoise silk dress and brown accessories topped with a coat of cinnamon beige and corsage of Joanne Hill roses. They will live in Toronto.

physically, but difficult to give ourselves spiritually and emotionally," he said. "In our impatience we try to stress 'our will' instead of 'Thy will' be done."

Through generosity of a friend of the auxiliary, a life membership was presented to Miss Sylvia Rutherford and Mr. Morwood made this presentation.

Mrs. V. Read presided at the piano and played softly during receiving of the offering.

Thanks to the guest was expressed by Miss M. Nesbitt. Refreshments were then served by Mrs. J. Smith and her committee.

A short executive meeting was held to make final plans for the [illegible] evening, April 26, commencing at eight o'clock.

Spring Bonnet And Flowers Won at Tea

Members of the Lieut. Col. Agnes Neill Chapter, IODE, held their annual spring tea in the YWCA Green Room Saturday afternoon. The guests were received by Mrs. C. Turner, honorary regent, Mrs. Gordon Vallery, regent, and Mrs. Harold Shaw, vice regent.

A lovely bouquet of snapdragon, iris and narcissus and lighted candles were on the tea table. The cups were filled by Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Roy Hutchinson, Mrs. H. C. Benson and Mrs. J. Allan and served by chapter members.

The home cooking, candy and talent tables were points of great interest and were in charge of Mrs. Jack Cranfield, Mrs. Lloyd Routley, Miss Dorothy Allan, Miss Eleanor Jobbitt, Miss Corinne Coones and Miss Dorothy Franks.

The draw on a spring bonnet was a special feature and it was won by Mrs. Thos. Hendry, 37 Armour Rd. Miss Jean Hamley was in charge of the tickets.

A second draw was for a bouquet of flowers and they went to Mrs. Bruce MacLean, 508 Charlotte St. Miss Marjorie Benson sold these tickets.

Miss Jean Cranfield, general convener, is largely responsible for success of this event.

King-Johnston Wedding Mark St. Church

At Mark St. United Church on Saturday Miss Josephine Jonnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnston, Stewart Hall, was married to Leslie William King, Peterborough, son of Mrs. Edna King and the late W. King. The Rev. B. S. Morwood officiated.

The church was decorated with tulips, daffodils and other spring flowers. Music was played by Mrs. Olive Searles, Mark St. Church organist, and Miss Dorothy McNeely sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin with Chinese neck line, tight bodice, long sleeves buttoned at the wrist and coming to a point over her hand. The skirt fell into a six foot train. She wore a braided satin headdress and her veil was of silk net. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The bride's attendants, Miss Jean Johnston, maid-of-honor, and Miss Anna Johnston, sisters of the bride, were dressed in blue and yellow taffeta with double net over taffeta skirts. Their dresses had brocaded necklines of daisies with cap sleeves worn slightly off the shoulder and hats of lamba straw. Their bouquets were of yellow daffodils, snap dragon and pink roses.

Mr. Max Green was best man and Everette Wood and William Kent were ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the church where the bride's mother received, wearing a suit of grey gabardine with a grey straw hat and her flowers were sweet peas.

When the couple left for a motor trip the bride was dressed in pink gabardine suit with pink straw hat, grey top coat, shoes and purse. She was wearing an orchid.

Belgian Guests Entertained By University Women

When the Vicomte du Pare of Belgium arrived from Ottawa Monday afternoon, on invitation of the University Women's Club of Peterborough, they were greeted by the club's program convener, Mrs. R. H. McClellan, who took them on a scenic drive.

The Vicomte said later, following dinner with 52 members of the club at the Empress Hotel, that he was much reminded of Belgium during the tour. In that small country with eight and a half million people, existence depends on import and export and everywhere it is either highly cultivated farmland or thickly industrialized.

Mrs. J. E. Watters, first vice-president, said that in bringing the Belgian Ambassador to Peterborough, the Club was carrying out its pledge to promote international friendship. At an open meeting later she outlined the purpose, aims and projects of the University Women who have been organized here since 1938.

Three lines of endeavour followed are: stimulating interest of university women in public affairs; stimulating social intercourse with women of various universities; encouraging women to express opinion in public affairs. In this conection they have backed the recent forming of a Study Club on Civic Affairs. They last year presented their first bursary to a Collegiate girl, now at University of Western Ontario, and they support the International Federation which gives international awards. They also claim credit in the banning of crime comics.

Grace before dinner was said in Latin by Miss Helen McGregor.

Mrs. C. G. Boyd proposed the toast to the King and later a toast to the honored guests which was followed by playing of the Belgian National Anthem.

Mrs. Ross Moore was pianist for the dinner and for the meeting following which was closed with singing "O Canada."

Speakers Stress Natural Beauty

The regular meeting of Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held last Monday night in the YWCA. Mrs. H. Lambert president, was in charge. It was decided the Founder's Day banquet would be held on May 8 at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. Mrs. W. Goodwin, Miss Betty Fee, Miss Myrtle McKeown, Mrs. T. Rolfe and Miss Elaine Cook, were chosen as the nominating committee for next year's executive, the offices to be assigned at next meeting. Miss Myrtle McKeown, program director, took charge of the meeting, and Mrs. W. Goodwin introduced Miss Betty Fee, who gave a very interesting talk on "Beauty of Words", starting with the way in which words were first formed, by imitating the cry of animals, and bringing the progress up through the ages. She showed how words die and are born with the coming of invention, and the development of man.

The speaker was thanked by Miss Mary Scollard.

Mrs. A. Bianco, who was introduced by Miss Myrtle McKeown gave an illustrated talk on "Beauty of Nature".

Mrs. J. Dougherty thanked this speaker.

Exemplar Chapter joined Alpha Theta for refreshments after the meeting.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, April 25.

Rev. B.S. Morwood Addresses WMS

The Evening Auxiliary of the WMS of St. Paul's Church held an Easter Thankoffering meeting Monday evening in the Guild Room. President Mrs. J. McLeod welcomed some visitors present. Devotions were led by Miss Margaret Reid.

Mrs. Reginald Chandler, guest soloist, sang a delightful solo and was accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. P. Hooper.

The guest speaker was the Rev. B. S. Morwood and his Easter message "Not My Will But Thine Be Done" was most inspiring.

He compared Jesus' struggle to make the decision of continuing his work or of offering Himself on the cross to the struggle experienced in everyday life. "It is easy to give ourselves to God

FINDS WAY TO AVOID HARSH LAXATIVES

"The harsh laxatives I used to take are on a forgotten shelf since I began eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. This good cereal has done wonders for me!" This from Iris M. Wetli, 35 Hunt Club Drive, Toronto 13, Ontario. One of many unsolicited letters. Are you suffering from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet? Try this for lasting relief: Eat an ounce of crispy ALL-BRAN daily, drink plenty of water. If not completely satisfied with results after 10 days, send empty box to Kellogg's, London, Ont. Get DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Do FALSE TEETH Rock, Slide or Slip?
FASTEETH an improved powder to be sprinkled on upper or lower plates holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide slip or rock. No gummy gooey pasty taste or feeling. FASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Early Marriages Bring Added Responsibilities

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a girl of 15. I expect and hope that she will not desire to marry until she is at least in her 20s. However I am not ignor[illegible] many youngsters of her age are forming friendships which within a year or two may result in marriage. I am making her understand its responsibilities and its pitfalls and preparing her as far as I can so that IF she should suddenly get married she would be in a fair way to make a decent job of it, while at the same time I am showing her the advantages of waiting a few years and the losses and disadvantages of too early a marriage. Perhaps these youngsters should not be considering marriage now, but they are, so isn't it better to advise them concerning it than to laugh it off and have them suddenly pop up utterly ignorant of how to make the most and best of the occupation which they have suddenly chosen for themselves?

T. N. B.

Dorothy Dix

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: These are words of wisdom which I commend to the consideration of parents, and especially to those parents who regard the puppy love affairs of their children as a merry jest instead of the very real danger that they are. For no one can tell when these unsophisticated infants are going to take it into their heads to get married. And Mother and Father are shocked and horrified. But the deed is done. Mamie and Tommy are married, and the fault is largely their parents' because they never taught their youngsters anything about marriage

Have False Idea

They let their children get their ideas of marriage from novels and movies which entirely ignore the responsibilities and hardships and sacrifices that are an inevitable part of it.

Certainly it would keep many a boy from rushing precipitately into marriage if he had been taught from his babyhood up that no man has a right to ask a woman to marry him until he can provide for her, and that when he marries he must make his own nest and not expect his father and mother to share theirs with him.

And it would keep many a girl from marrying in her teens if she had been taught by her mother that her parents would expect her to be a good sport and stand by her bargain instead of rushing off to the divorce court the minute she found out that marriage meant sacrifice and hard work instead of romance. For my part I have never seen why parents didn't use a few object lessons in certain conditions. Thereby they might save their precious darlings from making tragedies of their own lives.

DEAR MISS DIX: My son and his wife have lived with me ever since [illegible] marriage several years ago. He is my only child, all I have in the world, and I cannot bear the thought of his leaving me. He always comes to me with his difficulties in business matters and tells me that I come first in his life. His wife is not as appreciative as she might be and is not always in the best of humor. Now don't you think I am doing right by keeping my son with me as long as I can?

MOTHER

ANSWER: No. I think that you are doing a very great wrong not only to your son's wife but to your son himself.

You are ruining his life, because you are wrecking his marriage. You are separating him from his wife, because you are coming between them. And even if the marriage doesn't end in divorce—as it probably will—you will have made it one of those accursed husks of marriage that are nothing but an endurance test.

Every marriage is a failure in which the wife does not come first with the husband. If he does not love her better than anybody else in the world, better even than his mother; if he does not go to her for sympathy, for advice, for understanding, it simply means that he is not getting the companionship out of marriage that he hoped for.

And if the husband turns to his mother instead of his wife; if he depends upon his mother instead of upon his wife; if mother comes first, then marriage is an utter failure to the wife, and she is filled with a jealousy that eats out her very soul.

So if you have for your son that love that makes you put his happiness above you own, you will not want to be first with him. You will abdicate the throne in favor of his wife and you will send them off to live by themselves so that they will have to depend on each other and have a chance to grow together.

DEAR MISS DIX: What is love?

G. B. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is the unsolved mystery of life. No man knows why he loves, nor why he ceases to love. No man can force himself to love, or refrain from loving. It is so strong that it can survive all things and so frail that it can perish with a breath, and, once dead, no power can revive it. It has no reason for its existence and no explanation for its end. It is, and it is not, and that is all we know about it.

MOVIE COLUMN

Hollywood Will Swap Old Films For Coming Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 18 (AP) The movie business, which is eying television closely these days, is also eying the new medium's talent. Evidence of that is Charlton Heston, new film discovery imported from TV.

Heston landed an important role in 'Dark City' on the strength of [illegible] er Hal Wallis viewed him on a number of shows and signed the lad without a screen test. Naturally, Heston is hepped up about the television. Says he:

"It's a wonderful new field for kids who want to act but have found the stage and screen closed to them." He pointed out that actors working in the theatre, radio and movies cannot do TV regularly. "That leaves it to the kids who aren't working," said Heston, who was not long ago in that category.

Notes 'N' Stuff

Friends of Rita Hayworth report she no longer signs her letters "Rita." It's "MAK" now. That stands for "Marguerita Aly Khan," her real name.

Joan Crawford, one of the most famed of the Charleston dancers, says she won't join the revival of the craze. "I've done the Charleston," she says. "I'm looking for something new."

Eleanor Tennant, who coached many a tennis star to championships, will be technical advisor for Ida Lapino's "Loving Cup." The picture purports to take amateur tennis apart.

Odd Bits

Aircraft is helping Hollywood make pictures these days. Chase scenes through Los Angeles streets were filmed from a helicoper by the "Prowl Car" company.

[illegible] down at the desert, they needed photogenic clouds for "Tripoli" scenes. So they sent up three sky-writing planes to sprinkle the clear skies with clouds.

6—In Memoriams

CHAMBERS—In loving memory of my husband, J. Stewart Chambers, who passed away April 18, 1947.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Lovingly remembered by Mrs. Chambers and family.

CRIPPS—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Albert Cripps, who passed away April 18, 1949.
The depth of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well;
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep
His memory we shall always keep.
—Lovingly remembered by all the family.

FERGUSON—In loving memory of my dear brother, Ray, who passed away two years ago today.
I missed you then,
I miss you now
I'll always miss you anyhow!
—(Audrey) Mrs. G. E. Sandbach.

FERGUSON—In loving memory of my dear husband, Raymore Ferguson, who passed away April 18, 1948:
The one I loved has gone to rest,
His fond, true heart is still,
The hand that always helped me
Now lies in death's cold chill.
—Always remembered by loving wife Marguerite and children, Davie and June.

GRIFFIN—In loving memory of Nellie Griffin, who passed away April 18, 1946:
Gone dear Nellie, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
—Ever remembered by mother, dad and family.

MUSGRAVE—In loving memory of our dear brother, Henry Howard Musgrave, who left us so suddenly, April 18, 1948, who served four years in World War I.
At the going down of the sun,
And in the morning
We will remember you.
—Ever remembered by sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Al. Simpson.

ROGOW—In loving memory of Sgt.-Pilot Sam Rogow.
Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break but all in vain,
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.
—Always remembered by Mother, Dad, brothers and sisters.

STINSON—In loving memory of a dear husband, Ronald E. Stinson, who passed away April 18, 1949:
More and more each day we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
—Ever remembered by wife Myrtle and family.

Stephen J. Martin Dies In Kingston

KINGSTON, April 18 (CP) — Stephen J. Martin, 57, general manager of Kingston Ponies of the Class C Border Baseball League, died in hospital today while undergoing an operation.

Mr. Martin served overseas with the Canadian Army during the First World War and entered the retail shoe business on his return. He invested $10,000 in the Ponies last year and had extensive plans for the club this season.

Surviving are his widow, the former Marjorie Allen of Peterborough, two sons and a daughter. High requiem mass will be sung at 9 a.m. Thursday in St. Mary's Cathedral. Interment will be at St. Mary's Cemetery.

Nearly Lose Fender As Two Cars Collide

A rear fender was almost ripped from a car Saturday night when two autos collided near George and Townsend Sts.

George Thomas of Fraserville, was driving north on George St. when he attempted to pass a car driven by William MacSwain, R.R. 1. As Thomas was nearly past, MacSwani began a left turn, and the cars collided.

MacSwain told police he did not see the Thomas car, but that he signalled for a turn. Thomas said he saw no signal. The right rear fender was almost ripped from Thomas's car. Police say no charges will be laid.

Girl Finds Watch

TORONTO, April 18—(CP)—A seven-year-old girl, Sheila Waylen, found a diamond and platinum watch worth $1,000 in her school yard Monday and turned it over to her principal. The watch was later returned to its owner by police.

Oil Pipe-Line Filibuster Ends Temporarily In House

OTTAWA, April 18 (CP) —The Commons chamber is free of its pipe-lines filibusters for the first time in two sessions — but only for the time being. And the ruddy face of George Cruickshank (L-Fraser Valley) is redder than usual.

Mr. Cruickshank voted the wrong way once and a Progressive Conservative member tried to adjourn the house once for lack of a quorum — only 18 of 258 members were present — as the two private bills that have caused hours of debate finally were sent to committee Monday.

They now are technically before the committee on railways and shipping. It took four recorded votes to get them there and they still have to come back to the house for third and final reading. The debate could flare up again then.

Unite 2 Companies

The bills would incorporate the Alberta Natural Gas Company and Prairie Transmission Lines Limited, both seeking the right to build a gas pipe line from Alberta to British Columbia. Members opposing them want a guarantee that the lines will be built through Canada rather than the United States.

The House also received from External Affairs Minister Pearson a 300-page report on Canada's activities in the United Nations in 1949. It stressed the limitations brought down on UN by Russian actions but said Canada will continue to make the "fullest contribution within her power."

Trade Minister Howe announced extension of the government-guaranteed price for radioactive ores from March 31, 1955, to March 31, 1958, and said a formula for special prices to be paid for certain ores will probably be announced today. He said the government, while not dissatisfied with present uranium production, would like more.

Opposed 4 Times

Four times during the day Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. members united to oppose motions involving the pipe-line bills, and were voted down by Liberal and Social Credit members. The votes were, in each case, that the motions for second reading or approval in principle be put to the House and then that second reading be given.

Mr. Cruickshank voted against the government on the first three motions but mistakenly switched on the fourth. He rose at the end of the vote-taking to blurt "Mr. Speaker, I made a mistake" But the vote stood.

The first two votes came at the afternoon session, and were 100 to 28 and 101 to 29. The night votes were 100 to 27 and 106 to 26.

No Quorum

At one stage in the afternoon's debate Karl Homuth (PC-Waterlooo South) noted there were only 18 members present and said the House should be adjourned for lack of a quorum of 20.

Three Liberals, including Resources Minister Winters, slipped back into the House in time for Rene Beaudoin (L-Vaudrieul-Soulanges), in the chair, to count more than 20 members.

Larochelle Said Eligible To Play For Winnipeg

CHATHAM, April 17—(CP)—Bill Larochelle, subject of a verbal tug-of-war between Ottawa Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, said today he believes he is eligible to play football for Winnipeg this year.

played for Ottawa last fall. He intends to go to the University of Manitoba next autumn and wants to perform for the Bombers.

J. P. McCaffrey, Roughrider vice-president, said earlier that Larochelle will play for Ottawa "or not at all." He claimed Larochelle signed a 1950 Canadian Rugby Union card with Ottawa.

Ralph Misener, Blue Bomber president, came back with a statement that Larochelle had not signed with Ottawa.

"I think McCaffrey is shooting in the dark," said Misener. "He's probably trying to hold Larochelle on his 1949 card."

Finally Larochelle got in a word. He said of his dealings with Misener:

"I told him I signed a 1949 card last fall, but Mr. Misener advised me Ottawa couldn't hold me on that. My understanding is that the 1950 cards become effective in March."

Larochelle added, though, that the CRU will have to make a ruling before he'll know for sure where he stands—or where he'll play.

War On Bookies

WASHINGTON, April 18. (AP) — Attorney-General J. Howard McGrath told Congress Monday that it could deal organized gambling in the United States "a knockout blow" by denying bookmakers the use of telephone, telegraph and radio service they need in their operations. Testifying before a Senate commerce sub-committee, he urged passage of a law forbidding the transmission of gambling information across state lines. The sub-committee is considering such a bill.

Sentenced To 12 Years

TORONTO, April 18. (CP) — Twelve years in penitentiary was the sentence imposed Monday on Leslie McLean, 39, for armed robbery. He was convicted of using an automatic to hold up Jim Facer, night dispatcher for a suburban North York taxi company.

Crime Syndicate Operating In U.S.-Senator Wherry

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) —Senator Kenneth Wherry (Rep. Neb.) took issue today with a statement by Attorney-General J. Howard McGrath that the justice department knows of no great country-wide crime syndicate in the United States.

"The justice department information doesn't square with the testimony given the Senate rules and judiciary committees," Wherry told reporters. "We have received information which made a deep impression on us that a crime investigation is needly badly."

McGrath's statement was made Monday during testimony before a Senate commerce sub-committee which is considering a bill to block transmission of gambling information across state lines.

Urging passage of the measure, the attorney-general said it would deal organized gambling "a knockout blow."

McGrath testified he could not deny there were big business operations in crime in individual cities. But he added: "I could not with honesty say that we know there is any great syndicate presided over by any great czar."

Philadelphia Phillies announced Monday that they are sending Eddie Sanicki, highly-regarded young outfielder, to their Toronto farm in the International League on 24-hour recall.

Sanicki, who batted in 104 runs for Toronto last season, was given a chance of beating out Richie Ashburn for the Phils' centrefield job this season, but Ashburn in spring training showed the same sparkle that made him one of the league's top rookies in 1948.

Sanicki appeared briefly with the Phils at the end of the 1949 season and got three hits—all home runs.

The Phils announced also the option to Toronto of Bill Kozarek, young righthanded pitcher from Philadelphia. Kozarek won 14 and lost 2 for Terre Haute in the Three-eye League and had a 2-7 record with Utica in the Eastern League last season.

Montreal Canadiens have purchased Vernon Kaiser, 25-year-old left-winger, from Springfield Indians for cash and players, Frank Selke, general manager of the National Hockey League club, announced Monday.

Kaiser is the third player purchased by the Habitants in recent weeks in an effort to bring new and younger blood into their ranks.

A native of Preston, Kaiser played junior hockey in Port Colborne, turned pro with the now defunct Fort Worth, Tex., team of the USHL in 1947-48 and graduated to Springfield the following year. A six-footer, he weighs 180 pounds.

At Boston, bobbing and weaving Robert Villemain of France gained a split decision over Joe Rindone of Boston, in their bruising 10-round feature boxing bout on Monday night at Boston Garden. The French middleweight led in six of the rounds but referee Joe Zapustas credited each battler with 97 points while voting for a draw. Villemain weighed 160 and Rindone 160½.

INTERFERENCE APPROVED

I don't like to interfere, but when I found that my youngest daughter-in-law didn't know that blueing is the only safe way to keep clothes white, I felt I just had to say something. 'Reckitt's Blue prevents clothes turning yellow', I told her. 'Just a swish or two in the final rinse and your wash will be sparkling white.' Blue is necessary to obtain true white. At the same time she takes no chances with anything that may damage fabric.

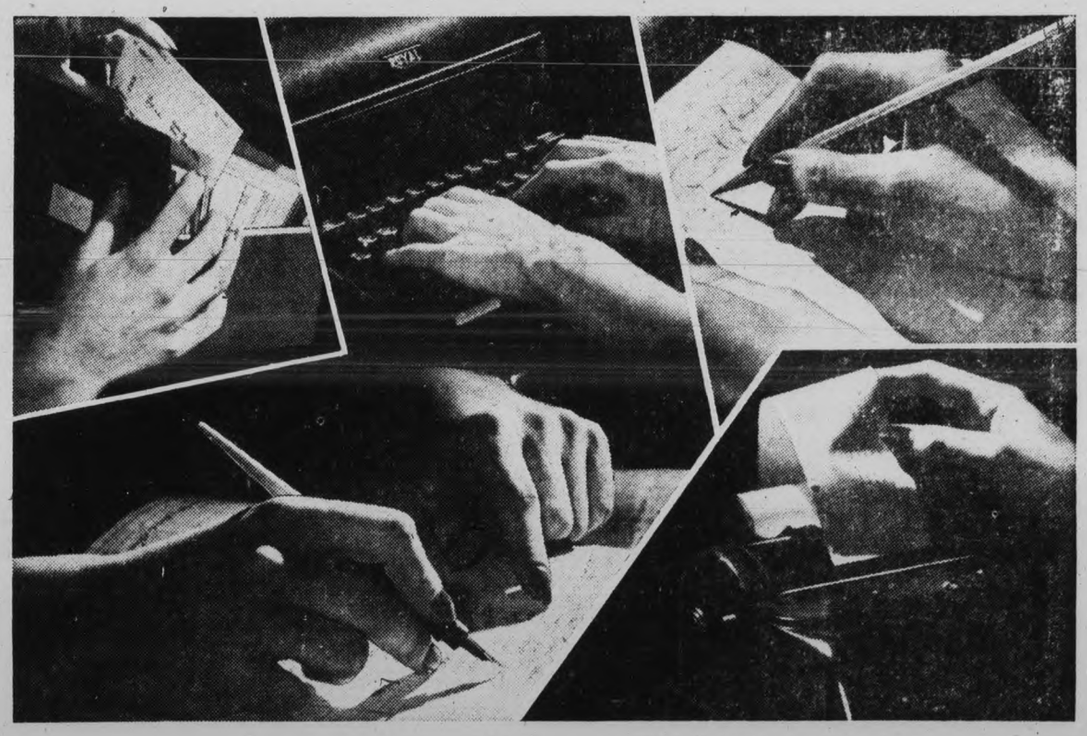
HANDS IN TRAINING...FOR ONTARIO



Learning Business Practice

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of office workers to become proficient in typing, filing, shorthand and secretarial work, will mean greater business efficiency—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy — that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

May Send Survey To Study Iran In Economic Need

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

WASHINGTON, April 18 (AP) —A United States survey mission soon may be sent to strategically-important Iran—now in the grip of an economic crisis and rising Communist pressure. The question: what, if anything, can the U. S. do?

No on-the-spot study has been decided upon yet, it was said. However, State Secretary Dean Acheson is reported deeply concerned over the Iranian situation and has assigned it a high priority among the urgent problems under department consideration.

The situation is complicated by the fact that Iran, along with Greece and Turkey is on the front line of the cold war in the oil-rich Middle East. It is under constant Russian propaganda pressure from the outside while a Communist political group, the Tudeh party, is gaining strength inside.

Formerly Stable

For many months, the State Department had considered that conditions in Iran were stable and the country need not be a source of major worry to American cold-war strategists. That situation began to change about the first of the year, when a series of alarming reports began pouring in to Acheson from the American ambassador to Tehran, John C. Wiley.

As top officials now understand the problem, Iran is suffering the results of last year's cereal crop failure, mainly wheat.

People began to go hungry and farmers' income dropped.

Business activity is down because people lack the money to buy even at lower prices.

The Iranians have repeatedly asked the United States for economic assistance. They obtained a loan of $26,000,000 two years ago to buy surplus military equipment and they are geting some military aid under the current foreign arms program but no economic help.

National Arts Board Urged Develop Canadian Culture

OTTAWA, April 18 (CP) — ation of an all-man national arts board of artists and citizens to aid and develop Canada's cultural conscience was urged Monday before the Massey Commission on Arts.

Concerned over the developments of culture in Canada, the Canadian Arts Council advanced the idea of the board along with 10 other recommendations to spark a new spirit of cultural advanement in this country.

Basis of the board's function would be to stimulate and support—by guarantees and grants-in-aid—existing art activities by competent organizations already established, rather than take such activities on its own shoulders.

The Arts Council, which represents 18 national cultural bodies and some 10,000 creative workers, envisioned the board as promoting "the freest development and expression in our two great cultures."

Support Organizations

The board would support touring musical, operative, dramatic and ballet organizations and art exhibitions. It would encourage established composers, playwrights, authors and artists by awarding prizes and fellowships.

It would award commissions and initiate national projects to give employment to practicing artists, encourage the cultivation of creative Canadian, Indian and Eskimo art and handicrafts and "give serious consideration to the economic problems confronting writers."

Other recommendations of the council included:

1. Increased financial support for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and artist representation on CBC and television boards.

2. Federal financial help to universities and other recognized training institutions in art, drama and music, national scholarships for art students and prizes for artists in all fields.

3. Immediate construction of a national library.

4. Financial aid to help build theatres, concert halls, art galleries and art centres across the country.

5. Financial aid to help stage ballets, operas and orchestral performances and to assist circulating art exhibits.

6. Some assistance, also, to all national voluntary art organizations.

7. Consolidating of all of the government's cultural activities under a single departmental branch.

ARREST 2 FOR GIRLS' HIT-RUN DEATHS

Arrest Two Counterfeit Ring Heads

Believe Printed War Ration Stamps Mounties Aided Hunt

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 19—(AP)—Two men held here today were accused of heading a country-wide counterfeiting ring that has passed more than $500,000 in bogus bills this year. A. E. Whitaker, supervising Secret Service Agent of the New York district, described Anthony Iraci, 36, and Salvatore Salli, 39, as "the leaders of this new counterfeit enterprise involving $10 and $20 bills." Both are Buffalo residents.

Whitaker also linked them with recent counterfeiting of Canadian bills and with wartime printing of fake ration stamps.

Iraci and Salli were the "moving spirits in the widespread counterfeiting of O.P.A. (Office of Price Administration, a wartime agency) ration stamps during the war and organizers of the ring which has been counterfeiting large amounts of Canadian currency during the last few months," he alleged.

They were charged with conspiracy to manufacture and sell more than $500,000 in counterfeit bills.

They pleaded innocent at arraignment before U.S. Commissioner Boyce H. Butterfield. He set bond at $100,000 apiece and scheduled a hearing for Thursday.

The arrests followed seizures of large quantities of counterfeit $10 and $20 bills in New York City and Buffalo.

Secret service officials said the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and police of Toronto and Niagara Falls aided in the investigation.

In another case, Charles Sicurella, 41, pleaded guilty in federal court Tuesday to a charge of possessing counterfeit $10 bills. He will be sentenced May 8.

Secret service officials said they had been aided in the investigation of the counterfeit ring by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Detective Inspector John Nimmo of the Toronto Police Department and Police Chief Martino Considine of Niagara Falls, NY.

Two weeks ago police in Toronto said they believed the presses in which a flood of counterfeit Canadian $10 bills was being printed are located in Upper New York State. The secret servicemen had nothing to say as to the printing site.

Officials said neither Salli nor Iraci resisted arrest and neither had any counterfeit money on his person.

3,000 Dockers Strike In UK

LONDON, April 19.—(Reuters).—More than 3,000 London dockers and stevedores went on strike today, making another 7,700 orkers idle and affecting 90 ships loading and discharging cargoes.

About 200 transport trucks from many parts of Britain were held up at the dockside.

The men's decision was made at a mass meeting in protest against dismissals of three union men.

Queen Mary Sees Play 83, And Proud Of It

LONDON, April 19—(AP)—Queen Mary went to the new Lindsey theatre last night.

She saw a play called "The Orange Orchard" by Eden Phillpotts, who is 87.

Backstage she talked with the leading player, Nancy Price, 70. Later Charles Wreford, who taught the cast Devon Dialect, told the Queen Mother he was 78.

"That's nothing," she said. "I'm 83."

Enough's Enough

KITCHENER, April 19—(CP)—A Kitchener man may hold the marathon title for pinball machine play. He began playing in a restaurant on a recent afternoon and was still playing when the proprietor wanted to close after midnight. Told he would have to stop, he shattered the glass top of the machine with his fist and walked out.

400 Oshawa Men Refuse To Work Over Promotion

OSHAWA, April 19 — (CP). — Four hundred auto workers who put down their tools late Tuesday at Skinners Ltd., an automobile feeder plant, returned to the factory today but did not work.

Officials of United Automobile Workers (CIO) said the strike was called when a non-union worker, at the plant only three weeks, was promoted. They termed the promotion "a direct breach of the working contract now in force."

More than 20 night-shift workers, in the plant which supplies General Motors of Canada Ltd., were ordered not to report for work Tuesday night. The 400 day workers are ordered not to return to work until the dispute is settled, the union says.

Fred Skinner, plant manager, is scheduled to meet with the union today and he said the matter will be dealt with.

Bomb Tossed Into US Legation

DAMASCUS, Syria, April 19—(AP)—A bomb tossed into the American Legation compound Tuesday night slightly wounded a United States Marine guard and shattered glass windows and doors of the building.

The bombing apparently was the latest expression of growing anti-American and anti-British sentiment here as a result of tension between the Arab states and Israel.

No arrests were made immediately by police.

The bomb incident came a month after hand grenades were thrown at the British legations here and in Beyrouth, Lebanon.

Anti-American and anti-British feeling has risen recently because of the belief in some Arab quarters that the U.S. and Britain are favoring Israel over the Arabs.

Baby's Face, Hands Burned, Parents Fight

HAMILTON, April 19 (CP) — Police here are investigating the circumstances which resulted in severe face and hand burns to a nine-month-old baby girl early this week.

Morality officer James Currier said today the child's face and hands were burned during an argument between its parents. He said the father was attempting to take the baby from her mother's arms when the baby's face and hands came in contact with a hot stove.

Police have charged the father, Anthony Galoghin, with assaulting his wife. They have not decided whether further charges will be laid in connection with the child's injuries.

British Sell Arms To Arab Nations

Continue Embargo Against Shipping Israel Armaments

LONDON, April 19—(AP)—The British government disclosed today it has sold "limited quantities" of arms lately to Egypt, Iran, Turkey, Iraq, Hashemite Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

At the same time, the House of Commons was informed by Ernest Davies, Foreign Undersecretary, that Britain has continued its embargo against delivery of armaments to Israel.

Sydney Silverman, Labor, demanded:

"Although it is no doubt true that we have treaty obligations to these countries and no such treaty in relation to Israel, what justification does that afford for placing an embargo on the sale of arms to Israel?"

"The reason," Davies replied, "is that according to the best information available to us, Israel already has sufficient war material for her internal security and self-defence."

Barnett Janner, Labor, asserted there have been "public statements" by some of the countries receiving British arms that they plan to renew their war with Israel.

"I cannot accept that such statements have been made," Davis retorted.

Harry Bridges Sues Prosecutor For Libel

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19 — (AP)—Harry Bridges Tuesday filed a $500,000 libel and slander suit against the prosecutor who got him a five-year prison sentence.

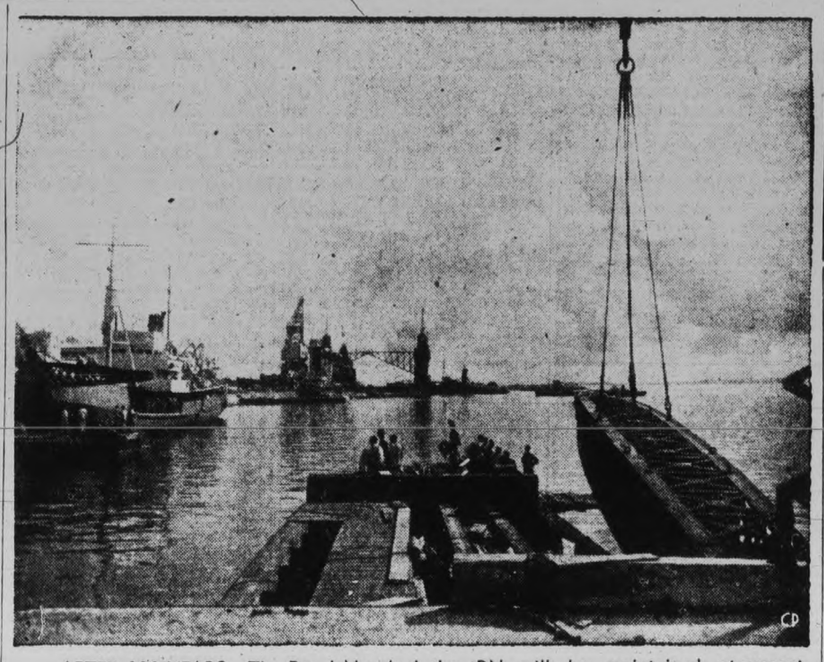
Bridges' suit said F. Joseph Donohue called him a liar and perjurer in a noonday luncheon address. Further, the suit charges, Donohue said Bridges "made a contract with Communism" and was "playing an important part in the plan to bring about a revolution."

Donohue replied that his remarks were a fair statement of the evidence which recently convicted Bridges of perjury and conspiracy.

Bridges, president of the CIO Longshoremen's Union, was convicted of having lied in swearing he never was a Communist to obtain United States citizenship in 1945. He is free on bond pending an appeal.

London Church Brides Must Cover Shoulders

LONDON, Ont., April 19—(CP)—Brides expecting to be married in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church were warned recently in a sermon by the pastor, Rev. W. T. O'Rouke that if they or their attendants "approach this altar with bare shoulders I'll have those shoulders draped in red bandanas by the altar boys."



AFTER 130 YEARS—The Royal Navy's dockyard in Bermuda is being closed for reasons of economy. The dockyard shown here is off the western end of Ireland Island. The American and West Indies squadron of the RN will be maintained at present strength but refit and repair work will be done in the United Kingdom. It is expected the dockyard, opened in 1810, will be closed completely by next March.

UK Budget Inadequate - Butler

LONDON, April 19—(CP)—A Conservative leader asserted today the Labor government's new budget is "inadequate to deal with the fundamentals of our economic and financial position." R. A. Butler, one of Winston Churchill's right hand men, opened debate on the budget in the House of Commons with the statement that Britain is heading into "grave difficulties."

"This is the budget of a man and a government who do not choose or care to look very far ahead," Butler said.

The Budget was presented Tuesday by Sir Stafford Cripps, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. It covered the fiscal year which started April 1. Cripps estimated spending at £3,455,000,000 up 79,700,000 from last year.

"The government seems unable or totally unwilling to control public expenditure," Butler said.

"No less than £19,000,000,000 has been spent by this government in the last five years—an unprecedented sum in the history of this country."

The government put out a three-line whip—the most urgent parliamentary summons to attend and vote right—in order to guard against any sudden challenge by the Conservatives.

Prime Minister Attlee has an overall margin of only four in Commons. A defeat on an issue of confidence in his government would force it to resign. However most political observers doubted any attempt to bring down the government until after the budget vital for the functioning of the country, is in force.

Debate on the budget is likely to last through Monday.

Conservative leader Winston Churchill and his "shadow cabinet" met last night and planned the broad lines of the Conservative attack on the government.

Sir Stafford was due this morning to answer critics in his own party at a private Labor parliamentary meeting. Some Labor members would have liked to have seen a popular budget, more

Attlee Government Relies On Loyalty

LONDON, April 19 —(CP)—The Labor Government today decided to carry on without any rigid forms of parliamentary discipline.

This means that the government will rely on party loyalty rather than a formal code of conduct to sustain it in future trials of strength in the House of Commons.

The decision was taken at a private party caucus, which also heard Labor's first detailed criticisms of the budget introduced Tuesday by Sir Stafford Cripps.

An official statement after the meeting said the caucus discussed the Labor Party's "standing orders", and decided to continue their suspension for the present session of parliament.

Standing orders impose tight discipline on all Labor members of parliament, with stiff penalties for violation, including expulsion if necessary. The orders were suspended in 1945.

Debt, Not Woman Blamed For Plane-Murder Attempt

LOS ANGELES, April 18—(AP)—Heavy indebtedness, not "the other woman," Aeronautical Engineer John H. Grant told police today, caused him to plot the death of his wife and two children—along with 13 other persons aboard a commercial airliner yesterday.

But in Hollywood hotel suite, red-haired Betty Suomela airlines stewardess, told a press conference that Grant had proposed marriage to her and that she wants to help him, if possible.

Detective Ned Logsdon said Grant dictated an extensive statement about his plot to do away with his family, collect $25,000 in insurance and square himself financially.

Grant's wife, Betty, 26, and their daughter, Marie, 6, and son, Robert, 5, were aboard a United Airlines San Diego-bound plane on the ground here Monday when he rushed to the baggage-loading rack and shouted: "Don't let that plane take off! I just put a bag on it full of gasoline."

Actually the bag was about to be loaded, but it was carried to the runway, where it burst into flames. Police chemists said it contained a clock bomb timed to ignite a gasoline-filled rubber inner tube which would have set fire to the plane 50 minutes after its scheduled departure.

Suspect Foul Play

MONTREAL, April 19.—(CP)—Provincial police said today they suspected foul play in the death of a newly-born baby girl found Tuesday in the North river near Lachute, Que. The infant's body was wrapped in newspaper and stuffed in a cardboard box.

Chinese Claims Of Success Halt

TAIPEI, Formosa, April 19 — (AP)—Chinese Nationalists today abruptly choked off their first smashing claims of success in crushing the Red invaders of Hainan Island.

The Nationalists said Monday about 8,000 Chinese Communists had planted two beachheads on the vital island, 10 miles off Luichow Peninsula.

They announced jubilantly their forces had killed 5,000 Reds, captured about 1,000 and were smashing the remnants Tuesday.

Today they said nothing. The silence could be ominous.

This sinister note was heightened by the arrival Tuesday of Chen Chi-Tang, governor of Hainan.

Officially, it was said Chen came to ask the Nationalist High Command for instructions. Chen was reported as saying the invaders were "well contained" and Nationalist morale was high.

But reports circulated that the earlier claims of success were too rosy.

These unofficial reports said the Reds were entrenched firmly along an 18-mile stretch of coast and at some points had penetrated four or five miles inland.

If this is true, the Chinese Communists might be in a position to pour strong reinforcements across the narrow Hainan Strait.

2 Youths Face Manslaughter Bail Set At $5,000 Police Get Telephone Tip

Two Young Girls Killed On Road At Dusk On Way To Special Church Service Truck Chased, But Escaped Police Net

TORONTO, April 19—(CP)—Two youths were accused today of being drivers of the truck that failed to stop after striking down and killing two young girls on their way to Church 19 days ago. Police, who admitted several days ago that they had run up against a blank wall in their investigation, said an unexpected telephone tip Tuesday night ended their long search. The tip led to the arrest of James Tackaberry, 19, of Toronto, and Frank Wells, 20, of suburban York Township, employed as truckers by the Ontario Lumber Company, a North Toronto firm that deals in prefabricated houses. The information came from an official of the company.

Charged with manslaughter and with leaving the scene of an accident, the youths appeared in court today and were remanded to April 21. Bail was set at $5,000 each.

Police seized a yellow and brown lumber truck which they said may have been the vehicle that fatally injured Lorraine Watson, 13, and her five-year-old niece, Barbara Jones. The children were struck down at dusk March 31 as they walked along North Bathurst Street in suburban North York Township to a lenten service at St. Eugene's Roman Catholic Church.

Wells has a 15-month-old daughter Lois. The night of the accident, his wife returned from hospital after losing her second baby.

Both Wells and Tackaberry live in the general area of the accident scene.

The three-ton truck, loaded with two prefabricated cottages and a double garage, was found near Agincourt, a northwestern suburb, where the lumber company has a plant, police said. Since the accident, it has been driven many times through Toronto and suburban areas.

Jutting from the side of the truck are two iron braces holding green clearance lights at the front of the rack. Police say they believe the one on the right side struck and killed the Watson girl.

Police took Wells and Tackaberry into custody at their homes after Albert Mandelbaum, vice-president of the lumber company told police he thought one of his firm's trucks "might be the one the police are looking for."

Mandelbaum said a customer casually remarked to him Tuesday that it was possible that the wanted truck might belong to his

Deputy Premier's Son Flees East Germany

BERLIN, April 19.—(AP)—The son of a deputy prime minister of Soviet-occupied East Germany today became a political refugee in West Berlin.

Ralph Kastner, whose father is leader of the Eastern Liberal Democratic Party, announced he had fled with his wife and children to escape "unbearable Communist pressure."

Floods Isolate Three Centres Near Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, April 19—(CP)—A minor drainage system Tuesday night went on a sudden rampage, isolating at least three southern Manitoba communities. The suddenness and the fury indicated that destruction in the province this year might be worse than in 1948.

Rosenfeld, Plum Coulee and Hordean, three villages nestled below the Pembina Hills, today were cut off by rail and road from the rest of the country.

At Rosenfeld two feet of water flooded basements and stores, sending at least 50 families scurrying to higher ground. Storekeepers worked knee-deep in the rising water to move their stocks.

Rosenfeld is about 60 miles south of here and 12 miles west of the mighty Red River, which has still to reach its peak. Hordean and Plum Coulee are a few miles due west.

A little creek a few miles away did the damage. Dikes run north and south to divert the spring run-off into the Red. They gave yesterday, but a main dike between the village and a highway junction still held.

A 50-foot breach was bulldozed out of the highway to lead the water past the outskirts.

South of the village is a vast plain of water and quagmire, creeping closer and threatening to isolate Rosenfeld from three sides.

Flood jitters are rampant along the Red from Winnipeg to the U.S. border. The crest, coming up from North Dakota, is not expected for about 10 days. But earlier optimistic reports of the predicted level are being revised.

In the south-west United States rampaging rivers today poured new torrents over large parts of North Dakota and Western Minnesota to drive added hundreds of families from their homes. The Red Cross estimated 3,000 persons were homeless in North Dakota.

Jamestown, N. D., where 500 families were ousted by the normally placid Pipestem River, faced a new threat as the James River started to move over its banks.

Richard Stoudt, Red Cross disaster committee chairman, said half the houses in Jamestown, a city of some 10,000 already were under water in the south-southwest section along the Pipestem.

Seven-Year-Old Girl Abducted

Four police cars and nearly 100 citizens joined in a two-hour search Tuesday night for a seven-year-old girl believed abducted by an unknown man. The search was directed by Deputy Police Chief John Naples.

Two hours after she was first reported missing, she was found at the corner of Maria St. and Armour Road. A doctor examined her and found she had not been harmed.

No description of the man was available, although it is believed several citizens saw him walking with the girl.

Today, the little girl, guided Police Chief John Thompson and several officers to the spot she said the man had taken her. Chief Thompson said the girl was not sure of the exact spot, but that he believes it was fairly close to Armour Rd.

Police are continuing the search for the man.

Cold Caused By the Weather

Many Laboratory Experiments Prove Theory

BOSTON, April 19 — (AP) — The common cold is probably not caused by a virus as you have been told for many years, nor by germs of any sort.

Instead grandfather was right when he said it was caused by the weather.

This surprising view of colds given to the American College of Physicians by Dr. William J. Kerr of San Francisco, and of the University of California School of Medicine. The opinions he explained are backed by a lot of laboratory experiments.

He said he doesn't believe that colds are caused by any living organism, except that flu, grippe and some other diseases can damage the nose and so start a cold.

The usual causes, he said, are dusts, gases, emotions, and especially those changes in the nose which comes with changes in weather.

After an even temperature all summer, he said, you get cold Fall weather. Your nasal passages get over-cooled. The same over-cooling happened in early days of air-conditioning when buildings and train temperatures were kept down to 60 in summer.

All these changes damage the nasal passages. And that damage starts a cold. Germs multiply and make it worse. The cold lasts until the nasal damage is repaired.

Dr. Kerr said you don't have to believe a virus causes colds just because there are epidemics. The epidemic does not spread from person to person, he said, but is something that a lot of people have because they are all exposed at the same time to nose damage.

Ponder Future Red Air Clashes

Seek Reasons Why Reds Shot Down US Navy Aircraft

WASHINGTON, April 19 — (AP)— The possibility of further Soviet-American air clashes along the uneasy front of the cold war in Europe is being carefully studied by top officials here.

They are also deeply concerned, it was learned today, about the reasons why the Russians allegedly shot down a United States naval plane in the Baltic Sea area April 8. They have demanded — but doubt they will get —Soviet assurances that no such thing will happen again.

U. S. Note Sent.

The demand was set forth in a note of protest delivered to Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky in Moscow Tuesday by American Ambassador Alan G. Kirk.

What the United States will do next if the Russians turn down these demands, as they may be expected to do, is the nub of the problem before the State and Defence Departments and the White House. In a sense American policy decisions will depend on estimates of why the shooting incident occurred at all.

Close Baltic.

Several possibilities are the subject of speculation among officials here. One is that the Soviet Government has determined to try toclose the Baltic, a key Russian defence area on its Eastern shores, to American flights and has resorted to an act of terror to accomplish this.

Another possibility is that the Russians sent out fighters to investigate the American plane even though it was over international waters and that one of the fighters fired in a trigger-happy moment. A third possibility is that the Russian fighters were under orders to force the plane to land in the hope of thereby capturing whatever secret American equipment, if any, might be aboard.

May Arm Planes.

The next American moves in the situation are based on the assumption that the United States is up against a new and ... development of anti-American policy on the part of the Soviet Union. As far as flights of American planes in Baltic area are concerned. The US conceivably may decide to stop them as a means of avoiding further incidents or to arm the planes so that they may defend themselves if attacked.

Fined $1,000 For 'Forgetting' $1,685 In Purse

TORONTO, April 19 — Mrs Sarah Shulman, Toronto, told Magistrate Elmore yesterday that overwork made her forget for over a year that she had $1,685 in her purse. She was fined $1,000 or four months in jail for wilfully attempting to deceive a customs officer.

Sentence was suspended on a charge of attempting to export currency illegally. Mrs. Shulman committed the offences at Fort Erie on Dec. 16 last while making a trip to New York.

"I was helping my husband out in his printing business, and we had been working from a quarter to eight in the morning until 11 or 11.30 at night," she testified. "The money belonged to my children and grandson, and when you are working as hard as that you just don't think, you are numb. I know I was foolish."

Mrs. Edna Groot, customs and foreign exchange control board officer at Fort Erie, said Mrs. Shulman had an export permit for $100 in American funds and $25 Canadian funds.

"I asked her if she had any additional funds, and she said no," said Mrs. Groot. "I asked her to open her purse: it was jammed full of papers and cards, and I sat down beside her and went through it.

"At the bottom I found a cosmetic bag which contained a bank book. Between the pages of the book was $1,250 in one bundle and $150 in another, in Canadian funds. I then asked her again if she had any other money, and she said no again."

Mrs. Groot said she then opened Mrs. Shulman's cigarette case, and found $285 in Canadian funds inside. The woman also had $6 in Canadian funds in addition to the $25 on her permit, said Mrs. Groot.

Mrs. Shulman said she was holding the $285 for her son's baby in Cincinnati, and the $1,400 belonged to her daughter here and her son, who is studying for the rabbinate in Cincinnati.

The Crown pointed out the maximum fine on the two charges was a total of $5,300, and asked that $1,500 be levied. The $1,691 which was seized by the customs officers at the time will be returned to her, the court was told.

"I think she obtained a permit to export legally less than the maximum allowed in order to deliberately deceive," said Magistrate Elmore. "I am convinced this was a deliberate attempt to fool the customs officers."

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

CUT OIL HEATING COSTS NEXT YEAR

Warm days are approaching. Fuel worries are reduced—for the time being. But if you have an oil burner in your home, you can act now to make next winter's oil supply go further.

When you have your spring check-up, ask your service man about Johns-Manville Insulating Fire Brick for the firebox of your burner. Tests prove it can make your fuel supply last up to 10% longer. Next winter you'll get quieter operation, less oil odor, faster heating. And, this summer you'll burn less oil for hot water.

The job takes only a few hours—the cost is low. Ask your service man about J-M Insulating Fire Brick. Or, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto.

CCF Conference Planned In City

An educational conference will be held in Peterborough sometime this fall, present plans of the Peterborough CCF Association indicate.

Together with the educational committee of the Ontario CCF the local association expects to have a weekend meeting devoted to discussing party matters.

Originally the conference was to be held this spring but it was postponed because the "national expansion drive" is scheduled. Also occupying the attention of the association is the CCF national convention in Vancouver, July 27-29. The last one was in Winnipeg.

At an executive meeting of the Peterborough association this week W. C. Grant was re-elected secretary-treasurer and Harold Stevenson, treasurer.

Chairmen were appointed for the following committees: publicity, education, membership, farm, labor, social, finance, organization and housing.

It was the first meeting of the new executive since the annual convention last month.

At that time Walter Dinesen was elected president; Alfred Barber, vice-president; Maurice E. Ketcheson, representative on the provincial counucil.

Beat 19 Murder Raps Killed In Hill Fight

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 19 — (AP)—Island Joe was a real tough guy. He'd been indicted for murder 19 times and beat the rap every time. Once he ran away from hundreds of cops pursuing him through the Rio hills. During carnival, in 1942, he stuck out his open knife at a passing street car and cut the legs of 20 passengers.

Last Friday, Island Joe, real name Joe Silva, and a pal seized a man in his San Juan hill shack and held him at bay with a knife while they raped his wife.

Sunday Joe went to Macumba for a black magic session. During the ceremony three San Juan hill dwellers made for Joe with clubs, guns, and knives. After it was over they found Joe at the bottom of a hill—dead.

Yugoslavia Protests

LONDON, April 19 — (AP). — Yugoslavia protested on Tuesday that Czechoslovakia has arrested four Yugoslavs, including two diplomatic officials, and charged that the Prague Communist Government harasses Premier Tito's diplomats. Tanjug, official news agency of Tito's Government, said a note has been sent to the Prague Foreign Office demanding imemdiate release of the four Yugoslavs.

Freighter Damaged

PORT COLBORNE, April 19—(CP). — The Donnacona CSL bulk freighter damaged her bow while docking at Hamilton Monday with a load of coal. Damage was to several plates and a hole some seven feet in diameter was cut in her bow above the waterline. She was berthed here today for inspection.

Groups Entertain Shelter Children

Children in the Shelter during March enjoyed a number of outings owing to the kindness of various organizations in the city, Mrs. J. Wharry reported Tuesday at the board meeting.

They attended the figure skating carnival through the kindness of the club and Clare Collins. The Young Married Couples' Club of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church gave the children a generous donation to buy tickets of admittance to the theatre in Penzance. The Peterborough Police Association took the children to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Band concert. Two boys were invited out for some of the Easter holidays, and the children attended the theatre to see the film "Frances." The Elizabeth Smellie Chapter of Canadion Legion took them to the hall to see a picture of Prince Charles.

Donations were acknowledged from Trinity YPS, Loblaw's, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Connell's, Mrs. F. W. Ross, Princess Street, St. James' Bowling Club, Pedersen's Bakery, Quaker Oats, Mrs. K. Lech, Mrs. L. Yeotes, St. Andrew's WMS, St. James' Father and Son Banquet, Miss Howarth, 130 Romaine Street, Junior Welfare League, Trinity CGIT per Joan Crough, Patterson Street, Mrs. H. Care And Growing Of African Violets

Door prizes at the Horticultural Society meeting Monday, April 24 at the YWCA will be some of the newer varieties of African violets. The speaker will be A. E. Hick of Lindsay, who has been specializing in this flower and has written a bulletin based on his experience.

Mr. Hick will discuss the care and growing of these violets which have attained wide popularity in the last ten years.

W. C. Wilks, secretary of the society, says that for its flower show this summer additional classes of the African violet are being added to the prize list.

Second Offender Pays Fine Of $25 And Costs

A second offender on a drunk charge, William Spence, of Lakefield, was fined $25 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp today.

Spence, who is slightly deaf, had to move close to the bench to hear the charge read.

"You are charged with being drunk on Water St.," read His Worship. "No, it was Smith St.," Spence said.

"How do you plead?" asked the magistrate.

"Guilty."

Willed Money, Castle Gets Only One-Third

LONDON, April 19 (CP)—Lady Janet Harper, 26, who inherited a £813,151 estate from her uncle will receive only £284,603 after the government has taken its cut in death duties. Lady Janet's uncle, 54-year-old Lord Penrhyn, died last June.

A 190-room castle in Wales goes with the estate. Lady Janet and her husband, Lawyer John Harper have taken up residence there, but occupy only a few of the castle's rooms.

Lord Penrhyn's title went to his 84-year-old uncle who was not mentioned in the will.

Philippines Trade

VANCOUVER, April 19 (CP)—The Philippines would like greater trade with Canada, Pedro Ramirez, Philippine consul in Seattle, said here yesterday. "We buy a great deal of flour and plywood from Canada and we would like to buy more goods essential to our rehabilitation," he said. "But in order to buy we must sell. Copra, usedin soap making, and hemp, logs and lumber are our major export products."

Signs Of Advance Continuing In Industrials

TORONTO, April 19.—(CP)—Industrials and base metals showed signs of continuing yesterday's advances as the session progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today. Activity slowed considerably early in the day when profit-taking was comparatively heavy.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,526,000 shares.

Base metals showed the best gains as market leaders continued in demand following news yesterday of an increase in the price of copper. Strong buying yesterday lifted the base metal group to the highest average price level since 1937. Consolidated Smelters added 1⅜ at 100¼ and Quemont was ahead ⅜ at 22⅝. East Sullivan, a feature yesterday, slumped 20 cents at $7.80 under pressure of profit-taking.

A few key industrials pushed fractionally higher in dull dealings. Constructions, utilities, papers, steels and liquors showed majorities of advances. Refining oils dipped.

Giant Yellowknfe, a gold producer in the Yellowknife area, Northwest Territories, highlighted golds, trading briskly for a gain of 60 cents at $7.80. Other junior producers dipped quietly and seniors tended fractionally lower. Several uranium prospects were moderately active.

Royalite gained ¼ at 13⅞ and Pacific Petroleum five cents at $5.70 in a brighter western oil list.

Missing Teen-Agers Found In Sudbury

SUDBURY, April 19—(CP)—Two teen-age girls, missing for two days from their homes in Timmins, were located in Sudbury by city detectives late Tuesday. Police saw the girls wandering aimlessly about town and asked their names and where they came from.

The girls, one 14 years of age and the other 15, admitted they had left Timmins without their parents' consent and had hitchhiked to Sudbury. Timmins police were notified. They said a search for the girls has been under way. They were taken to the Sudbury district Children's Aid Society shelter, where they will remain until someone takes them home.

Charge Man Let Wife Commit Suicide

PARIS, April 19—(Reuters)—For not trying to stop his wife from committing suicide, a Paris court today gave Rene Ansker, a railroad foreman, a suspended sentence of three years' imprisonment. After an argument with her husband last December, Madame Ansker walked out, threw herself into the Seine and was drowned. The charge against Ansker was "voluntarily refraining from giving assistance to a person in peril."

Obituary

WILLIAM HENRY PICKEL

William Henry Pickel, an Otonabee township employee, died at home Tuesday after a lengthy illness. He was in his 86th year.

Mr. Pickel was born near Brighton but came to Otonabee when still a small boy and received his education there. His parents were the late George Pickel and Sybil Weaver.

The rest of his life was spent in Otonabee where he was employed as a laborer by the township.

Recently he celebrated his 67th wedding anniversary with his wife, the former Charlotte McDermott.

Besides his wife he leaves four sons—Ross of Lindsay, Harry of Toronto, Mervyn of St. Thomas and Kenneth at home; and two daughters, Mrs. T. McAuley of Peterborough and Miss Jennie Pickel at home.

He was a member of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Zion.

There will be a private funeral from the family home, Lot 15, Concession 11, Otonabee, to St. Mark's, Zion, for public service at 2.30 p.m. Thursday. The Rev Walter Gilling of St. Luke's Anglican Church Peterborough, will officiate.

Burial will be in Zion cemetery.

Had Operation To Stop Committing Crime, Arrested

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP) — A handsome former Marine, submitted to risky brain surgery last fall to cure him of criminal tendencies was back in jail today — wanted by the law in four States.

He is 25-year-old Charles Hinkley, arrested as a fugitive from a Kansas Veterans' Administration hospital where doctors hoped he would become normal.

Hinkley was picked up in South Deerfield, Mass., at the end of a trail of bad cheques that began with [illegible] Winter General Hospital in Topeka, Kas., two weeks ago, authorities said.

Last Oct. 27 at Coral Gables, Fla., Dr. Irwin Perlmutter performed the delicate operation known as "pre-frontal lobotomy" on Hinkley's brain.

A hole was cut in his skull and the pre-frontal lobe was cut off from the rest of his brain.

The operation — widely debated in medical circles—frequently has reduced a patient's mental or criminal disorders.

But a long convalescence is necessary [illegible] up to two years to re-educate the veteran and make him a useful citizen again.

firm. Mandelbaum then checked his files to see if any of the company's trucks was in the area of the accident the night the girls were killed.

Police quoted Mandelbaum as saying that Tackaberry and Wells made a delivery in Lansing, on Toronto's northern outskirts, the night of the accident.

Sergeant of Detectives George Wilson, in charge of the investigation, said today that both youths made statements following their arrest.

"They said they thought they had hit a bump in the road at Thurst and Carmichael, where the accident occurred," Sgt. Wilson said.

"When they reached Ranee Avenue, they decided to return to find out what had happened. But the truck bogged in mud, and, after freeing the vehicle, they did not go back to the scene of the accident."

Rewards offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the driver of the truck that killed the girls grew to $2,700 amid the hue-and-cry of the province-wide search. North York police said today that no one has claimed the reward.

If the government survives the critical debates of the coming few days, its life still will be in danger when the Commons gets down to detailed study of the Chancellor's proposals. Defeat on any one of them could bring the government crashing down.

Sir Stafford granted small income tax concessions to workers in the lower-income group which will save them up to £11 5s. ($34.85) a year.

But he doubled the tax on gasoline which sent the fuel to its highest price in Britain in almost 30 years—3s. (45 cents) a gallon.

Postal Service Cut In States, Expect Protests

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP) — Postmasters in the United States today were ordered to cut mail service, including a limit of one delivery a day to residential areas.

Further, post office windows were ordered to close earlier where possible and other economies [illegible].

The orders were announced last night by Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson. Postmasters were instructed to begin putting them into effect as soon as they are received.

The "immediate" order applies particularly to delivery restrictions. A 30-day notice is to be allowed on the curtailment of services that affect business operations, such as receipts of mail at the windows and back platforms of post offices.

Donaldson explained that cuts in service are necessary because Post Office costs have been far outrunning postal receipts.

He has been trying to get Congress to vote more money to his Department and to let it raise postal rates by a total of about $600,000,000 a year.

In fact, some members of Congress took the view that the mail service curtailment was decided on in order to pressure Congress into giving the postal department more money.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (Dem. Mo.) of the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee commented to reporters that the decision to curb service "seems well-timed."

He added that a storm of protests from mail users probably will follow the Department's decision and is bound to be reflected when House members vote on postal funds in the Appropriation Bill, probably next week.

Go Fishing In Frog Suits Bring In Record Catches

BURLINGTON, April 19 (CP) —"Frog suits," rubber suits used in wartime by men who planted underwater explosives, were worn Tuesday night by some of the hundreds of smelt fishermen out along the shores of Lake Ontario and Burlington Bay.

Keith Waddell of Waterloo, Ont., and a friend had the frog suits on when they waded out into the water. They took home four bushels of smelt, weighing about 300 pounds altogether.

As he watched other fishermen in hip boots wading out until the water went over the boot tops, Waddell said:

"There are so many fishermen here now that you have to wade out into deep water. The only way to get a big catch is to come with a frog suit that will encase you in rubber right up to the neck."

Dudley Hitchcox, Halton county game warden, said he had never before seen so many smelt —or so many fishermen.

"People have been coming from kitchener, Listowel, Brantford, St. Catharines—in fact, almost any place you want to name."

CHOSEN QUEEN OF THE CGE TEST CLUB at the annual formal dance Saturday evening was Mrs. Roly Hamlin of Chemong Park. Mrs. Hamlin was presented with a dozen red roses.

Minor Lacrosse Granted $300

A Recreation Commission grant of $300 will be given the Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association to carry on their program for this summer. The association requested a grant of $400 at the March meeting of the commission and the request had been referred to the Men's Sports committee under Clare Collins for investigation. This committee reported on Tuesday night.

With president Ken Kingston, Mr. Collins discussed the plans and program of the coming lacrosse season with the following recommendations resulting: (1) that the commission make a grant of $300 to the minor lacrosse association; (2) that a letter be sent to the association suggesting that the Senior Lacrosse team increase its grant to the minors from five percent of the gate receipts to seven percent; (3) that the commission commend the efforts to raise money, an example being Lifesaver Day, which netted $288.15; (4) that in the future the financial statement and the request for a grant must be in the hands of the recreation director before the commission budget is presented to the council; (5) that a representative of the commission should be invited to attend their annual meeting.

The minor association's receipts for 1949 totalled $1,394 while the expenditures were $1,380. The commission's grant last year was $350.

Want Hospital Redecorated

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19 — (ENS)—A request for re-decoration at the hospital was made at the recent meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary held in the Co-Op rooms.

The search for a sewing machine is still continuing.

The Sewing Committee asked those making hospital gowns to finish them as soon as possible. The mending was given to Group Two for April.

Arrangements for the hospital tea on April 22 at the home of H. Davidson were completed.

Fireside Group Holds 'Mock Church Service'

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19 — (ENS) — The monthly fireside meeting of the CHI RHO Society of Christ Church was held in the rectory on Sunday evening. The scripture reading was taken by Percy Melville and the Rev. J. McKibbin led the group in prayer.

A short business period followed, after which a sing-song was enjoyed, led by Mr. McKibbin. This was followed by a "Mock Church Service" with Percy Melville acting as the preacher.

Mr. McKibbin then gave a talk on "The Road Back" taken from the morning sermon. Tea and cookies were served by the committee in charge.

500,000 Pilgrims Visit Rome In 6 Weeks

ROME, April 19—(Reuters)—At least 500,000 pilgrims have visited Rome in the first six weeks of the Holy Year, figures issued by the Holy Year committee showed today. Italy, with 78,000 pilgrims, tops the list, followed by France with 40,000. The United States and Britain each sent 10,000 and Canada 3,000.

Douglas Edgar Joins Kinsmen

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19 — (ENS)—The Kinsmen Club Monday accepted Douglas Edgar as a member. The club met at the Trent House. After dinner various projects were discussed with a view to raising funds for community service. The club is co-operating with the management of Edgewater Park in sponsoring a dance on April 28. This will be one of the main fund raising projects.

The club voted $50 to the National Cancer Scholarship Fund. This fund assists in further education of doctors in the fight against cancer. This project now replaces the former Milk For Britain Fund the Kinsmen sponsored during the war.

It was decided to hold the annual street dance and carnival on July 4.

Ski Club Gets $44 To Pay For Badges

The cost of Peterborough Ski Club badges, amounting to $44.13 will be borne by the Recreation Commission.

Tuesday night the commission received a letter from the club secretary, Miss Mary Dodds, explaining that extra badges had been acquired by the club to distribute to the pupils of the ski school operated jointly by the club and the commission. When the school was first cancelled, because of mild weather, the fee of 50c which entitled the pupils to a badge and privileges of a junior club member was returned.

In February the school was operated for four Saturday mornings at Kempt's Hill. The turnouts averaged about 250 with the members of the ski club acting as instructors. Miss Dodds pointed out that the fee was collected a second time and the club depended upon the fee to help defray the expense of the crests. The badges will be of no use next year as they are dated 1949-50.

Due to the excellent work of the Ski Club the commission members unanimously passed the motion that the cost of the badges be paid by the commission.

Persecution Of Religious Minorities In Quebec

At a time when the sending of a Canadian ambassador to the Vatican is under serious discussion it is unfortunate that there should be so many acts of persecution of religious minorities in Quebec. Inevitably the impression is created that if Catholic influence in Canada were to spread, such intolerance would spread with it. However unjust such reasoning may be to the Catholic Church, it is the way that people think, and it is harmful to the spirit of religious toleration which has been maintained in this country since the Quebec Act. The civil and religious leaders in Quebec have it in their power to halt this sort of persecution, and it is in their own interest, as well as in the greater interest of the country, that they should do so.

• • •

On December 18 two girls belonging to the Jehovah's Witness sect were kidnapped in Joliette. Paul Boeda of the Christian Brethren (also called the Plymouth Brethren) was kidnapped at Shawinigan Falls on March 4. Within the past fortnight a large mob wrecked a meeting-house of the Christian Brethren in Shawinigan Falls, and schoolchildren in Hull were directed by their teacher to collect and make a bonfire of literature which had been distributed by Jehovah's Witnesses. This is a black record, and it is only part of a record which has been accumulating in Quebec since the end of the war. It is not the sort of record which persuades Protestant Canadians that an envoy to the Vatican is a desirable addition to Canada's diplomatic corps.

• • •

Let it be clearly understood that we do not believe for an instant that the Vatican has anything whatever to do with the oppression in Quebec, though we should be extremely surprised if the Vatican had not heard about it; that remarkable organization hears of most things. But hundreds of thousands of Canadians will feel that unless this sort of persecution is put down with a strong hand, it has tacit approval from the Church of which the Vatican is the guiding agency.

• • •

Evangelists and sectarians of all kinds can be nuisances; the temptation to silence them is strong. No doubt, in every mob guilty of an offence against civil liberty in Quebec there are a number of people who sincerely believe that the Christian Brethren and Jehovah's Witnesses have no right to preach what they believe to be error, and no right to raise their voices against the authority of the dominant church of Quebec. But it must never be forgotten that the dominant church of Quebec retained its domination as a result of an act of tolerance, and that the amicable relations which exist between Catholics and Protestants in thousands of Canadian communities are a continuance of that tolerance. Any inclination to turn Quebec into a Spain or a Portugal within the confines of this Dominion will split the country with a fury which will not abate for centuries. Quebec, which has prospered under tolerance, must learn that Canada's freedom of religion and civil liberty does not stop at her boundaries.

Opera In Peterborough

During the past winter some unusual and excellent films on Italian opera have been brought to Peterborough through the enthusiasm of Mr. Harry Yudin of the Centre Theatre. This is movie management of a type which brings very little in the way of monetary reward; it is done, we are convinced, because Mr. Yudin recognizes the existence in Peterborough of an audience for films of unusual quality, and he has determined to give that audience what it likes. A movie theatre which attempted to appeal to such an audience all the time would quickly find itself in bankruptcy; by appealing to this special audience from time to time, Mr. Yudin shows that he has a high concept of the nature and possibilities of entertainment, and we can assure him that his good work has not been unappreciated.

Opera is the most costly of all entertainments, and it is not commercially possible for operatic companies, even of the most modest kind, to visit a city of this size. But a film of an operatic performance can be brought here, and people who enjoy opera can see it for a reasonable sum; it is not the equivalent of an opera performance on the stage, but it is very much better than opera [illegible] the radio. [illegible] We will would be willing to bet that about one person in every five in Peterborough would like opera very much if they would give it a trial. That is to say, there is a possible opera audience here of 5,000. If Mr. Yudin continues his policy of bringing operatic films of the best kind to Peterborough, we suggest that you give opera a try. Once you have overcome the first strangeness of it, you will like it greatly, and a new source of pleasure will be open to you. It is a good thing to be adventurous about entertainment, and if you have never tried opera, it is time you did so.

Undefended Border Windsor

Poor Windsor. Are its citizens really as corrupt as recent items about that hustling city indicate? Do bookies flourish in full daylight; do the police wear blinkers; are big-time operators going full tilt; do fallen women walk the downtown streets and madams keep open house? Do ordinary citizens smuggle cartons of American cigarettes, and outwardly honest housewives bring over the border new shoes and chemises bought in Detroit, hiding them from the eyes of Canadian customs men? Probably all is not as bad as it seems from this inland distance. The Police Magistrate of Chatham who was called to Windsor to give an unbiased report, was not harsh; he thought there was an untypically Canadian slackness, a softness of civic moral fibre here and there.

Windsor people are Adams with apples (Detroit-grown) dangling in front of their eyes. The truth is that Windsor is too near the border, too handy to the Detroit flesh-pots and clothing shops. It may be that foreign ways, means and produce are corrupting it. Poor helpless Windsor. We in this city 25 miles from the Lake Ontario shore and another forty of lake water from New York state, have commiseration. We are not tempted daily, and it is not easy to yield to distant temptations. Moreover, our big city is godly Toronto, not spread-eagled Detroit.

It is popular to praise the "undefended border". What civic Windsor must crave is protection, a border bristling with defences against contaminations, with safeguards for its own virtues which, it is charitable to believe, it has in some measure.

Where The Tourists Money Goes

We have received an interesting pamphlet from the Canadian Tourist Association which gives an analysis of the way in which the U.S. tourists who came to Canada in 1949 spent the $270,000,000 which they left in this country. Reduced to fractions of one dollar, this is the story.

The greatest part—25 cents in every dollar—was spent in retail and department stores, buying the goods which we have to offer.

The next largest share—22 cents in every dollar—was spent in food stores and restaurants.

Hotels, resorts and tourist camps claimed 17 cents in every dollar.

Service stations and garages took 12 cents in every dollar.

For movies and other entertainments, the tourists spent 9 cents in every dollar.

Transportation by train, ship, bus and plane took 7 cents in every dollar.

Snacks, refreshments and roadside purchases took 5 cents in every dollar.

All other expenses, which we presume includes souvenirs, toys and odds and ends, took the remaining 3 cents in every dollar.

That's the way the money goes. It will probably be no less this year and there is a strong likelihood that it will be more. This analysis shows what your share of the tourist dollar is, and the interest which you have in seeing that our summer visitors enjoy themselves.

From The Critic's Notebook

THERE'S NO HOME by Alexander Baron (Clarke, Irwin & Company).

THIS is a completely absorbing story written by the author of "From the City, From the Plough", and it is a worthy successor to that brilliant novel. Once again Mr. Baron writes of the war and brings his honesty and sympathy to bear upon a situation which was both common and tragic during those wretched years. The scene is set in Catania, a town on the small island of Sicily, where a section of the British army is resting between battles. Weary of battle, the men quickly look to the local inhabitants for the comfort they would have received in their own homes, a woman, a child, and a meal in the quiet peace of a kitchen. The townspeople and the soldiers become brothers for a brief space of time and regain some measure of security and happiness in their brotherhood.

The main part of the story is the love affair between Sergeant Craddock and the Sicilian girl Graziella, whose husband is missing, lost somewhere with the Italian infantry, and who first becomes attached to Craddock to get food for her small son. The attachment develops into real love for her and a comfortable substitute for home for him. Eventually an undeclared battle develops between them as Graziella tries to persuade him to desert so that he can remain with her, and Craddock is determined to do his duty no matter how much he has come to care for her. He has a wife and family in England and must one day return to that other life in peace with them. When the army finally receives its orders to go forward, he leaves them, leaving a heart-broken Graziella behind him. Interwoven into this story are many other characters. A Nazi who stayed behind with one of the women when his army retreated and who regrets his decision and wants to get away to the main land and rejoin his comrades—an Italian deserter who is constantly enraged at the scorn heaped upon him, and Nella the pathetic little fifteen year old who sells her virginity for a pair of shoes. Every action and every character in this book seems to be absolutely true to life. It might almost be an authentic record of day to day events in that or any similar village. This is an excellent book and well worth the two dollars it costs. S.S.T.

ISRAEL DIARY by Bernard M. Bloomfield (Ambassador Books Ltd.).

THIS book, published in New York, is written by a Montreal businessman. It is what its title says it is: a diary of a visit to Israel. As touring Englishmen used to write chatty, sometimes interesting accounts of their travels in India and Canada, and Americans of theirs in the Balkans and Italy, so now people will write of touring in the new land in which they have an emotional and filial interest, Israel. This is the first of the new series this reviewer has seen.

It is an unpretentious account by a man who is not a professional writer or reporter. It is put together from letters Mr. Bloomfield wrote home and from notes kept while he was on his month's tour.

To people who have a personal interest in the new state, this visitor's report will have the freshness and intimacy of a letter from a travelling friend. Mr. Bloomfield travels well. He has an alert eye for the strange and curious, an enquiring palate he notes menus and writes frequently of the combination of European and near-Eastern dishes), a genial hand which was shaken by various dignitaries of the new state, an ordinary tourist's interest in hotels and prices of meals, taxis and rooms, a heart ready to appreciate what he sees and a sympathy for what the new state is trying to achieve and is achieving socially and economically. He began his Israel visit when his plane touched down at Haifa; he ended it there a month later. In between he visited Jerusalem (at the time of the Passover), Tel Aviv, Tiberias, one Kibbutz (small communal settlement) after another, and the war fronts.

There are numerous moving anecdotes of the war and people seen and heard about—for instance, the Polish immigrant who had been a successful tailor who arrived with a sewing-machine strapped to his back; he had so preserved it through six years of wanderings. It was his stake in the future.

The currency in Israel is, by the way, in pounds. A pound is worth three U.S. dollars. There are no shillings and pence, however. One pound equals 100 piastres or 1,000 mills. Prices are usually quoted in piastres, and a piastre is worth three cents. T.J.A.

THREE PLAYS by Jean-Paul Sartre (British Book Service).

A SELECTION of plays is not a universal choice of reading matter, stage directions and lack of action being inclined to detract from the main plot, but in these three plays by Mons. Sartre there is such dynamic force behind the main characters and such tense situations that the reader's interest does not flag at all. The first play "Crime Passionnel" is the story of political assassination and the preparation of the assassin for his task, in this instance no easy one as he must destroy a powerful member of his own party and one whom he admires greatly. That he finally brings himself to this act and his reasons, coupled with the obvious weakness of his character, make the final denouement a complete surprise.

Play number two is called "Men Without Shadows" and would be able to hold its own with any effort of that famous theatre of horrors "The Grand Guignol". The scenes are in an overcrowded cell and a questioning room where seven men and one woman, members of the Free French underground captured during an abortive attempt to sieze a village, are waiting together to be tortured so that they will reveal the whereabouts of their leader—a matter on which they are all ignorant. Their courage and fear as each awaits his turn is both real and terrible. Suddenly their leader is thrust in with them, but the German controlled Militia are not aware of his identity as such, and he still has a chance to leave and warn other men not to return to the village. The reaction of those already caught to his presence, and the subtle change in their attitude towards him after they have been tortured is very finely described, as is his agony at having to watch them sacrifice themselves for him and his slow realization that he is now an outsider among them. The last act of this play also has its surprises.

Finally there is the play entitled "The Respectable Prostitute". This one hits a little closer to home as it concerns the treatment of negroes in the southern states of the U.S.A. The entire action of the play takes place in the apartment of the prostitute, who has just arrived in the small town. On the train and in her compartment a negro has been shot by a white boy whose defence is that the negro had raped the white woman travelling with them. The negro's companion escapes and comes to the prostitute to beg her to defend him since in truth neither he, nor his friend, had touched her, the shooting having been high-spirited play by the southern boys. Being only a Yankee from the northern states the prostitute considers murder too serious to lie about even if the corpse is only a negro, and most of the play is about the efforts of the boy's family to bribe or force her into justifying the murder. A perfectly innocent negro is lynched before a solution is reached and it is not the one you would expect. This, to me, was the most terrifying of all the plays because it is a situation that we know is present and real. Surely the ultimate brutality is that of men who have both the opportunity and intelligence to act rationally and decently and who do not choose to do so.

TAXPAYERS TAKEN FOR A RIDE?

Sir: I quite agree with the Rev. W. J. Gilling and hundreds of other taxpayers. It's too bad there are not more like him in public office. We need men who consider people from all walks of life. Where can the old or young get more pleasure than from our library? The school children pay periodical visits there, we have the reading rooms which are certainly used and the books we enjoy in our own homes when we haven't the means for other sources of enjoyment. Why then was a grant refused for so worth while a cause?

Are the taxpayers being taken for a ride to satisfy the sportsmen of the city? We trust the Council will realize the taxpayer is getting skim milk while others enjoy the cream. May I make asuggestion? Pick out twenty men behind this drive to get the money from the city re taxpayer. Now if these twenty men will as individuals or a group borrow ten thousand dollars from a Trust and Loan Co., give a note or notes making each individual responsible for their share of loan if the enterprise is not a success then by all means I'm sure the Council might be justified in considering a loan of the other ten thousand. The fifteen thousand will be raised by the little fellow doing his bit. The city being paid equal portions as laid aside for the loan repayment.

If these men are so sure of the success why should they hesitate? If they are not why gamble with our money? I worked as cashier where the public paid admission to see sports. Believe it or not the big fellow would walk in and not pay one cent to see the game. They were always coming right out as they had other business. However the business waited until after the game once they were inside. They wanted sports too, but let someone else pay for them. Why not raise admission to one dollar? We pay that for a hockey game or dance, sometimes more. I believe that if people want to see a game more could and would go in afternoon as there are so many other attractions in the evening; namely dances, shows, card parties, etc.

If the Council wants to do something for the people in general, children in particular, please consider putting a toilet in the bathing house at Jackson Park and have an attendant in charge. Last summer the building was both dressing room and bath room. If there is any doubt as to the truth of this statement no doubt a visit there will convince you. We could also use a playground supervised in the west end for the holidays. This was tried out a few years ago but not since. I am sure now more would attend as hundreds of new homes have been built.

The people don't mind paying for the things we need. Our hospital is costing us far more than it should, but it is needed. We are paying five dollars extra for land purchased by the city on speculation as industrial sites. If this loan goes through that means another three dollars per taxpayer besides our other extras. Cost of education is up sixteen thousand, about two dollars per taxpayer. How far can a man with forty-five dollars a week stretch it? Nineteen dollars per month taxes on a five room house, no sidewalk or curb. Fuel, lights and water, upkeep, insurance, clothing, necessities for a family and sometimes interest on money borrowed.

Will other taxpayers do as our Council requested? Let them know just how you feel, if only a few lines. I am sure they will do what is right.

Thanking you for all the space taken,
A CONSCIENTIOUS TAXPAYER.

LAWS FOR PEDESTRIANS

Sir: Why are traffic laws in Peterborough so very strict regarding the motorist, and so very lax where the jay-walker is concerned? When three or four young, male jay-walkers, cross slowly in front of a car that has just nicely got started after waiting for a green light, that is bad! But, when the motorist sounds his horn and they stop in the path of said car, and that motorist is obliged to bring his car to a dead stop, there is definitely something wrong. Then, because the motorist calls from his car and tells these jay-walkers to move out of his way, they walk over to the driver's car door and threaten him. When a policeman happend to intervene, they hurled insults at him as they moved grudgingly to the sidewalk.

Why not crack down on a few jay-walkers who seem to think this practice is smart? Recently, a man dodged through in front of this writer's moving car and was almost run down by the on-coming traffic. This man narrowly escaped death or serious injury. Why do our policemen stand on corners and allow pedestrians to cross intersection against the lights

In Reader's Digest the following Safety lines read: There would be less pedestrian patients, if there were more patient pedestrians.

Yours truly,
MOTORIST.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Sir: By these few lines, I desire to convey to you, my admiration for your consistent adherence to the well known phrase, "The Freedom of the Press", which I fear many newspapers, are timid about enjoying.

Surely it should be made known to the whole country when a cowardly mob of about a thousand people attack a small group of honourable, law-abiding citizens, for no other reason that that they were studying the Bible together.

Especially when the cry is repeatedly heard in the some district, "religious freedom".

As a constant reader of the Examiner, I believe it is one of the very finest papers in the country.

Wishing you every success, I remain,
Yours truly,
R. T. WHITE.

Bible Message

Then the Pharisees went out, and held a council against him, how they might destroy him. But when Jesus knew it, he withdrew himself from thence; and great multitudes followed him, and he healed them all . . . Then was brought unto him one possessed with a devil, blind, and dumb; and he healed him, insomuch that the blind and dumb both spake and saw.

And all the people were amazed, and said, Is not this the son of David? But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, This fellow doth not cast out devils, but by Beelzebub the prince of the devils.

And Jesus knew their thoughts, and said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation; and every city or house divided against itself shall not stand; and if Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?

And if I by Beelbebub cast out devils, by whom do your children cast them out? therefore they shall be your judges. But if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you. Or else how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man? and then he will spoil his house.

He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad. (Matt. 12:14, 15, 22-30.)

The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? (Ps. 27: 1.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. (Ps. 23: 4.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"With your ready speech," remarked a young minister to Dr. Andrew Thompson, "I wonder why you spend so much time on your sermons. Many's the time I've written a sermon and caught a salmon before breakfast."

"Well," replied Dr. Thompson, "all I can say is, I'd rather have eaten your salmon than listen to your sermon."

✧ ✧ ✧

"I cannot understand," said the young man, "why you permit your daughter to sue me for breach of promise. You remember that you were bitterly opposed to our engagement, because you said I wasn't good enough for her and would disgrace your family."

"That, young man, was sentiment. This is business."

A bombastic man met his somewhat henpecked friend, whose face was badly injured.

"Good Heavens!" his friend exclaimed, "How did that happen?"

"My wife—" the injured one began.

"Your wife?" was the breezy reply "Ah, evidently you haven't acquired the secret of married bliss. I never have a row with my wife. I have no secrets from her."

"Neither have I!" the henpecked one sighed. "I only thought I had!"

It was discovered that a parcel of twenty notes was missing at the bank. The staff worked all night trying to find them.

Next day, Sally, a new girl clerk, walked into the bank to begin her daily duties. An officer asked her "Sally, did you see a parcel of $100 notes?"

"Oh, that! Why I just took them home to show mother the kind of work I'm doing."

After-Dinner Jokes

It is difficult to make a good after-dinner speech which, of course, is the reason so many poor after-dinner speeches are made. Filled with food, the audience is inclined to sleepiness. It is not easy for it to keep its mind on what the speaker is saying. And, all too often, what the speaker is saying isn't worthy of much effort to listen to anyway.

So after-dinner speakers resort to subterfuges to appeal. The favourite method is to interlard the serious remarks with a variety of jokes. But this only complicates the task, for where is one to get suitable jokes or, even if they are unsuitable, are at least new?

This subject comes to mind when we noted an advertisement in the Times of London. "Stories-Advertiser willing to pay well for suitable after-dinner stories or anecdotes suitable for sports club dinner parties."

We don't know just what sort of a joke would be suitable for a "sports club dinner party." Perhaps it would be one distinctly unsuitable for a woman's missionary society. So the man who must address a variety of audiences must have a variety of jokes, and must remember what jokes to tell whom.

And, if a speaker is fortunate enough to compile a sufficient reserve of jokes he is apt to cease to be a speaker and become just a clown.—Windsor Star.

Company Claims Capital Gains Much Overdone

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

TORONTO, April 19 (CP). — The man who gathers in the taxes had something to say Tuesday night to the men whose indus-

He was Hon. James J. McCann, Minister of National Revenue, speaking to the annual dinner of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. He was there, probably, because he also is Minister of Mines and Technical Surveys, but it was of taxes that he spoke mostly. Said he:

"It has been said that taxation is the price of civilization. Under our present social and economic system it is the method by which each man pays for the things he bands with other men to provide for his and their common use and enjoyment. Such as defence against a common enemy, social services, uniform system of education, protection against fire and enforcement of the law.

"The individual in receipt of an income readily recognizes that he must set aside a part of that income to provide himself and his family with food, clothing, and a house.

"He should also realize that he must with equal readiness set aside an additional part of his income to provide himself and his family with the less tangible, but equally necessary things he enjoys in common with all his fellow men."

He gave some indication of interpretations which will be made of the income tax law which will probably mean taxes on some earnings which recipients have previously regarded as capital gain.

Canada has no capital gains tax, said Mr. McCann, and does not want any with its unpredictable results, but he added that the claim of having made a capital gain has been greatly overdone, and not merely in mining circles.

He said expected legislation will continue to exempt prospectors on amounts realized from prospecting; and also those who take a real risk in backing the prospector.

But subsequent activities by either as a trader, promoter, underwriter, would be different, and there would be taxation of individuals or companies acting merely as such.

Former London Mayor Col. Heanan 74, Dies

LONDON, Ont., April 19 (CP) —Former mayor of London, Colonel William J. Heanan, 74, died suddenly in hospital here early today. He had been in poor health for the last year due to a heart condition.

Col. Heanan was mayor of this city for 6½ years—the longest term of office of any mayor of London before the present mayor, George Wenige.

Surviving are his widow, a daughter, Mrs. George Wright, of Exeter, Ont., and two sons, William F. of Toronto, and Clyde S., London.

Born in London he lived here nearly all his life. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Import Newsprint

BUENOS AIRES, April 19 — (Reuters) — In a last-minute effort to save Argentina's newsprint stock from running out completely, the finance ministry yesterday granted special permits for immediate shipments, principally from France, Austria and Sweden. Special exchange permits were granted for approximately 16,800 tons.

Russell Williams Joins School Bd.

HAVELOCK, April 19 (ENS) —Russell Williams was appointed a member of the Public School Board by chairman R. B. Sayers at a meeting on Monday evening, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of P. D. Chevalier who moved to Peterborough a few weeks ago.

Principal R. D. Buchanan reported that four films had been shown the Public School pupils of Grades 4-8. Three Normal School students had spent a week teaching in the Havelock School. He said the results of the Easter examinations had been fairly good.

The principal asked the Board for six balls and six bats for baseball, and the request was granted.

The truant officer's report showed the school open 23 days in March, with an enrollment of 172 and an average attendance of 152.20. The perfect aggregate was 3,9288, with the actual aggregate 3,500. The percentage to perfect aggregate 89.12. The caretakers reported the fuel was low and the purchase of a car of coal was authorized.

A report on the lighting and wiring of the school was received from the Hydro-Electric Commission and was left over for study.

Economist Editor Predicts Labor Defeat

PHILADELPHIA, April 19 — (AP)—Geoffrey Crowther, editor of the Conservative British weekly, The Economist, said yesterday he believes Britain's Labor party will be defeated on crucial issues by the end of the year. He said the ultimate test probably will come next fall when a pending motion for nationalization of the steel industry is scheduled to come to a vote in the House of Commons.

County Courthouse, Jail Up For Sale

WELLAND, Ont., April 19 — (CP)—The County of Welland courthouse, jail and offices are up for sale. They will be replaced by others to cost $750,000.

Drew Asks Party To Push Drive Amongst Youth

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, stating that about 1,000,000 Canadians reach voting age every five years, on Tuesday night urged his supporters to [illegible] activities within the party's organization.

He spoke at a dinner of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada which today ends a three-day annual meeting.

Mr. Drew said the meeting was mainly devoted to organization. Organizations was not alone in the minds of the delegates, but it was basic to the whole activity of the party.

Nothing was more important than an expansion of the activities of the young Progressive Conservatives. The fact that 200,000 Canadians reaching voting age every year was something for party officials to think about.

New President

At a business session Tuesday, George Nowlan of Wolfville, N. S., former member of the Commons for Annapolis-Kings, was elected president to succeed J. M. Macdonnell, member of Parliament for Toronto Greenwood.

At earlier session Leon Balcer, Federal member for Trois Rivieres was elected president of the YPC's and Miss Sybil Bennett of Georgetown Ont. was elected president of the women's branch of the association.

Mr. Drew said the party must see that the problems of every part of the community are dealt with in the platform.

One of the basic issues today was whether control over the affairs of the nation should be returned to the representatives of the people in parliament. He charged that the present government with breach of some existing laws and with disregard for parliament.

Taft Charges Gov't Apathetic About Spies

WASHINGTON, April 19 (CP) —Senator Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio) charged today that influential forces in the State Department had "refused to regard the delivery of (government) papers to Communists as a serious offense."

Taft fired this blast at unnamed diplomatic officials in a weekly report to Ohio voters in which he also demanded that a Senate for[illegible] make "an independent [illegible] tive investigation" of charges made by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.)

McCarthy has been charging for weeks that the State Department is and has been a haven for Communists and fellow-travellers.

In his report Taft combined a new defence of McCarthy with an attack on the subcommittee's procedure and on State Department actions and policies.

Vaccine, BCG Can Whip TB Top Surgeon Says

DENVER, Colo., April 19 (AP) —The vaccine, BCG, will whip tuberculosis, says Dr. Edward J. O'Brien of Detroit, "and somebody has got to raise hell until this country wakes up to that fact."

Dr. O'Brien, [illegible] of the country's top TB surgeons, launched a crusade for BCG in a speech here before the American Association for Thoracic surgery, of which he is president.

He told the surgeons their present methods of combatting TB—some of which he developed himself—"won't solve the problem in a thousand years."

BCG is the only answer, he declared, "and it's amazing that the U.S. public health service can't see it."

Dissenting opinion came from Dr. Robert J. Anderson of the public health service in Washington who said evidence is still incomplete as to the effectiveness of BCG.

In reply, Dr. O'Brien said millions of people in other countries had been vaccinated, that BCG had given immunity to 70 to 90 per cent, and that there hadn't been a single report of harmful effects in 20 years.

Thank Mrs. J. Griffith For Ladies' Aid Work

HAVELOCK, April 19 (ENS)— Mrs. James Griffith was honored in celebration of her birthday recently, by her co-workers in the Ladies' Aid of Knox Presbyterian Church, where she has rendered faithful service for many years.

The celebration took the form of a pot luck supper which followed an afternoon of quilting in the Sunday school auditorium of the church. The tea table was decorated with pink and white streamers and centred with pink tulips and pink candles.

At the close a birthday cake iced in pink and topped with lighted candles, was brought in and the gathering sang "Happy Birthday To You."

Mrs. Griffith was presented with a hand bag by the president, Mrs. A. Graham. Mrs. J. W. Ketchen, a past president, expressed to Mrs. Griffith on behalf of the society, the appreciation of all its members for her untiring efforts in the work and the pleasant intimacy which has marked their associations over the years.

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

This from Belleville: "Signal honor was paid to three former Belleville baseball greats during the OBA convention. Peeney Mills, Harry Mills and Jack Williams were selected on the 1918-1950 all-Ontario all-star senior baseball team. Belleville was given the honor of having the most players selected and the choices were unanimous. Other members of this mythical three - decade all - Ontario stars are: Wilbur Kress, Galt, pitcher; Clare Hoffman, pitcher; Pat Sullivan, Hamilton, 2nd base; Alex Scott, Toronto, 3rd base; Joe [illegible], now in Montreal, Shortstop; Moose Watts, left fielder [illegible]ry, Kingston, centre field; Babe Dye, right field; Ivan Miller, Hamilton, and Bud McWhirter coach."

* * * * * *

Now this may be a belated April Fool's joke by Scribe Carver of the Quinte sheet. Or it may have been some doodling by some of the elderly souls on the OBA, sipping strong ginger ale between business sessions. Might even be on the level, with some plumping by energetic Belleville delegates. Be that as it may, we know of a number of better choices, both oldtime and later, for many of these positions on the so-called all-star squad, and any diamond fan of the past 20 or 30 years will agree. Even in the COBL, what about Dainty, Rice, Biddle, Heckman, Swanston, Harrison, Foley, Batstone, Goyer, Scott, etc., and etc., just to name a few?

Petes Building Up

Petes' puckists aren't waiting for the ice to go out of Civic Arena to make plans for next season. They've appointed a nominating committee, chosen OHA delegates and sent in Frank Buckland's name as an OHA executive member. They've been busy already lining up new players and promise to have a real senior "B" contender another season. More Wests coming and another Leonard. Another goalie, too, and some of the lacrosse imports are expected to line up for hockey with 'em. Also it is quite probable Jake Wade and Arn Dugan will go with the Petes next year. Several of the veterans plan retirement, and if all goes well with the club, they'll have a young and real strong squad next winter.

* * * * * *

Legionnaires are off this aft for Brantford and the fifth of their best-of-seven OHA senior "B" finals, each team having won two. Sixth game—and it could be the series windup—will be here Friday and that one should pack in the hockey customers as the semester ends. Seventh, if it goes that far, will be in the Western Ontario centre. Team is at full strength today and minus injuries. They'll be fighting bitterly from the start against a good outfit, and there shouldn't be any alibis if they lose. They might well prove why they're champs by upsetting the dope and winning this big one right in Brantford tonight.

Good Show All Around

A swell turnout for the PMHA-ers at Civic Arena last e'en as the bolstered Petes edged the bolstered Oddfellows 8-7 in an exhibition puck match. Some 1,600 on deck and the minor association will get around $600. Their officials appreciate the efforts of the teams, the visitors, the arena and the fans. Reg Hamilton, Chicago scout, expressed interest in Turner, Wyatt and the Masons. Large Bill McMaster won the puck-carrying skating race, going against time in 14.2 around the rink to beat out young Don Floyd in the final. Earlier, Bill Crowley and Murray Fife had slipped to spoil their chances. Ron Turner lost the puck and Nolan touched a wall to be disqualified. Neither Blewett nor Montgomery raced. A good show all around.

According to Bun Morganson of the Tely, five of the senior OLA clubs have announced new coaches. Art Harrison takes over at Mimico, with Joe Cheevers in charge at St. Catharines. Jack Gair will be playing skipper at Hamilton, Eddie Powers transferring to Vancouver. Tommy Scott has the job for Weston, with Jerry Kendall back at Brampton, and Doug Gillespie a holdover at Owen Sound. Bun thinks that Jerry Fitzgerald will be coach here, but he will play for the senior Petes and coach the PMLA setup, with Red Creighton back at the helm for the senior "A" squad. Red may have an assistant, but he is still the local lacrosse coach.

Racing Commission Names Hewitt Steward

TORONTO, April 19—William A. Hewitt, presiding steward on Ontario race tracks, was yesterday appointed commission steward for the Ontario Racing Commission. Hewitt has served in the stand for 12 years.

Robert Van den Bergh was named associate steward to the commission. Dr. John B. Chassels was appointed commission veterinary on all tracks. Edwin Allan, former sports editor of the old Mail and Empire, is chief of the commission identification bureau.

Bertram McLean, commission representative for the harness racing branch, attended his first meeting yesterday when the commission met all of the track operators. Placing judges, two stewards, racing secretary, starter, paddock judge and other officials will be chosen by the different tracks. Chairman of the commission, Tupper Bigelow, stated the appointments would be submitted for approval by the commission. He anticipated most of the men in the key positions would serve on all tracks comprising the provincial racing circuit.

TORONTO BLASTS SHERBROOKE — Flash Hollett, veteran defenceman for Toronto Marlboros, grins after he scores on Sherbrooke goalie Paul Leclerc. In the game at Toronto April 17 the OHA champions trounced the Sherbrooke Saints 11-3 for the third straight victory in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada senior hockey finals. Danny Lewicki, extreme right, and George Armstrong, extreme left, both were credited with assists on Hollet's goal.

Dempsey, Louis May Be Matched —On Celluloid

MILWAUKEE, April 19—Jack Dempsey said today he and Joe Louis may be paired in a boxing match—not in the ring but on the screen.

The movie fight of the century might be produced by trick work on old films, he said.

"This is only in the preliminary stage and may not materialize," he said, "but there's been some thought about it."

Dempsey said the company producing such a movie would take one of his films and superimpose Louis in place of his opponent. The company also would take some of Louis' films and superimpose Dempsey in place of the Brown Bomber's opponent.

"It might not work in all our fights, but enough films have been made to give the producers a good supply to work with," Dempsey said.

Who would win the fight?

"You can bet it won't be Louis," Dempsey said.

Eastern Lacrosse Said On Professional Basis

VANCOUVER, April 19 (CP)—Eddie Powers, who bossed the Hamilton Tigers to the Mann Cup lacrosse final last year, would like to see a "cash and carry" system in coast lacrosse. He went to Vancouver to coach suburban Richmond this year and finds the job of building a team a tough assignment. In the east, he said, if you had the cash you could get the players. The sponsors had "well lined pockets."

"They buy and sell players just as in organized professional baseball and hockey," he said Tuesday.

Joe Louis Sets Out On Tour Of Brazil

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP)—Joe Louis, accompanied by manager Marshall Miles and trainer Mannie Seamon, departed at midnight by plane for Brazil to engage in a series of exhibition bouts. The retired heavyweight champion's exhibition foes will include Arturo Godoy of Chile.

Petes Edge Oddfellows As McMaster Takes Race

Success crowned the efforts of the PMHA last night as 1,600 people nearly filled Civic Arena to view the much talked of speed race between some of hockey's best of the local boys and a stirring exhibition between the Oddfellows and the Petes.

Dit Clapper, Reg Hamilton and Sid Smith were present to lend color to the proceedings and acted as referees while Red Sullivan, Arn Dugan, Jake Wade and Bill Nolan aided the Petes as they edged IOOF 8-7, in a hectic battle.

Earns Right

Don Floyd earned the right to race Bill McMaster for first prize in the speed race between periods as he eliminated other junior competitors in the first heat by circling once around the rink, carrying the puck behind each net to the starting point on the side of the centre red line in 14.5 seconds. McMaster duplicated the feat, to edge his closest competitor, Bill Nolan by one full second, in the senior elimination at the end of the second period, and force a special race. Bob Wyatt came closest to Floyd in the junior race with 15 seconds flat. The boys raced individually against time and were given the option of circling the rink either way.

Amid cheers the slim, youthful Oddfellows star flew around once more in the special heat to equal his own time of 14.5 seconds. Then, before an amazed crowd, who marvelled at the grace and skill of such a big man, the popular Petes defenceman clipped three-tenths off his first try to win the prize. Both received a fine ovation. The record to beat, therefore, in future, will be 14.2 seconds at Civic Arena.

A Good Game

The hockey contest proved a real thriller all the way, with Bun Kingdon's juniors giving their senior rivals the toughest kind of battle, despite the addition of the above-mentioned stars for the occasion, while IOOF stood pat on their regular lineup. Late in the second frame, Oddfellows held a tidy margin of 6-4 but the seniors rallied to take away the play in the final stanza from their youthful rivals and potted biscuits three to one, to take it away by a whisker.

It was a clean, fast, exciting game, with but five miscues, all for minor offences as all the boys gave their best for a worthy cause. Petes led 3-0 to end the first in a fairly even frame, despite the score, while Oddfellows came through nicely to outscore them 6-2 and generally outplay them in the second. The final found the McGillis squad slightly the better. Fred Garvey led all marksmen with four goals to lead his team to victory, while Bob Wyatt notched three to head the junior parade. The players of both teams gave their best in a game as close as the score indicates.

McGillis Petes—Goal, Edgar; defence, Nolan, McMaster; centre, Sullivan; wings, Garvey, Fife; alternates, J. West, D. West, Wade, Collins, Legrow, Dugan, J. Mortimer, Geiring (sub-goalie).

IOOF Juniors—Goal, Wasson; defence, Ricklark, D. Wasson; centre, Desjardins; wings, B. Mason, R. Mason; alternates, Millar, Fennell, Turner, Floyd, Wyatt, Casey, Baker.

Referees, Dit Clapper, Reg Hamilton. Linesman, Sid Smith.

Towne Togs Get Championship Of Lasses' Loop

Arcos rolled high of 3072 and 1088 single to wind up the Girls Bowling schedule, the league title being taken by Towne Togs with 62 points. Marines were next with 54, followed by Brintons 52, Arcos 51, Cardinals 48, Collis 42, Aces 32, Aces 29, Sevenaires 23 and Dickson's 17. The windup banquet is next Monday at 6.30 in the Empress.

Brintons blanked Dickson's, as Aces whitewashed Sevenaires in the final night of bowling, 2-1 wins being marked by Marines over Togs, Curtin's against Collis, and Cardinals over Arcos. L. Vincent and M. Rogers with 716 tied for high three, and E. Thompson's 303 was top single. The blind score of 599 went to D. Martin with 600. Results:

Windsor Captures Third Game Of Final

WINNIPEG, April 19 (CP) — Windsor AKO's Tuesday night reentered the Canadian Junior Men's Basketball picture, defeating Winnipeg Stellars 50-45 in the third game of their best-of-five series at Winnipeg. Stellars won the first two games 46-41 and 43-41. Next game is billed for Thursday.

A crowd of 1,500 saw the easterners play heads-up ball and turn on the heat in the last quarter to sew up the game.

It was a field day for the little men. Windsor's Eddie Niziolek, Al Deluca and Gerry Lemon, diminutive beside their taller opponents, racked up 11, 10 and nine points respectively.

Yanks Run Wild In 8th Win 15-10; Dodgers Dumped

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Old Case, reigning miracle man of baseball, has done it again. The Yanks are off a-winging on the strength of a 15-10 opening day victory Tuesday at Fenway Park.

They did it the hard way, overcoming an early 9-0 Boston lead and winning with nine runs in a eighth-inning revolution.

Boston, favorite to win the American League pennant and dethrone the world champion Yankees, had company. Brooklyn's National League champs also flopped. They fell before the youthful Philadelphia Phils, 9-1. Don Newcombe, jumbo-sized Negro pitching ace of the favored Brooks, was knocked from the box in the second inning before 29,074.

Attendance Fine

All in all, attendance at the eight-game opening show was fine. Of course, there was the added impetus of the first night opener in baseball history—at St. Louis—which added 20,871 to the total. The openers drew 252,700. Compared with 257,459 for a nine game, two-day program last year.

Cleveland drew the best crowd, 65,744.

The Red Sox game started like an easy ride for Mel Parnell, 25-game winner last year. The Sox knocked out Yankee starter Allie Reynolds early. Nobody worried when Parnell yielded four runs in the sixth. Boston made it 10-4 going into the eighth.

Then it happened. Fourteen Yanks went to bat in the inning. McCarthy followed Parnell with Walt Masterson, Earl Johnson, Al [illegible] Yankees had scored nine runs for a 13-10 lead. Just to make it sure, they added another two in the ninth off Boo Ferriss.

Johnson Gets Credit

Don Johnson, third of four Yankee pitchers, received the credit for the triumph but you know who was there at the finish. Joe Page, naturally. With a "0 hits in two innings" relief job.

Detroit spoiled the day for Cleveland's fine opening turnout by edging the Indians, 7-6, in 10 innings. The Tigers knocked Bob Lemon out of the box in the eighth and went on to win. Their last four runs were unearned.

President Truman threw out the first ball at Washington where the Senators knocked off Philadelphia A's 8-7, before 31,548. Bucky Harris' Senators knocked out Carl Scheib before he retired a batter. They went on to score five runs.

Browns Win

Rookie outfielder Ken Wood and pitcher Ned Garver teamed up to lead St. Louis Browns to a 5-3 victory over Chicago. Wood drove in three runs with a double and single while Garver scattered 10 Chicago hits, including a homer by Cass Michaels.

Newcombe had nothing but size at Shibe Park where the youthful Phillies humbled Brooklyn behind Robin Roberts' seven-hit workout. Rookie second baseman Mike Goliat broke in with a perfect four-hit day and Eddie Waitkus and Gran Hamner each added three hits. It was Waitkus' first league game since he was shot by a girl fan at Chicago last June.

Night Opener

In the first night opener, home runs by Red Schoendienst and Stan Musial sent the Cardinals off to a flying start with a 4-2 victory over Pittsburgh's Pirates. Righthander Gerald Staley checked Pittsburgh's righthanded power with six hits.

At the Polo Grounds Boston Braves beat New York Giants 11-4. A crowd of 30,441 saw Bob Elliott. Connie Ryan and rookie Sam Jethroe, the dashing Negro speedster, flex their home run muscles for the Braves; Hank Thompson and Whitey Lockman for New York.

Andy Pafko rapped two homers and a double in the Chicago Cubs' 9-6 victory before 31,213 Cincinnati fans.

Hold Meeting Unravel Rules Harness Racing

LONDON, Ont., April 19 (CP) —Western Ontario's harness racing fraternity, baffled by reports of new regulations which may come into effect this season with the formation of the new Ontario Racing Commission, will hold a meeting in Dresden, Ont., Thursday evening [illegible] tion.

The meeting is being held under the sponsorship of the Western Ontario Harness Racing Association in an effort to have the many misunderstandings which are now plaguing the sport cleared up.

Secretary of the Dresden Racing Association, Orville Quick, said today that harness racing men in this area are "up in the air" over some of the rumored changes the commission plans to enforce and it is to clear up some of these problems that the meeting is being held.

As far as he knew, Mr. Quick said, none of the harness racing men in this area had been officially informed by any of the commission's new rulings.

"We are anxious to find out where we stand. We don't know, for instance, if book betting is going to be permitted at our many one-day meets. We also don't know anything about this $25 licence fee except what we have read in the papers," he said.

Quick said that if the $25 licence was to be enforced in harness racing it would work a severe hardship on the many one-horse owners, who raise and drive a horse strictly for fun.

Montreal Goes Up Two Games In Junior Series

TORONTO, April 19 (CP). — A little right-winger from Port Arthur who churns his legs like an eggbeater could be an unpopular youngster in his home town soon—if.

If stocky Art Rose keeps scoring three goals a game, as he did when Montreal Canadiens trimmed [illegible] Tuesday night, the chances are that this club will make the Memorial Cup finals. If Port Arthur Bruins can get past Regina Pats, they will meet Canadiens for the Canadian junior nockey title.

As matters stand, the Bruins trail Regina 2-1 in games in their best-of-seven Western Canada final. But the Montrealers, thanks to Rose, lead Guelph 3-1 in their series and need only one more victory to wrap up the Eastern Canada championship.

A crowd of 8,973 saw the Quebec champions go into an early lead and they never relinquished the margin.

Ahead 1-0 at the end of the first, Montreal increased the margin to 3-1 in the second and then matched Guelph's lone third-period counter.

Fifth game will be played in Montreal Thursday and a sixth, if necessary, at Toronto Saturday night.

Canadiens Look Best

Except for the first 15 minutes of the third period, the Canadiens looked like the more solid team as Biltmores played spottily and often handled the puck carelessly near their own goal.

The fourth Montreal counter was scored by Dickie Moore, big left winger. Guelph marksmen were Andy Bathgate and Ron Plumb.

Guelph's margin in the third period was shown in the shots on goal. Biltmores had 18 against 12 for Montreal.

This third period outburst gave Guelph a 40-38 margin over the full 60 minutes, although the Biltmores had far fewer good scoring periods than the Quebec champions.

The clincher for Montreal came in the final minute. Coach Alf Pike of Guelph took out Goalie Cliff Hicks in a desperate effort to get the equalizer. But Rose stole the puck at centre ice from a scramble, stick-handled past one man and then skated fast to the Biltmore net and pushed the puck into the open goal.

It was a smart effort by Rose, who had notched the first Montreal goal early in the first period and the third near the end of the second.

Georgetown Wins Three In Finals

[illegible] April 19 (CP) —Georgetown Raiders made it three-in-a-row over Sundridge Beavers, belting the defending Ontario Hockey Association intermediate B champions 10-3 at Georgetown Tuesday night. The fourth game of the best-of-seven final is scheduled for Bracebridge Thursday night. Del Beaumont paced the fast-skating Raiders with a four-goal performance while Junior Beaumont and Kemshead followed close on his heels, each with a two-goal effort.

French Jockey Ousted From England

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 19 — (CP) — The little man burst from the stewards' room, gasped to reporters "I finished — finished!" and half-ran, almost in tears, to the street.

"They are anti-sportive," he [illegible] bystander.

Bobby Bates, once champion steeplechase jockey of France, had just had his trainer's licence withdrawn by the National Hunt Committee following inquiries into the running of one of his horses at Windsor in February.

The horse, Bister, had been a clear favorite to win, but, ridden by another French jockey, F. Morel, had run out of the money. Morel's licence also was withdrawn.

Prior to the N. H. C. investigation, Bates had been aksed by the Home Office to leave England. His labor permit had elapsed. His immediate plans remained uncertain.

French-born Bobby, 36, the son of an English father and French mother, was for years among the most colourful figures on the French and British turf. A daring and resourceful rider, he retired at the end of last season and set up as a trainer at Findon, Sussex.

He had trained about a dozen winners when his licence was with drawn.

Gans Win 3-2 But Eliminated

KINGSTON, April 19.—Gananoque completed the OHA Intermediate A round robin series by edging Tillsonburg Chevwoods 3 to 2 here. It was the Gans' first triumph in four starts and it left them only one point behind Tillsonburg, but eliminated.

Despite a report that Gans had lodged a protest against Port Colborne Merchants, a Gananoque spokesman stated Tuesday that such was not the case. However, it was learned from another source that the Gananoque management had drawn to the attention of the OHA executive to the possibility that the Merchants had used an ineligible player.

Rangers Come Back Strong To Beat Detroit In Overtime

DETROIT, April 19—(AP)—The Stanley Cup hopes of the underdog New York Rangers were on the upgrade today after they beat the Detroit Red Wings 4-3 in overtime Tuesday night to even the series at two games apiece. It was strictly an uphill battle for the temporarily-orphaned Rangers, who will have to play the remaining games in the best-of-seven series on Detroit ice. Their own playing site at Madison Square Garden is taken up with a circus.

The Rangers played dismal hockey in the first period as they gave up a pair of goals and were outplayed, outskated and outfought.

Down Two In Third

They trailed by 3-1 with only about 17 minutes of regulation play left and the Red Wings and 13,557 fans were just about convinced that the game was in the bag.

But then the Rangers showed an amazing reversal of form. They carried the play to Detroit, banging in a pair of goals to tie things up and send the game into overtime.

The tying goal, a short push shot off the stick of Gus Kyle, came at 16.26 of the final period and touched off the most heated demonstration of the night. Detroit claimed there had been interference on the play, but the claim was not allowed.

The overtime period was a slam-bang affair, marking the first time in the playoff series that the two clubs had gone in for really rough play.

Ranger centre Don Raleigh ended that interlude at 8:34 as he stole the puck from Joe Carveth behind the Detroit net, skated around and poked a short one past goalie Harry Lumley to give New York its victory.

The game was a rude setback for the Red Wings' hopes of winding up the series in five games. Detroit led two games to one prior to Tuesday night and for about half the game looked as if it would tuck the contest away with ease.

Lindsay's First Goal

Ted Lindsay, leading scorer in the National Hockey League this season, bagged his first goal of the playoffs at 6:31 of the opening period to put Detroit out in front. Sid Abel made it 2-0 at 16:48 of that period with Lindsay getting the assist.

New York got a dramatic goal in the last of the second period to make it 2-1 as Buddy O'Connor sank a short rebound.

Marty Pavelich got a Detroit goal at 3:22 of the final period and the Wings were out in front 3-1.

The Rangers kept banging away and Edgar Laprade made it 3-2 at 8:09 with a pretty 30-footer. That set the stage for Kyle's tying goal and the overtime play.

Goalie Chuck Rayner racked up 33 saves while Lumley made 26.

Texas Pitchers Okay Balk Rule

DALLAS, Tex., April 19 (UP) —Baseball's new balk rule—loudly criticized by veteran pitchers — does not appear to be hurting Texas League pitchers too much.

During the first week of the season, only 12 balks were called against Texas League moundsmen. In contrast, Pacific Coast League pitchers had 44 called aaginst them during their first week of play.

In only seven of the 23 games played during the opening week of the season did umpires use baseball's newest controversial rule—that a pitcher, with men on base, has to come to a full stop in his delivery after raising his arms above his head.

None was called last night in four games, while on two other nights pitchers went through without violating the rule.

In only one game was there any frequent violation. Four balks were called April 14 in the San Antonio-Beaumont game.

Barrie Flyers Win

BARRIE, April 19. (CP) — Barrie Flyers chalked up a 10-3 victory over Toronto Carwils at Nobleton, Ont., Tuesday night to finish in first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A round-robin playoffs. Barrie, undefeated in the round, now enter a best-of-seven final series with Guelph Biltmore Bees, who ended the round in second place.

Truman Tosses Wild With Either Hand

WASHINGTON, April 19 — President Truman proved himself a wild pitcher and a conservative prophet as the Senators edged Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 7, in the season opener at Washington.

After predicting a 5-to-3 Washington victory, Mr. Truman took over the task of throwing out the ceremonial "first ball." The Chief Executive resolved the mystery whether he would throw right-handed or left-handed by making two "first" pitches—the first in his normal southpaw style and the second right-handed.

The standing-room-only crowd of 31,548, including Washington top dignitaries, went wild about Harry and Harry S. Truman went wild with both pitches. Both were bloopers, with his second toss going off at a sharp angle.

Even so, Mr. Truman was the only starting "pitcher" who was still around at the end of the game.

Frost's Stand Against Racing Gets Approval

TORONTO, April 19.—Commendation of Premier Frost's stand against further extension of race-track gambling and his opposition to night harness racing, dog racing and Sunday movies came from the assembly of Toronto Presbytery of the United Church.

The assembly also approved a resolution asking a halt on future moves to widen the scope of Sunday sports. Another resolution affirmed that federal laws—including the Lord's Day Act—should not be altered because of local votes, and a third suggested that the new Sunday sport legislation may be ultra vires.

Dr. R. C. Chalmers of the churchs Board of Evangelistic and Social Services, attacked the new Ontario legislation as being of doubtful legality, failing to mention the word commercial in connection with sports and productive of confusion.

Not Twice

Under the BNA Act, power could not be delegated twice, he contended, yet the Government of Ontario had violated this by passing on to the municipalities the power given it by the federal government in connection with sports.

"Are we to permit the community to decide whether they will obey what comes under the Criminal Code—which includes the Lord's Day Act?" asked Rev. E. M. Howse of Bloor St. United Church. A community could decide not to pay income tax, for example, if the laws could be altered, he said.

Games On Sunday

"They have permission now to have games on Sunday, but the crux of the matter is that the commercial is not there," Dr. Chalmers continued. "The only thing that is stipulated as illegal is horse-racing; sports and games are nowhere specified. I am thinking of the time 25 or 50 years from now—how will people interpret this act then?"

"There are many forces today seeking to put the dollar sign on Sunday," Dr. Chalmers declared. "We're losing our safeguards to the good life, and it's up to us to uphold it and strengthen it wherever possible."

The presbytery then approved a resolution urging city council to confine Sunday sports to baseball and hardball in Maple Leaf Stadium because the law might be proven ultra vires.

Election Dates Should Be Fixed Says Member

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP). — A Social Credit member of Parliament said Tuesday it was time Canadians took away from the government the power to call Federal elections "at the time most politically expedient for them."

G. Hansell (Macleod) said to this electoral reform should be added a parliamentary reform to make the House reflect the will of the people rather than of the party in power.

Mr. Hansell, speaking on a motion to establish a special elections committee, said Canada should follow the American system in having a definite set time for elections, be it four or five years. It should not be within the power of the government to call an election when it saw fit.

(The government now must call an election every five years, but can name the date at any time short of that.)

He knew it would be said the government, under the Canadian system, must have power to resign, particularly when it was defeated on a confidence motion in the House. To counteract that he would rearrange Parliament's rules so the government would not stand or fall on every vote.

It was time for an election candidate to tell the people he stood for this or that. But he found a different situation when he came to Parliament. Instead of voting for the will of the people he voted as the party ruled.

Seven Unions Seek Wage Raise

TORONTO, April 19.—A team of 70 union negotiators from seven unions met at the King Edward Hotel Tuesday with representatives of nine pulp and paper companies in the industry's annual negotiations for a new contract.

Wage increases for 15,000 workers under union contract are the main issue, but improved welfare benefits are also included in the union demands.

The two unions with the largest number of members in the industry are the International Brotherhood of Pulp and Sulphite Workers (AFL) and the International Brotherhood of Papermakers (AFL).

Last year the unions settled without a wage increase, due to uncertainties in the industry, but this year they are expected to press for a wage increase of about 10 cents an hour. The unions won six cents from the industry in British Columbia.

Other unions involved are the International Union of Machinists International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, International Longshoremen's Union, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Steam and Operating Engineers.

Thousands Celebrate Wordsworth Event

CRASMERE, Westmoreland, England, April 19— (Reuters) — English lakeland towns and villages are preparing this week for thousands of visitors, expected from all over the world, for the four-day Wordsworth centenary commemoration which begins this week-end.

William Wordsworth, poet laureate, traveller, philosopher and country gentleman, lived most of his life amid the lakeland country, where he died April 23, 1850, at the age of 80.

In the grey stone churches and in the poet's old garden, Wordsworth devotees will offer prayers and thanksgiving. At Cockermouth, Wordsworth's birthplace, between 400 and 600 children will walk in procession to the town's park and place daffodils on the Wordsworth memorial fountain there.

Young PCs Charged Neglect Top Can. Issues

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP) — Fireworks popped at the annual meeting of the Young Conservatives here Monday when Ned Hudson of Moosejaw, Sask., and E. R. Williamson of Ottawa, criticized the [illegible] for neglecting [illegible].

The three-hour session saw more than 100 representatives from across Canada elect a new slate of officers and pass resolutions dealing with everything from free enterprise to a national library.

Mr. Hudson said nothing had been mentioned about agriculture problems—wheat in particular.

Mr. Williamson said the convention had not discussed vital matters of trade and unemployment. As the "Ginger Group" of the Progressive Conservative party "we've got to show the nation we've got the capacity, the wills and the ideas."

Women Meet

The P. C. Women's Association also is holding its annual meeting during the three-day party rally which continues until tomorrow. At the meeting Monday Sybil Bennett of Georgetown, Ont., was elected president of the group. Hilda Hesson of Winnipeg, continues as national director of women's organization.

The YPC Association elected Leon Balcer (PC-Trois Rivieres) as its new president, succeeding E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops).

Earlier the question of a government - operated sweepstake sparked a hot debate. The resolution, which was rejected, would have put the organization on record as favoring establishment of a "Canadian National Sweepstake" administered by the Dominion government.

A resolution "deploring" the government's policy in "violating the basic tenets of free enterprise" was approved.

Young Husband Held For Stabbing His Wife

CINCINNATI, April 19 (AP)—A 27-year-old woman died in her bed Monday night of a stab wound while her husband said he paced the floor as he "begged the Lord to please take care of her."

The husband, James Edward Ferguson, 32, held on suspicion of murder, told police, "I did it, I know I did it but I didn't mean to or want to."

Mrs. Ferguson apparently was stabbed about 2 a.m. Monday but she did not die until around 7 o'clock Monday night. Meanwhile, her husband had slept, gone downtown and returned home.

Ferguson, who talked freely to police after his wife's body was found by a physician, said he had been "a case of nerves" ever since his destroyer was sunk by the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor in 1941.

NATURAL RESOURCES EXPERT—Frederic Victor Seibert, of Winnipeg, a product of Ontario's Bruce County, was president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy for 1949-50. He travelled the Canadian west by canoe and pack-train in his years as a civil engineer and land surveyor. He helped the federal Department of the Interior in the work of transferring responsibility for mineral natural resources to the western provinces. He joined the Canadian National Railways in 1929 and is Superintendent of Natural Resources and Development for the western region with headquarters in Winnipeg.

Head Of Presbyterial Make Prayer A Habit

HAVELOCK, April 19 (ENS)—Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe of Hastings, newly elected president of the Peterborough Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada was the guest speaker on Sunday evening at Havelock United Church at the annual Easter Thankoffering service of the local W.M.S.

Mrs. Metcalfe presented a challenge to Christians to make prayer and Bible study a daily habit. Basing her address upon the text "Enoch Walked with God" and Christ's last command "Go and teach all nations" she said "we would do well to pause and consider if we have been true to the trust left to us and if, as individuals, we are putting Christ's work first.

"To walk with God as Enoch did is the secret of perfect living and is the privilege and duty of every Christian. Frequently drawing near to God makes us more dissatisfied with our own sinful lives.

"The Church must awaken" she said "to the power of individual prayer and each one may be a great agency in furthering Christ's work on earth."

Special music was rendered by the senior choir which included a duet "The Shepherd of Love" by Mrs. S. Southward and Mrs. F. Chase.

First Can. Helicopter

MONTREAL, April 19 (CP) — The first helicopter ever built in Canada whirled in the sky for its first test flight Monday at Montreal's Dorval Airport before the eyes of Canadian and United States Air Force officials. The craft is the SG Mark V1-D Helicopter, built by the Intercity Airlines Company of Montreal, which assembled materials and precision instruments from 42 Canadian companies.

Rats Grow Fat On School Milk Children Sold

VICTORIA B. C. April 19 (CP) —Children at one British Columbia school aren't turning up noses at milk—not after seeing what happened to rats that did.

The see-for-yourself experiment in nutrition was carried out in a grade VI class at suburban Burnaby.

Discussed in the latest bulletin of the provincial health department, it was to show children when constitutes a good lunch.

Miss M. Pedley, class teacher, devised the experiment after she learned that 90 per cent of her class considered white bread, jam sandwiches, a chocolate bar, a piece of cake and a bottle of pop an ideal lunch. The class voted as unpopular a lunch of brown bread, carrot stick, apple and milk.

Six rats were used for the experiment. Three were fed a diet of brown bread, a vegetable and milk while the others were fed white bread, soft drinks and an occasional chocolate bar or piece of cake.

Five weeks later, rats fed on the brown bread-and-milk diet were growing steadily. Those on the other diet stopped growing, were nervous and their fur was short and coarse.

The health department says 85 per cent of the class now is having brown bread regularly and almost all are drinking more milk.

Economic Earthquake Threatens Ontario

TORONTO, April 19 (CP) — E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, said Monday night Ontario is in danger of an "economic earthquake."

Mr. Jolliffe, opposition leader in the Ontario Legislature, said there have already been "warning tremors." Unemployment was at the highest point since 1939, he said in an address prepared for delivery Monday night over an Ontario network of the CBC Overseas farm markets were "melting away like the snows in the spring."

Mr. Jolliffe spoke in the CBC's free-time series of 15-minute broadcasts, "Provincial Affairs."

U.S. Developing In Gas, Germ War

DETROIT, April 19 (AP) — The United States Army is spending more than $12,000,000 a year on research in biological, radiological and chemical warfare. Also, it is studying "new nerve gases."

Maj.-Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, chief of the Chemical Corps, disclosed this Monday night in an address to the 117th annual meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Of the "nerve gases" he gave no particulars.

McAuliffe introduced the subject by saying it was a "well-known fact" that German scientific experts on toxic chemical warfare were being "exploited" by Russia.

"It must be assumed, therefore," he said, "that we are not the sole possessors of the offensive and defensive secrets of the new nerve gases.

"Our research in this field is directed towards keeping us abreast of the latest developments. We are seeking to perfect all methods and techniques for the detection, decontamination, and the protection of personnel and animals from these new gases."

WI Directors Plan Activities For The Summer

ROSENEATH, April 19 (ENS)—The district directors of West Northumberland Women's Institutes held their annual executive meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Gordon Finlay, Wicklow, on Saturday. Directors were present from the following [illegible] of the Women's Institute: Grafton, Wicklow and Vernonville, Elmview, Baltimore, Cold Springs, Roseneath, Fenella, and Cobourg. The president, Mrs. F. S. Harnden, Grafton, presided. The correspondence and minutes were read by the district secretary, Mrs. Charlton Grigg, Roseneath. Plans were made to attend a meeting of the Institutes of Belleville Area at Belleville on May 9. Mrs. Raymond Sayer, international president of Women's Institutes, will be the guest speaker and Lady Cynthia Brooke of Ireland will also address the gathering.

50th Anniversary

Final plans were made for the 50th anniversary of West Northumberland district annual meeting to be held at Wicklow United Church on June 14. Miss Anna Lewis, superintendent, will be the guest speaker and dinner will be served by the Wicklow members. Mrs. F. S. Harnden, district president, will present gifts to the girls of West Northumberland winning county honors at the Achievement Day at Brighton, April 29. The gifts are to be purchased from district institute funds

Mrs. Mackenzie Rutherford, district convener of Agriculture and Canadian Industries, will attend the WI conference in Guelph in May. Mrs. Hilton Eagleson, Cobourg, was pianist for the meeting. Lunch was served by the Wicklow members.

Following the lunch hour a meeting of the district nominating committee was held, with the chairman, Mrs. Frank Brown of Roseneath, presiding, when a slate of officers was prepared for the annual meeting in June. Mrs. W. McMann, district director of the Cobourg Institute, will present report of the nominating committee at the annual meeting.

Says Man-Made Rain MayWreckAgriculture

LAS VEGAS, Nev., April 19—(AP)—Too much man-made rain may "wreck the agriculture of the entire nation," Dr. Irving P. Langmuir, Schenectady, N.Y., scientist, told the annual Western Snow conference Tuesday. He said that under unfavorable conditions clouds over-seeded with silver iodine and dry ice might yield more rain than needed — even cause floods.

One In 100 Finds Of Uranium Ore Prove Valuable

BY FORBES RIDDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO, April 19—(CP)—About one in 100 of all those uranium finds you hear about have a reasonable ing worth while, it was indicated today by A. H. Lang, of the Geological Survey of Canada.

In an address to the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, he said it is generally considered that less than one per cent of gold and base metal occurrences prove large enough to become producing mines. There was no reason to suppose that this relationship will not also apply to uranium—out of which comes atomic energy.

Not Discouraging

However, he added encouragingly, the high proportion of unsuccessful prospects has not prevented the establishment of important gold and base metal industries, and it should not discourage prospecting and developing of uranium.

Further, much territory favorable in a general way remains to be prospected exhaustively and it is reasonable to assume that additional worthwhile discoveries will be made.

He said that of the large number of occurrences now known, several are obviously worth further work and several others offer speculative opportunities. A large proportion probably never will be more than "mineral occurrences."

Ontario Rich

The Lake Athabaska region of Northern Saskatchewan has seen the most successful development work since the discovery of the Eldorado mine at Great Bear Lake, N.W.T. Ontario, however, including the Sault Ste. Marie region, has more known occurrences than any other province.

Ninety-four per cent of all known Canadian occurrences are in the Precambrian Shield, the old rock formation, rich in mineral wealth, which spreads over about half of Canada, sweeping down from the northwest territories, across Northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and across Northern Ontario and Quebec.

Known precambrian deposits are almost entirely in its western and southern margins, chiefly in the northwest territories, Saskatchewan and Ontario, but with some in Manitoba and Quebec.

U.S. Progress

Phillip L. Merritt, of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, said progress is being made in the discovery of ore and the development of ore-finding techniques on the Colorado Plateau, the most important uranium-producing region in the United States. Other areas of primary and secondary uranium mineralization, such as the Colorado Front Range, the newly-discovered deposits in the Sunshine Mine in Idaho, the Marysvale, Utah, area, and the upper peninsula of Michigan, show promise for future production.

Evaluation of potential low-grade uranium ores such as the phosphate rocks of Florida and the northwestern states, and the black shales of Tennessee and Kentucky, has been substantially completed.

Mr. Merritt said the commission's program, along with Canadian exploration, should provide increasing resources which will reduce dependence on supplies from overseas.

College President Urges National Research Centre

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP)—The president of one of Canada's newest colleges today urged creation in the capital of a national research centre to develop "an alert strain of Canadianism."

Dr. M. M. MacOdrum, head of Ottawa's war-born Carleton College, recommended to the Massey Commission on Arts that it throw its full weight on any plan which would make the huge documentary and scientific facilities in this capital open to national and international research workers.

"We need scarcely add," said Dr. MacOdrum in his brief before the commission, "that the whole interest of Carleton College is bound up with such a development, and any assistance and encouragement which the college might provide in the pursuit of this objective would be most readily and cheerfully given."

Will Offer Help

As a matter of course, the college, although limited in its accommodation and facilities, was going to throw open its doors this summer to any university research worker undertaking research work in this capital, Dr. MacOdrum said.

The college also hoped that one day it may be able to provide more substantial assistance, perhaps in the shape of research grants, to reputable research workers, together with more skilled research and secretarial assistants.

"In conjunction with this extension of summer program," said Dr. MacOdrum, "the college would hope to undertake other projects, such as a summer institute on the Canadian government and possibly a summer course for high school teachers of history to be undertaken in co-operation with the public archives."

Not For Teaching

"The centre would not, it is suggested, be a teaching institution," said Dr. MacOdrum, "though it might reasonably maintain and administer three or four resident fellowships for mature researchers.

"These three or four seniors, together with a director for the centre, might become the nucleus of an expanded community of scholars."

To help these research workers there would be the tremendous facilities in government services, such as the archives, the National Reseach Council, the various government departments, each specializing in a particular branch of government duty, and besides these were various professional organizations willing to help the research worker get on with his job. These included the Chemical Institute of Canada, the Canadian Citizenship Council, the United Nations Association, the labour unions and the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

NATIONAL MINING LEADER—Dr. A. C. Dufresne, Deputy Minister of Mines for Quebec province, was elected president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy for 1950-51 at the annual meeting in Toronto April 17-19. He joined Quebec's mines department in 1914 shortly after graduation as a mining engineer. A native of Montreal, he received in 1946 an honorary degree of Doctor of Applied Science from the University of Montreal in recognition of his part in Quebec's mining development.

2 Cultural Groups War On Brink of Devastation

OTTAWA, April 19 — (CP) — Two national cultural organizations Tuesday expressed fear that the world, moving into the atomic and hydrogen age, stands on the bring of undreamed-of devastation.

The Canadian Institute of International Affairs, emphasizing the need for better informed Canadians on the march of international events, said the world [illegible] fear of another holocaust."

The Toronto Pontificial Institute of Mediavel Studies, urging federal financial aid for its undertakings, said that man now was the master of a power "of a possible destructiveness of hitherto undreamed-of dimensions."

"What is not so easily seen," said the Pontificial Institute, "and what must be seen by the western nations is that the hydrogen age brings man face to face with himself."

A spiritual realization of his own meaning and the christian civilization in which he lived was the only thing that stood between man and his self-destruction, the Institute added.

The two organizations were among nine appearing before the Massey Commission on Arts as the Canadian culture investigating body drove ahead in its efforts to clear up its Ottawa sittings this week.

Others appearing included the Ontario Teachers' Federation, the London Public Library Board, Carleton College of Ottawa, the Metal Arts Guild of Toronto.

The Institute of International Affairs said work of disseminating international political information in Canada is a major service in the national interest. It asked for no funds, but merely the continued co-operation of the government.

The Ontario Teachers' Association touched on a wide range of cultural needs, from federal aid to education to construction of a national library.

It recommended that greater financial aid be given by the Federal government to the provinces to equalize educational opportunities throughout the country.

It urged that the CBC employ permanent educational directors to help prepare its programs and to establish a national transcription service to be sold at cost or loaned to school radio programs.

The teachers believed the National Film Board should produce less tourist films and more films that would translate Canada to Canadians. It urged that a national gallery be established and a national library constructed.

The association recommended that steps be [illegible] to provide [illegible] system of scholarships so that teachers in the arts, letters and sciences may study in other countries, and that the Federal government help universities or other organizations interested in research in the field of vocational guidance.

Married 63 Years Couple Separate

WEST BROMWICH, Staffordshire, England, April 19— (Reuters)— A married couple have lived here in "The Nutshell," for seven years without speaking to each other.

They are Mr. and Mrs. William Corbett, and the Nutshell is the name of their house here.

"When one goes into a room the other comes out; but we do not seem to meet much, even on the stairs," Mrs. Corbett said. "At first I did the cooking and left the meals for my huband. Our only means of keeping in touch was notes passed by our 16-year old son.

"Then even the notes ended, and my husband took his own ration book and began to do his own cooking."

William Corbett appeared at a local court Monday accused of stealing some electrical fittings handed over to the police by his wife. During the hearing of the case, which was dismissed, he said he and his wife had not spoken for seven years.

300-Year-Old Map Printed Shifts Old Globe 20 Feet

By WILLIAM BOSS —

LONDON, April 19 (CP) — A 300-year-old London map, published last month for the first time, became public barely in time to save some solemn faces from turning beet red.

Members of London's Shakespeare Reading Society had been prepared to stake their collective reputations on the Bard's Globe Theatre having stood at a spot they pinpointed on Park Street, south of the Thames.

Had Plaque

So sure were they that they've got a plaque ready saying so. The plaque was to be affixed to the wall of the Anchor Brewery, next to 25 Park Street, and near the street's intersection with Southwark Bridge Road.

This was to have settled definitely a question which Shakespearians have argued hotly for generations, and presumably they had their documents to prove it.

But a week ago they discovered they were 20 feet out. The old drawing says so.

The three-century-old map, discovered during a post-blitz clean-out in the office of the Comptroller of the City of London, was published in an officially-sponsored survey of the Thames-side parishes of St. Saviour and Christchurch, Southwark.

One Of Series

The volume is the latest of a series — appearing at intervals since 1896 — on London's parishes.

Drawn in 1618 for the then Bishop of Winchester, the map shows the tenants of his properties in the area. Bishops of Winchester had been granted land in London by a 12th Century Abbot of Bermondsey and in their Southwark Park had a fine palace, the walls of which are noted in the survey.

Buildings on the park lands were theirs and among the tenants when the Globe was in its heyday is listed a "Mr. Shakespeare." But the editors aren't sure the man listed was our Will, leaving open to question whether Shakespeare lived at or near the Globe while acting and writing.

The survey says, "An impartial review of the existing evidence can only lead to the verdict, 'not proven.' In this, as in so many ways, Shakespeare the man remains a mystery."

And that's bad news to Southwark, which had hopes of building a Shakespeare industry rivalling Stratford - on - Avon's, especially during the 1951 Festival of Britain, to be just two or three streets away in the Waterloo Bridge area.

Pangs of conscience, Logsdon quoted Grant as saying, caused him to repent.

This morning jailers found Grant had torn strips of mattress from his cell bed and was trying to fashion a noose. They placed him under strict guard. He was booked on suspicion of attempted murder.

Detective Jack Gouldstone quoted Grant as saying:

"Let me stress that Betty Suomela was in complete ignorance as to my true intentions and my actions and particularly my future plans.

"I was not serious about her. I was stringing her along.

"Why, I lied to her so many times I cannot even remember my stories. Yes, I told her I had two children but that I was separated and living in a hotel. I told her I was getting a divorce.

"My relations with her were very friendly, but not intimate."

Gouldstone said Grant told him he did not think of the lives of the other passengers when he plotted the bombing, but that when he saw the baggage being loaded and thought of the others he lost his nerve.

Grant was completely composed, Gouldstone said, while he dictated his statement.

Miss Suomela, 31-year-old assistant superintendent of stewardesses of another airline (American) until she submitted her resignation yesterday, told reporters she knew Grant had two children but that she understood from the time she met him three years ago that he and Mrs. Grant were separated.

"I never met his wife nor the children," she said, "but I know he loved the children dearly. He never said much about his wife."

MORE ABOUT—
Counterfeit Ring

The first seizure of counterfeit money which authorities said was traced to the ring was Jan. 26 in New York City. Agents at that time bought more than $200,000 from three New Yorkers, now on trial there.

Shortly afterward, more than $30,000 in counterfeit notes were confiscated in New York.

The first large scale seizure of counterfeit bills here was March 6, when a routine investigation of a tip about policy slips led authorities to a west-side home. There police said they found about $51,000 in bogus American and Canadian bills — the largest such seizure here to date.

On March 26, secret service agents announced seizure of $12,300 in counterfeit $10 and $20 bills and the arrest of five young men.

May Install New Lighting On Havelock Sts.

HAVELOCK, April 19 (ENS)— A new street lighting system for Havelock was considered at a meeting of the local Hydro Commission and the town council recently, when Mr. Frost of Toronto was present and gave the estimate of the complete job at approximately $49,000.

A debenture for $30,000 is required for the plan as the commission has only about $21,000 on hand. The approval of the commission, council and Municipal Board must be received for the debenture issue.

The style of lamp and wattage to be used throughout the town was discussed and it was decided to use a 200-watt lamp fixture (junior Spherolite Luminous) with a 100-watt bulb in all but the business section.

The council have given approval to the Hydro Commission for the issuing of debentures for $30,000 to rebuild and install street lights.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

The other night I watched a famous radio star mangle a hand. Both sides needed 120 points, and the pile built up to a nice size before my friend managed to take the pile and make a first meld.

Well, you'd think he'd get enough points out of that hand to win the game, but he didn't. The trouble was that he just couldn't keep his fingers off the discard pile.

Each time it came around to him it contained exactly four cards. It always happened that he could make a meld with the top card of the pile, so he picked it up.

After a while his partner began to sweat. He still had his original eleven cards, and it looked as though he'd never get a chance to pick up any more. Whenever the discard pile came around to him it contained only two cards—no bargain.

Finally my friend's partner made a risky discard. There were only three cards in the discard pile, but the opponent swooped down on it with gurgles of glee. He made a meld of 120 points, his partner speedily completed a canasta, and they were out on the next round.

"You may know how to sing," began my friend's partner . . . And any experienced Canasta player can imagine the rest of that discussion!

My singing friend's partner had good reason to be annoyed. When you pick up a big discard pile, don't be a hog. Let your partner get a few cards into his hand. When the next pile, containing only four cards, comes around to you, pass it up. That will give your partner a chance at a six-card discard pile.

You may have a problem if your partner cannot pick up a six-card pile. If you keep letting the pile grow, he may give it away. It is wise to pass the pile up the first time it comes around to you; it is sometimes all right to pass a pile up the second time it comes back to you; but it is foolhardy to let it go by a third time.

When your partner seems to have trouble getting the discard pile, put down a new meld or two. The idea is not to deplete your own hand, but to make it hard for the next player to find a discard that doesn't give the pile to your partner.

Q—Can you ever discard a red three?

A—Never.

Q—When you meld out with three black aces, are you allowed to make a discard also?

A—Yes. When you meld out, you may make a discard or not—as you choose. Black threes do not affect this rule in any way.

Lights Assured If Finance Plan Soundly Drawn

The go-ahead signal is virtually assured for floodlighting Riverside [illegible] the Recreation [illegible] suant to a report from the finance committe of the city council, has drawn up a financial plan showing the scheme to be self-liquidating, and as soon as the Senior Baseball Club has raised its share, $15,000. Total cost of the floodlighting is estimated to be $35,000

The Peterborough Recreation Commission discussed the recommendations made by the finafncial committee of the city council Tuesday night. Ald. Hurrell Dodds, also a member of the commission, was assigned the duty of making a report on several prices for the lights, the future seating plans, the payment plan to the city council for the remaining $20,000 and the plan to meet possible flood conditions at Riverside Park.

Other Cities' Experience

Mr. Dodds presented the results of a survey conducted by the city clerk regarding the lighting of baseball parks in Guelph, Brantford, Niagara Falls and Waterloo.

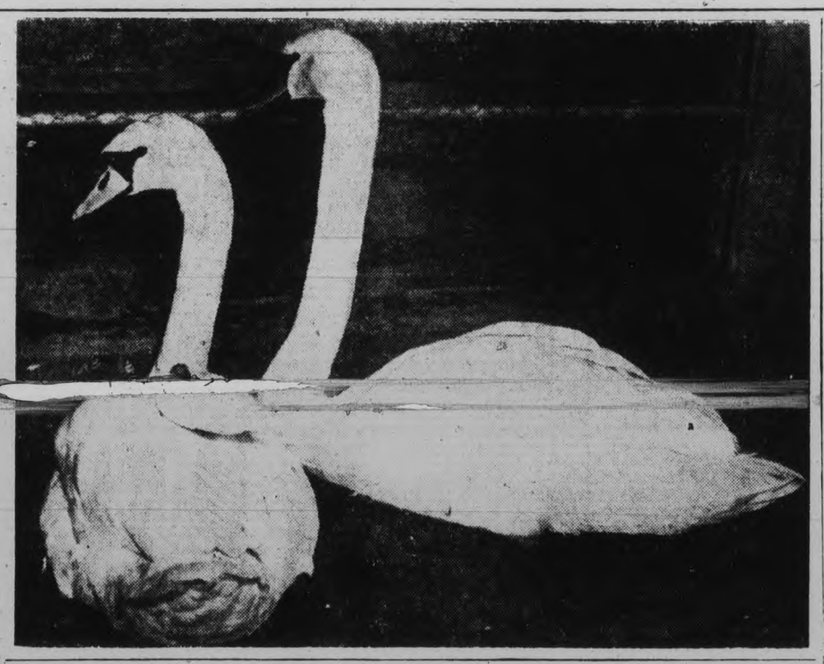
All the baseball parks in these cities have floodlights. They were installed in Guelph in 1948, in Brantford in 1949, in Niagara Falls in 1947 and in Waterloo in 1946. The cost of installation in each of these parks was: Guelph, $36,345, with the city contributing all; Brantford, $30,842, with the city contributing all; Niagara Falls $16,234, with the city issuing debentures for $14,000 and the balance paid by a general fund; Waterloo, $16,000, with the city issuing debentures for the full amount.

In the four cases the city received 25 per cent of the gross receipts. In 1948 Brantford without lights received $1,853, Niagara Falls with lights received $4,140 and Waterloo with lights received $7,181. All the parks had lighting in 1949 with the result Guelph received $6,100, Brantford $13,574, Niagara Falls $4,404, Waterloo $9,682.

All the cities reported that floodlighting of the baseball parks was a reasonable investment on the part of the city and those responsible.

The commission instructed the recreation director to send a letter to the baseball club notifying its executive that work may be started on the project as soon as Mr. Dodds' report is in and its $15,000 is in hand.

THERE IS GREAT EXCITEMENT among birds and animals at the filtration park zoo as caretakers move them to repaired pens and cages from "winter storage" in the old pump house building. Land birds, bear and deer remain outside the year 'round but smaller animals and wild fowl are just being released to the outdoors to-day. Benny the bear, LEFT, suns himself in his cage where he has spent six pampered years. Caretaker Purdy Young, CENTRE, holds two golden guinea pigs that posed quietly for a picture. Cyphas the swan, right in RIGHT photo, is shown with his young mate in their winter tank; unlike all other bird inmates they do not voice their eagerness to be outside, for, they are mute swans. —Examiner Staff Photos



Lindsay Priest Invested As Monsignor

LINDSAY, April 19—(Special to The Examiner).—The investiture of Right Reverend Monsignor J. V. McAuley in the purple of his new office of Domestic Prelate was attended by a large assembly of friends of the clergy and laity, church and state, at St. Mary's Church Tuesday night.

Hon. Leslie M. Fro[illegible] of Ontario, [illegible] ty Judge J. A. McGibbon, Mayor Charles Lamb and the members of the municipal council in Lindsay, joined with the parishioners of St. Mary's in the congratulatory tribute of their presence.

The blessing of the monsignorial robes and the ceremony of investiture by Bishop Gerald Berry was followed by the sermon for the occasion by Monsignor J. A. McDonagh, Toronto. Also present were Bishop B. I. Webster, Toronto, and many of the priests of the diocese of Peterborough, and from other sections of the province.

Attending Monsignori included Rt. Revs. John Ingoldsby, Toronto; J. J. O'Brien, Peterborough; D. R. MacDonald, Alexandria; J. J. O'Leary, Sault Ste. Marie; D. A. Cullinane, Trenton; P. P. Butler, Peterborough; J. M. O'Connor, Toronto, and J. A. McDonagh, Toronto.

Chaplains to Bishop Berry were: Very Rev. J. B. Ferguson, Warkworth, and Rev. V. J. McFadden, Downeyville; attending Bishop Webster were: Rev. Robert Clune, Toronto, and Rev. V. J. Gillogly, Ennismore; and the chaplains to Mons. McAuley were Rev. John V. Ryan of Britt and Rev. James Greenan, Peterborough.

In his sermon, Monsignor McDonagh extended his congratulation to Mons. McAuley on the new honor and dignity which recognized his many years of pastoral service in the diocese of Peterborough. Looking farther abroad he said that Pope Pius XII was leading a great fight against the unbelief of a puzzled world. Behind him was the promise of Jesus Christ that truth would prevail.

Service More Than Honor

Mons. McDonagh said the church had a heirarchy of service more than of honor, and that Mons. McAuley had now joined the fellowship of the household of the Pope.

"May he continue through the years serving well and zealously the Master he chose to follow on the day of his ordination."

In his address to the congregation, Monsignor McAuley expressed to Bishop Berry his gratitude for the nomination which resulted in the news from Rome last Christmas Day that the Pope had conferred upon him the dignity of Domestic Prelate.

"Forty years ago I knelt before Bishop Richard A. O'Connor to receive the great sacrament of Holy Orders. Tonight I kneel be-

Mayor Of Caen Has Big Task Rebuilding City

By JEAN E. STENTON

CAEN, April.—One of the busiest men in Caen is Mayor Yves Guillou, who not only has to organize plans for rebuilding his destroyed city, but who must take care of hundreds of problems each week which his people lay before him.

Well over six feet, and with a flashing sense of humor, Mayor Guillou is a veteran of the German occupation and persecution. Arrested and "worked on" by the Gestapo, he finally escaped after one of the bombings and eventually made his way to the Loire Valley, where he remained till the German army was driven back. The prefects of Caen conferred and it was decided he was the man to lead their fight for survival, a job he has held ever since.

On the night of June 6-7 the Allies bombed Caen to prevent German reinforcements from arriving. The Normans call this operation "bouchant," meaning cork. They say that the systematic bombing of all roads leading from Caen was the cork which trapped the Germans in the bottle of Caen.

Arrested By Gestapo

Prior to the raid, the mayor had been arrested by the Gestapo and imprisoned. He had been questioned for hours on the charge that he was a deGaulle supporter, but they had no proof and were finally obliged to release him.

When Caen experienced its first shattering raid, Mr. Guillou was in a trench. The bombs rained down around him, but he said it was preferable to prison and the Nazis.

In a few days, the Gestapo were after him again, and when he learned of his imminent arrest, he and his family headed for Falaise He took only his bicycle and food because his house had been burned by the Germans when they couldn't find him. Near Falaise, some Nazi soldiers stole his bicycle and provisions and the little family struggled on.

Mayor Guillou said he knows what tyranny can make of 18 and 19-year-old boys. He saw their cruelty with women and children even when they were not fighting.

Girl Kidnapped

In Falaise, his family had another narrow brush with the Germans. One night as they were all in bed, a group of drunken German soldiers arrived demanding admittance. They declared they knew there was a girl inside and began searching the bedrooms. The only thing that saved his daughter was that they found another refugee girl in the first room they entered and went away satisfied. They had to flee the next day and finally made their way south of the Loire River. When the Allies liberated the opposite bank, he crossed over.

Before he was forced to flee from the Falaise area, the mayor again met the Gestapo. His wife, daughter and her financee were sitting in a cafe with him having dinner when members of the Gestapo entered. He realized that he would be easily recognized in that area. So he told his wife and family to sit there and he would try to get out first. As the Germans were settling themselves, he walked very slowly toward the entrance. As soon as he was outside he began to run and the family then left.

There was only once that a French family refused them aid. He went into a restaurant and asked for food. The people told him first they had nothing. They saw they were refugees and their clothes ragged and wanted nothing to do with them. But Mr. Guillou said he saw eggs in a frying pan. When he mentioned this fact, the owners still refused him. The mayor became so angry that he lifted his foot and sent the frying pan flying off the stove.

The mayor doesn't keep regular office hours. He is there every day, but has so many different jobs he is a difficult man to find. Every Thursday he sees people who have an appointment and they discuss their problems. Once he knows what his people desire, he does his best to do it for them. And his biggest worry is still the housing problem.

Great Power

The city council does not meet regularly. It may be called several times in a week or it may be more than a week before it assembles. He has great powers and the people rely on his judgment.

The most important item on the city agenda is rebuilding. He has great plans for Caen and feels they might as well improve on the former city while they are at it. They is a very old fortress in the heart of Caen which dates from William the Conqueror. Most of the thick walls and great buildings of the castle are still standing. Previously, the buildings around had hidden it from view. But since the bombings, it overlooks the streets of Caen. It is the mayor's dream to keep it that way and build a large street up from the station to the castle, pattern after the Champs Elysees in Paris.

Report Delinquency Arising From Common-Law Unions

Child delinquency resulting directly from common law union of divorced parents has been causing concern to the staff of Peterborough Children's Aid Society recently and Miss Rachel Young, Superintendent, told the Board Tuesday that she expected no improvement while divorces were increasing.

Having in mind three recent sets of circumstances coming to the attention of the Peterborough Society, she said children of parents entering a common law union were rarely told that changes were being made in the family.

Suddenly the child found it had a new mother or father, sometimes the child was taken, unexpectedly, to live in another community and there were cases when the child found its religion was changed.

She also said that living in only one room was also causing delinquency of children in these circumstances.

It was necessary to lay a charge against parents for neglecting their children by giving poor physical care. These children were being affected in both the community and school because of their dirty condition.

During March 418 family situations were known to the Society, 36 coming to its attention during the month for the first time. One quarter were personal applications and the others were referred by police, friends, doctors, lawyers, employer, landlady and other societies.

Twenty-three of the new cases were family situations involving delinquencies of children, inadequate physical care of children, marital incompatibility, poor housing—particularly inadequate sleeping arrangements for children, desertion, non-support and children without supervision.

Five children were admitted to care. Two were private placements for adoption, one was application for the adoption of a child already in a home, one child was admitted to ward care for a period of six months pending some plan by the mother, and one was a ward of another Society placed in this community.

Eight adoptions, two of whom were wards of the Society, were completed. Two children were placed in foster homes for the first time, three were placed from the Shelter into foster homes. One of these youngsters was a three-year-old who had little reason to have faith in adults. Here the foster parents showed exceeding patience and understanding with the youngster who is steadily improving in her behaviour.

Eight Unmarried Cases

Eight unmarried parent cases came to the Society's attention—three wishing assistance only in securing maintenance from the alleged father of their child and five wishing assistance in planning for their child.

"Sometimes these girls do not come to our attention until after the baby is born and then we are asked to make immediate placement of the child," Miss Young said. "Separation of a child from its mother is not a simple procedure and if it is to be done in a way most satisfactory to the mother and for the child, time is needed.

Handcraft Centre To Be Formed At Dixon House

A handcraft centre will be opened at the Dixon House October 1 under the sponsorship of the Recreation Commission. Tuesday night the commission approved the plan of Mrs. James Wharry, handcraft committee chairman, to house the leather, metal, pottery and weaving groups at Dixon House. The groups are using three places, Central School, the Normal School and Dixon House at present.

Mrs. Wharry said that an inspection of Dixon House, which she made with A. E. Borland and Mrs. R. Whalen, revealed that three rooms on the second floor were suitable for handcraft activities. The room chosen for the metalcraft workers, she said, would have to be equipped with stools, small and large benches The cost of this equipment would total $253.24.

The two smaller rooms on the second floor will be used by the pottery group. Mrs. Wharry said that a new linoleum, costing $40.60 was needed for one room. She told the commission that a kiln could be placed only in a building owned by the commission. A possible site for the kiln is in the basement of the Dixon house.

The leather group recommended Mrs. Wharry use the office or library on the main floor. Their expenses will be only $8.80.

The weavers are already located on the third floor of Dixon House. Mrs. Wharry said that the equipment is now on wobbly card tables and that one stand has been ordered. If suitable, four others will be bought at $10 each.

The total cost of the new equipment and installation of the groups in Dixon House will be $364.24.

Mrs. Wharry made two suggestions, first, that the Peterborough Handcraft Guild form a house committee to be responsible for the rooms and secondly, that representatives from each of the groups meet to make out a schedule of classes with Mr. Sinclair.

The Canadian Handcraft Guild, said Mrs. Wharry, is prepared to outline courses for classes which will be self-financed. At the end of four years the pupils will receive a certificate if they attain the required standards.

The present activities of Dixon House will not be curtailed by the handcraft centre. Mrs. Wharry pointed out that the St. John Ambulance Brigade is looking for new quarters while the Boy Scouts already have new quarters The Society for the Blind and the Alcoholics Anonymous will still carry on their meetings. The centre will not interfere with the nursery school.

After passing the recommendation the commission requested the recreation director to thank by letter the Board of Education, Central School and the Normal School for allowing the craft groups to use space in their buildings.

City Padlocks Tom Hum Out Of Business

Constable Gordon Trennum figuratively put the padlock on the Paris Cafe at 11:20 p.m. Tuesday. And from the city council license cancellation order there is no appeal. Tom Hum, the proprietor, is out of business in Peterborough.

Those were the distinct implications of the action of the council Monday.

PC Trennum had called at the cafe around four o'clock in the afternoon with the official closing notice written and issued by City Clerk Outram. The early information was that T. Hum was not on the premises and maybe not in town, in Toronto. An emergency search by the police department in the evening delayed the officer until shortly after 11 p.m., and when he returned to the Paris he walked in on T. Hum.

Five minutes later the key was turned in the door, and front lights were turned off.

No Appeal

The action of the council was based on the following section of the Municipal Act: "The granting or refusing of a license to any person to carry on a particular trade, calling, business or occupation, or of revoking a license under any of the powers conferred upon a council or board of commissioners of police by this Act, or any other Act, shall be in its discretion, and it shall not be bound to give any reason for refusing or revoking a license, and its action shall not be open to question or review by any court."

In closing up the Paris Cafe for keeps, the city council has imposed a drastic penalty on behalf of the community. Street reaction appeared to be unanimously in accord with the council's decision to tell Tom Hum he was through in Peterborough.

Evidence Piles Up

The Examiner has been informed that either Chief Thompson or Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, had on their files ample evidence to warrant virtual eviction of the restaurant man. When the two were heaped together it was a matter of doubling the kind and quantity of irregularities required to recommend the ousting of T. Hum.

Warning by police and health departments had only briefly temporary effect from time to time. The feeling of the council was quite plainly that they and Peterborough had tolerated T. Hum too long. He will be liable to police court action and penalty for every day that he might open the restaurant after the receipt of the order that leaves him without a license.

The owner of the building is Louis Loftus.

Swan, Monkey et al. Yammer About Spring's Late Arrival

By NICK NICKELS

As sure as we have two days of balmy spring weather, I give superintendent Jim Harrison a call at the filtration park zoo. "What's hatching?" I inquired of Jim on Tuesday. "Plenty. Come and see for yourself." There was so much gabbling, squawking, honking and peeping when I arrived at the old pump house winter quarters it was hard to hear what the caretakers had to say about their various charges. The wild things were so voluble, they spoke for themselves:

Cyphas the Swan: (in lip language, since he was of the mute species) "Meet Sarah, my mate. We have been floating around in this four-by-eight tank for months and we are sick of it. See is you can get Jim to let us go out this afternoon but tell him to get the mallards out of our pen. We want room to flap our wings for about six hours. Mine are so stiff they creak. Happy-eventing this spring? Ask the Mrs."

Bo-Bo the monkey; "They put me in the outside cage two days ago. Boy, was I glad to get away from looking at those caretaker's faces all winter. Summer people are worse but I put up with them. They have peanuts and stuff. I've been living on mangolds and stale bread and such-like all winter and my sweet tooth is aching. Say, you haven't got an old Chinese back scratcher have you?"

Wild Honk

A Canada goose: "Spring is here long ago. We heard the wild honkers going over the building several times. It nearly broke the heart of that bird over in the corner. He was stupid enough to get caught in a live pen trap two years ago. So, they clipped his wings and he is here to stay, like the rest of us. All we hear from him these days, and he can only hiss the tune, is 'I wanna go where the wild goose goes'. Its driving us nuts."

Benny the bear: "How did I put in the winter? All right, I guess, was asleep most of the time. The sun feels good to-day. I see some kids coming so had better sit up on this stand and look foolish. They may toss me a cookie. I'm hungry all the time. Say, Mac, how would you like to shove your arm through the bars, right up to your elbow?"

Clancey the 'coon; "Its been a tough winter, Mac. Look at this. One foot frozen and I'm all alone. My two mates curled up and died of old age and the two foxes in the next pen died too. And how am I going to wash my food with only three legs to work with? Its a sad, sad worllld. Wurra, wurra."

People, we thought, next to animals, had more trubles than anyone.

CAS TO TRADE CAR

The Children's Aid Society decided Tuesday to sell its car and to purchase two cars at the earliest opportunity.

Fetching His Pet Pony Boy 12, Hit By Car

Attempting to cross Highway 7 to get his pet pony, 12-year-old Donald L. Killingbeck of Fowler's Corners, was knocked down by a car late Tuesday afternoon and taken to Civic Hospital.

He is not believed to be seriously injured but he has bruises on his nose and other parts of his face and some teeth have been broken.

Donald, a pupil at SS No. 2 Smith, had left his home to bring in his pony "Queenie" for the night. The animal was grazing on the south side of the highway.

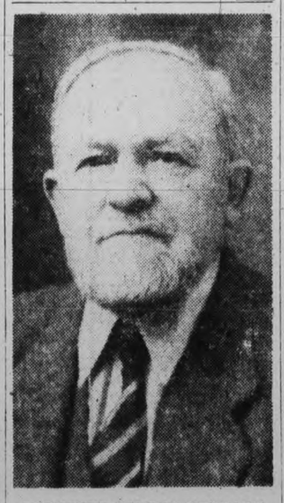
After watching a westbound bus shoot by on the heavily-trafficked highway Donald started across. He was struck by an eastbound car driven by William J. Hoey, 31 Danforth Ave., Toronto.

The lad was taken to hospital by ambulance. X-rays showed no signs of a fractured skull.

Provincial Constables George Henderson and F. G. Pollitt investigated.

CHARGE ADJOURNED

A charge of assault against three Lakefield men, Braden and Alex Dunford, and Roy Binnington, was further adjourned today to April 26 by Magistrate W. R. Philp.



ARRESTED BY THE GESTAPO —Mayor Yves Guillou of Caen was an object of Nazi hatred during the war. Today, he is leading his people in the great project of rebuilding his badly wrecked city. As full of vitality as ever, this 70-year-old man is busy designing the new Caen to be more beautiful than before.

Broadway Actors Should Resist Hollywood Lure

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 19 (AP). —Broadway star David Wayne advises young stage hopefuls to hold out against the lures of Hollywood.

"Hold out until you're an established name," the actor admonished. "Then you can come on your own terms."

The system has paid off handsomely for Wayne. He had some minor offers from the studios when he first gained notice on Broadway. He passed them by. He didn't even snatch at the "big bait" which was dangled before him after his first hit as the Leprechaun in "Finian's Rainbow."

Finally Succumbed

It wasn't until after his second top success in "Mr. Roberts" that Wayne succumbed to Hollywood. He came under his own terms — no exclusive contract.

He has done four pictures in a year's time and soon starts another. Being master of his own destiny, he will return to the stage this fall in the Cole Porter musical "Out of This World." He feels that if more broadwayites would not tie themselves up to the movies, the theatre would be in better shape.

Snapped Up

"The trouble is that when anyone shows any talent on Broadway," he sighed, "he is snapped up by Hollywood. The result is that there are few new stars in the theatre."

It is true that few have arisen to rival such longtime theatre greats as Lunt and Fontaine, Helen Hayes, Katherine Cornell and Ethel Merman. Wayne cited an exception — Mary Martin.

Drivers Ignore Sirens Cruiser On Mercy Trip

LONDON, Ont., April 19 (CP) —Seven-months-old Linda Bayliffe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bayliffe of Ingersoll, was reported in good condition in the War Memorial Children's Hospital today, after an emergency operation during the night to remove an open safety pin from her throat.

The child was brought to London by police cruiser from Ingersoll Hospital, 20 miles away.

Provincial Constable Denis Alsop, who drove the child at speeds reaching 80 miles an hour, said his siren and flashing red light were continually ignored by motorists and that at one stage he narrowly missed collision with a car that refused him right-of-way.

WMS Hold Service

SPRINGVILLE, April 19 (ENS) —The WMS of Springville held a special service in Springville Church Sunday morning. The guest speaker was Miss Riel of Peterborough who spoke on "Real Success — Living Your Life for God". Mrs. Slaughter of the Salvation Army contributed two solos. Mrs. O. Murray, president of the WMS and Mrs. Allan Stevens, also assisted in the service.

Young Women's As'n. At Mrs. Sisco's Home

HAVELOCK, April 19 (ENS)— The Young Women's Association of Knox Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. George Sisco on Monday evening when 16 members were present. The president, Mrs. R. Sayers, presided for the devotional and business sessions. It was decided to ask Donald Pollock to direct the junior choir for the Mother's Day service. Mrs. Sisco and Mrs. B. A. Curtis were in charge of the social period, during which there were two contests won by Mrs. G. Rutherford and Mrs. F. McKenzie. A gum chewing stunt was won by Mrs. James Scott.

Lunch hostesses were Mrs. Sisco, Mrs. R. Sayers and Miss Essie McQuigge.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William Copp.

Pleads Not Guilty To Drunk Driving

John Dinsdale, Armour Road, was arrested early today and charged with drunk driving following the complaint of a Toronto traveller. He pleaded not guilty in court and his case was adjourned one week by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC.

The traveller, Charles Galster, said he saw a car parked in the middle of Water Street near London Street, with no lights showing. He went to the car, and just then the driver got in, and drove away, sticking his tongue out at Galster.

Dinsdale was arrested later in Ashburnham where he was found by Constable Harold Mesley. Mr. Galster identified Dinsdale as the driver of the car.

TORONTO, April 19 — Fred Shatford, 16, whose one-day career of crime ended when he was caught through fingerprints he left on a candlestick, was sentenced Tuesday to 12 months definite and three months indefinite in reformatory for theft of over $10,000 in bonds.

The youth, said to be a member of a College St. gang, forced his way into three apartments in an apartment house at College and Bathurst Sts. He stole 33 bonds worth $9,200, bearer bonds worth $850, a fur coat, two diamond rings and $30 in cash.

The fingerprints on a candlestick in the home of one of his victims, Reginald Shaw, led to his arrest in his home on Madison Ave. by Detectives William Bolton and John Mullen. None of the loot has been recovered. Stratford told Magistrate Elmore: "The other boy hid it." He refused to disclose the identity of the other boy.

Claxton To Visit U.S.

OTTAWA, April 19 — (CP).— Defence Minister Claxton Tuesday announced he has accepted an invitation from United States Defence Secretary Louis Johnson to attend US Army manoeuvres at Fort Benning, Ga., and US Air Force demonstration at Elgin, Fla., next Friday and Saturday. Mr. Claxton will join Mr. Johnson in Washington as the Defence Secretary's personal guest on an official party.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By DON GRANT

Scouts numbering 40,000 from 45 countries will attend the American Jamboree at Valley Forge, near Philadelphia, from June 30 to July 6. Every Canadian province has been asked to send a representative group. Any First Class Scouts interested in attending the jamboree should contact W. G. Shiner, secretary of the Peterborough Association.

The jamboree is an event which will be carried on in true Scout tradition. Scouts must come prepared to fend for themselves living and cooking in the outdoors, using many skills which they have learned and practised. They will camp by Troops, bringing and using their equipment living and working by patrols.

Paper Collection Features

Despite the weather the paper collectic surpassed the November drive by one freight-car. The 250 cubs, scouts fathers and group committeemen packed an estimated 100 tons of waste paper into seven freight cars. This will give the Association about $1200 which will be divided equally between the local association and the 15 Scouting groups in the city.

P. A. Moore drive chairman, thanks the Peterborough people for backing the drive so wholeheartedly. They haven't let the boys down on a paper drive yet. A special word of thanks is extended to the 30 owners of trucks who loaned their vehicles.

Gilwell Courses

District Commissioner George Groombridge said today that anyone interested in the Blue Springs summer Gilwell Courses should contact him. Applicants for these courses must be at least 21 years old and must have preliminary training and at least six months training as a leader of a Troop or Pack.

St. John's Scouting Birthday

Highlight or St. John's Church Scouting birthday was the presentation of long service medals to Assistant District Commissioners Fred Ford and Peter Dominik. Mr. Ford has been in scouting for 14 years and Mr. Dominik 16 years. The presentations were made by District Commissioner George Groombridge.

The Rev Reginald Howden of St. Michael's and All Angels Church in Toronto, one of the early assistant scoutmasters of the troops was guest speaker.

With The Rovers

Guest of the monthly Holy Communion and breakfast at All Saints Church Sunday were five former Rovers. They were Charles Dobbin, George Brooks, Lew Barry, Walter Dunsford and Bert Cutmore. A former skipper of the crew Mr. Cutmore was the speaker. Another guest was Max Doughty. The Rev. Willian Kibblewhite officiated at the communion and spoke briefly at breakfast.

Scouting Around

Oshawa—Scout Alan Crandeli of the 4th Oshawa Boy Scout Group in St. Andrew's United Church was recently awarded with the King's Scout Badge. The presentation was made by his father and upon the request of Executive Commissioner Stanley Richardson.

Easter Service Held By WMS

COTTESLOE, April 19 (ENS) — The Easter thankoffering of Cottesloe WMS was held on Sunday afternoon at the church service, with the Rev. E. E. Pugsley in charge. Miss Joy Bartwell of Peterborough was guest speaker. Miss Zelda Tedford sang "The Stranger of Galilee," playing her own accompaniment on the guitar.

The choir sang "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning"; Mrs. John Gallaher read the scripture and Miss Helen Tedford led in prayer. Mrs. Charles McMillan was pianist.

Mrs. Dave Barr and Mrs. George Webster received the offering, with Mr. Pugsley giving the dedicatory prayer.

Believe 4 Boys Drown

Minister Quits Drop Court Suit

GUELPH, April 19 — Rev. Thomas Guthrie, at odds with his congregation at York Road Baptist Church for the past nine months, today signed an agreement which will remove him from all affairs of the church.

The document was signed in the courthouse Tuesday shortly before he was to have appeared as defendant in a Supreme Court action brought by five deacons of the church.

C. H. Howard, appearing for the deacons, informed Mr. Justice Leger that minutes of settlement had been filed and requested dismissal without costs on the basis of settlement. Mr. Howard said this action would automatically dissolve the injunction obtained by the deacons, restraining Mr. Guthrie from use of the church.

His lordship dismissed the action without costs and commended both parties for reaching a settlement.

While terms of the agreement were not officially disclosed, it was learned that the former pastor agreed not to interfere with the affairs of the church. His resignation is retroactive to July 21 last. Mr. Guthrie is to vacate the house he occupied as a church parsonage and return a mimeograph machine and pulpit hymn book. He is to receive $100 for unpaid salary and expenses.

The agreement also calls for resignation of Alex. Binnie, sole member of the board of deacons who supported Mr. Guthrie at the time of the split, it was reported.

Canada Asks The United States For Natural Gas

WASHINGTON, April 19 (AP) —The Canadian Government today officially urged the United States Power Commission to make it possible for Canada to receive 75,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day from an American pipeline firm.

W. D. Matthews, minister in the Canadian Embassy here, appeared at a commission hearing in support of an application by Panhandle Eastern Pipeline Company for authority to go ahead with a $125,000,000 expansion program.

The program would enable Panhandle to increase its daily supply of gas from 500,000,000 to 800,000,000 cubic feet. It has agreed to furnish 75,000,000 of its additional capacity to the Union Gas Company of Canada, whose customers are in Western Ontario.

Several American customers of Panhandle are strongly opposed to the Canadian deal if it will deprive them of extra quantities of fuel they say they need.

Matthews testified it is his understanding that Panhandle would be able to give Union Gas 75,000,000 cubic feet "without detriment to its United States customers.

Union Gas must obtain the fuel from the United States, he said "because of the serious depletion of the natural-gas reserves of Southwest Ontario and the importance of natural gas to the economy of this important industrial region."

Drug Addicts Pale, Anaemic Have High Mortality Rate

By MEL SUFRIN

OTTAWA, April 19 —(CP)— It's not unlawful to be a drug addict in Canada it is an offence, however, to be in possession of narcotics without a licence.

This legal paradox is one of the things that makes the job of police so difficult in attempting to stamp out drug addiction.

In the large Canadian cities where the problem is centred, police inevitably get to know dozens of addicts. But these persons may go about freely for months before they are caught with drugs in their possession.

Police are well-trained in methods of recognizing possible addicts. Police know that a chronic opium addict is usually a pale, anaemic, malnourished individual. They also know that tiny pinpoint scars on the arm or other parts of the body often indicate that dope has been taken by hypodermic needle.

A report on drug addiction in Canada, written by Gordon H. Josie and published last year by the Federal Health Department, tells something about addicts.

Lowers Vitality

He quotes authorities as saying the mortality rate among addicts is high in comparison with the general population. This is due in part to the fact that many are diseased when they contract the drug habit and also because narcotics lower general vitality.

Lawrence Kolb, an authority on drug addicts, describes the effects of narcotics on personality and character in these words:

"The secrecy of the habit, the practice of evading issues and of solving difficulties by blotting them out through use of narcotics, the parasite lives that so many addicts are compelled to live, the conflict with the law, the poverty and malnutrition that results from the spending of so much money to secure needed narcotics in the illegitimate market tend to bring about physical and moral deterioration."

Seeking Thrills

There are various ways in which a person can become addicted. Opportunity is one, applying especially to persons working in hospitals where drugs are used. Another is the injudicious use of drugs in mental treatment. Others include curiosity and thrill-seeking.

From various statistics on criminal addicts in Canada in the last 15 years, it might be possible to roughly describe the typical addict in this country.

He would be a man, probably ranging between 25 and 35 years of age, likely married, living in a city and Canadian born. His job is probably either that of laborer, or in domestic services, commercial, manufacturing or construction work. He probably did not get past elementary school.

89 Per Cent Male

From figures on convictions, it might be assumed that about 89 per cent of the 3,500 known criminal addicts in Canada are male.

About 31 per cent of the male addicts and 45 per cent of the female addicts are in the 25 to 35-year class. About six per cent of male offenders and 19 per cent of the girls are 25 or under.

Grandmother Faces Murder

MONTREAL, April 19 (CP).— A grandmother was charged on Tuesday with the murder of her 18-month-old grandson by throwing him into the St. Lawrence River to drown last January.

Mrs. Joseph Lacas 51, was held criminally responsible for the infant's death earlier Tuesday by a coroner's jury. The child, Pierre Paul Lacas, disappeared January 17 with his three-year-old brother Jean.

At the inquest police read an alleged confession Mrs. Lacas made the day after the children disappeared. She said she threw the children into the river to prevent her daughter, an unmarried mother, from placing them in a foster home, police claimed.

Pierre's body was discovered floating in the river near Sorel, 50 miles downstream from Montreal. The body of the other child has not yet been recovered.

The search for the bodies was abandoned during the winter months because of ice conditions. Mrs. Lacas was held originally on charges of abduction and attempted suicide while she was confined at the women's jail.

Police said she voluntarily gave herself up after the children were reported missing. Divers were sent down to the river bottom where she allegedly said she pushed the children over the river bank in a baby carriage, but no trace of them was found.

The grandmother will appeal April 25 for preliminary hearing.

Duke Of Windsor Visits Mr. King

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP)—Former Prime Minister Mackenzie King was reported Tuesday to be making slow but steady progress from the ill health which has confined him to his home almost constantly since Christmas.

Yesterday Mr. King was well enough to receive a visit from the Duke of Windsor with whom he had close personal and official relations up to the time of the latter's abdication.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor were here yesterday for a one-day personal visit to the Governor - General, Viscount Alexander.

Army Recruits By Advertising; New Approach

KITCHENER, Ont., April 19 — A new approach to the encouragement of ... serve force recruiting was suggested today by the North Waterloo Citizens' Defence Committee.

The committee made public a letter it sent to Defence Minister Claxton ... which indicate ... the reserve forces is satisfactory. It said such statements are "misleading and detrimental to recruiting and attendance" and added:

"Appealing to young men by stressing the attractions or the pay in the reserve seems to have little effect. Some other approach was necessary.

"We, therefore, suggest that the government publicize that the reserve forces are essential to the defence of Canada; that there is a need for many more men in the reserve forces; that the training is essential in case an emergency is forced upon us, for modern warfare demands skills and training beyond that which could be imparted in the time that would be available after such an emergency arises."

Says Knowledge The Only Key To Sales Ability

Speaking Tuesday night to the Peterborough Sales and Advertising Club, William C. Stannard, president of the Canadian Advertising and Sales Federation, told his audience to understand "the principles of trade and apply them to your own problems."

He was speaking at manufac... ...h af... ... members visited the Brinton - Peterborough Carpet plant.

Elected to the executive as directors were: J. W. Fortner, Paul Irwin, John Madden, and Harry Tewsley.

Mr. Stannard spoke on sales and advertising in the next 50 years. He told his listeners that the key to sales ability is knowledge of product, market, customers, competition, and advertising media.

"We cannot have a half century of progress unless we work the soil and plant the seeds," he said. "What we do and what we think as individuals will be reflected in the progress of the next 50 years."

"Victory gave us the opportunity to continue to build that society in which we believe," he said. "But there have crept into our family circle some not inconsequential elements who, by their subversive, sacreligious and subtle propaganda are seeking to blind our eyes to that high vision —to destroy that unity and nobility of purpose which was our strength in war."

"We ask ourselves how strong is free enterprise?" he said. "By attacking it, those forces show they know it is our lifeblood."

Mr. Stannard mentioned a government report issued in the United States. "It showed that every average salesman was directly responsible for the pay envelopes of 15 people in his office or factory, and indirectly responsible for the livelihood of 59 others in related industries and services."

Presented with a leather brief case at the conclusion of his speech, he quipped: "I don't know whether I should accept this. It might harm my amateur standing."

Make Progress In Millbrook With Town Hall

MILLBROOK, April 19 (ENS) —Good progress is being made in the work of renovating the Town Hall auditorium. The old balcony and kitchen are gone. New cupboards for holding the dishes have been made, under the direction of Tom Campbell. These cupboards are movable and the right height to be used as sandwich bars for serving refreshments. They are finished except for a coat or two of paint. Charlie Sanderson, assisted by Lavern Gibson, used his spray machine to cover the ceiling with aluminum paint. The walls are yet to be painted, and the hardwood floor to be laid.

New side walls have been given the stage, and it is finished in a rectangular shape with an entrance at the back of each side. The draw curtains, which are being donated by the Lady Lions, are yet to be hung. Laurence Winslow is convener of the Work Committee of the Lions Club.

Woman Convicted In Knife Slaying

TORONTO, April 19 —(CP)— Mrs. Rae Leland, 40, was convicted last night of the paring knife slaying of her landlord, Thomas Monteith, 43. The assize court jury which deliberated more than four hours on her case, had earlier acquitted her husband, Keith, jointly charged with manslaughter.

The husband was not in court when the jury returned and gave the verdict at 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Leland will be sentenced Tuesday morning. Chief Justice McRuer said: "I want to give this matter some thought. I would like to know as much of the background of this unfortunate woman as I can."

The accused showed no emotion over the verdict, but as she was led past the jury box toward the cells, she muttered incoherently at the jurymen who had convicted her.

Monteith was stabbed in the chest during an altercation with the Lelands outside their second-floor apartment in his home, 77 River St., on December 30. As he started down the stairs to his own quarters, he cried out to his wife: "Rose, she stabbed me through the heart." He collapsed at his wife's feet and was dead a few minutes later.

On completion of the Crown's evidence early yesterday afternoon, Chief Justice McRuer ruled that evidence against Leland was insufficient to warrant putting his instructions, the jury returned a case to the jur...

Face Dilemma In Administering New Old-Age Pension Scheme

OTTAWA, April 19 — (CP) — The Dominion faces a "genuine dilemma" in working out a new old-age pensions scheme, the Parliamentary Old-Age Security Committee was told Tuesday.

Dr. G. F. Davidson, Deputy Welfare Minister, expressed this view when some members questioned him on "discrimination" under the present pensions plan administered by the provinces under general federal legislation.

F. D. Shaw (SC, Red Deer) and Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto Eglinton) suggested there was discrimination in varying administrative practices under the "means test" of determining eligibility of pensions.

Asked by Mr. Fleming if abolition of the means test would not reduce the area of discrimination, Dr. Davidson said that depended on the kind of scheme that might be introduced following the committee's recommendations.

There might be discrimination under a scheme of equal payments for everyone, since those with differing living costs would get the same amounts.

On the other hand, the deputy minister said, the "appearance of inequity" might be created if regional differentials were established.

"You face a genuine dilemma there," he added. "This is one of the key questions which the committee will have to determine."

The committee at the time was discussing variations in means test procedure in the different provinces. Dr. Davidson said the provinces had considerable latitude in making regulations within the federal law in this respect.

Dr Davidson presented tables showing variations in pensions procedure and payments in different problems. The average pension for Canada at the end of 1949, they showed, was $37.19.

IODE Head Claims Canada Doing Away British Symbols

HAMILTON, April 19 (CP) — The president of Ontario's Provincial Chapter, Imperial Daughters of the Empire, today predicted "a new pattern of an equalitarian democracy" will emerge from what she called Britain's present "grey and grim experiment."

Mrs. Cecil L. Brown of Hamilton, told the opening sessions of the Chapter's three-day annual convention that "Britain will still remain the laboratory of democracy and that she will blaze the trail for a new type of communal capitalism."

Mrs. Brown struck out at what she called "a designed attempt by some leaders in our government" to eliminate every vestige of British symbolism from references to the Commonwealth.

She said "even the word British" is being eliminated from references not only to the Commonwealth, but also to our Dominion, to the flag and in parliamentary nomenclature. She added:

"This idea seems to be contagious. Now we are given to understand that it is the intention to delete that most unique, artistic, symbolic crown from our Ontario motor licence plates."

Speaking of Communism, the president said she deplored the fact that "our Canadian freedom is so broad" as to admit into legislative assemblies persons with allegiance to a foreign power "intent on the destruction of our British way of life and our Canadian freedom."

She urged IODE members to "bend every effort" to form new chapters and to strengthen existing ones to enforce the ranks of the Order "in upholding its ideals and meet the challenge now facing freedom."

The convention marks the opening of the Order's 50th jubilee year.

Threefold Increase

During various reports presented during the opening sessions, the Order was told that its educational work has increased three fold in Ontario during the last 10 years.

Mrs. L. L. Skuce of Milton, Ont. educational convener, said educational expenditures now amounted to $50,000 this year, of which nearly $30,000 was used to assist individual students in schools and universities. She said 102 bursaries and 147 scholarships were being granted by Ontario chapters.

Balance of education funds are being expended to assist adopted and local schools, and to supply 57 libraries and to equip schools with flags, radios and movie projectors and screens.

Mrs. J. B. Smart of Waterdown, Ont., reported that post-war service is still being carried out and that some $112,000 is being expended to send clothing and food parcels overseas.

Mrs. N. S. Somers of Tillsonburg, Ont., reported seven new primary chapters organized during the last year and a general increase in membership.

Mrs. G. L. Hamilton of Windsor reported 95,217 newcomers to Canada were welcomed by immigration and Canadianization committees in 43 IODE chapters.

Mrs. J. H. Watt of Toronto said her veteran rehabilitation committee spent $15,063 in hospital visits, special gifts and treats for hospitalized veterans.

Mrs. W. N. Smith of Sudbury said that $13,863 was contributed by Ontario chapters to complete the Order's endowment fund before the national annual meeting scheduled next month.

Dorothy Crawford Marries Wm. K. Johnston

The marriage was solemnized quietly Monday evening in All Saints' Anglican Church by the Rev. W. E. Kibblewhite of Dorothy Kathleen, youngest daughter of Mr. Frederick C. Crawford and the late Mrs. Crawford, Lakefield, to Wililam Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnston, Lee Street, Peterborough.

The bride wore a three-piece tailored suit of copper tan and grey with grey accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

She was attended by Mrs. Jack Johnston, wearing a two-piece navy dress with navy accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses.

Mr. Jack Johnston was groomsman for his brother.

After a trip to Toronto and Hamilton, the young couple will reside in Peterborough.

Betty Munroe Wed In Belleville To Alan Vickers

At the Holloway St. United Church, Belleville, Saturday afternoon, the marriage was solemnized of Miss Betty Doreen Munroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Deemert, 93 Bennett St., Peterborough, and Mr. Alan Frederick Vickers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Vickers of Belleville. The Rev. C. A. Perkins officiated.

Tulips, snapdragon and narcissus decorated the church for the occasion. Mrs. Jean Signe played wedding music and Mr. H. McNish sang "Because" during signing of the register.

Given in marriage by Mr. Deemert, the bride was gowned in white brocaded taffeta styled with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves pointed over the hands. Her veil of tulle illusion was gathered to a beaded tiara and she was carrying a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Bridesmaids were her two sisters, Miss Marion and Dorothy Munroe of Peterborough, and they were frocked alike in dresses made of lace and nylon in pastel green and yellow. They wore picture hats of matching lace and carried nosegays of tulips and snapdragon.

Groomsman was Mr. Arnold Ross and the ushers were Arthur Empey and Jack Hegan.

At the reception held in the church parlors the bride's mother was receiving, gowned in navy crepe with navy picture hat and corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a navy dress with white straw hat, trimmed with navy, and had a corsage of red roses.

Leaving later on a motor trip to Lake Placid, N.Y., the bride was wearing a navy taffeta suit and all navy accessories with a light blue shortie coat. Her corsage was of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Vickers will live at 33 Geddes St., Belleville.

Whalen-Lowther Union

In George St. United Church Saturday afternoon the wedding took place of Dorothy Isabell Lowther and Frederick Rendal Whalen, the Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple officiating. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lowther of Peterborough and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Whalen of Keene.

The altar was flanked with candliers, spring flowers and ferns. Mr. Charles Allen, organist, played wedding music and Mr. Sam Castle was soloist. Before the ceremony he sang "I'll walk beside you" and at the signing of the register, "Because."

The bride wore a traditional gown with train of white satin with Chantilly lace, and carried a bouquet of red roses. Her fingertip veil of imported silk illusion caught to a coronet of rhinestones and silver beads, had a wide border of matching Chantilly lace. She was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister Miss June Lowther with Maryln Willis as flower girl. The bridesmaid's frock was of robin's egg blue taffeta and she wore matching gloves and a half-bonnet of the taffeta trimmed with pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The flower girl had a dress and half-hat of yellow tafefta and she carried a nosegay of sweet peas.

Mr. Arnold Steele was groomsman for his cousin and ushers were Douglas Whalen, brother of the groom, and Jerry Junkin of Bobcaygeon.

At a reception afterward in the church parlours, the bride's mother received, wearing navy silk faille with matching straw hat and corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother who also received wore a grey suit and navy hat and had pink roses on her lapel.

The couple went to Toronto and Malton airport and flew to Buffalo for their honeymoon. The bride travelled in a suit of fine check sharkskin with navy trim, a navy shortie coat and navy pink accessories and when going-away had a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Whalen will live in Keene.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Father's Duty to Save Son From Blighted Childhood

DEAR MISS DIX: What do you think of a mother who will not allow her son, who is 9 years old, to play with other boys, but insists that he play with girls and keep clean and tidy like a girl?

Dorothy Dix

This boy is a real boy, full of life and fun, but his spirit is being broken. He wants to fish, play ball and boy games, get dirty and have the normal life of an honest-to-goodness boy. The father's heart aches for the boy, but he has no say in the matter. What about it?

A FRIEND OF THE BOY

ANSWER: Why hasn't the father a say-so about the boy? He is his son, isn't he? He hasn't any right to let a silly and neurotic woman blight the lad's childhood by oppressing all of his natural instincts and distort his character by her inhibitions, and when he fails to save his boy from the mother's baneful influence he is committing an unforgivable sin against him.

Mother Love Fallible

Because a woman has a child does not inevitably indicate that she has sense and judgement enough to rear it properly. Because she loves her child it does not follow that she will do the best for it. Mother love can be a curse as well as a bessing, and there are plenty of times when a father's first duty is to remove his children from their mother's baleful and destructive influence. It is the only way he can save them, and their good is much more important than their mother's happiness.

That is the only remedy in a case in which a mother tries to thwart Nature and make a little imitation girl out of a normal boy. She is lacking both in intelligence and common humanity, or else she would never attempt it. Why she wants to do it goodness only knows. For, if she succeeds, she turns him into a sissy, and, if she fails, his reaction will make him a hellion. But in either case it is father's duty to do something about it. Right away. Before it is too late.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: People say that my husband is too good for me. He has no bad habits. Brings home all the money he makes. Never takes a drink or smokes or goes out at night unless I know all about it. Would scarcely look at even Lana Turner if she should pass. But the trouble is some catty women are continually saying that he as a better husband than I am a wife, which may be true. I wish he would get drunk, or strike me, or have an affair with some other woman so as to lessen the disparity between us and thus stop these catty women in their tracks. For twenty years I have tried to catch him in something, but can't and it is getting beyond endurance. What to do?

TROUBLED WIFE

ANSWER: You prove my favorite theory, that neither men nor women really want the ideal mates for which they sigh, and that they couldn't stand them if they had them. The contrast between them would be too great.

What they want is just some poor, faltering, weak human being like themselves who is continually stumbling and blundering and doing all those things which they shoud not do and leaving undone those things which they should do. Somebody they can forgive and feel superior to and cherish for their very weaknesses.

So you have my sympathy, poor Troubled Wife. It must be awful to be married to a man who is better than you are, a man you never have any reason to scold and who only looks pained and surprised when you fall down as a wife. And, worst of all, it gives you no grievance. What on earth do you talk about when wives foregather and tell their secret sorrows?

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 39 years of age, very much in love with a married man ten years older than I am. He is mated to a fine woman, who has been a good wife and neither of us would do anything to hurt her. The wrench of giving him up makes me sick to even think about, but have I the right to go on seeing him under the circumstances?

GRATEFUL

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you have to have a limb amputated, the sooner the better, the quicker it heals and the less danger there is of complications. So with an unhappy love afair. The quicker it is ended, the sooner will you recover from it. You gain nothing by letting it drag along, poisoning the years, until at last it ends in the death of everything that makes life worth while.

What's Right

You are applying for a job in which some stenographic work is required, but you do not own a typewriter.

WRONG WAY: Write your letter in longhand, saying that you are a competent typist.

RIGHT WAY: Make the effort to rent or borrow a typewriter so that your letter of application can be a sample of your ability to type a neat-looking letter.

6—In Memoriams

DAINARD—In loving memory of mother, Mrs. Wesley Dainard, who died seven years ago today.

We mourn for her in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.

—Ever remembered by family.

FORSYTHE—Lines written on the death of David Forsythe, who died in Detroit, September 25, 1949.

Dear David has gone from our circle on earth. We will meet him no more, he has gone to his home in heaven and all his sufferings are o'er. He has gone to be with loved ones who have gone long before. They were waiting, watching for him over on the golden shore. Though your place on earth is vacant and you will come to us no more, I hope to meet you in heaven when my time on earth is o'er. All your days of pain and anguish, all your weary nights are past, all earth trials are ended, you are safe in heaven at last.

—Written by his loving sister, Ellen Forsythe, Indian River.

FLOWERS—In loving memory of Henry George (Harry) Flowers who passed away April 19, 1949.

—Ever remembered by Margaret Flowers.

7—Cards of Thanks

I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to the doctors, nurses and staff of Civic Hospital and my friends who visited me, and all who sent cards and flowers, during my recent illness.—Mrs. A. Graham.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to attending doctor, nurses and staff of Civic Hospital, ministers and friends, who visited me and all who sent flowers, gifts and cards during my recent illness.—Hilliard Darling.

Mrs. James Conroy and family wish to thank the Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital, attending doctor, Rev. Father G. Sullivan, Nurse Paul, Duffus Funeral Home, and all kind friends and neighbours for spiritual bouquets and flowers and all acts of kindness shown during the illness and loss of a dear father and husband, James Conroy.

Peterborough Fuel and Transport Co. request for permission to move their oil storage tanks to a location along the CNR siding between Rink and Perry Sts. has been referred by the council to the board of works and town planning board.

RESIGNS FROM COMMISSION

Colonel R. J. Bolton, chairman of the Recreation Commission, announced the resignation of Richard Ouimet from the Commission at its monthly meeting Tuesday. The policy committee was asked to make suggestions at the next meeting for a successor to Mr. Ouimet.

SMALL GRASS FIRE

A grass fire and a false alarm were the two calls received on Tuesday by firemen. At noon they doused the grass fire which started at a vacant lot, 632 Lundy's Lane. Shortly before 11 p.m. a false alarm was sounded from the box at Brock and Reid Sts.

RENEWS PETITION

Mr. E. C. Ferguson returned to the council once more Monday night seeking permission to build a dry cleaning plant on the north side of Hunter St. between Mark and Rogers Streets. It was referred to the board of works, and town planning board is asked for a report.

BISHOP BERRY ADDRESSES JAYCEES

The Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough, will be the guest speaker Thursday at the concluding night of the Junior Chamber of Commerce public speaking course. Several Jaycees will deliver three-minute addresses. The public is invited to the meeting being held in the public library auditorium.

APPLY FOR AFFILIATION

After six years operating independently the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club has requested that it become an affiliate of the Recreation Commission. The request was made by letter Tuesday through the secretary, Miss Norma Gant. It was referred to the Ladies' Sport Committee, under William Bennett, for a report at the May meeting.

Fire Chief George Smith does not want the housewives of the city down on his neck complaining of smoke-stained clothes.

IN CLOVER

Five little gaffers were in clover Tuesday night at Civic Arena after the Petes-IOOF game for the minor hockey association, and the added attraction of a skating race. Bill McMaster won the race and, after collecting his prize of $40, he approached a knot of five kids and handed each two dollars as a goodwill gesture. The prize money was put up by Johnny Russelle, Spiros Zakos, Mike Caravaggie, Curly Alberico and the PMHA, each tossing in a ten-spot.

fore another Bishop to renew my profession of faith and to be invested as Domestic Prelate."

Mons. McAuley said he was greatly honored by the large congregation. He thanked them for their kindly interest and attendance, and mentioned the honor paid to him by the presence of Lindsay's distinguished citizen and Premier of Ontario, Hon. L. M. Frost.

"I thank the good sisters of this parish for their interest and prayers for the success of this beautiful event. I thank the clergy of my own diocese and of other dioceses who are here tonight. I ask God in His bountiful goodness to bless you all."

A special tribute from the parishioners was conveyed in an address read by A. T. Lacey, K.C., and as a further appreciation of the pastoral fidelity of Mons. McAuley he was presented with a purse by William Baker on behalf of the parish.

Monsignor McAuley began in 1910 his priesthood as assistant to the late Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston who at that time was the parish priest at the Church of the Sacred Heart. In 1917 he was appointed in charge of the parish of St. Martin, Ennismore, remaining until 1935 when he was transferred to Campbellford. Finally in 1942 he came to the parish of St. Mary in Lindsay. He was born at Wooller in Northumberland county.

Would Broaden Election Act On Advance Poll

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP) — A broad demand for improved facilities for advance voting in general elections emerged in the Commons Tuesday as the house approved establishment of a special committee to consider amendments to the elections act.

For various reasons, members of several parties advocated revision of the act to broaden and better those provisions which allow some people, such as commercial travellers, to vote ahead of time. The voting problems of fishermen, railwaymen and suburban dwellers were specifically raised.

The debate developed a conflict of opinion between two veteran members—Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-MacLeod) and Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) — about a change in the system that allows the government, within a five-year time limit, to name the election date.

Mr. Hansell thought it was time definite times are set, say every four or five years. Mr. Graydon, while sadly admitting his party has long been in opposition, said the government should continue to have the "elasticity" granted today even if "the dice are somewhat loaded" in its favor.

It was a busy, far-ranging day that saw these developments:

1. Liberal and Social Credit members united to defeat by a vote of 136 to 23 a CCF motion criticizing the government for failure to implement the "promise" made at the National Liberal convention of 1948 to impose selective price controls "in any field where prices proved to be unreasonable." The Progressive Conservatives supported the CCF.

2. Justice Minister Garson told Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) the government within the next day or two will give a point-by-point reply to protests from the brokers-dealers association against denial of the mails to some dozen Toronto stock brokerage houses for alleged violations of the law in stock promotion.

3. Approval was given to establishment of a house committee to study activities of the National Research Council after Trade Minister Howe indicated that Canada's study of the effects of extreme winter weather, linked with development of the north, is being extended to housing. He said a "large laboratory facility" is being built at Ottawa for that purpose.

4. The government introduced a bill to consolidate defence legislation in one act that comprises the largest single bill to confront the House in more than 15 years.

5. Two Saskatchewan members —Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) and A. C. Stewart (L—Yorkton)—gave divided opinions about a private bill by Mr. Thatcher for abolition of hanging as punishment for murder. Mr. Thatcher said hanging violates every christian principle. Mr. Stewart said it is a necessary deterrent for protection of the innocent.

Transferable Vote

Two repeated subjects of discussion in the elections debate were the single transferable vote and the result in the Nova Scotia riding of Annapolis-Kings in last year's general election. A new vote has been ordered in the N.S. riding because of troubles over the services vote at the Greenwood air force base.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre) started a general outcry for study of the transferable vote under which the voter may denote second, third and further choices for use until a clear majority for one candidate is established. He said 105 of 262 members elected in 1949 won on minority votes.

He also found echoes in his statement of surprise that no amendments were planned to prevent repetition of the Annapolis-Kings incident where 134 servicemen voted in that riding wrongly.

Defence Minister Claxton said the improper votes arose from "misunderstanding" rooted in a complicated situation.

Mr Diefenbaker and M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, argued that a special commission of officials should be named to handle the redistribution of Commons seats every 10 years. This would take it out of the hands of the Commons and remove the dangers of "political considerations and personal bias."

Mr. Coldwell suggested greater adherence to establishment of federal constituencies on a more equitable population basis. He said Saskatchewan's riding now were fairly well distributed as to population but in Ontario there was one riding, Glengarry, with less than 20,000 people and others with more than 80,000.

Atlantic Powers To Meet Discuss Economic Problems

LONDON, April 19 — (CP) — London becomes the conference hall of the Western World next month at a series of meetings ranked among the most significant diplomatic assemblies since the war ended.

High officials of the Western Big Three—Britain, France and the United States—will prepare the programs for mid-May meetings on political and economic aspects of unity of the Atlantic Community of Powers.

With the idea of "Atlantic integration" increasingly replacing talk of tighter economic ties in Europe alone, new importance is attached to the discussions which will bring the Western Big Three, and then the foreign ministers of all Atlantic Pact countries, to London.

In addition to the Atlantic parleys, Commonwealth representatives will meet here May 1 to pool their ideas on a Japanese peace treaty.

High-powered huddles get under way May 8. For a week, first in Paris and then in London, Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, State Secretary Acheson of the United States and Foreign Minister Schuman of France will meet for two-and-three-sided talks on common foreign policy problems including Germany, the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

Bilateral talks between Bevin and Acheson may include the problem of what the United States can do to help ease Britain's burden of debts.

From May 15 to May 17, the Big Three representatives will join foreign ministers of the other nine Atlantic Pact countries, including L. B. Pearson, Canada's minister for external affairs, in a round-table review of progress so far made in implementing the provisions of the pact.

The emphasis is likely to be laid on economic and social coordination among the signatory powers.

Canada's need for overseas markets will enhance the Dominion's interest in any closer economic integration of the Atlantic community. The Ottawa correspondent of the Liberal Manchester Guardian said Tuesday that the Canadian delegation "will press vigorously for wholehearted economic collaboration among the signatories of the Atlantic Pact."

Urge Writers' Prizes Of $5,000 For Canada

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP)—Annual book prizes of not less than $5,000 were suggested today by Canadian publishers as a means of stimulating development of a lagging national literature in Canada.

The publishers, represented by the book publishers' branch of the Toronto Board of Trade, said in a brief before the Massey Commission on Arts, that these prizes should be attached to each of the governor-general's medals awarded annually for outstanding Canadian literary achievement.

The publishers also urged that the eight-per-cent sales tax on certain types of books be eliminated and that books in the mail be classified with newspapers and magazines to cut down handling costs.

It believed, too, that the railways should reclassify freight charges on books as second and fourth-class shipments, instead of first and third class, to bring Canadian freight charges more in line with what the lower rates charged in the United States.

Alberta Cinderella

TORONTO, April 19 — (CP) — Donna Henderson, 13, of Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., Tuesday night was acclaimed Canada's Cinderella by a board of judges from the Toronto Telegram School Reporters' Club.

The petite winner was selected over nearly 8,000 entries in regional competitions from coast to coast. She was awarded a complete wardrobe and flight for herself and a parent or guardian to the West Indies for a week of holidaying.

U.S. Asked Stop Spreading News

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, April 19 — (CP) — The Czechoslovak Government today requested the American embassy to stop immediately the activities of the United States Information Service in the country, the Prague radio said.

The broadcast said the request was made in a note handed to the U.S. embassy here by the Czech foreign ministry. The Information Service, operating offices in Prague and Bratislava, distributes a news bulletin of the US State Department, operates libraries and circulates films and recordings.

A government court last week convicted two Czech employees of the USIS on charges of spying and sentenced them to prison. During their trial Joseph C. Kolarek, embassy press attache in charge of the Information Service was accused of using Czech nations as spies.

Ellis O. Briggs, U.S. ambassador to Prague, denied that Kolarek or Czech employees of the embassy had been spying.

Protest Made To CAHA By Senator Gladstone

GUELPH, April 19 — (CP) — Senator R. W. Gladstone today joined the hundreds of Guelph hockey supporters in voicing protest over the calibre of refereeing in the Guelph Biltmore-Montreal Canadiens Eastern Canada junior finals.

In a telegram to W. B. George, vice-president of the CAHA, Senator Gladstone appealed for a change in referees for Thursday night's game in Montreal. The Senator's message said in part:

"Having witnessed the game in Toronto last night, I strongly urge you to assign neutral referees to the remaining games. No hockey fan in Western Canada can see any fairness in a Montrealer refereeing this playoff series."

WE ARE THE CLASS OF '50

Many among us are War Veterans—some with family responsibilities not always associated with the younger graduate.

We know that a university degree will not in itself guarantee success. It must be backed up with hard work. But, whether or not we have acquired a particular knowledge of direct interest to employers in any particular industry, we still suggest our degree is a good reference, for we have at least proven ourselves to the extent of obtaining it.

Graduates are available from all types of courses this year.

If you can employ a graduate, or offer summer employment to an undergraduate, please 'phone or write the Executive and Professional Officer at your nearest NATIONAL EMPLOYMENT SERVICE office, NOW.

Movie Industry Charges Board Seizing Monopoly

OTTAWA, April 19 (CP —Canada's commercial movie industry today charged that the National Film Board is trying to establish itself as a government film "monopoly."

The movie industry termed it an attempt to grab off control of all government film work and said it presented a "very real and serious threat" to development of commercial film organization in Canada "and to the introduction of new Canadian and foreign capital investment."

Views of the commercial movie industry were contained in an 8,000-word brief presented to the Massey Commission on Arts by the industry's spokesman, th. Association of Motion Picture Producers and Laboratories of Canada.

Urging a complete review of the film board's status, the motion picture association called for a check of the board's plans to expand into a Crown corporation and deeper into the field of commercial film work territory.

The association said the commercial film industry was developing rapidly in Canada and now constituted an investment of many millions of dollars. If this industry was to survive, government agencies, such as the film board, had to "refrain from entering into competition with the industry in peacetime."

As for television, the industry did not believe it would be desirable in a democratic state that entire control should be in the hands of a government agency.

Auto Workers Offer Support To Six Nations Indians

BRANTFORD, April 19 (CP)—The Six Nations Indians chiefs sat impassively in their longhouse—like their forefathers—Tuesday. But, this time they listened to a white man.

Garbed in feathers and buckskin—and in suits and overalls—the chiefs listened intently as George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers (CIO) offered support of 400,000 white men in the Indians' fight for treaty rights.

Indian braves, their women and children, watched curiously as the short, stocky union leader strode to the middle of the longhouse floor and faced the stern-faced chiefs.

It was the first time in 26 years that the Six Nations hereditary chiefs had met in their own council room to pow-wow with a white man. They listened, and when Burt was through, they murmured in their native tongues —and declined to give an immediate decision.

Assist All Minorities

Burt said the union, with its 5,000,000 members—400,000 of them in Canada—is ready, and waiting, to assist all minority groups, including Indians on both sides of the border. The Six Nations reserve numbers about 5,500.

He continued, speaking through an interpreter:

"My race is responsible for breaking more promises to Indians than any other . . . We are used to broken promises. As a minority, you perhaps could handle your problems yourself if given a chance. But, you won't get that chance alone . . .

"Our union has made this decision. We have set up the machinery to carry it out. We do not ask you to join forces with us by becoming members. We do ask that you permit us to join our large majority to your small minority and be your voice."

Then an Onondaga, John Memhawk, said: "It is time the Six Nations united. Let us speak with one heart and one mind."

The speakers were through, but nobody applauded. There was a brief silence and the chiefs began talking in their native tongues—Onondaga, Cayuga, Mohawk, Seneca, Oneida. The sixth tribe —the Tuscaroras—were not represented.

An interpreter told Burt that the chieftains will hold another meeting in a month. Meantime, the Indians may decide whether or not to accept the union support.

Flying Bananas!

FORT WORTH, April 19—(AP)—Now it's flying bananas!

Ira Maxey, a veteran of 3,600 flying hours in the United States Air Force, said yesterday he saw six of them Sunday plus something he believed to be a flying saucer. Moreover, he took pictures.

"They weren't moving fast and they appeared to be six or seven miles away," he said.

He described the six objects as without tails or noise—"not like a saucer but more like a banana." The saucer looked real enough to him, he said Maxey said the objects definitely were some sort of aircraft. The pictures showed they left vapor trails.

2nd Fiddle To Horse 32 Days, Gets Divorce

SAN JOSE, Calif., April 19 — (AP)—She wanted a divorce. Mrs. Maria Lightner told the judge, because she was tired of playing second fiddle to her piano playing husband's horse.

The disillusioned wife, married to Dr. James Lightner, only 32 days ago, told Judge Byrt R. Salsman her spouse was a talented pianist, but quoted his as saying:

"I'm passionately in love with my horse. I love that horse more than any human in the world."

Not only that, she added, he wanted me to support the horse. Divorce granted.

Waitsline Party Finances Church Windows

BEWDLEY, April 19— (ENS)— A waistline party was a novel method adopted by St. Anne's W. A. Thursday to raise funds for the final payment on the new windows recently installed in the church.

Invitations sent out for the party in the Community Hall included a tiny apron with pocket to the receptacle for one cent for every inch of waistline. About 50 were present and included members of the W. A. and guests from the surrounding district. Some attended from Peterborough, Millbrook and Baileboro.

A total of $18.75 was realized and was partly used to make the final payment on the new windows which have just been installed in St. Anne's Church. The total cost of $322 was met by the W. A. and was the outcome of two years work by that small group of workers.

The afternoon was spent in games and contests and a number of prizes were donated by the kindness of Mrs. Goss. A lunch was then served by members of the W. A.

The Canadian Family owes much to . . . Norway

A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Norwegian Descent

CANADIAN LIFE owes much of its strength and vitality as well as its variety, interest and colour to the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands.

It is a matter of pride to all Canadians that so many races, without sacrificing their national characteristics, have united themselves into one great citizenship — the Canadian Family.

When Lief Ericson touched on Canada's shores in 1000 A.D. he was the first Norwegian to set foot in the New World. The years which followed have seen a steady stream of our hardy Northern cousins add their strength and culture to Canada's growth.

Norwegians, too, brought with them one of Canada's favourite sports — skiing. Their industry and thrift, their love of literature, their stamina and daring are qualities which have contributed much to Canada's progress.

Calvert, founder of Canada's first colony at Newfoundland in 1622, was head of the famous Calvert family. Calvert's ideals of democracy, ideals which were perpetuated by his descendants, helped set the pattern for the freedom we now enjoy.

Hold Inter-Church Fireside Service

MILLBROOK, April 19 (ENS)—The inter-church fireside service Sunday evening sponsored by the YPU met in St. Andrew's Sunday school room. In the absence of the president, Donald Spicer, Irene Frick presided.

Mrs. John Thompson of Grace Church sang, accompanied by George Ingham; Robert Thompson of St. Andrew's gave a reading, and "The Pilgrim's Chorus" from Tannhauser was played by St. Andrew's Sunday School orchestra.

Those playing in the orchestra were Glenna Graham, piano; Rev. T. G. Husser, clarinet; Bill Smith, trumpet; Gerald Hubbeard, violin, and George Ingham, cello.

Mr. Husser showed illustrated slides for the hymns. Rev. Walter Patterson pronounced the benediction.

Tea and cookies were served by the girls of the Young People's Society under the direction of Jean Smith.

Woman Responsible For Grandson's Death

MONTREAL, April 19 (CP) — A coroner's jury Tuesday held Mrs. Joseph Lacas criminally responsible for the death by drowning last January of her 18-month-old grandson.

The 51-year-old woman who three months ago told police she threw two grandsons into the St. Lawrence River was taken to jail pending arraignment later on a murder charge.

The body of 18-month-old Pierre Paul Lacas was found in the St. Lawrence Sunday near Sorel. The body of his three-year-old brother, Jean, has not been found.

Mrs. Lacas told police she threw the children into the river to prevent her daughter, an unmarried mother, from placing them in a foster home.

Cannonball Slows Treasure Hunt

TOBERMORY, Scotland, April 19—(CP)—A stone cannon ball, resembling those fired from the guns of the Spanish Armada, on Monday clogged temporarily the pumps being used in a search for a 16th-century treasure-laden galleon on the ocean's floor near here.

Old tales say the galleon, carrying some $68,700,000 worth of gold ducats, foundered in this area. The search for it is being carried out by the Royal Navy, in collaboration with the Duke of Argyll.

Lt.-Cmdr. Reay Parkinson of the Royal Navy Monday night said he hopes to be able to tell the Duke within 24 hours:

"I have positively identified a very old ship from the armada period, probably the Florencia."

Whites Leave Dartford To Live In Warkworth

DARTFORD, April 19 (ENS)—A number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mercer White and Bruce on Wednesday evening to wish them well on their departure from the farm to live in Warkworth.

A smoking stand and two occasional chairs were presented to Mr. and Mrs. White and Bruce by Cecil Grills, Donald Pollock and Arthur Ward. The address was read by Mrs. Arthur Ward.

A lunch was served.

More Efficiency Abbott Reports

MONTREAL, April 19 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott contended Tuesday that the government is extending constant pressure to reduce expenditures by improved efficiency in operation and by economies in administration.

In a speech to the Purchasing Agent's Association of Montreal, Mr. Abbott said "we have been making good progress in that direction... the work has been done quietly but none the less effectively. A corps of efficient operating and administrative officers is being built up."

But, he said, the federal budget of $2,400,000,000 a year now is such that even "if further economies are achieved in administrative costs . . . they cannot possibly alter in any significant way the scale of the budget." The civilian payroll of the government accounted for 12 cents out of every federal dollar spent.

The budget, as an annual stock-taking, indicated Canada's economy "is in good order. . . our national finances are strong.

"Never before have we been better equipped or better prepared to meet whatever difficulties may arise."

US Rail Strike Called For Wednesday

Engineers, Firemen 50,000 To Be Idle Postponement Hinted

CHICAGO, April 20—(AP)—A strike against four of the biggest railroad systems, threatening to slow all rail transportation in the United States, has been called for next Wednesday morning.

The strike call Wednesday night by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen ordered some 18,000 of the Union's claimed 110,000 members to leave their jobs at 6 a.m. (local time) April 26. Union spokesmen said the walkout would make idle some 50,000 railworkers.

The threatened strike followed nearly three years of dispute between the Union and the carriers over union demands for a second man on multiple unit diesel locomotives.

The union is free to strike at any time, having complied with all provisions of the National Railway Labor Act. But the possibility of a postponement was hinted in a statement by Union President David B. Robertson, who announced the strike call. He said:

Depend On Progress

"If they (the railroads) feel some progress is being made toward settlement, the strike may be postponed."

However, a railroad spokesman, Daniel B. Loomis, chairman of the Association of Western Railways, said: "Despite the strike threat, the railroads will stick to their decision of refusing to grant the make-work demands of the

Ingrid Bergman Gives Up Child

HOLLYWOOD, April 20 (AP)—Actress Ingrid Bergman has agreed, with some reservations, to relinquish the physical custody, control and education of her 12-year-old daughter, Pia, to the girl's father, Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

The custody of Pia has been a major point of dispute between the two since the Swedish actress left Dr. Lindstrom, bore a son 11 weeks ago in Rome to her Italian lover, film director Roberto Rossellini, and obtained a Mexican divorce.

But though the settlement of Pia's custody was announced Wednesday by lawyers for both sides there are already signs of some disagreement over the agreement.

Counsel Isaac Pacht, representing Dr. Lindstrom, told reporters the actress cannot take the child out of the United States during vacation periods when Miss Bergman will be allowed to have the child part of the time.

But Miss Bergman's Hollywood lawyer, Gregson Bautzer, told reporters, the agreement contains "no restrictions whatever as to where Miss Bergman might take the child during the time she has physical custody."

Dewey Okays Bridge Across St. Lawrence

ALBANY, NY, April 20 (AP).—Governor Thomas E. Dewey today approved creation of a bridge authority to construct and operate a toll bridge across the St. Lawrence River at or near Ogdensburg.

Before construction may begin, the authority must obtain approval of the Federal and Canadian Governments.

Dewey vetoed a similar Bill last year. He said it had "grave defects."

The new law gives the bridge authority power to purchase a Canadian-owned ferry operating between Ogdensburg and the village of Prescott, Ontario.

The authority will consist of five members, to be appointed by the Governor for staggered terms ranging from two to six years. Future appointments will be for five-year terms.

Good Gardening

He was sentenced Wednesday to seven years more in prison for his pains.

Guards testified he was growing marijuana.

West Ministers To Concentrate On Co-operation

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson, Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Schuman of France have substantially agreed on the great European and Asiatic issues they will discuss at the London disploma tic conferences next month.

A series of note exchanges among Washington, London and Paris, diplomatic authorities disclosed, have almost completed arrangements for the talks. These indicate that the three western Foreign Affairs chiefs will be much more concerned with tightening co-operation among the western nations than with charting new moves against Russia in the Cold War.

That the meetings will be held against a sinister background of increasing east-west tension is assured, however, by such current developments as (1) the American-Soviet row over the Baltic airplane shooting incident and (2) the crackdown of the Soviet satellite countries like Czechoslovakia on the operations of western diplomats and reporters.

Evidence is increasing that the Kremlin may be aiming to shut the west out of its territories almost completely, to close the Baltic and other border areas to foreign observation and to achieve a degree of isolation which the modern world has not heretofore known.

Russian relations, therefore, will be one of the matters up for discussion at the London meetings of the western big three. The most that is expected on this is an affirmation of the policy of stopping Communist expansion and meeting the Soviet menace with growing western power.

High Russian Official Reported Dead–Purge

MOSCOW, April 20 (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Viktor Grigorievich Nasedkin, a high official in Russia's ministry of internal affairs, died today. He was 45.

The death announcement said he had been in "operative work" in the interior ministry from 1921 until his death after a lengthy illness.

(Nasedkin's death adds one more name to a long list of high Soviet military and civilian leaders who have died in the last half-year—a total of 15 generals and admirals and a number of high-ranking civilian officials.

The frequency of such death notices from Moscow, along with unconfirmed reports from outside the Iron Curtain, have aroused some speculation in the west that Moscow might be undergoing a quiet purge.)

Will Promote Commercial Research Use

New Type Structure Canada Pioneering Cost Many Millions

OTTAWA, April 20—(CP)—Plans are being laid for a new atomic energy plant at Deep River, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, chairman of the National Research Council, said today.

Dr. Mackenzie said it is hoped that government approval for the project will be obtained shortly. Construction would not start, however, before 1951.

"We plan a new type of structure," he said. "There are many unknown factors, and everything will take time."

He declined to estimate the cost of building a second atomic pile, but said "a good many millions" would be spent over a period of several years.

He indicated the new plant would be unique. There was no precedent to follow and intensive study was needed as to design. Government approval for this study had already been given.

The new plant is expected to result in increased use of isotopes for commercial and research purposes, Dr. Mackenzie said.

Wildcat Strike Grows In U.K. 'Red Inspired'

LONDON, April 20.—(AP).—Nearly 7,000 dock workers were out today in a growing wildcat strike which Labor Minister George Isaacs branded as "clearly Communist inspired." Strike leaders denied Communist influence.

Isaacs hinted the Labor government might use troops to end the unofficial walkout.

The strike, called to demand the reinstatement of three expelled union men, began Wednesday with a walkout of nearly 2,000 dockers. By today it had immobilized at least 41 ships carrying food for Britain's skimpy larders.

Reporting to the House of Commons on the situation, Isaacs said:

"The present stoppage is clearly Communist inspired and is nothing else than an attack on democratic and constitutional rules of the Transport and General Workers' Union."

The three expelled dockers belong to the TGWU which expelled them on charges that they led a Communist-supported walkout last year in support of the Canadian Seamen's Union dispute.

Besides the ships immobilized, about ten were undermanned when, by afternoon, the number of workers on strike rose to 6,737, he National Dock Labor Board said.

Isaacs, who had called the 1949 dock strike a "cold and deliberate" Communist plot, told Commons today:

SMILING HAPPILY on their Diamond Wedding day are Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Brooks, McKellar St., who celebrated the anniversary Wednesday. Married in Brighton, they moved to Peterborough 53 years ago, at which time Mr. Brooks was working for George W. Hatton, K.C., then crown attorney for Peterborough. All of their six children, 17 grand children, and 15 great-grandchildren attended the family reunion held in their honor. It was a double celebration for Mrs. Brooks, who will celebrate her 78th birthday Friday. Mr. Brooks was 80 in March. (Park Studio Photo)

50 Nude Douks Burn 3 Houses

NELSON, B.C., April 20 (CP)—Fifty nude members of the Radical Sons of Freedom sect of Doukhobors, demonstrating in the eerie light cast by three blazing houses, were dispersed by provincial police at nearby Krestova Wednesday night.

It was the second fire raid in less than a week in the East Kootenay region, some 250 miles east of Vancouver.

One of the homes burned was that of Alex Dachtokoff, a "Freedomite" serving a term for the burning of an interior school.

A second home destroyed Wednesday was owned by Pete Khalidinin, one of 36 Doukhobors charged with the destruction last week of the home of the late Peter (The Lordly) Verigin here. Their preliminary hearing began Wednesday.

Authorities said the Freedom Sect, blamed for 50 years of violence in the Kootenays, apparently was protesting the imprisonment of fellow "Freedomites."

Police said both men and women participated in Wednesday's raid, "most of them in the nude." The "Sons" have often stripped during riots and ceremonies. They have even done it in court.

No arrests were made, but names were taken.

Married 60 Years, Couple Resided In City 53 Years

"It's been a wonderful life," smiled Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Brooks, McKellar St., as they looked back on 60 years of marriage on Wednesday. "We've seen some great changes in this city," said Mr. Brooks, a veteran of the First Great War. "I can remember when there was only one house west of Park St. between King and Gilmour."

Now looking forward to their 70th anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, who are 80 and 78 respectively, have six children (five girls and a boy), 17 grandchildren, and 15 great-grandchildren.

Born in Brighton, they were married there and came to Peterborough 53 years ago. At that time Mr. Brooks worked for J. W. Hatton, then crown attorney for Peterborough.

Now retired, he has since worked for R. C. Braund and the B. F. Ackerman Co.

"I went overseas with the 93rd's band," said Mr. Brooks. "Before that, I was a corporal on staff at Kingston. I didn't get my discharge until 1920."

Their son, William Brooks, was overseas with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in the past war.

Warwick Deeping, English Author, Dies

WEYBRIDGE, Surry, England, April 20 —(CP)— Warwick Deeping died today at his home here. He was 73.

The English-born author wrote many novels, among which the best known are "Sorrell and Son," "Roper's Row" and "Old Wine and News."

Work Stopped On 500 Homes

TORONTO, April 20 (CP) — Tracy D. leMay, Toronto planning commissioner, said today that a 500-dwelling housing project in suburban North York Township was ordered stopped by the Ontario Health Department because of a health menace created by septic tanks in unsuitable clay soil.

He said 50 houses had been built when the health department called a halt.

Sanitary engineers of the health department said today that they had not heard of any housing project in the North York area being stopped because of the tanks.

Mr. leMay said Toronto officials "honestly fear" that septic tanks, generally used in North York, threaten spread of contagion.

"Where you have a great number of septic tanks in impervious soil, saturation becomes inevitable. A soil saturated with bacteria might be expected to provoke danger."

Planning Treatment Of Atom Victims

SARNIA, April 20 (CP)—Canada is laying a broad basic plan for the treatment of urban populations in the case of an atomic attack, Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the defence board said Wednesday night. He was addressing a meeting of the Lambton County Medical Society.

BC Chicken Industry Faces Newcastle Disease Crisis

NEW WESMINSTER, B.C., April 20 (CP)—One of the top industries of the fertile lower Fraser valley is facing perhaps the gravest peril of its existence.

A disease new to British Columbia has caused almost 50,000 egg-producing and breeding stock poultry to be destroyed in the last few weeks. The area supports an estimated 3,000,000 head.

The killer is Newcastle disease, a virus infection resembling influenza in humans, which attacks mature stock and forces affected birds, egg and poults to be destroyed.

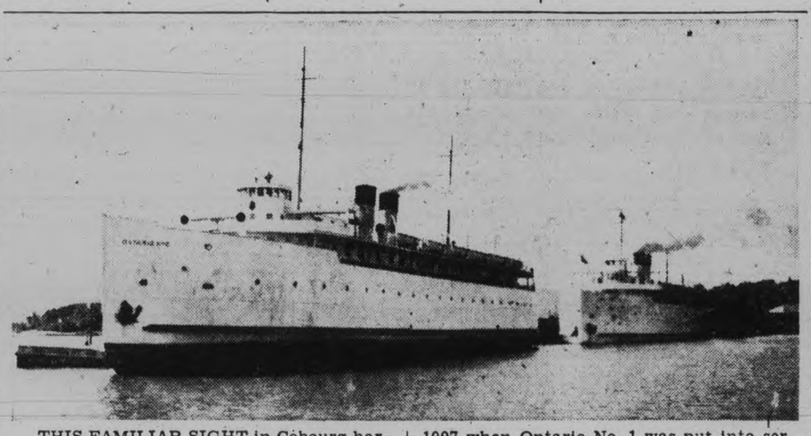
Affected farms are quarantined by inspectors of the Dominion Health of Animals Branch. Farmers are reimbursed two thirds of value for slain stock.

Newcastle disease has been traced back to Asia but first was isolated in England in the city from which it derives its name. British Columbia's outbreak is believed by federal authorities to have come from breeding stock shipments from the United States.

One shipment of turkey poults to Britain has been cancelled and more will likely suffer the same fate. Loss in slain birds is unestimated authough one flock of 6,000, valued at $17,500, was destroyed. Egg sales themselves aren't wavering but Wednesday night New Westminster's city health officer, Dr. E. W. Wylde, advised that eggs be well cooked in case the disease is transmitted.

Stamping out the disease takes time, authorities say, and it may be that vaccination of all surviving birds will be necessary. So far this has been avoided because of the cost involved.

Strict quarantine, plus ruthless eradication of infected birds is being used. Infected farms and such equipment as feed trucks are fumigated.



THIS FAMILIAR SIGHT in Cobourg harbour, car ferries Ontario No. 2 and 1, lying at their centre pier berths, will soon be a matter of history. At the end of this month the line between Cobourg and Rochester will be closed, after being in operation since 1907 when Ontario No. 1 was put into service. Her sister-ship, Ontario No. 2, was built during the first Great War. Increasing operating costs and a decline in passenger and freight business are held responsible for continually increasing deficits.

York Township Man Killed By Beating, Strangling; Suspect Robbery Motive

Worked As Railway Clerk, Father Of Four Wife Invalid For Several Months Found In Nearby Schoolyard By Caretaker

TORONTO, April 20—(CP)—Robbery may have been the motive in the mysterious slaying of John R. Snowden, 43-year-old railway pay clerk. A wallet containing pictures but no money was found today in the backyard of a house not far from where Snowdon's battered, strangled body was discovered. Police said the wallet belonged to the slain man. His body was found Wednesday in a school yard just north of the Toronto city limits. An autopsy showed death due to beating and strangulation.

Police described Snowdon, married and father of four children, as a man without an enemy in the world. His wife, ill for several months, said Tuesday was her husband's day off from work and that after he cared for her during the day she had suggested that he go out in the evening. "He kissed me goodbye and that was the last I saw of him," she told police.

Investigators traced his movements to a restaurant on Oakwood Avenue in Northwest Toronto where the waiter, John Ryder, said he had served a meal to Snowdon who left alone. The waiter said there was no indication at that time that Snowdon had been in any kind of fight.

The body was found by the caretaker of the St. Thomas Acquinas Separate School. York Twp. Police Chief Robert Alexander said "it looks like he was in a fight, but I don't think it was intended as a murder." A small sum of money Snowdon was carrying was found on the body.

Coroner Dr. R. K. Baxter said the man's injuries could not have been received in a fall. His face was brutally beaten in, probably by a blunt instrument or fists, said the coroner.

Find Baby's Body Not One Hunting

MONTREAL, April 20 (CP)—Police had a new mystery on their hands today when relatives said the body of a child found Wednesday in the St. Lawrence River was not three-year-old Jean Lacas, believed to have been drowned by his grandmother in January.

The body was at first thought to be that of the Lacas child. It was discovered a short distance from the spot where the body of 18-months-old Pierre-Paul Lacas was found Sunday.

Mrs. Joseph Lacas, the 51-year-old grandmother has been charged with the murder of young Pierre-Paul. She told police three months ago that she had pushed both children into the river rather than see them sent to a foster home.

But when the grandmother and her 28-year-old daughter, Madeleine, the unmarried mother of the two children, were called in by police today to identify the body, they said it was not that of young Jean.

Police said the were mystified because they had no other reports of missing children.

State Governor Asks Federal Aid In Flood Crisis

BISMARK, ND, April 20 — (AP)—Governor Fred G. Aandahl of North Dakota has appealed ot President Truman for emergency government assistance as the worst floods swirled across sections of the state.

Aandahl asked the President to make available all possible assistance. Meanwhile, residents of the Red River valley prepared for a further rise of flood waters this week-end.

A. F. Hulteng, Grand Forks city engineer, said the river, forming part of the North Dakota-Minnesota boundary, would hit a 44.5-foot crest Saturday or Sunday. It stood at 42.22 Wednesday night, 14.2 feet above flood stage there and was still rising early today. The mark is the highest since the the stream hit a 50.2 crest in 1897.

The American Red Cross, caring for more than 3,000 homeless in the state, moved in more emergency housing equipment and bedding as the refugee total grew.

The rising waters were within 100 feet of the east Grand Forks, Minn., business district. Volunteer crews stacked thousands of sand bags and pumps were installed in basements.

South of Winnipeg, tributaries turned into raging torrents by spring ice break-ups Wednesday night fed the greedy Red River and threatened widespread floods to southern Manitoba from the international border to Winnipeg.

Teacher Jailed Molested Pupils

KIRKLAND LAKE, April 20 — (CP) — A 26-year-old school teacher from the nearby community of Mourkes today was sentenced to reformatory after being found guilty of, contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Magistrate S. Atkinson sentenced Robert Rosewarne to six months definite and 12 months indefinite for making improper advances to elementary students of both sexes who were in his charge.

Magistrate Atkinson told Rosewarne that although it had been shown that the advances made were not of a vicious nature, the position of trust which he had held made suitable punishment mandatory.

The magistrate said he hoped that Rosewarne would ask for suitable treatment in the reformatory so that upon his dismissal he could fill a useful place in society.

Lattimore Labeled Former 'Cell' Member

WASHINGTON, April 20.—(AP).—Louis F. Budenz, former Communist, testified today that Owen Lattimore was a member of a "Communist cell" in the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Budenz told a Senate Foreign Relations sub-committee that he knows Lattimore, Far Eastern expert for the U.S. State Department, was associated with two men who were "Soviet agents." He said evidence can be obtained to substantiate his testimony.

Budenz named these men as Frederick Vanderbilt Field, an official of the Institute, and Philip 'Jaffe, former editor of the magazine Amerasia.

Mine Stocks Up Trading Dull Leaders Uneasy

TORONTO, April 20.—(CP).—Mining stocks tended slightly higher in comparatively dull trading on the Toronto stock exchange today. Prices continued moving in the narrow trading path of Wednesday. Some easiness was apparent in market leaders. Volume for the first three hours was 1,207,000 shares.

Senior gold producers recovered Wednesday's fractional losses to pull the gold list into the plus column. Juniors settled pennies and Giant Yellowknife, a feature Wednesday, slipped five cents under pressure of heavy profit-taking. Uranium prospects continued active and slightly weaker.

Base metals mixed gains and losses. United Keno Hill and Sherritt-Gordon gained while Noranda and Quemont weakened.

Liquors were in strong demand in industrials. Papers, textiles and refining oils slipped and steels and foods were mixed. Utilities continued brighter.

Western oils opened higher but began giving ground in mid-session.

Mother 18, Charged With Strangling Baby

HALIFAX, April 20 — (CP) — Eunice Iwana Harnish, 18, of Upper Tantallon, N.S., was charged with the strangulation slaying of a three-month-old girl, who police said they believed was her daughter.

The baby's frozen body was found Sunday evening in Point Pleasant Park in South-end Halifax. A strip of flannel blanket was knotted around the child's throat. Medical examination revealed death was due to strangulation.

Miss Harnish, a short, attractive brunette, appeared before Magistrate R. J. Flinn and was remanded for prelimniary hearing April 27.

Police said she had been in custody here since Monday awaiting transportation to the Coverdale Home for Girls at Moncton, N.B., after being sentenced to two years on a vagrancy charge.

Conservatives Launch Membership Drive

OTTAWA, April 20.—(CP).—A new membership drive may be launched soon by the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada.

The Association, made up of supporters of the party from all parts of Canada, ended a three-day annual meeting Wednesday with a recommendation that intensive and widespread campaigns be launched to enlist members in constituency organizations.

The recommendation was in line with ideas advanced by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and Association officials.

5 Young People Die In Car-Truck Crash

BINGHAMTON, NY, April 20 —(AP)— Five high school students and a young professional boxer died as the result of an automobile-truck collision in a driving rainstorm Wednesday night. Two other teen-agers and the truck driver were injured. Police said the fighter, 20-year-old Raymond Scudder, was driving the car. He fought under the name of Buster Kenney.

CLINTON, N.Y., April 20 —(AP)—Bryne Kinney of Syracuse has a "pretty good" chance of making the Hamilton College golf team, Coach Don Jones says.

When the freshman turned out for practice Wednesday, Jones said: "Let's see your swing."

Kinney drove off the first tee and scored a hole-in-one.

Gov't Told How To Spend Money

OTTAWA, April 20.—(CP).—The government was told how to spend its money in three different ways Wednesday.

In a three-hour Wednesday sitting—there was not a single government announcement — these suggestions were made as the House considered private members' resolutions:

1. J. G. L. Langlois (L-Gaspe) said the natural resources and population of Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula justify the provision of railway facilities between Matane and Ste. Anne des Monts, some 50 miles apart. Lack of adequate rail transportation is hindering and discouraging development, he said.

2. Robert Fair (SC-Bow River), back on a perennial issue, urged the government to cancel the debts of the 1,634 veterans of the First World War who still owe money as soldier settlers in the west. Their debts total $1,813,000.

3. Fred Larson (L-Kindersley) contended that increased expenditures under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act should be used to widen the area of mixed farming in the west to help stabilize the national economy.

Sealed Indictment Names Counterfeiters

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP) — A sealed indictment opened on Wednesday named two Buffalo, N. Y., men as leaders of a country wide counterfeiting ring that has operated since wartime days.

The pair, Anthony Iraci, 36, and Salvatore Salli, 39, were arrested in Buffalo Tuesday and are being held in $100,000 bail each.

One count in the indictment, handed up by a Federal grand jury to the United States District Court, charged Iraci and Salli with possessing and selling more than $200,000 in counterfeit bills.

The men also are accused of conspiring with others to make and sell $700,000 worth of spurious currency.

OBITUARIES

LEVI HARRIS

Levi Harris, 81, of Lot 27, Concession 16, Smith township, died on Wednesday at his home following a lingering illness. He was born at Gore's Landing, son of the late James Harris and Lorena Hollingbeck, and lived most of his life in Smith.

He leaves his wife, the former Elizabeth Ann Gillespie, and three daughters, Mrs. Elwood Harrison (Luella) of Bridgenorth, Miss Leona Harris at home and Mrs. James Weaver (Viva) of this city. There are three brothers at home, Vincent, Fred and Percy Harris, and a fourth, Adam, in Peterborough. A half-sister, Mrs. Bruce Dunford, lives near Lakefield and a half-brother, Gratton Harris, in this city.

Mr. Harris was a member of Wesley United Church and honorary member of LOL 419.

Funeral service will be held on Friday at the Hendren Funeral Home at 2:30 p.m. Mr. Kenneth Stewart will officiate and burial will be at Lakefield cemtery.

Kidnapped, Released

TORONTO, April 20 —(CP)— Penny Elias, 23, told police she was kidnapped by two men Wednesday night while sitting in an automobile in East York with her escort. She was released unharmed about a mile from the scene. She said the men approached the parked car, robbed Robert Ferrey, 24, of $5 and then ordered him out of the auto.

Womans Tries To Jump From Plane

LANSING, Mich., April 20 (CP) —A struggle in mid-air between an airplane pilot and a woman passenger who sought to jump to her death was told Wednesday by the pilot, Owen Keller.

He said he took the unidentified woman up for a sight-seeing ride Tuesday. When the plane was over the city she opened the plane door and tried to climb out.

Keller said he held her with one hand and guided the plane with the other until she returned to her seat. On the ground, she told him she was despondent because she had learned her husband was aboard the United States Navy plane reported shot down by Russians over the Baltic Sea April 8.

In New York City last Sunday, William Seeschaf, 62, father of the co-pilot aboard the missing United States plane, was killed in a five-storey plunge down a dumbwaiter shaft. He had been depressed since being informed his son was missing.

Patrols are watching for ice jams which might cause the Red to back up and burst its banks at a weak spot.

The full fury of the rising river is still to come, said engineers, as levels showed a steady rise at Emerson on the international border at Morris, 30 miles north.

Conditions were easing in some afflicted areas. A violent tide of runoff water which had swamped five southern Manitoba towns began to recede Wednesday night, but road and rail communications still were disrupted.

Fifteen families in the Red River area near Morris prepared to evacuate by Saturday. At this point the Red rose 12 inches on Wednesday and the Morris River, a tributary of the main stream, rose higher.

Fear of heavy ice jamming the Morris has resulted in farmers moving their grain to elevators. Livestock also was being moved.

China Reserves Rush To Hainan

TAIPEI, Formosa, April 20 — (AP). — Chinese Nationalists rushed reinforcements today to their embattled forces on Hainan Island.

Red troops of Gen. Lin Piao, the "Manchurian Hammer," and defence forces under Gen. Hsueh Yueh, the "Little Tiger," were locked in bitter fighting for the fourth straight day.

Both sides agreed this was the Reds' big attempt to take the key South China island 10 miles from Luichow Peninsula.

Some Nationalists said their hopes for survival and an eventual comeback against the Chinese Communists hinge largely on the outcome.

The Nationalists, who control the air and sea around Hainan, threw in more planes Wednesday.

Dispatches from Hainan once again regained their optimistic tone. One report said half of the Red invaders, originally estimated at 7,000 to 8,000 men, had been killed and the rest were "rapidly disintegrating."

If the Reds can push more troops across the 10-mile stretch of water controlled by Nationalist air and sea forces, observers agree the situation could become desperate.

Bride 17, Killed In Shooting Accident

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., April 20—(CP)—Mrs. Helen Bliss, 17-year-old bride of two months, was killed Wednesday night in a shooting accident at her home. Police said she was killed by a bullet from a .22 calibre rifle in the hands of a younger member of the family. The rifle was being carried into the house when it accidentally discharged.

union. Strike or no strike, no additional firemen will be employed on Diesel electric locomotives, which have no fires to tend."

The strike will be against the Pennsylvania system west of Harrisburg, Pa.; the entire Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe system; the Southern Railway, and the New York Central West of Buffalo and three of its divisions, the Michigan Central West of the Detroit River, the Big Four and the Ohio Central lines.

Robertson said the 60 Brotherhood officials who have been meeting in Chicago for the last week discussing possible strike action, selected the four systems as "to which appeared most advantageous to us." Railroad spokesmen said the four to be struck are extensive users of Diesels.

Not Canadian Lines

Spokesmen for Canada's two big railway systems said the strike would not affect Canadian lines in any way.

A Canadian Pacific Railway company official said only incoming trains from United States lines might be affected if the strike is called.

Canadian National Railways have no trains running on lines that may be struck.

Officials of both systems said the possibility of a sympathy strike by Canadian affiliates of the U. S. union is "remote."

Increased Freight On Ships Expected

FORT WILLIAM, April 20 — (CP)—Canada Steamship Lines looks for an increase this year in package freight business at the lakehead, L. J. Stock of Montreal, superintendent of operations for the line, said Wednesday.

With conversion of two bulk-freight ships—the Collingwood and Martian—into package freighters, CSL will have its greatest package-freight capacity, Mr. Stock said. "And by the best surveys we can make, the freight is there to be carried.

TO STUDY CANCER WAR—The president and vice-president of the Cancer Research Society, Mrs. Philip Caplan, left, and Mrs. S. H. Rolbin, left Montreal Airport recently aboard a TCA North Star for New York. Mrs. Caplan and Mrs. Rolbin, both first flighters, will study US cancer organizations' methods of allocating their cancer research funds, while in New York.

Warns H and S Don't Overdo Social Aspect

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20 — (ENS)—The social aspect of many Home and School Associations is overdone," J. E. Horton, public schools inspector for Frontenac County, told the Campbellford association Wednesday when he attended the April meeting as guest sepaker.

Mr. Horton also said that Home and School Associations ought not to try to interfere too much in the administration of school boards.

The varity of educational systems throughout the world were reviewed by Mr. Horton.

Dr. Betty Bright gave a talk on Handel during the music appreciation period. Mrs. George Nicholls played a selection on the piano from one of Handel's operas and later a recording of the Messiah was played.

A sing-song, led by Mrs. Jack Clark, with Mrs. George Nicholls as accompanist, preceded the music appreciation period.

A vote for new officers was taken and the results will be announced at the next meeting. Mrs. William Tatham's report of the OEA convention will also be presented at the next meeting.

The annual membership fee was increased from 35 to 50 cents, to take effect next month.

Mrs. Redner's class won the roll call.

A letter from the Belleville Teachers' Council was read, inviting members to a meeting to be held in that city in the near future for a study and talk on the new school curriculum.

Plan For Sewage Plant Saves Three Mills

COBOURG, April 20 (ENS)—Transfer of the cost of the new sewage disposal plant to a financing set-up whereby the cost will be handled by a surcharge on the water rate, saved the town at least three mills. The new rate is 32 mills. Operating costs of the plant, amounting to about one mill, is the only sewage disposal plant item chargeable against the tax rate.

Last year's rate was 56 mills but due to the new assessment, which is about double the previous assessment, a lower tax rate was possible. Under the re-assessment the spread of the assessment removes some of the tax load from the householder.

The new tax rate is figured on a new assessment of $7,100,000 which is to produce the sum of $226,787. Due to uncontrollable expenditures, the new rate is actually, if translated in terms of last year's assessment, three mills higher this year.

Appoint Postmaster

COBOURG, April 20 (ENS) — Succeeding the late Morgan Hewson, who died last year, Peter Quinn, post office employee here for the past 13 years, has been appointed postmaster. He had been acting postmaster since the death of Mr. Hewson. Mr. Quinn was born in Cobourg and before joining the postal staff had been in the plumbing business.

Three Rivers Opens

THREE RIVERS, Que., April 20 (CP)—Two river freighters, the Cartierdoc and Soreldoc of the Patterson Steamship Lines, arrived Wednesday night to officially open the 1950 navigation season to this port, 80 miles downriver from Montreal. The two ships sailing down the St. Lawrence river for Corner Brook, Nfld., were to pick up newsprint cargoes.

2 New Methods Found To Stop Heart Pains

BOSTON, April 20.—(AP).—Two new ways of stopping the heart pains of angina pectoris were reported to the American College of Physicians today.

One is a new Egyptian drug. The other is to poke your finger into your neck.

The drug is Khallin. Extracts are used for colic.

Drs. Harold L. Osher and Kermit H. Katz, of Boston City Hospital, reported using Khallin on 28 persons, all with bad cases of angina pectoris. All but three were much relieved.

Dr. Katz told of stopping angina pain almost instantly by poking one finger against a patient's neck. This was done with patients who volunteered as guinea pigs.

Convicts Escape

VANCOUVER, April 20 (CP)—Five convicts attempt a break from suburban Oakalla prison farm Wednesday but, foiled by the work of a former naval officer, were back in custody only 30 minutes later. Mervin Millman, son of Warden Charles Millman apprehended three of the escapees singlehanded and helped his father and a guard surround the others.

EYES ON THE GROUND

Giants did exist in prehistoric times as living, breathing human beings who lived, and fought, and ate, even as you and I. This fact has been established by the discovery of an enormous jaw bone in Java and teeth in South China, all undoubtedly human. The giants lived perhaps a million years ago.

Scientists hunt for fossilized bones of these great humans. There is nothing mysterious about the way they conduct their search. It is a matter of scientific training, experience and, most of all, keen eyesight. In the first place they find the proper kind of rocks. Fossils occur only in soft rock such as sandstone, shales or limestone; never in volcanic rocks that have been subjected to heat or change. Then they walk down a ravine or gully, inspecting every inch of the sides and ground. Through long practice their eyes get the indescribable "feel" of fossil bones. They may look almost exactly like the surrounding rock but some slight difference in color, or texture, or in the way they are embedded, attracts our eyes.

Having exposed the bone, they brush it with shellac and paste rice paper over all the surface to strengthen it and cement together loose particles. Then they apply strips of burlap, soaked in flour paste. When dry this forms a hard shell which protects the specimen from injury during packing and shipment.

To explorers and scientific workers, keen eyesight is an invaluable tool. And yet, in a sense, we are all explorers. Every day we meet in a new world, with new problems, new people.

Zone Peterborough—But Give The Public Preview

A zoning by-law has been in the offing for four years. It is now in final draft stages, and awaits passing by the City Council. What is contained in the zoning by-law? Few people know, even those whose property is concerned. It is true that copies of the by-law must be sent to all property-owners throughout the city, but ordinarily people do not read fine print in legal documents. The situation now is that the Council is being asked to pass a comprehensive, long-term by-law on which it has had the advice of experts in town planning and engineering, but not the opinion of the public, for whom the Council is trustee. The Council should know now what the people think, and not later when the effects of a by-law are felt and the ordinary citizen wakes up to what has become virtually irrevocable.

• • •

An instance of this occurred recently when an oil company sought a permit to erect a new gasoline station at the north end of the city. The district has been zoned as "neighbourhood commercial" in the zoning plan. This could have been known by the property owners two or three years ago. At the last hour, when the gasoline station asks the permission it might expect to get because of the zoning plan, the property owners object. The point is, had the oil company's request come a month or two later, the by-law might already have been passed, and there would have been small chance of recourse. In this instance, the proposed zoning plan contravened a zoning by-law passed fifteen years ago.

• • •

A comprehensive zoning by-law should be passed, and very soon. But before it is passed, the people in all the districts of the city should have an easy opportunity of acquainting themselves with the proposal.

• • •

The Master Plan for Peterborough has been on display several times since 1947. The booklet containing its details, charts and explanations may be had from the City Offices for $1.50. This newspaper from time to time has given considerable publicity to the project, particularly in the years when it was "news". More is needed, not only to revive enthusiasm for Peterborough as a community growing to plan, but to show the citizens what the zoning by-law will do in each neighbourhood. A movable exhibit of diagrams, street plans and the like could be set up in one district after another—a night or two in a parish hall or a school room—and the people of the district urged to drop in, to see for themselves and to ask questions.

• • •

When public opinion is properly informed on these matters the Council will be fully justified, and duty-bound to pass a zoning by-law which will bring order out of the past hodge-podge of indiscriminate building which has distracted Peterborough's decent development.

An Estimates Committee

When the Estimates are passed through the House of Commons (the Estimates are the items on which the Government proposes to spend money—for Post Offices, printing, and a thousands-and-one-things) the House sits as a whole on them. There are so many that it is impossible for each to be examined separately on its merits. Most are accepted holus-bolus, particularly in the last-day rush before the House rises for a season. Mr. Drew, the Opposition leader, and others have advocated that a committee representative of all parties in the House be formed to examine the items in detail, before they are presented to the Commons as a whole for final approval. Recently the Minister of Finance hinted that the Government might take heed of the suggestion.

The British House of Commons has had an estimates committee for many years. The new Government of India, although it has been in office for only three years, has already accepted the principle that an estimates committee is valuable and advisable. Many Canadians hope that the St. Laurent Government will give the matter very careful study.

Canada's Tim Buck

Mr. Tim Buck is national leader of the Canadian Labour-Progressive Party—which is at opposite ends of the pole from the Progressive-Conservative party. The L.P.P. takes the place of the Communist Party in Canadian politics. Mr. Tim Buck, an Englishman by birth, has spent more than twenty years in Canada, during which time he was generally free to express his views, to run for Parliament, to seek a seat in the Toronto City Council, and to address meetings. Now Mr. Tim Buck is in Hungary, viewing with approval what that neo-Communist state is doing. If it is sometimes true that a man is without honour in his own country, he can get scads of it in Hungary, where he is standing right on the Party line.

Mr. Buck likes freedom to express his Leninist-Stalinist doctrines — he has been well-tutored in the dogma of that Moscow school. He undoubtedly has at least as much freedom to express this dogma in Hungary as he has in Canada as he watches the regimented workers and tanks go by the saluting-base. There is not, of course, the same kind or amount of tolerance for deviationists in Hungary as in Canada. In Canada he has been a rabid deviationist from the easy liberalism here; in Hungary it would not be well for him to deviate from the Communist Line. But he likes the Communist line, and, not being a liberal, may have no inclination to step off it.

We are not among those who would have Mr. Tim Buck's scalp. It is not worth fussing about; let him keep his passport. But what does he want with a Canadian passport? Is he not in his heaven now, in Hungary? We devoutly hope that his gods of the Kremlin urge him to make a noble gesture and forsake the crass Western world. How satisfying it would be for all concerned if Mr. Tim Buck should decide to ask the Hungarian government to give him asylum from Canadian liberalism.

Le Haut-Parleur

This year a new Sunday newspaper, or rather, a journal of opinion, has begun making weekly appearances from St. Hyacinthe, Quebec. It is called Le Haut-Parleur and sells at ten cents a copy. Its director is Senator T. Damien Bouchard, editor of the St. Hyacinthe weekly Le Clairon, of which this new journal is an offshoot. Its front page design and its editorial writers are those of the old Le Clairon. Senator Bouchard's reminiscences appear serially, and he pens occasional articles on Quebec and Canadian matters, such as last week's editorial on Archbishop Charbonneau's resignation, subtitled "Behind The Curtain of Gold". Andre Bowman known to readers of the old front page of Le Clairon, sets down regularly for the new paper his informed opinions on wide current issues. Guy Gagnon, the editor in chief, discusses Quebec affairs, such as clericalism.

Le Haut-Parleur is like French papers in its emphasis on articles of opinions. The opinions expressed are lively, liberal and timely. Its producers say of it:

> Le Haut-Parleur n'est pas une entreprise commerciale; it est une feuille d'apostolat démocratique et nous sommes encore dans notre province à une époque d'avancement intellectuel où les vrais journaux libéraux ne peuvent songer à atteindre les masses aussi facilement que les simples feuilles d'information.

The paper will have a limited appeal in this province, but those who wish to know what some sections of the people of Quebec are thinking or who merely wish to have a small weekly Canadian paper in the French language so as to "brush up their French" will find it interesting. Some of the principal articles appear in both English and French.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A newspaper columnist says that it is wise to take a vacation apart from one's family. Rest away from the rest, in fact.

A physician says that a man of seventy-five has seen his best days. And, luckily for him, he has probably seen his worst ones, as well.

"For the information of some of our facetious contemporaries, the peach crop has not been winter killed," writes the St. Catharines Standard. Don't be hasty; there might be a chilly day in July that would do it.

A statistician finds that a woman walks about nine miles a day doing her housework. Lucky women! Men who are chairbound by their jobs envy them their active, healthy, varied existence.

Witchcraft And Saucery

By WILLIAM CLARK

THE appearance of so large a crop of Flying Saucers in the United States, and the reports of men 23 inches tall emerging from them in Mexico, mark an important milestone in the history of the human mind. At last Folklore is scientific and there is to be a mythology of mechanics. The broomsticks which in an earlier age were prepared for flight by rubbing with a magic unguent have now been fully brought up to date and motorized. What used to be described as supernatural is now superscientific, for this is the age of "Superman."

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is easy to overlook the significance of "Superman," the omnipotent hero of the comic books, and of his colleagues from this and other planets whose marvellous actions sell millions of copies every week. They are the real folktales of today, and it is to them rather than to Mars, Russia or the U.S. Navy Department that, I believe, we owe the current craze for saucery. For the comic strips have not merely popularized H. G. Wells's notions of interplanetary travel, they have made his concepts real and vivid to people for whom words can summon up only abstract ideas.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE simple fact is that, by and large, people see what they expect to see, and their expectations are based not so much on fresh imagination as on what they have already seen. If in their Sunday comic supplements they are shown pictures of streamlined interplanetary space-craft, they will spend their weekdays seeing Flying Saucers in the sky. If every Sunday people see devils with cloven hooves and tails painted on their church walls, they will go forth and meet devils, whom they will recognize by the cloven hoof and tail.

✧ ✧ ✧

INCIDENTALLY, this representation of the Devil has itself an interesting history which illustrates my point. Greek and Roman potters were particularly fond of decorating their ware with the Great God Pan, his human torso ending in goat's legs. As a natural result people kept on seeing Pan in real life. Since the pottery and the designs lasted into Christian times, so did Pan. The early Church decided therefore to convince its congregations that when they saw Pan down in the reeds by the river, it was not an alternative God but the Devil. So Satan, made suitably ugly, appeared in Pan's guise on church walls and gargoyled parapets.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Flying Saucer tales have all the hallmarks of the authentic folk-story. A great number of people (who will increase in geometric progression) have seen them. But this is nothing compared with the number of reliable medieval witnesses who saw the Devil. Several thousand Knights Templars between 1307-11 testified on oath to having met the Devil in person, and their testimony agreed very accurately as to his appearance. I doubt whether any other fact in medieval history is better authenticated; certainly there is no such weight of evidence for the existence of, say, Thomas a Becket or Joan of Arc.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is not at all surprising that Flying Saucers are seen chiefly over the North American continent. Folk-myths are nearly always localized, perhaps because it needs a good deal of imagination to think up new ideas, and even then they have to be popularized, usually through art-forms. For instance, seeing witches, which began in Southern France, spread only slowly across Europe, and the idea of the witches' sabbath never quite established itself on this side of the Channel. Seeing dragons was a Chinese failing, though the Mongol invasions carried it pretty far afield. Russia has always had a special line in flying fiery serpents, while the Norse artists pictured one-eyed Trolls, which their people then began to meet during the long winter evenings.

✧ ✧ ✧

MANY people are inclined to put the Flying Saucer story in a rather special category because it is at least discussed seriously by public figures, such as the President of the United States, and is even supported by some learned men. There is nothing unusual about that; for several centuries, witch-hunting was the sport of kings. If Mr. Truman, who is himself the victim of a modern witch-hunt, persists in denying the truth of what people want to believe he must not be surprised if he is denounced, as clear-sighted men were in the seventeenth century, as "A Profane buffoon, a perverse shuffler and whiffler."

✧ ✧ ✧

LEARNED men in all ages have compromised with public fancy. They are aware of the danger that they may have missed something in their learning, and they know the difficulty of proving a negative proposition. They know that you cannot prove that there are no witches or no Flying Saucers. In the Middle Ages the clergy, who were the learned men, began by denouncing witchcraft as an illusion, but before long they accepted it as a real heresy. Pope Eugenius IV even went so far as to issue a Bull against those who rode on broomsticks, at a time when this was a quite popular form of civil aviation. Later, the founders of the Royal Society, friends and contemporaries of Isaac Newton, investigated witchcraft in the spirit of pure science and were convinced that it existed.

✧ ✧ ✧

TODAY, all the works of witchcraft, the aerial rides, the transformation of people into hares and cats, the compacts with the Devil, seem absurd. But they were perfectly natural expressions, in the popular terms of their time, of man's unconquerable fear of the unknown. Today the limits of the unknown have been pushed far back; we have catalogued the world in scientific terms, we have used science to control even the atom. scientific age we pin our fears not on another Yet our fear is as great as ever, and in a world of demons but on other planets in space, working on us not through the perverted religion known as magic but through the debased science of the comic strips.

(Special to the Examiner from the London Observer.)

MARGOT FONTEYN AS "GISELLE"

MARGOT FONTEYN, principal ballerina of the Sadlers Wells Company is known as a dancer of very great distinction, especially in the leading roles of the great classic ballets, of which her "Giselle", shown here and Princess Aurora in "The Sleeping Beauty" are outstanding.

Growth Of Style In English Ballet

By CYRIL BEAUMONT

WHAT is style in ballet? A manner of dancing. It is the presence or absence of this quality which distinguishes the artist from the more executant. But although the expression "a manner of dancing" explains all, the actual implications are infinite. There is no dancing into which the question of style does not enter in greater or less degree. Even a dance which is purely an exposition of technique involves style: a particular expressiveness, a quality of movement, a special timing, a light and shade in dancing like the quality of touch in music, which makes all the difference between a formal rendering of a sequence of steps and poses, and an inspired performance.

The growth of English Ballet in less than twenty years is a remarkable achievement, for that small gallant band first formed by Ninette de Valois in 1931, which consisted of varied elements led by famous guest artists such as Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin, has steadily expanded into the present very strong company which has aroused admiration and commendation wherever it has appeared. Perhaps the chief surprise has been the high average of technical ability among the members of the company, and the discipline and precision of movement of the corps de ballet.

Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin have long ago dispelled the age-old legend that only foreign dancers were worthy of filling the traditional great roles in classic ballets, for it would be difficult for dancers of any nationality to surpass their interpretations of the leading roles in Giselle and Le Lac des Cygnes. But since the majority of their performances have been given out of England, it is perhaps reasonable to regard them as a little removed from the contemporary English scene.

The leading English company from every aspect is the Sadler's Wells Ballet, and its principal ballerina, Margot Fonteyn, is the personification of style in the pure classic ballet. Not only is she possessed of a rare technique which makes the most difficult steps seem effortless, but by a combination of grace, timing, rhythm, quality of movement, and expressiveness, she contrives to invest her movements with that elusive but unmistakable quality which we call style. This is not a quality to be acquired at will, but has to be developed and perfected over the years, in her case since that famous day in 1935 when she was selected by Ninette de Valois for the high honour of replacing Markova, who wished to form a company of her own.

Although Fonteyn is versatile, I think her subtle appreciation of style is seen at its best in the leading roles of the great classic ballets, for instance, as the Princess Aurora in The Sleeping Beauty, Odette-Odile in Le Lac des Cygnes, and Giselle in Giselle. At the present time, I doubt if there is any ballerina who can surpass her Princess Aurora. I also greatly admire her interpretation of the title-role of Ashton's Cinderella. Another ballet which is particularly interesting as an exposition of style in modern classic ballet is Ashton's abstract ballet, Symphonic Variations, in which three leading English ballerine—Fonteyn, Moira Shearer, and Beryl Grey—share the honours in evoking a strangely beautiful crystalline quality of movement.

I SHOULD like to discuss at length the many English dancers who, by giving life to the conceptions of English choreographers, have helped towards the creation of an English style in Ballet, but since it is not possible to attempt this within the limits of this article I shall restrict my observations to two other dancers only.

The Sadler's Wells Ballet possess an excellent dancer-mime in the personal of Robert Helpmann, a born actor trained as dancer, who frequently returns to the dramatic stage, in which he has scored many successes. He is unusually versatile, being able to mime anything from farce to heroic drama, added to which he has an acute sense of theatrical effect, which in the main he exploits to excellent purpose. His Rake in The Rake's Progress, Red King in Checkmate, Comus in Comus, Hamlet in Hamlet, Master of Tregennis in The Haunted Ballroom and the Poet in Apparitions are all excellent interpretations of romantic or fantastic characters in which he excels. Yet he is equally at home in such comic characters as the Bridegroom in The Wedding Bouquet, Mr. O'Reilly in The Prospect Before Us and the Dago in Facade. I think it might fairly be claimed that all these roles are in the tradition of English drama or farce, adapted to the exigencies of Ballet.

Helpmann's versatility has its female counterpart in the person of Sally Gilmour, the ballerina of the Rambert Ballet, which has contributed so much to the development of English Ballet, to which it has given both choreographers of note and distinguished dancers. Miss Gilmour's technical equipment is not equal to that of Miss Fonteyn, but the former has few equals in the interpretation of certain types of roles.

Sally Gilmour, like Helpmann, seems equally at her ease with both the tragic and the comic muse, but it is the dramatic roles which appeal to her most. It is remarkable how she can alter the whole style of her dancing to accord with the character assumed. Nowhere perhaps is this better illustrated than in her interpretation of the dual nature of Silvia Tebrick in Lady into Fox, the happy young wife who by some strange trick of mental anguish becomes changed into a fox, and so must contend with the rival natures warring within her; the wife's love for her husband and desire to stay by his side in domestic bliss, against the fox's passionate craving for freedom.

I have restricted myself to discussing briefly three English dancers only, but I venture to submit, that these are quite sufficient to prove that while English Ballet has not neglected to produce and preserve the great classic ballets of the past, it has also steadily developed a style peculiar to Britain and in keeping with her national character and traditions.

Asinine Customs Ruling

EDMONTON JOURNAL

CANADIANS have been critical of absurdities in U.S. customs regulations, and have been pleased to hear that Washington intends to do something about it. However, Canadians would be well advised to insist that their own government remove the beam in its own customs department's eye before clamouring loudly about the several motes in U.S. import regulations.

An illustration of the colossal absurdities that bureaucratic lovers of red tape can achieve has been brought to the attention of the Journal.

A Canadian importer has received permission from the proper federal authorities to bring in from the United States certain machinery not manufactured in Canada. This machinery was covered, while in transit, by large canvas tarpaulins.

The tarpaulins were "in bond," and were to be shipped back to their owners in the United States as soon as the machinery was unloaded. When goods are shipped in bond, they are not subject to import duties—at least that has been the rule.

In this case, however, the importer has been ordered to pay duty on each tarpaulin, even on those which already had been sent back to the United States before the ruling was communicated to the importer.

As if this were not absurdity enough, an Ottawa order, dated March 29, 1950, rules that if in the next five years any importer should bring these same tarpaulins into Canada as a covering for goods or machines, no further customs duty need be paid.

There's an old saying that "whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad." We have no idea how long the particular individual who thought up this business of paying duty on imports "in bond" will survive, but certainly the ruling is a mad one. It is, in truth, a prime example of how completely asinine a customs ruling can be.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye have received, and wherein ye stand For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures. (I Cor. 15: 1, 3, 4.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The former treatise have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen: to whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God: and, being assembled together with them, commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which, saith he, ye have heard of me. For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost not many days hence....

And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. (Acts 1: 1-5, 9.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.... And they were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance. (Acts 2: 1, 4.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people.... There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirit: and they were healed every one. (Acts 5: 12, 16.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"What's that piece of string tied around your finger for, Bill?"

"That's a knot. Forget-me-not is a flower. With flour you make bread, and with bread you have cheese. This is to remind me to buy some pickled onions."

Shocked Old Lady: "And on the way here we passed about twenty-five people in parked cars!"

Young Hostess: "Oh, I'm sure you're mistaken. It must have been an even number."

Mr. Emerson had not been long dead when a candid and possibly somewhat inquisitive friend called on the widow.

After a chat on affairs in general, the caller remarked.

"As your husband died intestate, you will, of course, get a third?"

"Oh, indeed, I hope to get a fourth," was the prompt reply, "He was my third, you know."

Speed Of Speech

Dr. Thomas Jones of Aberystwyth, Wales, has made interesting comparisons of the great speakers of the past. He is reported in the Manchester Guardian as saying that the speed of political speech-makers has shown some tendency to increase during the last forty years.

Mr. Churchill's pace, however, is unchanged. In his speech on the Budget in 1909 he spoke at the rate of 111 words per minute, identical with that of his broadcast on the collapse of France in 1940. Mr. Gladstone spoke at 100 words a minute, which was the figure of Franklin Roosevelt's fireside chats. Asquith was much slower — seventy-eight, while Sir Stafford Cripps is much faster—125 in his 1948 Budget speech.

Daylight Time Starts April 30 Across Canada

By The Canadian Press

Mark April 30 well, brother, if you're the punctual type—or sleepy. That's the daylight-time deadline in many sections.

Only one province officially resists the change to "fast time"—Alberta has a law making continuation of standard time mandatory.

Most popular hour for the switch is 2 a.m. Sunday, April 30. Montreal, Quebec, Windsor, Ont., and Winnipeg are among the few with a deadline of one minute after midnight that same night. This is generally one week earlier than in 1949.

British Columbia is the only province where the change is mandatory by law.

Cows Can't Tell Time

Opposition to "fast time" this year was not marked, a Canadian Press survey shows. Farmers traditionally favor "slow time"—they say their cows don't know the difference and still have to be milked at the same hour.

In Ontario, the Provincial Association of Mayors and Reeves likes neither the staggered changeover nor the lack of uniformity in the length of the daylight-time period. It asked the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities to urge a standard system across the country.

Most cities and towns will stay on daylight time until late in September. Ontario, which clung to daylight time until late November last year because of a hydro shortage, plans to go back to standard time in September, too.

Major cities making the change April 30:

St. John's, Nfld., Halifax, Sydney, Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto, Windsor, London, Ont., Hamilton, Winnipeg, Regina, and Vancouver.

One Maritime city, Kentville, NS, embraces the change three weeks later and some Nova Scotia counties, one week earlier.

Dancers Sold Prizes Back To Secure Cash

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 20 (AP) The movie town has changed little over the years, says Sally Eilers, film "bad girl" of the '30s who is returning to the screen after a lengthy absence.

In her 22 years of Hollywood life, Miss Eilers boasted, she has never been involved in a scandal. She admits to having married four times, "but that can happen to anyone in any town."

Miss Eilers became a top star in "Bad Girl" and was one of the symbols of the depression-era flapper. She is making a film return as the dance hall queen in "Lost Stage Valley," which is being produced by one of her former husbands, Harry Joe Brown.

She is amused by the current popularity of the weekly Charleston contests at the Mocambo. She cited that as an example of how little Hollywood has changed.

Sold Back Prizes

"I can remember when Joan Crawford, Sally Blane, myself and other gals used to compete in the Charleston contests at the Coconut Grove," she said. "Some of the gals used to sell their cups back to the management for $15 so they could buy dresses to get themselves movie jobs."

Film players have it easier in these days of union regulations, she said. The actress, who made nine pictures in one year following "Bad Girl," recalls one gruelling experience in her early days. Being a Charleston expert, she was signed for a film to rival Joan Crawford's success, "Our Dancing Daughters."

Miss Eilers danced the Charleston from eight in the morning until 2:30 the following morning When a studio boss visited the set, she confessed she could hardly dance another step "Don't worry: I'll fix things," said the bigwig, leaving the set.

"I thought he was a prince until he came back—bringing some black coffee so I could continue," she said.

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

You do not need a half acre of land to grow flowers! One of the most enthusiastic gardeners I know applies her talents successfully to four window boxes, two hanging baskets and a few old lard pails. The lack of suitable location for annual and perennial beds in no way curbs her desire for bright color at the front of the house. No one can pass that way without noticing the beauty of these miniature "gardens".

It's catching, too! Just since she moved there three years ago others have been paying more attention to the beauty of their property. Soon the whole district will reflect a brighter, more cheerful appearance.

Double Its Worth

Are you an auction sale fan? I could be after the fun I had when I stopped to see why all the cars were parked around a farm house down Oshawa way. I found myself caught in a surging crowd and evidently nodded my head at the wrong time only to find myself the owner of a small square table! Thank goodness the auctioneer didn't have a lumber wagon under his gavel! However, it gave me an opportunity to try out an idea seen in a magazine. Now there are two half tables, each performing valiant service, one in the upper and one in the lower hallway. It worked so well I'm passing the idea along to you.

Gay Bottles

Nothing can add color to a window ledge or shelf like gayly decorated bottles. I have often admired their odd shapes and sizes in other people's homes, but never thought of making them. Just last week I saw a large collection displayed in the window of a small village store and learned from the proprietor that he made his own. After one easy lesson I'm right in the business myself!

THE WINNING GOAL—Centre Don Raleigh slides along the ice after scoring the winning goal for New York Rangers in an overtime battle against Detroit Red Wings. The game was played in Detroit April 18 and the victory lifted the Rangers into a tie with the NHL champions in the Stanley Cup finals. Red Wing goalie Harry Lumley is shown making a desperate but unsuccessful effort to block the puck. Rangers won 4-3.

Port Colborne Wins Opener 5-0

PORT COLBORNE, April 20 — (CP)—Port Colborne Merchants, defending Ontario Hockey Association and Dominion Intermediate A champions, blasted Tillsonburg Chevwoods 5-0 Wednesday night in the first game of their best-of-five final series.

George Clarke led the winning scorers with a two-goal effort with singles going to Jerry Leitch, Pinker Pine and Roy Reeves.

With Merchant goalkeeper Cecil Gruhl turning in a top notch performance in the nets, the homesters rapped in two goals in each of the first and second periods and followed up with a single in the final frame.

The third period produced some hectic arguing. Earl Rose of the Chevwoods got a misconduct and then drew a match misconduct for protesting too eloquently. Then Tillsonburg defenceman Bill Cooper drew a misconduct for protesting a minor. In all, the game saw 12 penalties handed out.

Brantford Edges Legion 4-3 In Hard-Fought Tussle To Go Ahead In Final Series

Brantford Nationals nosed out the Legionnaires 4-3 in Brantford last night to take a three games to two lead in their best-of-seven OHA senior "B" finals. The sixth game will be here Friday night with the seventh if necessary, back in the Western Ontario city next week, the exact night not being known yet. Tied at 1-1 in the first frame last evening, the Brants won the game with a 2-1 margin in the middle heat, the sizzling third stanza also being a 1-1 affair. Legion figured they got the works on penalties in this chapter as they put on the pressure, drawing five of the six penalties of the period, and seven of the nine handed out in the game, mostly by Referee Udvari.

It was a hard, close-checking contest, strictly playoff hockey on ice that was wet on one side and heavy before the finish. Play was quite even in the initial inning and pretty much on a par in the second chukker, too, though Brantford got the odd goal. Legion had a good margin on play in the third, despite their frequent penalties, these sentences seriously hampering their drive in an attempt to get the equalizer. Doug Mortimer drew a misconduct late in the third for bellowing "homer" at Udvari, and the whole team took time out at the final gong to tell the referee what they thought of him before he could get off the ice.

Dootch Vitarelli scored two of the visitors' goals with Bill Crowley having a goal and an assist, and Joe Rochetta two assists as the first line starred. Johnny Godfrey shone on defence, while Ross Nicholls made some great saves. All of the homesters' goals were either screened or in off skates. The whole Legion team toiled hard and looked good, it being just a tossup throughout. Linn and Leconte were each in on two markers for the Nats, with Hnatiuk, Watson, Campbell, Simpell, Stephen and Messmer in on one apiece. McGrattan again starred in the Brants' cage, and Smith was solid on defence.

Play Carefully

Play opened cautiously but fairly fast, with the checking close. Brantford later pressed for a space and Rochetta got in a good try. Jamieson drew an interference penalty but got back with no damage done as Legion's power play failed to click properly. Stemmler was robbed by Nicholls and then Hill first and later a Montgomery-Crowley rush came close. At 14:24, Linn scored on a passout in a scramble at close range, Leconte and Campbell drawing assists. The Legion first line bored in hard and Vitarelli whizzed one by McGrattan on an angle with Crowley's pass after faking a pass to Rochetta.

Hnatiuk fluked one early in the second from Stephen, going around the net and the puck glancing in off Nicholls' skate from an almost impossible angle. Greenlaw was thefted and then Freddy Mortimer went off for cross-checking, followed by Burns for charging. Shy two men for a minute, Legion (especially Godfrey) checked desperately to hold out the husky and fast-stepping Brants. With the sides even again, Vitarelli's long angle shot caught a corner as McGrattan moved slowly, Rochetta getting an assist, to tie it up at 2-2. The Hill line pressed and then Brantford ganged up near the finish, Leconte getting the goal which proved the difference on a bouncer in a scramble from Linn and Simpell at point-blank range.

Penalties Start

Watson's drive to open the third bounced by Nicholls, partly screened, with Messmer aiding, but Crowley tore right up with Rochetta's faceoff pass to bang in the equalizer once more. Messmer and Doug Mortimer were gated for high-sticking but were back with no further tallying. Fred Mortimer saved one for Ross as play swept up and down hotly. Godfrey got the nod for an accidental trip and Brantford poured it on hard. Johnny returned and the Legion first line bottled the Brants up as they peppered McGrattan till Pigeon almost counted on a breakaway. Doug Mortimer drew a tripping penalty and again the Nats pressed but he returned safely. Montgomery then got it for a very cheap charge of roughing as he played the puck and bumped into an opponent. It was then Doug Mortimer got his misconduct as the Legion puckists sizzled. The sides were even and Legion were fighting fiercely at the final bell.

Legion: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Burns; centre, Rochetta; wings, Vitarelli and Crowley; alternates, Parnell, Greenlaw, F. Mortimer, Hill, Coombs, Stewart, D. Mortimer and Montgomery.

Brantford: Goal, McGrattan; defence, Smith and Simpell; centre, Stephen; wings, Watson and Hnatiuk; alternates, Pigeon, Holota, Stemmler, Leconte, Linn, Campbell, Messmer and Jamieson.

Referees: F. Udvari and J. Liscombe.

Summary:

First Period

Brantford—Linn (Leconte, Campbell) 14:24
Legion—Vitarelli (Crowley) ... 19:56

Legion—Crowley (Rochetta) 2:27
Penalties—Messmer, D. Mortimer (3), Godfrey, Montgomery.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

An Independent Hockey Association is being formed, or so they say, at a meeting in the Kitchener Legion Hall next Sunday aft at three One Lloyd Roubell, organizational director, is writing various clubs—including those here—to that effect, and inviting delegates. He says: "The purpose of this meeting will be to form a new association in sufficient strength to influence the OHA in honoring rules and regulations laid down in a proposed independent constitution to be drafted according to wishes of the majority to effect a greater measure of consideration for independent bodies, who in reality are the backbone of the hockey industry." He states that it would not be an outlaw league.

* * * * * *

Frank Buckland and other OHA officials take a dim view of this and say it won't get anywhere. We don't think so, either. Right after the war, many Legion branches went in for a more or less independent softball organization, an inter-branch set of competitions being arranged. However, it didn't seriously threaten the OASA and hasn't amounted to much lately. It's pretty hard—nay, almost impossible—to buck these firmly entrenched province-wide associations. At that, the OHA has come in for considerable criticism this year down around the intercounty area and also over in the Chatham-Sarnia senior "B" grouping. Plenty of panning is still going on.

* * * * * *

Bill Was Well Paid

Johnny Russelle points out that, while he arranged the $40 for first prize in the puck-carrying skating race here the other day, his contribution was but $10, same as that of Spiros Zakos, Curly Alberico and Mike Caravaggie—with the PMHA adding another $10 for second prize. We're glad to correct this as we were misinformed the other day. Johnny also thinks that Bill McMaster, the winner, was well paid, receiving $40 for hardly 15 seconds of work. That would be at the rate of $160 a minute, $9,600 an hour or the staggering sum of $76,800 for an eight-hour day! Nice work, but even large Willyum couldn't keep that pace up for a full day.

* * * * * *

Legionnaires now have to do it the hard way — they must come from behind and take the next two. Else the OHA senior "B" puck champs will be dethroned by Brantford Nationals. That 4-3 win for the Nats on home ice last eve gave them a 3-2 margin on the best-of-seven finals. Sixth game is here tomorrow night (and won't that pack Civic Arena) with the seventh, if it goes that far, in the Western Ontario city next week. Not sure of the night yet, as the clubs couldn't agree on it last p.m. Couldn't agree on the refs, either, as the Ellis outfit thought they'd been given the business by Udvari in getting five of the six penalties in the third as they were pressing to tie it up. Oh, well, that's the way the breaks go.

* * * * * *

A Swell Playoff Tilt

Some local fans made the long trip—and, frankly, we're getting fed up with it, too—and saw a dandy playoff number. Close checking but speedy and rugged, besides being closerthanthis all the way. The big and cocky Brants faced a hungry and much tougher team than in the previous game. They were playing the provincial champs at just about peak form, and it was a dogfight all the way. Legion aren't finished by any means yet. Figure they'll take the one here Friday on good fast ice—it gets heavy down there halfway through—and sew up the serial once more. Then it'll be another tossup tilt back in Brantford. If they play up to form, they can come through again as they did against Kingston and Markham this season. And Grimsby and Sarnia last spring.

* * * * * *

There wasn't a clean-cut Nats' goal last eve, the disc being shoved home on screened shots or off a defending player. But they all count. And Legion got one of the fairly soft variety, too. Yeah, a pair of well-matched clubs coming down the stretch for that title. Nicholls made some swell saves all through this game, and Godfrey was the pick of the hard-working defencemen. First line starred up front, accounting for all the goals, while the others battled right to the finish, also. McGrattan was tough to beat in the home net, and he had a strong squad fighting hard in front of him. Their scoring was well spread around. We hope the officiating the rest of the route is good, and two grand games should result.

City Basketball Finalists Named

Clappers earned the right to meet Shockey's Cleaners in the Men's City Basketball finals by defeating the Kawartha Sports 49-37 Wednesday night at the YMCA. The first of the finals best of three will be Saturday at 7.45.

Clappers accurate shooting held them in the game throughout as they took a 10-point lead, 31-21 in the first half. Ted Evans and Ab Stewart with seven points each and Ted Payne with six were the first half guns for the Clapper squad. The Kawartha Sports cagers had trouble finding the range of the basket. Al Northcott flipped in seven points and Harold Grafstein six in the half.

Kawarthas came to life in the second half as they held the Clapper squad down to a 18-16 score. Northcott continued the pace of the first half, drifting in eight points.

Ab Stewart, captain of Clappers left the floor midway through the second half with five personals. Dibben of the Kawarthas followed shortly after.

Lineups:

Clappers—Paune 10, Dadson 9, Taylor 3, Smith 1, Stewart 7, Menzies 6, Evans 11, Griffin 2.

Kawartha Sports —Trimm 1, Northcott 12, Thompson 10, B. Thompson 1, Dibben 5, Grafstein 8.

Bilts, Canadiens Blast Officials

MONTREAL, April 20—(CP)—Guelph Biltmores and Montreal Junior Canadiens were all set today for their fifth meeting in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup final series—but nobody seemed to know if the referees were.

No official announcement has yet been made on protests by both teams against the "poor officiating" by Bill Morrison, of Oshawa, Ont., and Sibby Mundey, Montreal, during Tuesday night's game in Toronto. Canadiens, who took nine of the 17 penalties handed out, won the game 4-2 and took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

However, manager Roy Mason, of Guelph, protested strongly Wednesday night against the referees' work and said that "Biltmores are not going on the ice tonight if Mundey is still officiating."

Coach Alf Pike maintained a more neutral attitude and said the teams should "forget the whole thing and play hockey."

Amid unconfirmed reports that both Mundey and Morrison would be replaced for tonight's clash, Montreal coach Sammy Pollock added his voice to the squabble over referees.

He said Biltmores were the victims of "some poor officiating" Tuesday, but he quickly added that Canadiens "weren't completely satisfied with it either."

GREAT GAME — Johnny Godfrey turned in a great defensive game in Brantford last night, even though Legion lost a 4-3 heart-breaker to let the Nats go one up in the OHA senior "B" finals.

Ida Whitnall Heads League

Ida Whitnall was elected president of the YMCA Senior Ladies Bowling League Wednesday night at the annual banquet and presentation of trophies. Others on the executive for the 1950-51 season are: vice-president, Helen Reid; secretary, Beryl Csumrik; treasurer, Shirley Heckman. Jack Richardson, president of the Y's Men's Club presided.

The Aces, league champions, were presented with the Y's Men's Club's trophy and the members with individual trophies by Mr. Richardson. Other presentations made were to: high three, Marion Mahood 811; high single, Olive Searles, 346; Y's Men's Club's special prize to the Commandos for the team with the least number of points; high average trophy.

Gladys Pinch was presented with the trophy for the high average, 203, by Vic Sedgewick. Ag Anderson with an average of 202 was presented with a special prize by Walter Scott. Dot Martin, runner-up in the singles, was also presented with a special prize. Barbara Lee presented the prizes to the president, secretary and treasurer for 1949-50 while Irene Penrose made the presentations to the scorers.

George McGregor, Halifax St. Mary's forward from Kingston, is the first winner of a trophy to be awarded annually to the Maritime Senior Hockey League player combining the "best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct" with a "high standard of playing ability".

Judge J. Elliott Hudson, league president, announced at Halifax Wednesday that a poll of eight sports editors and sportscasters had choen McGregor.

Moncton Hawks centre Rod MacKenzie of Fort William came second.

Patterned after the Lady Byng Trophy of the National Hockey League, the award was made by a Halifax business firm.

Barbara Ann Scott, 21-year-old Olympic figure skating champ and three times world champion, has signed a contract with the Icecapades, it was announced at Los Angeles, Wednesday. The Ottawa miss will appear in the opening of the 1951 Icecapades May 4, John Harris, president, said.

Former Giants Big Guns In Boston Win

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Sid Gordon and his former Giant buddies are making life tough for their old boss, Leo Durocher. So far, the New York Giants' manager appears to be a bum David Harum.

Leo traded Gordon, Willard Marshall, Buddy Kerr and Sam Webb to Boston Braves last December for Al Dark and Eddie Stanky. Durocher said he was building "my kind of a ball club." He was willing to sacrifice home run power for a double play combination.

On the evidence at hand, it looks as if a good offence still is the best defence. With Gordon, Marshall and Kerr roughing the Giant pitchers, Boston has swept to a pair of double figure victories.

Gordon, a Polo Grounds hero for years, proved especially embarrassing. Sidney made Leo's face red Wednesday with a pair of homers, one with the bases loaded. All told, the Gordon-Marshall-Kerr trio blasted home eight runs in the Braves' 10-6 romp.

Thompson, rookie Jack Harshman and relief pitcher Clint Hartung accounted for all but one of the Giant scores with homers.

Montreal Royals To Open Season

MONTREAL, April 20—(CP)—Montreal Royals open the new International League baseball season in Jersey City today with a flock of new hired hands on the field and a new manager in command.

Wally Alston has replaced Clay Hopper, whose four-year term produced two league pennants, three victories in the Governors' Cup series and two Little World series championships.

Alston was moved to the oyals from St. Paul in the Brooklyn Dodgers' chain and Hopper was shifted to the Minnesota capital.

At the get-away, the Royals appear to be a weaker team than that which won the Governors' Cup in 1949 and then lost the junior World Series to Indianapolis.

Swift Sam Jethroe, who stole a record 89 bases and batted .326, has gone to Boston Braves. Shortstop Bob Morgan has moved up to the Dodgers and third baseman Kermit Wahl was sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. They will take a lot of replacing.

Only one of the team's consistent pitching winners is still with the club. He is bespectacled Clyde King, who ran up a 17-7 record last season.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Rangers, Wings Have Another Go Both Befuddled

DETROIT, April 20 (AP) — New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings go at it again tonight in the fifth game of their Stanley Cup finals. Each club has a pair of victories in the best-of-seven series.

Detroit is a bit red-faced about tonight's contest. Actually, the season-champion Wings declare it shouldn't have been necessary. Detroit should have won in four games.

Yet, a combination of hustle and fight on the part of the Rangers has paid off in a big way. The Rangers, fourth place club in the regular National Hockey League campaign, never expected to get this far. They have everything to gain and nothing to lose by showing the same fight in the remaining games.

Detroit spokesmen aren't saying much about the situation, but New York general manager Frank Boucher spoke out frankly.

Everyone Surprised

"I'm completely confounded by it all," Boucher said. "We were sure of ourselves against Montreal, but we figured Detroit was just too strong for us.

"Then look what happened Tuesday night. This is one nobody can figure out, and I'm just keeping my fingers crossed."

It was learned Wednesday night that one, and possibly two, blueshirt regulars will miss the fifth game. Jackie Gordon, young left winger, is out for the season with torn ligaments in his left knee, and Nick Mickoski, right winger on the line with Gordon and Buddy O'Connor, hopes to be able to play after suffering dislocated shoulder Tuesday.

Three other Rangers will be below par physically. Edgar Laprade has a kidney bruise, pulled groin muscle and a weak left knee. Tony Leswick has been slowed down by the Wings' bodychecking. Leswick suffered a slight head injury in the last game.

The Wings are at full strength except for winger Gordie Howe, out of action since he was seriously injured in the first game of the semi-finals against Toronto

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The International Baseball League opens its 67th consecutive season today in what promises to be a tight race all the way.

Opening-day pairings include two night games and two day games. The night games find Rochester at Baltimore and Buffalo at Springfield. In the day encounters, Toronto plays at Syracuse and Montreal visits Jersey City. Springfield has replaced Newark, N.J., in the league.

Largest crowd of the four openers, 20,000, is expected to show up at Baltimore to watch Red Wings and Orioles clash under the lights. Johnny Yuhas is the probable Rochester pitcher and former major-leaguer Carl Drews is the likely hurler for the Orioles.

A gathering of approximately 15,000 fans will be on hand at Jersey City, where Andy Tomasic is expected to pitch for the Giants against Montreal's Turk Lown or John Milligan.

At Syracuse, 10,000 fans are expected. Either Bud Byerly or Jim Prendergast will oppose Toronto's Lou Possehl.

The smallest crowd will be at Springfield, Masetta where the Cubs clash with Buffalo, the defending pennant winners. Springfield has a capacity of only 7,500.

At Peoria, Ill., Paul Unruh, all-American player on Bradley University's basketball team, said Wednesday he received a bribe offer in New York last month during the national invitation tournament.

He said an unidentified man asked him in front of a New York hotel if he would like to "make some easy money."

He brushed the man off, went his way, and didn't mention it to Bradley officials because he didn't think it was important, he added.

Unruh, scoring ace on the Bradley team which was ranked No. 1 in the Associated Press poll during part of the season, first mentioned the bribe offer in a speech to a church dinner in nearby Pekin, Ill., Tuesday night.

He said the man offered to pay $100 if Bradley won a game by six points and $500 if it won by two points in any tournament game.

Mining Methods Tops In Canada Says Indian

TORONTO, April 20 — (CP)— Canada is recognized as one of the top nations in the world in relation to training in metal mining methods, the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy was told Wednesday.

Santosh Kumar Bhattachargee, 28-year-old Indian mining engineer and geologist, said he hopes to study mining operations in this country from top to bottom and take his knowledge home to India.

"We give a very high place to Canadian metal mining," he said, "both in the colleges and in the practical field. Our mining industry in India is growing rapidly, and we can profit greatly by your experience."

Bhattachargee arrived in Canada last week-end and is scheduled to leave tonight for Val d'Or, Que., where he will spend a few months, starting out as an underground mucker at the Sigma gold mine. In his homeland, he was manager of a large colliery and holds diplomas from a number of Indian universities.

When he returns home, Santosh says he will have a number of fields open to him. "We have gold, copper, chromium, iron, zinc, and lead, he said. "Our iron is the richest in the world—pure Hematite ore, 68 per cent iron."

NO SCORE THIS TIME — Chunky Art Rose of Montreal Canadiens had Goalie Cliff Hicks of Guelph Biltmores beaten on this shot but the puck, circled, didn't go into the net. In this game in Toronto, April 18, Rose rattled in three goals to lead his team to a 4-2 victory and give the Quebec champions a lead of three wins to one at that stage in the best-of-seven series for the Eastern Canada junior hockey title.

Spring Seeding Starts

TORONTO, April 20 (CP) — Farmers in most sections of Ontario are preparing their lands for spring seeding, the agriculture department said Wednesday in its weekly crop report. In western and southern Ontario drying is slow this spring, and farmers say much of their seeding will be delayed. Some central Ontario farmers, especially in Durham, Prince Edward, and Muskoka and Parry Sound areas say winter feed supplies are short.

Police Story Of Narcotics Uncovering More Addicts

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 20 —(CP) — Wanted! man, to peddle dope in large Canadian city.

You won't find advertising of this kind in your daily newspaper But such information nevertheless is carried to the ends of Canada by one of the most subtle advertising mediums — an underworld grapevine.

It's difficult to describe this grapevine because it is haphazard and ill-planned, though effective. Through one means or another—word of mouth or by letter—information originating in one section of Canada eventually finds its way to interested parties in other cities.

It is this grapevine which helps keep Canada's illicit drug business operating.

Not Increasing

There are about 3,500 known criminal addicts in Canada today compared with 2,000 two years ago. At first glance this might suggest that drug addiction is on the increase.

But control experts don't think so. Kenneth C. Hossick, chief of the Narcotic Control Division at the National Health Department, believes better policing has helped to discover more persons who are addicts.

Training is one of the biggest weapons in the fight against drug traffic. A business stretching from coast to coast in Canada, with lines of supply reaching around the world.

With the aid of movie films to illustrate lectures, police are being kept up to date on everything from the latest methods of smuggling to the most recent developments in production of synthetic narcotics.

Mounties Train

The Narcotics Control Division, for one thing, trains Mounties on methods of inspecting hospitals and drug stores to check their drug supplies.

In close touch with the situation, Mr. Hossick says the places which give enforcement officers the most trouble are Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal.

The maritimes have been comparatively free of heavy drug traffic for some time. In addition, rigid enforcement has practically closed off the illicit drug channels on the Pacific coast, he said.

For some time, Central Ontario, particularly Toronto, had been considered the centre of drug traffic in Canada. Recent indications, however, are that the concentrated areas have shifted both east and west.

Conditions Improved

During the last couple of years conditions in Toronto have greatly improved, he said. He attributed the improvement to both the Mounties and local police co-operation under Chief John Chisholm.

Most widely used drugs are opium, morphine and heroin, all of which are strongly habit-forming. Others used to some extent are marijuana and cocaine. These two are not particularly habit-forming but they have an exhilirating effect on the user and often lead to violent crimes by building up false confidence.

"Synthetic drugs are no problem at the moment," said Mr. Hossick. But close check is being kept on their development and there is no complacency about future possibilities.

ASK CONCILIATOR

TORONTO, April 20 (CP) — The Toronto Builders' Exchange Wednesday applied to the Ontario government to appoint a conciliator because of a deadlock in its wages dispute with the Bricklayers' Union (AFL). The union voted 603 to 3 Saturday against contract proposals offered by the exchange, which represents 62 general contractors.

Bon Vivant, McGill King's Plate Favorites

TORONTO, April 20 (CP) — E. P. Taylor's colt Bon Vivant, and Vince Sheridan's colt McGill ruled as top favorites today as turf fans began to scan heightened preparations for the 1950 renewal of the classic King's Plate May 27.

McGill was the winter book favorite on the strength of his easy victory in the 1949 Orpen Cup and Saucer for two-year-olds. The colt however was owned by Mrs. Frank Dougherty and ineligible until it was purchased in New York Wednesday by Vince Sheridan of Toronto, who is president of the Ontario division of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association. Sheridan outbid several local owners and was understood to have paid $17,500 for McGill, a colt by Bunty Lawless—Tinted Chick, bred by Mr. Taylor.

Unofficial odds today had McGill and Bon Vivant as favorites with McGill at slightly shorter odds.

2 Ships Launched

MONTREAL April 20 (CP) — The last two ships constructed under contract with a Venezuelan company were launched Wednesday at the Canadian Vickers shipyards. Senora Candida Santander de Chafardet, wife of the Venezuelan delegate to the International Civil Aviation Organization, launched the M. V. Miranda. The second vessel was the M. V. Trujillo.

Veteran Engineer

EDMONTON, April 20 (CP)— Duncan Cameron, engineer on the train which carried the King and Queen across Canada during their first visit in 1939, died Tuesday in hospital. He was 74.

Mr. Cameron was born in Glengarry in 1876 and joined the Grand Trunk Railway in 1902 as a fireman. He became an engineer in 1907 and retired in 1942.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

It was March 24, 1936. A packed Montreal Forum watched Detroit Red Wings meet Montreal Maroons in their first N.H.L. playoff game. The players—every one Canadian-born—kept 9,500 fans tense through three scoreless periods.

The clock ticked on . . . through four more periods. Then, at the 116th minute of overtime, the weary Red Wings rushed. A shout burst from the crowd as 30 seconds later—at 2.25 a.m.—Wings tallied the single goal of the N.H.L.'s longest game.

Sportsmanship and teamwork keep Canada first in the hockey world. And together they help you, too. For teamwork with sportsmanship help keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada...unlimited.

3 Young Koreans Carry Off Boston Marathon

BOSTON, April 20 (AP)—Two tiny Korean schoolboys and a chunkier and more experienced countryman today ranked among the world's top long distance runners after finishing one-two-three in the Boston A.A. marathon.

Winner Kee Yong Ham, runner-up Kil Yoon Song and Yun Chil Choi, who made an exceptional showing in the 1948 Olympic marathon, completely outclassed 131 rivals Wednesday during the punishing 26-mile, 385-yards hill course that stretches from Little Hopkinton to Boston.

Ham, a 19-year-old youngst who attends Yung Chung high school in Seoul, was the first to cross the finish line in two hours, 32 minutes, 39 seconds. For a time he threatened to break the course record of 2:25.39, set by his famed countryman, Yun Bok Suh, three years ago. But Ham lacked the stamina to negotiate the hills as Suh did in 1947 and he was forced to slow down to a walk so many times during the last five miles that he crossed the finish line only three minutes 19 seconds ahead of 20-year-old Song, who ruined his chances by staying too far back during the early stages.

Choi, who started as co-favorite with last year's winner, Karl Gosta Leanderson of Sweden, finished in 2:39.47, beating fourth-place John P. Lafferty of Boston, a United States navy aviation machinist mate stationed at Jacksonville, Fla., by only five seconds.

Paul Collins of Wolfville, N.S., led the 10-man Canadian contingent, finishing eighth in 2:50.13. Francis P. D. Mulvihill of the Gladstone Athletic Club Toronto, was 18th in 3:01.35.

B.E. GAMES BAIT—Toronto is bidding for the 1954 British Empire games and a lure is the Canadian National Exhibition's Sports field shown above. The $4,000,000 grandstand will seat about 25,000 and Toronto officials promise to build bleachers to jack the figure up to 50,000 if necessary. The track is one-third of a mile but this would be altered to the regulation quarter-mile. Toronto's bid, along with those of Vancouver, Hamilton and Montreal, will be considered at a Montreal meeting of the British Empire Games Association in May.

Porter Backs Standard Hose Couplings Used

TORONTO, April 20 (CP) — A proposal of the Canadian Standards Association that fire departments across Canada use a uniform fire-hose thread is welcomed in Ontario, Attorney General Dana Porter said Wednesday.

The recommendation said that a hose coupling having five threads to the inch and 3⅛ inches outside diameter be used. The association said a standard fire hose would enable municipalities to give greater mutual aid.

Queen Mary School Boys Awarded Cups And Crest For Hockey

Presentations to the junior, intermediate, senior hockey and swimming teams highlighted the regular Queen Mary School Wednesday morning assembly.

During the ceremonies Principal O. M. Steer emphasized the value of sports to the boys and the girls. The main aim of a school was not to produce winning hockey teams but playing games helped to fit each one better for the game of life. Mr. Steer said he was pleased with the showing made by the three hockey teams in the various sections of the school league.

Vice-principal L. McNeil conducted the presentation of the trophies. He commended the senior boys for placing first in their league although they lost out in the semi-finals to Confederation School. They had only one loss in seven games.

The intermediate team was presented with the Lions Club trophy by Mr. O. M. Steer for their sportsmanship. Mr. Steer said he valued this cup as highly as any to be presented and commended Mr. James Weir, teacher, and his team on their clean play. Captain Delbert Hillier received the trophy.

President Presents

Harley Weir, president of the Kinsmen Club, presented the club's trophy to the Queen Mary School junior hockey champions. Crests were presented to each member of the team. Captain Alex Stewart accepted the trophy on behalf of his team.

Donald Duncan, boys' work secretary at the YMCA, presented the awards won by the school in the Public School swimming meet. The school won the junior swimming trophy and tied with the Confederation and Central Schools for the intermediate Confederation and Central schools for [illegible] trophy. The school team was within a few points of winning the Examiner trophy for the highest score during the meet. The trophies were received by Captain Ross Dobbin, of the junior swimming team and Captain David Cuffe, of the intermediate team

After the presentations Mr. Steer moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Duncan and Mr. Weir and commended the coaches for their work in the sports.

Hirohito Studies Christianity

CARDIFF, Wales, April 20 — (AP)—Emperor Hirohito, regarded by the Japanese as divine, was reported Wednesday night to be studying Christianity.

Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, a Japanese evangelist, told the summer meeting of the British Council of Churches that the Japanese Empress is being instructed in the New Testament, and that she, in turn, is teaching the Emperor.

He was describing to the meeting the conflict in Japan between Communism and Christianity. He said there are fewer Japanese Christians now than before the war, but that a Christian revival is under way.

Mining Industry In Canada Doesn't Talk Enough To Warrant Probe

By FORBES-RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO, April 20 — (CP) — The Canadian mining industry was told Wednesday night that it has not explained itself sufficiently to the average person.

The speaker was Fred V. Seibert, of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, who in a year of office travelled from Mayor, Y.T., to Halifax, and who Wednesday night gave his valedictory to the closing session of the institute's annual convention.

It has been said, Mr. Seibert said, that those in the industry over-estimate what the public know and under-estimate their judgment.

"The thought behind that expression is that, if we give the people the facts, they will not go very far wrong in their judgment."

He was speaking of an industry which last year produced some $900,000,000 and contributed even greater wealth through its part in keeping railways busy and supplying the raw materials of manufacturing — wealth which shows in the pay envelope of probably every Canadian and helps buy the food, clothing and housing of every Canadian household.

Newsprint Monopoly Inquiry To Start

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP) —A Congressional monopoly investigating committee has turned down an invitation by Canadian paper manufacturers to visit Canada in advance of an inquiry into the newsprint industry.

Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem.-New York), said Wednesday a tight schedule prevented the committee from accepting an invitation by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association to come to Montreal.

Suicide Attempted When Love Refused

TORONTO, April 20 (CP) — A 22-year-old youth told police today he tried to hang himself because of his unrequitted love for a blue-eyed blonde.

Alan Thompson was charged with attempted suicide after he was found lying on the floor of the jail in suburban New Toronto. A belt which he is suspected of using in an attempt to hang himself apparently broke.

Thompson had been awaiting bail on a charge of creating a disturbance.

Make Settlement In Lumber Suit

Moldaver Bros. Lumber Co. and Melville J. Simpson of Buckhorn reached a settlement Wednesday afternoon on a lumber contract dispute. The deadlock was broken when Judge S. L. Smoke adjourned the special sitting of the County Court and asked opposing counsels to confer with him in his chambers.

Moldaver Bros. agreed to pay the plaintiff, Simpson, $69 to complete a lumber contract; and $78.60 to Charles Wood, Peterborough lumber mill operator, for sawing logs they had purchased from the plaintiff. They were also assessed $14 costs.

Before the dispute arose Moldavers had already paid Simpson $100 down on account. And in a counterclaim they asked for it to be returned along with interest on the money and damages.

Samuel Moldaver contented that Simpson, a lumberman-farmer in Harvey, had approached him three days before Christmas with an offer to sell 5,619 board feet of timber. He agreed to buy it at $60 a thousand feet but understood it was 25 per cent No. 1 common lumber, or better. That is good lumber.

A contract was signed.

He decide the wood was "rotten" after hauling more than 3,000 feet of it to his own yard and then he suspended payment. The balance of the lumber is still lying at the Charles Wood lumber mill.

In the witness box Mr. Wood said he had not yet received his money for cutting the logs brought in by Simpson. He estimated the stacked lumber is now worth about $50 a thousand.

The subsequent settlement reduced the sale price to about $45 a thousand.

Alex Elliott, KC, was counsel for the plaintiff and Gordon K Farquharson for the defendant.

Outsmarted All Round

BALTIMORE, April 20 (CP)—Cab driver Andy Pulver picked up a passenger lugging a beer case last night.

The passenger order Pulver to two separate addresses "to pick up some girls."

At the first address, he paused before getting out to ask Pulver to change a $10 bill. Pulver counted out 10 ones and reached back to get the man's 10-spot.

His passenger grabbed the ones and fled. Before Pulver could recover, his party-seeking passenger had disappeared.

Then he thought of the beer case as possible compensation. It was filled with bricks.

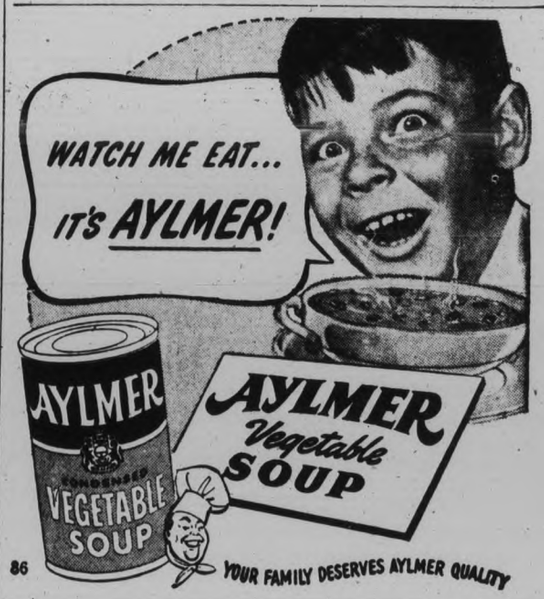
EARLY JOB SECURITY

The Wisconsin Unemployment Compensation Act, adopted in 1934, was the first in the United States.

THESE VERSATILE TWO-PIECE DRESSES designed by Brigance are tailored so that tops can be switched for variety. The tailored black linen dress (left) has a sleeveless top and slim skirt with button-trimmed hip pockets. The skirt serves as well with the dressier sheer shadow-striped silk organza blouse (center). Black and white pin-checked cotton sheer makes the soft dress (right) with full skirt, bloused top. Top can be worn with black skirt; checked skirt looks smart with black linen blouse.

Police Confiscate All Boys' Air Rifles

TORONTO, April 20 (CP) — Following two accidents in which boys were injured, suburban North York police have started confiscating all air rifles in the hands of juveniles, it was disclosed today. One boy, Michael McBride, 12, may lose the sight of his left eye after being struck in the cornea by a lead pellet from an air rifle last Friday. Another boy, Norman Lelliott, was struck on the face last night by an air-gun pellet.



WA Completes Bale For Indian School Boy

MILLBROOK, April 20 (ENS)—Articles which had been gathered together for the bale were on display at the meeting of St. Thomas Anglican Women's Auxiliary held at the home of Mrs. Westmacott on Monday evening. The bale consists of a complete outfit for a boy in an Indian School, and three quilts. These will be shipped to the west in a few days by the committee in charge.

Mrs. Reginald Fallis, the president, conducted the opening prayers, and the Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Wm. Theobald.

After the reading of the minutes and the roll call by the secretary, Miss McNamara, the report of the treasurer, Miss Muriel Smith, was read in her absence, by the president. It stated that, after all the bills in connection with the Dorcas work were paid, there was still a substantial balance. It was decided to send half the pledge money to headquarters in Toronto.

Mrs. Fallis expressed the regrets of the group in losing one of their valued members, Mrs. Marston, who had left the day before for her new home in Hamilton. Last Thursday the members had met at the home of Mrs. Massey-Cooke to give Mrs. Marston a farewell gift, a picture and a cup and saucer, and to have tea together.

Mrs. Marston had been leader of the juniors. Mrs. Massey-Cooke reported that on Saturday the juniors also had had a party for her and had presented her with a W.A. membership pin.

Because St. Thomas Women's Auxiliary is this year celebrating the 60th anniversary of its organization, it was decided to hold a special meeting in the parish hall on May 31. The other missionary societies of the village are to be invited to attend.

The last chapter of the study book "Dawn Over Japan", was given by Miss M. Collins.

The supper hostesses, Mrs. Massey-Cooke and Mrs. O'Donnell served refreshments.

Basil Darrah Leads Young People's Meet

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20—(ENS)—St. John's Young People met Monday when the program was in charge of the cultural convener, Basil Darrah.

During the worship service the convener read a short story and Bill Bleeker read the scripture.

Dr. D. M. Smith led a discussion on the topic "Does it pay to be popular?" John Pierce gave two solos.

NEW HEAVYWEIGHT TIDE gets clothes dazzling clean
WITHOUT RINSING!

Cuts washday work in half!
Just wash-wring out-hang up!

HARD TO BELIEVE? Yes, but it's true! Get yourself a package of new Heavyweight Tide and see for yourself! You can take your family wash right from those amazing suds . . . put it through the wringer . . . and hang it up CLEAN. Without any rinsing at all!

"SUCH A FRESH, BRIGHT WASH —I WAS AMAZED!"
SAYS MRS. L. C. WEST OF NORTH YORK
"I didn't believe it, but new Heavyweight Tide certainly kept its promise! My wash came bright and clean without any rinsing!"

THAT'S BECAUSE new Heavyweight Tide not only gets the dirt out of the clothes, but actually keeps it suspended in the sudsy water. When you wring the clothes, the dirt runs out with the wash water, and your clothes come so bright, white and clean, you'll be delighted.

CLOTHES DRY SOFT—SMELL FRESH and sweet. And they iron so easily and smoothly. There's never been anything like it—but it's the kind of miracle you have to see to believe! So just try it!

Brand new! With STEPPED-UP WASHING POWER!

Two Garage Men Settle Scuffle In Police Court

An assault termed "a mere scuffle" by defence counsel W. J. A. Fair resulted Wednesday in one year's suspended sentence from Magistrate W. R. Philp for Arthur V. McCorry, garage mechanic.

Special prosecutor T. J. Carley and Mr. Fair battled for three hours examining and cross-examining witnesses.

At times, each objected to "my learned friend's interruption of the witness."

McCorry was charged with common assault on James Baird, Park St., following an incident March 16 in a Park St. garage in which Baird was a partner.

Blows were struck by McCorry Baird said, after McCorry took a car out of the garage to make room for another against Baird's orders. "I was still working on it," Baird said, "and I told him to leave the car in."

"He hit me twice in the face with his fist," Baird said. "And before that, he grabbed me by tht throat to choke me."

McCorry denied striking Baird "I grabbed him by the neck of his shirt, but I didn't hit him." he said.

James Withers, formerly Baird's partner in the garage, testified he did not see Baird struck by the mechanic.

McCorry told court he was called an s— by Baird, who said he wasn't sure whether he had, but thought he might have.

"I submit a man who calls another, older man, an s— should almost expect to be struck," argued Mr. Fair. 'The informant shouldn't expect to be treated as though he were at an afternoon tea party."

"It's not such a trivial affair as my learned friend is trying to make out," commented Mr. Carley in reply to Mr. Fair's remark that "it was only a scuffle" "Against his own master. . he (McCorry) adopts the most insulting attitude he could.

Summing up, Magistrate Philp said: "There are a number of points in Baird's evidence disputed by Withers and McCorry I prefer to take Baird's evidence

"There is a technical assault, and I find accused guilty."

Oshawa Strike Ends

OSHAWA, April 20 (CP) — A two-day sit-down strike at Skinners Ltd., auto parts manufacturers, ended Wednesday when the company agreed to promote an employee with seniority to the position of sub-foreman. Production will resume Thursday.

History's Spotlight On North Says Bishop

WINNIPEG, April 20 (CP) — Most Rev. John Lyons of Kingston, Anglican Bishop of Ontario, Wednesday drew attention to the importance of Canada's northland.

At the opening service of the 26th session of the Synod of Rupert's Land, Archbishop Lyons said Canada's north has "come into the spotlight of history" and is of great importance to the ecclesiastical province.

"It may play a decisive part in the future, not only of Canada, but in the whole of democracy," he said.

There is a need to recapture pioneer spirit of the missionaries and to "rediscover the fellowship which has characterized the church at its best," Archbishop Lyons said.

To Rule On Learning Bell Heads' Salaries

OTTAWA, April 20 (CP)—The question of whether Bell Telephone will be required to disclose its top executive salaries and pension payments was taken under advisement Wednesday by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The action was taken as the board resumed hearing following a two-day recess of an application by Bell Telephone of Canada for rate boosts that would provide an additional 20 per cent revenue from its 'phone service in Ontario and Quebec.

Fight Asthma—Bronchial Coughs

If you suffer from difficult breathing, coughing, wheezing, and can't sleep well because of Asthma or Bronchitis attacks, you owe it to yourself to try MENDACO. The very first dose of MENDACO starts working through your blood in 30 minutes, helping Nature loosen and remove the thick, sticky mucus which causes coughing, gasping, difficult breathing. This loosening action helps open up your bronchial tubes so you can breathe more freely; then you can sleep more restfully, gain vitality and begin to enjoy life. Get MENDACO from your druggist today. Money back unless quickly and completely satisfied.

UE Lock Workers Plan Strike Vote Protest Measure

The membership of Local 527 UE Wednesday night decided to take a strike vote Tuesday.

That is the next step in the union's contract dispute with the Peterborough Lock Co. At the same membership meeting they unanimously rejected the recommendations of the conciliation board.

Earlier today the negotiating committee of Local 527 met with company officials to try to reach an agreement.

Chairman Judge W. S. Lane of Picton headed the conciliation board which recommended no wage increase for the 180 production workers.

Case For Wage Reduction

After studying the company's brief the board contended that Peterborough Lock had made its case for a wage reduction. Together with declining productivity the company has had to meet increasing wage costs.

This situation could go on "indefinitely," declared the board and the time to correct the situation was now.

Drummond Wren, union nominee on the board, did not file a minority report but he reserved the right to do so.

The union had asked for a pay increase, hospitalization and pension plans and other contract revisions. But the board recommended none of these things and stated that increased productivity at the same wage rates was the alternative to recommending a wage reduction.

A company request to have the unionshop clause tossed out was rejected by the board.

About 160 union members packed into the George St. union hall Wednesday to hear their speakers and voice their own opinions. Union leaders said the rank-and-file were "plenty hot under the collar over the board's findings" and were unanimously in favor of both rejecting the report and taking a strike vote.

R. J. Leonard, president of Local 527, has described the findings as "totally inadequate."

MAIN ST. TOPICS

CARS COLLIDE

Cars driven by Harold Berry, Stewart St., and Angus Austin, James St., collided Wednesday night on Hunter St. bridge. Berry told police he signalled to turn left to the Quaker Oats, and as he turned, the cars collided. Austin said he didn't see Berry signal.

CHOCOLATES HANDED OUT

Chocolates substituted for cigars Wednesday morning at the collegiate as R. L. Hale, head of the English department, presented his home class, 12A Academic, with a box of chocolates to celebrate a new arrival in his family. A daughter, Susan Jane, has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hale at the Civic Hospital.

BUILDING POOL

Premier Frost, a member of the Lindsay Rotary Club since 1922, turned the first sod for Rotary's $40,000 swimming pool Wednesday afternoon. Joseph Tangney, president of Rotary, presided. Rev. W. J. Scott, president of the Ministerial Association, made the dedicatory prayer. Mayor Charles Lamb introduced the Premier and Vice-President Bruce McNevin presented the Premier with a silver replica of the shovel used.

Beer Bottle Appears

MILLBROOK, April 20 (ENS)—A beer bottle which has been lodged under the stage of Millbrook Town Hall more than 35 years, was discovered this week by the volunteer brigade which is renovating the hall.

The bottle bears the labelling of a Port Hope brewery which ceased operations 35 years ago.

The walls of the hall received the first coat of turquoise paint Tuesday.

Mayor Of Caen Replies To Mayor Swanston

When Miss Jean E. Stenton of the Examiner staff recently called upon Mayor Yves Guillou of Caen, France, she delivered to him a letter of greeting and good wishes from Mayor M. J. Swanston on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough.

Mayor Swanston received by mail this week a grateful acknowledgment of the felicities he expressed to the community that is so vividly remembered by the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders as a major city in their fighting against the Germans in the Normandy campaign.

The letter from Mayor Guillou is addressed to "Monsieur le Maire and mon cher Collegue."

A free translation is as follows: "I have received your expression of the sentiments of your very sympathetic people, with the more pleasure because it was conveyed to me by your amiable messenger.

"I am most happy to say that your thoughts of us correspond exactly with those not only of a part of our citizens, but of our entire populace.

"It is wonderful to see that the affection which we have for Canada, and which is sustained by our memories of what we owe our liberators, is reciprocated in the remembrance of Canada itself after such a length of time, but nevertheless so fresh.

"That community of spirit and of heart is such that Canada and Normandy form in sentiment one people. This fraternity is more than an expression of words, and is very deep rooted.

"In acknowledging your greetings, it is with great joy that I assure you of the gratitude of Normandy, and especially of the deep fidelity of the people of Caen to the lasting memory of your heroes and of your people whom they so splendidly represent.

"With every good wish for the future prosperity of Canada and of the citizens of Peterborough, I am, Mr. Mayor, . . . Cordially yours."

Ivor E. Brock Dies In Toronto

The funeral service was held today in Toronto for Ivor E. Brock, 29 Atlas Ave., who died Tuesday at his home. He was associated for 29 years with the Brinton - Peterborough Carpet Company Ltd. in charge of sales in Toronto. He was in his 85th year and was still active in business. Interment was at the Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Mr. Brock at one time was department manager with the Robert Simpson Co. He was born in Wales and had been a resident of Toronto since 1900. He was prominent in the early days of Parkdale Methodist Church.

Surviving are his daughter, Miss E. Pearl Brock and his sister, Mrs. John St. Lawrence of Erie, Penn.

Lindsay Woman Injured, Car Hits House

A Lindsay woman was injured early today when a car crashed into the east side of a Park Hill Rd. house.

Mrs. Mabel Andrews, Cambridge St., Lindsay, suffered a cut above her left eye and possible chest injuries. Her husband, Mancia Andrews, suffered shock.

They were examined by Dr. Bob Young, who ordered Mrs. Andrews to hospital. Later today, Mrs. Andrews returned to Lindsay.

Andrews told police his wife had been driving the car. Police say the car made a left turn from George St. onto Park Hill Rd. to go west, swerved south and struck cement posts at the east side of the home of Miss Annie Thompson. Two posts were broken and the car was badly smashed.

Police found the couple in a George St. home, where they had been visiting earlier in the evening. Mrs. Andrews was unconscious on the chesterfield.

Holstein Men Present Awards

Vern Campbell, president, looked out over a company of 400 men and women at the annual dinner of Peterborough Holstein Breeders' Association at Club Aragon Wednesday night.

Apparently every section of the county was represented, and many from the city also bought tickets. It was one of the most largely attended social affairs of the season, exceeding in all its pleasant aspects and in effective public relations any similar rural event in the past.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, who was present with Mrs. Paterson, introduced those at the head table: Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Moore, Ald. Hurrell Dodds, representing Mayor Swanston, and Mrs. Dodds, Burritt Mann and Miss Mary Matchett, representing the Junior Farmers, Stanley Wood, secretary of the Holstein Breeders' Club, and Mrs. Wood.

Vice-president Henry Sharpe; Roy Ormiston of Brooklin, Holstein fieldman; who was accompanied by Mr. R. Dickson, supervisor of the Dairy Herd Improvement branch of the Alberta Department of Agriculture; A. A. Ness, a visiting farmer from Camrose, Alta.

Burritt Mann presented to Miss Marie Kelly the prize awarded to the winning member of the local calf club last year.

Premier breeders' award won by Norman McConkey at the Black and White championships show here last winter was presented to him by Roy Ormiston, who also presented production certificates to Richard and Everett Elmhurst and Mr. McConkey.

Jack McLean, Toronto entertainer, amused the crowd with clever imitations of Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Joe E. Brown, George Formby (with banjo) and other stars of the stage and films. The program for the evening wound up with dancing.

Tuberculin Testing Of County Cattle

A tuberculin test of cattle in Peterborough and Victoria counties is at present being undertaken by the Federal Department of Agriculture.

Dr. G. R. Penhall, chief veterinarian for this district, who is in charge of the work, has reported progress to date, to Dr. H. Worton, Peterborough Food and Dairy Inspector.

So far 28,886 head of cattle have been tested of which 33, or .1 per cent have shown evidence of infection.

In Victoria county 10,834 head of cattle have been tested and 88 or .9 per cent, show signs of infection.

The work in the two counties is not yet completed.

Only Odd Building and Wall Remain Where Glens Fought

(Editor's Note: The writer has gathered a great amount of information from officers and men of the Glengarrians, from stories written by Ross Munro, CP correspondent and from residents of Caen and villages in the battle area. Not all description were the same and if any inaccuracies have occurred, it was in efforts to piece details together in a connected sequence.)

By JEAN E. STENTON

CAEN, April — Touring the Canadian battlefield today around Caen, members of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders at first sight would rub their eyes and wonder if they were in the right place.

Jean Stenton

The flat green fields are being neatly plowed and there is nothing to indicate that a war passed this way. Nothing, that is, until you reach some of the villages, four or five miles from Caen. Here the Glengarrians would feel right at home. The buildings and walls stand almost exactly as they left them. A few of the gaping holes in the walls have been repaired with wire fences, some of the roofs patched and where the odd building could be salvaged, glass has been put back in the windows. There has been little new building.

Where Glens Landed

At the 3rd Division landing place, Berniere-sur-Mer, a peaceful village has taken up life once more and only the odd building and high wall marks the fighting which took place there. The Chaudieres from Quebec were among the first to hit the beaches and that name is a byword to the people of that area. They have named the hotel, "Hotel Chaudiere" in honor of these men.

The station, for which there was much bitter fighting, has been repaired and is doing business in the same old place. The beach, which on D-Day was studded with obstacles, has been cleared and a handsome cement walk built along the edge. In the distance up the coast past Courseulles, you can see many of the ships sunk deliberately by the Allies to help form a harbor, or the odd one which may have been sunk in action.

The 3rd Division was made up of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada (Toronto), the Highland Light Infantry of Galt, the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa and the North Nova Scotia Regiment, among others. The Glengarrians were in the reserve brigade in the Division on June 6 at Berniere-sur-Mer and were landed in the area where the 8CIB had assaulted. The Glens took up position within the bridgehead and dug in. Several casualties were suffered under shell fire.

Strongly Fortified.

When you look at the landing place there and along the coast, it seems incredible that our men could have landed at all. Every mile or two there was a strong German blockhouse and their guns were placed so that their fire crossed. The beaches were covered with obstacles and mines. The blockhouses in some areas were placed at intervals two miles in from the coast. At Berniere-sur-Mer, the Germans had evacuated the beach and moved in behind a rolling hill. According to the inhabitants, it was this hill which made it so difficult for the Canadians to land and which caused many casualties. But this was more easily taken than the Cherbourg area and the difference has been estimated to be in the hands of the local Nazi commanders. At Cherbourg, where the Americans landed, the officers elected to fight it out at the beaches. At Berniere-sur-Mer, they chose to evacuate and move inland behind the protection of a hill, a short distance off where they could rake the beaches with their fire.

The Glens were soon to have a taste of action. D Day plus one, the Brigade broke out of the bridgehead. The North Nova Scotia Highlanders, the leading battalion of the Brigade, moved forward on the tanks of the 27th Armored Regiment, followed by the Glengarrians on foot and the Hamilton Light Infantry moving up in reserve.

Canadian Book Publishing In Colonial Stage—Firm

OTTAWA, April 20 — (CP) — One of the signs of Canada's "cultural immaturity" is the "colonial condition" of the Canadian publishing business, the University of Toronto Press said today.

Difficulty of getting books on research in the humanities and social sciences published in Canada was one of the reasons why many Canadian writers and scholars were leaving the country for the United States, the University Press added.

It called on the Massey Commission on arts, in a 3,000-word brief, to consider means of making more money available for publication of books in the "scholarly" field and suggested that a step "of the greatest importance" would be to establish some agency to distribute funds for this purpose.

Difficulties of printing in Canada were many. Increased costs of publication and distribution of books "complicated" the situation.

Agency Business

The Press said much Canadian publishing "is agency business for books produced in the U.S. and U.K." and "even with books initiated and produced in Canada it is frequently necessary for Canadian firms to base their decisions on decisions made in New York and London."

The commission, reaching the final day of its last two-weeks of public hearings in Ottawa, also heard from the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, the town of Cobourg, the discussion group of Hamilton and the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada and Ontario.

Canada's sky-gazers made a bid for increased government grants to help promote interest in sky phenomena.

Astronomy, said the society, played an important part not only in the progress of science, but in cultural and spiritual development.

Cobourg Brief

Cobourg, a town in Eastern Ontario with theatrical aspirations, suggested the government should "protect" Canadian artists as it protected industries.

The government should develop and maintain "our Canadian theatre by subsidizing and establishing rehearsal homes for professional artists.

"Moreover, Cobourg, because of its situation, facilities and atmosphere, is admirably suited to such a home and Victoria Opera House in Cobourg is an ideal location for such a rehearsal home."

A subsidy, said the Cobourg brief, would protect and keep artists in Canada, who at present were going to the United States "in droves."

"We have singers, dancers, actors in our midst who have just as much ability and intelligence as American and foreign stars and these, who are our own, find it necessary to go to the United States and abroad in order to gain recognition."

Rehabilitation Of TB Patients Being Planned

Rehabilitation of T.B. patients was discussed at a district meeting of the County T.B. Associations held in the Weston Sanatorium on Wednesday. Representatives from 11 counties in District No. 7 were present. Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association was represented by William Foley, Charles H. Elliott, James Heffernan, Charles Ray and Mrs. G. A. Biggs.

It was announced that a rehabilitation officer was being named to take charge of the area.

The Peterborough County Association has been for some time making plans and conducting rehabilitation work among T.B. patients from this city and now it will be assisted by a trained rehabilitation officer.

The aims for doing such a work are two-fold. First rehabilitation work among the patients while they are in the sanatorium keeps them occupied and their recovery is more rapid. Then it trains them for the work which will be most suitable for them when they get out of hospital. In the past it has been found that too often the discharged patients have secured the wrong type of employment, and thus through overwork and overstrain has suffered another breakdown and is again back in the hospital.

3 False Alarms Within 9 Hours

Firemen had three false alarms Wednesday night and early today in less than nine hours.

Somebody saw a puff of smoke near the apartment buildings at 116½ Hunter St. W. and concluded the place was on fire. Actually it was just a wayward puff from a nearby chimney that drifted down instead of up.

Shortly after 2 a.m. firemen were called to the Tilco Manufacturing Co. plant, 475 Parkhill Rd., in answer to a call claiming the factory was on fire. Cause of the alarm was the red glow from a pilot light on a machine that was seen by an imaginative passer-by.

Then shortly after 3 a.m. the automatic alarm went from the Canadian Sealright plant on Aylmer St. No fire: just a leaking sprinkler.

George E. Meredith Watchmaker Dies

Retired two weeks ago after 45 years as a watchmaker, George E. Meredith, 65, died Wednesday at his home, 1237 King St. West, Toronto. During his career he repaired watches in Peterborough, Regina, Saskatoon, Sudbury and Toronto. He served his apprenticeship under Premier Leslie Frost's father.

Besides his wife, the former Mabel Pearl Main, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. M. E. Plewes (Dorothy) of Toronto, Mrs. R. F. Walker (Jane) of Long Branch, and one son David Edward Meredith at home.

Funeral service will be at 3:15 Friday afternoon at the Turner and Porter Chapel in Toronto. Interment will be at Prospect Cemetery.

James Moran Buried

Monsignor P. P. Butler officiated at the funeral service Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church for James Moran who died Monday at his residence, 164 Lake St. Interment was at St. Peter's Cemetery where the graveside prayers were recited by the Rev. Gerard Sullivan, assisted by the Rev. G. J. O'Sullivan. Pall-bearers were: Thomas Convey, Frank Marino, Gerard, Gordon and Leo DeLaplante and Carl Garsky.

One Man Fined

Magistrate W. R. Philp fined Thomas McMurray, R.R. 10, $10 and $2.50 costs for being intoxicated in police court today.

Anti-Gambling Squad Raid Brings 13 Into Court 'Not Flagrant': Fined $682

Aftermath of the April 1 raid by the Provincial Police anti-gambling squad was the fining today of 13 men by Magistrate W. R. Philp. They pleaded guilty and were fined a total of $682.50; individual fines amounted to $50 and $2.50 costs. Charges were laid following the raid, and a number of punchboards seized at the time were ordered confiscated by His Worship. "There was nothing of a flagrant nature about this," remarked crown counsel John Bradshaw. "I would suggest a $50 fine across the board."

Charles Griffen, Glen Lunch, King St., charged with keeping a common gaming house, will appear later today to answer that charge.

The following were fined: George Dormer, Sugar Bowl Candy Store; Robert Fair, Glen Lunch; Jack Dormer, Rubidge St.; Rodger Bowen, Rod's Lunch; Kenneth Anderson, Edgewater Snack Bar; Harold Hatton, Uptown Tobacco Shop; Desmond Hunt, Hunt's Lunch Bar; Jack Primeau, Primeau's Cigar Store; Kenneth O'Toole, George St.; Gordon Grant, Grant's Lunch; Vincent English, Arena Lunch; and William (Babe) Fontaine, Babe's Place.

Brockville Plant No IUE Victory

The United Electrical Workers are hailing the voting in the Phillips Electric plant, Brockville, as a victory while the rival IUE (CIO-CCL) say it is an indication of the "unfairness" of present labor laws.

After a bitter campaign the balloting showed the plant was split almost evenly in its union allegiance.

Of 671 eligible voters, 661 voted: 331 for the IUE, 329 for the UE, one ballot was spoiled.

The tally indicates that the applicant union (IUE) got less than the required 50 per cent of the eligible voters, but more than 50 percent of those actually voting.

Under the Ontario Labor Code a union needs a majority of eligible workers in a plant before it can be certified. If it could be proven the 10 eligibles who didn't vote were absent due to illness or some such reason they could be subtracted from the eligible list.

The Ontario Labor Relations Board which conducted the vote has not yet made any announcement.

Officials of the international union said today that they will continue their fight against the Communist - dominated United Electrical Union workers despite the fact that their new union failed to receive certification in Wednesday's vote. They will hold a rally tonight.

Roy Andress, president of the Local 510, UE, released a bulletin by George Harris, secretary-treasurer of the UE, which lauded the decision of the Phillips' workers.

William Miller, president of the local IUE group, was downhearted over the loss, but promised a continued fight against "this Communist dominated group."

False Pretence Charge

Ronald Milligan, charged with obtaining a motorcycle by false pretences, pleaded not guilty and was today remanded to April 24 by Magistrate W. R. Philp. Bail was set at $200.

Police say Milligan traded a car for the motorcycle, the only catch being that the car had a lien on it.

TO AUCTION BULBS

For its meeting tonight in the offices of the Department of Agriculture, the Gladiolus Society has arranged for an auction of named bulbs in dozen lots. Motion pictures of flower subjects will be shown by Clifford Brien and Bud Lloyd, members of the local film board.

Takes Canoe On Chemong Day Ice Goes Out

BRIDGENORTH, April 20 — (ENS)—The ice on Chemong Lake vanished Wednesday night, ten days later than last year, when it went out on April 10.

Mrs. Earl Blewitt, Bridgenorth, looking from her kitchen window Wednesday, saw a boat out on the water. Taking a second look, this time through a telescope, she discovered it was an enthusiastic canoeist making an early start.

The storm and light winds on Wednesday shifted the bulk of the ice against the east shore. Property owners will be glad to hear that little or no damage has been done.

When the ice first went out in January there was considerable damage to private wharves along the shore. But in comparison with other years, the damage was slight.

Point Man Dies Mixing Cement

While assisting at mixing cement for a building foundation 200 yards from his home, Edwin Crapp, 65, Young's Point, died suddenly from a heart seizure this morning. His working partner, Albert Freeburn, notified the family immediately who phoned Dr. Lloyd Bailey of Lakefield. The doctor arrived to pronounce the man dead.

Mr. Crapp was born in Smith Township, son of the late James Crapp and Judah Pearson, and before moving to Young's Point eight years ago, lived and farmed in Smith and Douro townships.

Mr. Crapp leaves his wife, the former Gladys Irwin, and four daughters, Miss Marion Crapp and Mrs. Leo Traynor (Margaret) both of the village; Mrs. Milton Traynor (Phoebe) of RR No. 4, Lakefield, and Mrs. Max Cummings (Evelyn) of Lakefield village. There are three sisters, Mrs. Edith Davis of Selwyn, Mrs. Wilford Nicholls of RR 3, Lakefield, and Mrs. Theo Nicholls of Lakefield. A brother, Melville Crapp, lives in Selwyn. Mr. Crapp was a member of Young's Point United Church and was currently working with the Department of Highways.

Funeral service will be held at his Young's Point residence on Saturday at 2 p.m. The Rev. W. Tong of Lakefield United Church will officiate and burial will be at Lakefield cemetery.

TWO-FISTED MP—Claire Gillis, CCF member of parliament for Cape Breton South, demonstrates how he tackled a Communist sympathizer in the back-alley of an Ottawa hotel. Mr. Gillis, once a coal miner, said he intervened during an argument between an elderly man and a young man in the hotel beer parlor. Mr. Gillis said the youngster tried to have the other thrown out because he would not listen to the "old Comie line." So Mr. Gillis invited the youngster outside and there "tossed a couple of rights" to his jaw.

Quebec Premier Duplessis Celebrates 60th Birthday

By WILLIAM STEWART

QUEBEC, April 20 — (CP) — Quebec's most remarkable political man of recent times leaned back from his wide desk, flicked a speck of cigar ash from his well-tailored suit and reflected that if he's getting on in years, he'll still in top form.

"As good as ever—even better because of experience," remarked Premier Maurice Duplessis who said he will be in his big office as usual today—his 60th birthday anniversary.

A flood of congratulatory messages will come to him from followers of the Union Nationale Party he set up in 1936 and built to its present eminence in Quebec. But no special celebration will be held for the anniversary.

Le Chef

Union Nationale deputies held a birthday dinner for "le chef" late last month, before the session ended and they scattered from the legislative assembly where they hold the unprecedented total of 82 of 92 seats.

When he spoke briefly of his anniversary at a press conference last Friday, Premier Duplessis, showing not a grey hair for his 23 years in the hurly- burly of politics, said he hasn't time this year for the usual post-session holiday.

At 60 and unmarried, Premier Puplessis who is senior member of the Legislative Assembly, put in a heavy office day from 9:30 a.m. or so until early evening. Sometimes without a pause for lunch.

Most of his evenings, spent in his hotel suite here, are also occupied with provincial business.

For his work of heading the government in which his sharp eye looks into every angle of administration, the premier is paid a total of $18,000 a year.

The enterprise he runs—a province with a population of 3,500,000 (five zeros) and an area of nearly 600,000 square miles — could be compared to a billion-dollar business.

The province operates on an annual budget of $200,000,000, six or seven times as much as in 1927 when Mr. Duplessis first entered the Legislature.

Judged by his conduct in public, particularly on the floor of the Legislature, it is clear that most of the time the premier enjoys the job he's held for nine of the last 14 years, with its opportunity to guide the destinies of French-Canada and flay whatever opposition comes into his path.

The premier regards the position of his Union Nationale as secure.

"We are here for 20 years," is what he tells his Liberal opponents with a big grin.

Court Remands A Peeping Tom

COBOURG, April 20 (ENS)—William McKewan of Brighton, charged with vagrancy, was remanded for a week when he pleaded guilty Tuesday. The court was informed that Capt. Rae of the Salvation Army, Cobourg, was seeing if McKewan could be admitted to Sunnybrook Hospital.

Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine said that the accused was caught by a Brighton resident peeping through the window there of a room occupied by a 22-year-old girl. There had been previous complaints of such behaviour, the constable said.

B. R. Vanderberg of Millbrook charged with false pretenses in connection with the purchase of a car, was remanded for one week. Bail was set at $1,000.

Charged with the robbery with violence of George Stollery, Seymour township resident, Charles and Joseph Ellis of Campbellford were remanded in court here to April 21 at which time a further remand will be made.

Reds Story Lies Says Washington

WASHINGTON, April 20 — (AP).— A State Department spokesman assailed as "lies" Wednesday a Russian claim that the American plane lost in the Baltic was on a mission of deliberate provocation against the Soviet Union.

The latest Russian attack on the United States in connection with the incident appeared in the authoritative Soviet magazine, New [illegible] reported to give de[illegible] made by [illegible] armed services for the alleged provocative action.

The State Department press officer, Michael McDermott, said that the magazine article is "beyond contempt."

The possibility of further Soviet-American air clashes along the uneasy front of the cold war in Europe was being carefully studied by top officials, meanwhile.

Hazel Scott Gets $250 For Discrimination

SPOKANE, Wash., April 20 (AP)—Negro pianist Hazel Scott Wednesday was awarded $250 damages by a jury which found she had been denied service at a restaurant because of her race. Miss Scott had sued Mr. and Mrs. Harry Utz, former owners of a Pasco, Wash., restaurant, for $50,000. The jury of three women and nine men—all white—deliberated 15 hours.

Woman's Body Found

NASSAU, Bahamas, April 20 (CP)—A body identified as that of Betty Renner, 38-year-old lawyer from Washington, was found Wednesday in an open well in a quarry in a lonely pine forest. Police had to pump the well out to recover the body, dressed only in a brassiere. Her slacks had been stripped off, and were found in the well beside the body. Police, who began a search after Miss Renner's bicycle was found in the forest, suspect that Miss Renner was the victim of a brutal sex attack.

Revoke Licence Of Dr. Sanders, 'Must Only Cure'

CONCORD, N. H., April 20 — (AP) — The New Hampshire Board of Registration in Medicine today revoked the licence to practice of Dr. Hermann N. Sander and found that "his moral character is such as to require revosaid no application for reinstatement by Dr. Sander will be entertained prior to June 19, 1950.

The Candia country physician has not been allowed to practice since he was charged with first degree murder in the death of his cancer patient, 59-year-old Mrs. Abbie C. Borroto of Manchester. He was acquitted after a trial lasting nearly three weeks.

Air Injections

The state charged the 41-year-old physician with killing Mrs. Borroto by four injections of air into her veins.

The board said its action was unanimous and it had notified Dr. Sander of its decision, which was reached after a sixhour session.

"Dr. Sander contends," the board said, "that he has done no wrong by injecting air, since he is certain that he did not kill his patient. This board does not concern itself with the question of whether Dr. Sander's patient was alive or dead, but we cannot agree that he has done no wrong.

"It is common medical knowledge that the injection of air into the vein of a human body can serve no useful purpose and customarily every precaution is taken to avoid the introduction of air into a human vein.

Moral Obligation

"It is likewise clear that a physician's moral obligation to his patients and to his profession is to engage only in medical practices which are designed to cure or to alleviate disease.

"Any act of a physician which is not so designed fails to meet the moral standards of the medical profession.

"We can only conclude that, when Dr. Sander deliberately injected air into his patient, he was either unable to recognize his moral obligation as a physician or that he was willing to disregard that obligation.

"Under either view, his action is morally reprehensible according to medical standards."

Only Odd Building

Terrible Battle

After seeing Les Buissons, it is not to be wondered at that the Glens have named it Hell's Corners, one of the toughest engagements they fought in that area. From one direction you approach the village down a narrow road, mud of course, bordered by high stone walls. These walls enclose a courtyard and houses. At the intersection of two roads, the old church still stands, a ghostly signpost of the advance. The shell is there, but the rafters are all that remain of the roof. Huge holes have been torn in the sides of the building and it has not been repaired. All along the way huge chunks have been blasted out of the stone walls and houses every few feet and several houses which are still occupied have big gaps in the walls. It is only after you have reached the church that the worst damage is apparent.

The North Nova Scotians ran into trouble around Authie and Buron, and the Glens received orders to dig in in the area of Les Buissons. Supported by the tanks of the 27th Armored Regiment and by C Company of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, the Glens held on against constant and bitter attack and shelling. The land is flat and difficult to defend. It was here that the German tanks broke through and surrounded the Glens. They were subjected to terrific shelling and for a time it was feared they would be wiped out. The officer in command went from fox hole to fox hole, encouraging his men who had received orders there would be no retreat. They were ordered to fire to the last round, even after they had been fired on by our own tanks. Had the Glens not held, it has been said that the Germans might have been able to knife right through to the beaches. For long hours without sleep the Glens held on, and suddenly the Germans withdrew and the crisis was over. Hell's Corners would present quite a contrast to the Glens today.

The following men were killed around Les Buissons: Sgt. Charles Chunn, L/Sgt. Gordon R. Heath, Pte. John P. Hobbins and Pte. Michael Hobbins. The latter two brothers were killed within about five minutes of each other.

The advance from there was comparatively quiet to Vieux Cairon where they dug in and waited for the big attack on Caen. The next big battle where the Glens under Lt. Col. Neil Gemmell of Peterborough distinguished themselves, was at Gruchy. This will long be remembered in the annals of the unit. Supported by the tanks of the 27th, B Company (under Lt. Col. Gemmell) and A Company attacked. The fighting was bitter and casualties heavy. It was for his leadership in this attack that Gemmell received the DSO.

Little Left

Gruchy has been described, prior to the attack, as a village of about 60 buildings. It would be hard to find 12 now. At one of the corners a shell of a house and barn have been partly restored, but all the buildings show signs of the shelling. Along the road, the walls and houses all bear evidence that this was a battlefield. The village is a mass of ruins.

The village, set in the open wheat field, provided little cover to its approach. The Germans had made it a strongpoint, concentrating on elaborate trench systems for machine gunners and snipers in fields around the north and west sides of the hamlet. The enemy had held the position since D Day and had every advantage of ground defence. At 7:30 a.m. July 8, the Canadians attacked. Great concentrations of artillery hammered three enemy occupied towns in this triangle of defence and the infantry moved out [illegible] through yellow wheat, and artillery fire kept the Germans down as the Glens hit some hard open stretches. Gruchy itself was devastated and clouds of smoke covered the battlefield.

The barrage was lifted and shells hadn't stopped falling before stubborn Nazis who survived the shelling in their trenches opened fire with their rifles and machine guns. The Glens closed with them and there was grim, close-in fighting for hours.

Faced S.S. Troops

Opposing the Glengarrians were the fanatical troops of the 12th S.S. Division Hitler Youth Formation. They refused to give up until killed or wounded.

Scores of Nazi trench positions were in the flat green fields around Gruchy and each one had to be attacked and destroyed. One officer with the unit said that a section of eight men would move up on one of these trenches, holding four or five Germans. Our men would crawl up to about 25 or 30 yards from the enemy position and throw grenades. Time and time again the Germans picked them up and tossed them back. All the time the Glens were doing this under assault from other trenches around them. This went on until every trench was cleared. Only Germans who surrendered were those in forward flanking positions who were cut off and there were few of these.

Leapfrog Attack

While two of the Glen companies were engaged at Gruchy, the third, C Company, attacked Chateau St. Louet, to the west. Today, Chateau St. Louet is nothing but a barnyard and a barn or two. The Chateau itself has only about 1½ feet of stone foundation standing. On the left is the blitzed woods with stumps and remnants of trees, where the Germans had strong dug-in positions. A farmer and his family are living in one of the barns back of the muddy lane from the road.

It is not surprising that the Chateau no longer stands. Allied artillery was concentrated on the area and first hit the buildings and set them afire.

In my trip around the battle area of Caen, I approached from the opposite direction. We swung along the front to the Abbaye d'Ardennes. The front line was between the church and the next village. As we passed, sheep were grazing peacefully in the green fields. The Abbaye is notorious as the place where the Germans slaughtered Canadian prisoners. Huge gaps mark the Abbaye walls and the buildings within are badly smashed. Some attempts at repairs are being made. The outside of the next village of Cussey is dreadful. Rubble is still piled all over. Part of the walls are standing and most of the houses show considerable damage.

Buron Devastated

The village of Buron carries many battle scars too. Some of the houses have been patched up and a few goats wand[illegible] around their [illegible] ing Chateau St. Louet, another regiment fought a terrible battle at Buron.

It was the Glengarrians who captured Gruchy and St. Louet who were given the task of going right into Caen. The attack was launched the following day and the leading companies in the attack were led by Capt. Athol Stewart of Peterborough and Capt. J. G. Stothart of Ottawa.

Again, as in the other sections around Caen, the people bear no malice toward the Canadians. They will do anything to help a Canadian. I was fortunate enough to have the mayor's car at my disposal throughout my entire visit, complete with chauffeur and Monsieur Duquesne from the Tourist Bureau, thoroughly acquainted with the battlefields. Even without knowing who or what we were, everyone was extremely courteous and helpful. I spent one day touring the Glen battlesfields and the next going up the coast from Berniere-sur-Mer to Bayeux. The story of the second visit will be described separately.

Give Heave-Ho To Frying Pan

DORSET, Ont., April 20—(CP)—Guides who cook for tourists were advised yesterday to throw away their frying pans and thereby protect tourists from indigestion.

The suggestion was made by Paul Douglas of Battersea, Ont., at a conference of Ontario guides at the forest rangers' school here. But it met with protests from guides present.

Jim Coulter of Sioux Lookout came [illegible] the defence of [illegible]

"You should see the steaks they fry over there (in the United States)."

It was decided that a system of guide and apprentice guide will be introduced. Licences for guides in each district will be granted by a committee composed of a senior guide, a conservation officer and a representative of camp operators.

The conference also decided that, in future, all guides must carry complete first aid kits.

The group Wednesday journeyed to Toronto for a meeting with Lands Minister Scott. Included in the group were Alex Jacks, North Bay; Mike Krizek, Sault Ste. Marie; Gordon Johnston, Mea[illegible]ford; Ross N. Smith, Barrie; [illegible] Crozier, Dorset; Ralph [illegible] out; William Cowie, Kenora; and Rim Coltrin, Lake of the Woods.

Siamese Cats Win Many Prizes

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Siamese cats "are just the most beautiful animals," says Mrs. J. V. Filchak, of Lethridge. "From the moment I purchased one in 1944 as a pet, I fell in love with them and decided to breed them."

Mrs. Filchak now has nine of the sleek animals in her cattery and has had as many as 17 at one time in the past. Her cats have won top prizes in Dominion shows

when they really became the sacred symbol of Siam, under the direct patronage of the kings of that country," she says. "But it is a well-established fact that any person causing bodily harm or even the slightest discomfort to one of these cats was put to death as punishment for the crime."

Just prior to 1890 two of the first Siamese cats to leave Siam were sent to England as a gift to Queen Victoria from King Prajadhipok of Siam.

"After 1910 the Siamese cats came into their own in America. Heretofore, this breed was almost entirely unknown here. Few breeder exhibitors possessed Siamese cats because they did not have the financial wherewithal to purchase a specimen. The average price of a Siamese cat purchased in England at that time was $1,000 or more. Present day prices are much more in line.

Mazza-Zimmaro

The marriage was solemnized in Sacred Heart Church on Saturday morning by the Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant of Maria Zimmaro and Frank Mazza, both of Peterborough.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Jos. Chimenti and wore a gown of white satin with six foot train. The bodice was trimmed with a Attendants were Mrs. Tony Iagano as matron of honour, wearing blue crepe dress and a picture hat and carrying red roses. Miss Evelyn Sangestine and Miss Edith Berardi as bridesmaids, dressed in blue and pink frocks of taffeta with silk net over the bodice. Each wore a shoulder veil caught with flowers and carried a bouquet of snapdragon and 'mums.

Mr. Tony Lagano was groomsman and ushers were Fiore Zimmaro and Lorne Cupili.

The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Joe Chimenti and a reception was held later at the Sacred Heart Clubhouse. Mrs Chimenti received in a grey dress and wore a black hat and corsage of red roses.

On her wedding trip to Toronto the bride wore a blue suit and navy accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Mazza will live at 627 park St. S.

Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS

A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, April 20th — Now what is it that people like most about chocolate? Its rich flavour? Its tempting colour? Its creamy smoothness? Probably all three when you come right down to it. And I'm so pleased to find that BAKER'S UNSWEETENED CHOCOLATE provides all three in any of my chocolate dishes. Baker's has that deep, dark deliciousness that makes chocolate the "most requested" flavour, for Baker's is all pure chocolate with nothing added, nothing taken away. Do try Baker's the next time you want to have a particularly grand frosting, or a superb chocolate cake. I know you'll enjoy Baker's richer flavour.

Here's A Delicious Answer To Your Youngster's Between-Meals Hungriness! McCORMICK'S SUNWHEAT BISCUITS are not only a real flavour treat (children love their deliciously different flavour!)...but they're so good for growing youngsters! You see, the Vitamin D content of SunWheat Biscuits has been increased by direct irradiation with ultra violet rays. Each SunWheat Biscuit actually contains 50 International Units of Vitamin D...and, in addition, calcium, phosphorus and other valuable food elements. Yes, SunWheat Biscuits are "made" for growing youngsters. They're a treat and a health food, too! That's why I say, whenever your children are hungry between meals, McCormick's SunWheat Biscuits are the perfect answer!

Too Little Time is a poor alibi for not giving the family the kind of breakfast they deserve and need! It takes so little time to prepare one of the most delicious morning treats I know...a "CREAM OF WHEAT" breakfast! You see, 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" cooks to satin-smooth deliciousness in just five minutes of boiling...and it takes just seconds more to sprinkle with raisins or brown sugar! This is a breakfast dish to start the day right—for it's not only good—it's good for you! For 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" provides Iron, Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. So ask for "Cream of Wheat" next time you go shopping and begin the day with a good breakfast!

"For Men Only?" — Not At All ...It used to worry me finding bonds, documents and much-loved family jewellery lying unprotected in odd drawers and cupboards. Then a good friend put me wise. "Why," she said, "you can chase that old worry right out of your mind for less than two cents a day. Do what I do. Store your valuables in a Safety Deposit Box at the BANK OF MONTREAL. After all, Safety Deposit Boxes aren't marked 'For Men Only'." If I were you, I'd go right round to your nearest branch of the B of M and rent your own Safety Deposit Box. Within minutes you'll have given your valuables the best protection money can buy.

Healthy Young Feet are happy young feet! So next time Mary or John needs a new pair of shoes—remember to look for the NEOLITE mark on the soles of the shoes you buy! It's available in all children's better shoes—and well worth asking for! For Neolite is healthy! It's completely waterproof—which means, when pavements are wet—feet stay dry! Neolite does not cause foot burning—perspiration—foot odours nor itchy feet. It's more flexible than leather—easier on children's busy, young feet. (Doesn't mark floors, either!) And, with the same amount of wear 'n' tear—Neolite outwears leather over 2 to 1! No wonder a nice saving in shoe repairs shows up in the family budget—when you insist on Neolite!

Pleased With My New Discovery? I certainly am! I've discovered a home permanent that's actually kind to my hair! The Richard Hudnut experts say it's the Waving Lotion that makes all the difference . . . a Home Permanent Waving Lotion that leaves your hair in perfect condition! This Waving Lotion was tested by independent research experts, and they've proved that it's actually 22% more effective! That means smoother, prettier curls that are springier and stronger. That's why I urge you to make your next home permanent a RICHARD HUDNUT HOME PERMANENT . . . and, as a perfect prelude—begin your "perm" with a Richard Hudnut Egg Creme Shampoo!

In The Midst Of Spring Housecleaning, you'll do yourself a world of good if you pause for a refreshing cup of tea! Most delicious "refresher" I know is BLUE RIBBON TEA! It should be good for the Blue Ribbon Tea blenders have gone to great pains to give you the very best to be had. They've made their blend from some of the finest India and Ceylon Teas. It's composed of the tender small leaves from hill-top estates...tea leaves picked in the "full-flavour" months at the peak of their quality. So give your spirits a lift with a "Blue Ribbon" "pick-me-up"!...a cup of delicious Blue Ribbon Tea costs you less than a cent — including milk and sugar!

Did You Know that, according to health authorities, 50% of children at 10 years of age suffer from foot defects? Bunions, callouses, corns, ingrown toenails almost always begin with badly fitting shoes. That's why it's so important to choose your child's shoes wisely and well. That's why I urge you to ask for genuine DELLI COLLI children's shoes! They're priced as low as ordinary shoes, yet they're made of the finest leather and designed for your child's foot health by experts in the art of making children's shoes! Ask for Delli Colli shoes by these names—Merry-Go-Round, Bolo, Chiropedic, Delicol.

"Was It Ever Hot!" is a teen-age description of most of our kitchens last summer. Let's not hope so, but this summer might be just as bad. Well, if it is, my prescription for relieving that "slaving over a hot stove" feeling is to get yourself a FRIGIDAIRE ELECTRIC RANGE equipped with the Cook-Master Clock Control. Then you'll be able to slip a whole meal into the oven and beat it for the cool outdoors. The CookMaster will turn on the oven and turn it off at the times you set. "Isn't that something?" as the kids say. Yet it's only one of the marvellous features of the Frigidaire Electric Range that's waiting for your "ohs" and "ahs" at your Frigidaire dealer's. Better stop in soon.

Bring A "Spring Sunshine" Glow right into your living room with the richness and warmth of beautiful brassware! Brassware is so handsome in every decorating scheme, no wonder it's become a decorating fashion! If your room is chintzy—brassware completes the picture. If it's modern . . . gleaming bowls and vases will do wonders for it. So discover the beauty of brassware—and discover, as so many home-makers have, that BRASSO is the polish to keep your brassware always handsome! Use it regularly—it's so very easy to use, for it's the polish made especially for brass!

Baby's Not Half The Size of his high-chair...but,—oh, my!—what an appetite! Best way I know to satisfy his tummy's special needs is to make baby-meals nourishing and good with HEINZ BABY FOODS! These famous foods are backed by the Heinz reputation for quality. They're just right for your baby! Meat products, soups, cereals, vegetables and desserts, cooked to baby-ready digestibility in Heinz gleaming kitchens! And they're so easy for you to prepare! Ask your dealer for Heinz Baby Foods in the convenient 5 ounce tin that's vacuum-sealed to assure flavour freshness!

For Every Woman with her Spring "Clean-Up Campaign" on her mind . . . here's a tip!—let LAVOLINE help you with your housecleaning! It's truly marvelous the way Lavoline gets things clean without rubbing 'n' scrubbing. Everything from painted walls and woodwork to the kitchen linoleum and bathroom tiles (not to mention the family wash!) cleans so much easier with Lavoline! You see, Lavoline— new, improved Lavoline— contains SANOVAL, the miraculous dirt-dissolving cleaning agent which lifts dirt and grime quicker than quick! Another good thing about Lavoline is that it is less expensive than other cleaners! So ask for Lavoline—new improved Lavoline—at A & P, Dominion and Loblaw stores. Lavoline is as harmless as water—yet its soft, billowy suds clean like magic!

I've Often Admired the perfect poise of a charming wife I know. She says she's been much happier in her marriage since she discovered this new, modern method of feminine hygiene. She says ZONITORS are so dainty and convenient to use—and so effective. Zonitors are greaseless, stainless, snow-white vaginal suppositories—powerfully germicidal, yet absolutely safe to delicate tissues. Ask for Zonitors at your drugstore tomorrow...and, for frank facts on the important subject of feminine hygiene, simply write to me—Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. I'll send you a free booklet in a plain wrapper.

Britain Today Once Again Split Into "Two Nations"

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, April 20—(CP)— A phrase used nearly a century ago by Benjamin Disraeli is being applied to Britain's present political situation.

Disraeli wrote that the industrial revolution, with its emphasis on utilitarian economics and the absentee landlord, had split Britain into "two nations" by widening the gap between rich and poor. The same term is held to have significance today.

Advocates of the "two nations" theory argue that the contemporary conflict, in its simplest form, is not between rich and poor but between those from the industrial areas on the one hand and those from the rural and white-collar communities on the other.

This analysis is based largely on last February's general election, which snuffed out the smaller parties—including Communists and fellow-travellers — and raised two main parliamentary protagonists to positions of nearly equal strength.

These are the governing Labor party, backed by a mass trade-union vote in industrial constituencies, and the Conservatives, largely supported by agriculture and the middle class.

Great Divide

Conservative Chief Winston Churchill, in his first speech of the new parliament, said none of the great political feuds he had known — home rule for Ireland, church and chapel, free trade — had produced a wider gulf than exists today between the main parties.

The Observer, an independent weekly, broadly endorsed the "two nations" idea, but saw little to worry about. It said the large parties might coalesce into what it called a "Liberal Party of the left" and a "Liberal party of the right." Both would eschew extremism—and thus promote good government—in a desire to please the in-betweens who comprise the floating vote.

Break Claim

Leslie Hore-Belisha, Britain's war secretary from 1937 to 1940, discussed the problem in the National Review.

He called on Conservatives to carry their cause inside the trade-union movement and break what he termed socialism's "monopoly claim" on the industrial vote. A future victory for Socialism, he claimed, would lead not to the perpetuation of two nations in Britain, but "to the terrible unity of a single-party state."

Lindsay Honors Old Engineers

LINDSAY, April 20 (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario admits he is no railway man, but he comes from one of their towns, and he told a group of them that he believes he now has "his hand at the throttle" at the beginning of Ontario's greatest period.

The Premier was feted Tuesday night along with a group of 13 pensioned Canadian National railroaders by the Hope Division 174 of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

The Premier said:

"Wherever I go I tell the folks that Lindsay is a railroad town. It had its first beginning when the railroad arrived, and it arrived here before it reached most places. You men built the country. I am glad and honored to be associated with you."

Aside from honoring the "old engineers," the dinner was a home-town gathering for Mr. Frost.

The Premier swapped more yarns than anyone else in the hall and many of them were with 98-year-old William O'Brien, Lindsay's oldest railroad pensioner.

"'Can you believe it?" asked the Premier. "He has lived through the entire lifetime of our country and its beginning as a Dominion. That makes you realize what a young country we are."

International Press Institute

WASHINGTON, April 20 (AP) —Long steps toward the formation of an international press institute, to further the causes of a free press and world-wide understanding, will be reported today to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

The society, on the eve of its annual three-day meeting here, Wednesday accepted as new members 30 editors from all parts of the United States.

Several hundred newspaper men will attend the sessions. They will be addressed by President Truman at the first luncheon and by State Secretary Acheson at the final dinner Saturday. In between is a loaded program of working sessions and conferences with government officials.

Lester Markel, Sunday editor of the New York Times, will report today on the progress of the ASNE's proposed collaboration with the American Press Institute in organizing an international press institute strictly on a non-governmental basis.

Ask Vote Recount

INGERSOLL, April 20 (CP)— The Ingersoll Citizens' League tonight decided to ask for a recount in Tuesday's plebiscite which approved by narrow margins a government liquor store and a brewers' warehouse in this town which has been "dry" 35 years. Officials of the league, which led the "drys" in the campaign, will confer Thursday with Oxford Crown Attorney Craig McKay.

Married Women

TORONTO, April 20 (CP)—As long as there is a shortage of nurses and stenographers the city will be forced to employ married women in these capacities even though their husbands are working, it was stated at a meeting of the civic board of control Wednesday. The board was considering a request from the Native Sons of Canada that married women be dismissed when they are not working from necessity.

Tricky April Weather Besets Kinettes' Tulip Tea

A not unusual trick of April weather struck a sharp blow to the Kinette's Tulip Tea Wednesday afternoon. Dull gray clouds let down brisk showers at crucial times throughout the day, so many who hrad anticipated going to the YWCA for this event decided on staying indoors.

The scene was delightfully springlike however. Club members were wearing new ensembles that had been chosen for their very up-to-date designs, and displayed a preference for the favored spring colour, navy and attractive points.

Fully open red tulips were featured with narcissus and pussy-willows in flower arrangement for the tea table which stood tall in a wide shallow bowl. Silver candalabra at either side were high-stemmed, and each held three white candles, while silver tea things were at each end of the table which was covered with a lace-edged madeira cloth.

A musical background during the tea hours was provided by the ladies who did the decorating, Mrs. Adam Sands and Mrs. W. J. Gorden.

Tables where the four draw prizes and home cooking for sale were displayed had lace covers decorated with clusters of tulips and were highlighted by flickering pink candles.

Winning Tickets

President Mrs. Norman Elliott selected winning tickets which gave a box of chocolates to Mrs. Harley Weir, Water St. N., an angel cake to Mrs. J. M. Beckerman, Charlotte St. W., and boxes of cake mix to Mrs. M. Morrison, Hunter St. E., and Mrs. T. Hendry, Armour Rd.

Receiving with Mrs. Elliott was the vice president Mrs. Harry Huff and tickets were taken at the door by Mrs. Al Wilson and Mrs. Don Kitchen.

Mrs. Ed. Henwood and Mrs. Walker Jones had charge of the raffle table. Assisting Mrs. Arthur Black with the sale of home baking were Mrs. Wm. Vanstone, Mrs. John Wocker, Mrs. Clarence Boorman, Mrs. Vern Selkirk, Mrs. Howard Powell and Mrs. Wm. Godson.

Tea was poured by Mrs. John Hornal and Mrs. Bruce Sargent, representing the Civic Hospital and Children's Aid Society, each of which has benefitted by donations from Kinettes, and by Mrs. Stanley Gilmore and Mrs. V. A. Selkirk who were representative of Kinsmen and Kinettes.

Hostesses in the tea room were Mrs. Harvie Ball, Mrs. Maurice Holt, Mrs. Wilfred Langan, Mrs. Harry Tewsley, Mrs. David Wilson, Mrs. Jim Elliott, Mrs. Cal. Sheehy.

General conveners of the tea were Mrs. Fred Ash and Mrs. Tom Williams.

Victor Coleman Elected St. John's Choir

Annual meeting of the choir of St. John's Anglican Church was held Wednesday evening, following a dinner tendered by the Church Women's Association.

With Mr. E. A. Brown, President, in the chair the minutes of the last annual meeting were read by Miss R. Quartermain, secretary-treasurer; the financial report showed a bank balance of $232.06.

Mrs. H. Burrows, treasurer of the Welfare Fund reported a balance of $11.63. She was authorized to forward flowers to the rector's wife, Mrs. W. P. Robertson, who is ill in Hamilton.

Mr. F. G. Mann, organist and choirmaster took the chair during an election of officers. The new slate is: Honorary President Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson; Honorary Vice Presidents: Ven. Archdeacon C. W. Balfour, Mrs. F. G. Mann, F. M. De la Fosse, W. W. Gray; president, Victor Coleman; vice president, Harold Choate; secretary treasurer, Miss Ruby Quartermaine; assistant, Miss Shirley Brown; treasurer Welfare Fund, Mrs. H. Burrows; librarian, E. G. Brown; social committee, Mesdames Howell, Mann, Brown, Gedge and Coleman.

Guest speaker was the Rev. Sister Marion of St. Peter's High School staff, president of the Peterborough Teachers' Council, who gave an informative paper on "Federal Aid."

She said "It is not expected that Federal aid will interfere with Provincial control but that it will powerfully supplement educational services that have already been brought to a high level by many of the Provincial departments of education.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. T. J. Ryan.

Mrs. W. H. Towle, secretary, reported on the Catholic Education convention which she attended at Toronto last week.

Mrs. J. F. O'Brien, Diocesan representative to the Federation of Catholic Parents Teachers' Association of Ontario, reported on the PTA meeting.

Two films were shown, one of Bonnie Prince Charles and one of the opening of parliament in England.

Parent attendance prizes went to Grade 1 of St. Peter's, room 5 of St. Mary's and Miss Belanger's room of St. Anne's school.

A buffet lunch was served under direction of Mrs. D. J. Emery, social convener, by room mothers, Mrs. J. C. Rutherford, Mrs. L. S. Courneyea, Mrs. Geo. Baker, Mrs. A. McCormick and Mrs. D. J. Pearson.

Home and School

GROVE SCHOOL

Grove Home and School Association meeting Wednesday evening was opened with a sing song led by Mrs. W. Hargreave.

Guest speaker was the Rev E. W. Rowland who based his remarks on the two main assets to Canada, natural resources and the spirit of the Canadian people. He was introduced by Mr. J. Barnard, principal.

President Mrs. F. Sanders presided for a short business period. Next executive meeting was announced for April 26. Mrs. S. Whitfield and Mrs. N. Foster, delegates to the Home and School convention at Toronto last week gave reports.

A game of "twenty questions" was played with Mrs. W. Higgins the questioner.

Lunch was convened by Mrs. W. Wood who was assisted by Mrs W. Higgins and Mrs. C. Gilbank.

Victorian Order Hopes To Extend Service In West

WINNIPEG (CP). — Possibilities of expanding activities of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Western Canada will be considered here May 1-2 at the 52nd annual general meeting of the VON board of governors.

An invitation to meet here was extended at last year's annual meeting in Ottawa by western delegates who said the need for home nursing is pressing in the prairie provinces.

Saskatchewan now has four VON branches, Alberta three, Manitoba one and British Columbia nine. The Canadian province with the largest number of branches is Ontario, which has 63.

The VON was founded by Lady Aberdeen in 1897, when her husband was governor-general, to meet the nursing and health instruction needs of the growing population of Canada. Since then it has expanded to a Canada-wide service with 110 branches employing 517 nurses.

Responding to calls and requests from doctors, hospitals, health and social agencies and the families of the sick, VON nurses in 1949 made 981,955 visits altogether in caring for a total of 139,270 patients.

Aided at Childbirth

In 1949, 78,535 women were nursed through childbirth and given expert instruction regarding their own health and the care of their babies. More than 50,000 medical and surgical cases were treated in their own homes under medical supervision and health instruction was given in more than 8,000 cases as part of the sickness prevention campaign.

Patients who can afford to pay are charged a fee for each visit by a VON nurse. However, in 1948, 55 per cent of the nursing service was given free.

Alexander Patron

The governor-general, Viscount Alexander, is patron of the order and Viscountess Alexander is honorary president. As patron, the governor-general appoints men and women to the board of governors.

The president is Mr. Justice C. H. Locke of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The nursing service is administered by a chief superintendent, a trained nurse. The present chief superintendent, Christine Livingston, selects qualified nurses, maintains the standard and fills requests from the branches. She has a small staff of regional supervisors.

Each branch manages its own affairs, is responsible for its budget, makes its bylaws, pays its nursing staff and decides how to meet its local problems.

St. Paul's Club Entertains 200 At "Little Theatre"

"Little Theatre Night" by the St. Paul's Young Married Couples' Club on Wednesday evening, to the surprise of members, drew a crowd of more than 200 spectators. The players, most of whom had never performed in front of an audience before, went through their parts without a slip, and provided excellent entertainment.

The farcical comedy entitled "Crazy to Reduce" was dated 1928 and the 17 women taking part wore costumes of that vintage. Fervent hopes that such hideous styles may not return were heard on all sides.

Directed by Mrs. C. G. Boyd, the players were Jean Montgomery, Guelda Buckley, Myra Grant, Joan Gledhill, Elsie Flett, Betty Boyd, Lil Coleman, Grace Endicott, Cathy Hill, Kay Clark, Doris Clark, Sadie Northey, Joyce Meikleiohn, Margaret Minty, Bettyy Cochrane, Floss Whitton, Clara Hinds.

The second play was "Even Exchange" and the three parts were taken by Rita Mitchell, Rod Davis and Margaret Lucking. The director was Mrs. H. K. Mitchell. Peter McCombe and Frank Booth gave the club wonderful help by handling the lighting effects. Stage properties were looked after by Frank Montgomery.

Ample lunch was served to all those present, truly an example of the loaves and fishes story in the Bible, since only a small crowd had been anticipated.

The successful presentation of these plays at the club meeting may warrant a repeat performance.

435 Register For Legion Zone Rally

The Peterborough Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion is being hostess for the annual Zone Rally on Friday. It is the first time the women have come to Peterborough and as it is the Centenary year here, president Mrs. A. Mason is making every effort toward the greatest success.

Already 435 have sent registration. Provincial president Mrs. V. Cameron, of London, Ontario, will attend, as well as zone representative Mrs. E. Evans, of Oshawa.

Auxiliaries in this, the largest zone in Ontario, are in Millbrook, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Sunderland, Lindsay, Frankford, Apsley, Lakefield, Uxbridge, Fenelon Falls, Ajax, Haliburton, Whitby, Brighton, Claremont and Colborne.

Meetings will commence in early afternoon and will be followed by a dinner in the Legion Hall for which the Auxiliary members are catering.

YOUR MEALTIME MONEY SAVER RICE

EGGS IN RICE NEST

1 cup of cooked Dainty Rice.
5 tablespoons of melted butter.
1 tin of green peas, drained.
¼ cup of grated mild cheese.
4 tablespoons of chopped parsley.

Follow the directions on the Dainty Rice package for your fluffy white rice. Mix together butter, salt, peas, rice and one-half the grated cheese. Turn into greased casserole and make 4 wells in the rice. Drop a raw egg into each. Then sprinkle with the remaining cheese. Cover and bake 30 minutes in a 325°F oven.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Young Bachelor Thinks Love Can't Survive Added Pounds

DEAR MISS DIX: Don't you think that a man who marries a pretty slim girls, who gorges herself on food and gets fat as soon as she has safely landed her man, has a right to feel that he has been taken in under false representations of the goods he was investing his all in? I think that a woman who has not enough self-control to deny her appetite has no right to complain if her husband has not enough self-control to keep from running after slim young women

BACHELOR

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Fat is a matter of taste. In the Orient beauty is assessed by the pound, and the more a woman weighs, the more beautiful and alluring she is esteemed It is only among Western people that bones are more admired than flesh, and that the living skeleton has become the standard type of beauty to which all women aspire

Men's Taste At Fault

Now obesity is one t g and a moderate and decent covering for the body's framework is another thing, and personally I not only deplore men's taste in preferring acute angles to gracious curves but I think that they make a great mistake in picking out a bag-of-bones type of girl for a wife, and in making their middle-aged wives feel that unless they lose their weight they will lose their jobs as wives.

The girl with the willowy figure is the result of either ill health and a nervous and neurotic temperament, or else semistarvation, and in either case the man who marries her is likely not only to gt worrier, but a doctor's bill, and to have a wife who will break down under the wear and tear of married life.

On the other hand, the plump girl is generally strong and healthy and good-natured and easy-going and comfortable to live with. Fat people are nearly always jolly.

It is a matter of common knowledge that nothing is so soothing to the nerves and so softening to the heart, that nothing fills one with such amiability and peace and good will toward all the world as plenty of good food. And so why any man would ever encourage his wife to go on a diet passes comprehension. Far, far better a wife is a household angel than a perfect "36."

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is past 60. I am 50. We have been married thirty years. Have a family of children, all married and gone. Our married life has been happy and perfectly congenial until of late when I have found out that my husband is unfaithful. His business does not require all of his time now so he has begun playing around with young girls. I wish I could hate him, but he has become a part of my life and I could not exist without him and I do not want my children to have the disgrace of a divorce and a broken home. Can you tell me the best thing to do?

A WORRIED WIFE

ANSWER: Yes Just have patience. Try to think of your husband as being afflicted with a temporary spell of insanity that he will get over if you will just wait a while. For, in reality, that is what is happening to him A lot of men have the same trouble It is what you might call a delusion of yiuth that they get when they are about your husband's age and it makes them want to jump the bars and kick up their heels and run with the colts and otherwise act devilish. And the only cure for it is time. Give them that and they recover completely and are ashamed and sorry, and they never have a second attack.

It is enough to disgust any wife as well as break her heart, but she makes a mistake if she punishes him as he deserves by getting a divorce. Because a divorce brings the old wife no happiness. She is too old to readjust her life or find new interests. For so many years she has had no thoughts, no desires, no life apart from him, and it is too late for her to try to separate herself from him. Better far to wait for him to come back to her, as he will surely do

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am deeply in love with a young man who is just a poor, hard-working boy while I am a girl who has had every indulgence. Would you advise me to marry this young man, or would it be best for me to marry a man who could give me the things that I now have?

PEGGY

ANSWER: It depends altogether on what sort of girl you are, Peggy. If you are one of the women who think more of a man than you do of a pocketbook, then marry your poor man.

But don't do it unless you are a good sport and are going to be able to make sacrifices without whining, and work without considering yourself a martyr.

Presbyterial Head Addresses Trinity WMS

Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe of Hastings, president of Peterborough Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society, took the theme "Go ye into all the World, and preach the gospel to all people" for a splendid Easter massage at Trinity Church Auxiliary's thankoffering meeting Tuesday afternoon. She also led the group in prayer.

Worship service was given in the form of an Easter playlette "King of the Jews," aptly portrayed by Mrs. A. Legon, and Mrs H. Rehill. Mrs. H. A. Mitchell sang "Were you there when they crucified my Lord" with accompaniment by Mrs. Donald Kennedy.

The community friendship secretary reported 36 calls on shut-ins during the month. Members were asked to bring good used clothing for a bale for relief abroad to the next meeting. An invitation was extended from Living Link Mission Circle to the May 15 meeting. The reaffliation service of the C.G.I.T. will be on Monday April 24.

Mrs. J. E. Middleton and Mrs H. Martin were in charge of the Social half hour.

What's Right

You know that a friend has stopped drinking.

WRONG WAY 'Kid' him about it and urge him to have 'just one' when he is a guest in your home.

RIGHT WAY: Help him stick to his decision by accepting it without any joking or any attempt to persuade him to have a drink.

Guests At Park St.

When the Senior Mission Circle of Park St. Baptist Church held the Easter meeting the speaker was Mrs. H. J. Parnell of the Salvation Army. Title of her address was "Standing by" and she showed how to play the part required of Christians by standing by in faith and prayer. Her daughter Mrs. R. Braund was the guest soloist and was accompanied by Mrs. G. Routley at the piano. President Mrs. J. Halcrow was in the chair and Mrs. E Young read a scripture selection from Mark. Mrs. W. Masters read an Easter poem. The program arrangements were made by Mrs Ray Derrick.

Car Buying Sparks 9% Jump In February Retail Sales

OTTAWA, April 20 — (CP) — Canadian motorists went on a buying spree in February to spark a sharp upward trend in the Dominion's retail trade.

Reporting a 9 per cent jump in retail trade over February last year, the Bureau of Statistics said the rise was due mainly to sharply increased sales of motor vehicles and to a lesser extent to gains in sales of garages and filling stations, and coal and wood dealers.

The over-all advance in retail trade during February—the largest gain in 10 months—compared with a rise of 2 per cent in January and an average gain of 5.8 per cent throughout 1949. In the first two months this year sales moved up 5.2 per cent.

Dollar Volume

In a separate report, the bureau said the dollar volume of wholesale sales in February was unchanged from the level of a year earlier, but showed an increase of 6 per cent over sales in January this year.

The bureau gave no actual sales figures in either report, with increases or decreases being listed only on a percentage basis.

Aggregate dollar volume of wholesale sales in the first two months this year was 2 per cent lower than in the corresponding period last year. The wholesale sales index—computed on a basis 1935-39 sales equal 100—was 244.8 for February.

Wholesale Up

Wholesale dollar sales in both Ontario and the prairie provinces were 2 per cent above February, 1949, while 1 per cent declines were recorded for the Maritime provinces and British Columbia. In Quebec, sales were down 6 per cent from a year ago.

Fruits and vegetables and grocery wholesalers were the only two among the nine trades reporting to the bureau to register appreciable gains in dollar volume of sales over February last year.

At the retail level, motor vehicle dealer sales rose 102 per cent in the month under review. In the first two months this year a total of 44,119 motor vehicles were sold compared with 14,252 in the corresponding period last year. Garage and filling station sales were up 21 per cent.

Radio Sales

Coal and wood dealers showed an increase of 14 per cent in February sales following a 16 per cent gain in January. Appliance and radio sales were up 9.5 per cent and grocery and combination stores rose 5.1 per cent.

The apparel trades continued to show decreased sales volumes. Women's clothing stores reported sales down 9 per cent and men purchased 12 per cent less clothing.

The bureau said that retail sales volume in different regions generally followed the over-all gain, with the exception of Saskatchewan where a drop of 1 per cent was recorded.

Canadian Press Elects Quebec Editor President

TORONTO, April 20—(CP)—Herve Major, news editor of Montreal La Presse, yesterday was elected president of The Canadian Press, Canada's co-operative news service. He succeeds Victor Sifton, publisher of the Winnipeg Free Press, president for the last two years.

Frederick I. Ker, publisher of the Hamilton Spectator and president of CP in 1946-48, was elected honorary president, succeeding Senator W. A. Buchanan, of the Lethbridge Herald.

Roy H. Thomson, of the Thomson Dailies, was elected first vice-president. R. J. Rankin, managing editor of the Halifax Mail-Star, becomes second vice-president.

The new president of The CP has been an active newspaperman for 30 years. After graduating in 1918 from the College de Montreal he worked for a year as a reporter with Le Devoir, served four years with Le Canada, and joined La Presse in 1923 as a copy-reader and rewrite man.

He was appointed assistant news editor of La Presse in 1926, and two years later became news editor. He has been a member of The Canadian Press since 1939, and a director since 1943. He was elected second vice-president in 1946, and first vice-president in 1948.

Officers of the association were chosen by the board of directors after the annual general meeting of members, at which Mr. Sifton reported on the co-operative's operating position, and Gillis Purcell, general manager, on details of the news service.

The meeting reaffirmed the basic principle of CP, an organization which for 30 years has exchanged news between the various areas of Canada, as "the accurate and prompt provision of the news of all members' districts for the benefit of members generally."

Five transfers of membership were reported to the meeting. They were: St. John's Daily News from J. S. Currie to L. Chancey Currie; Sydney Post-Record from H. P. Duchemin to Roy D. Duchemin; Woodstock Sentinel-Review from C. O. Tatham to C. G. Kinsey; Chatham News from E. C. Young to Joseph Emmott; Nelson News from the late F. F. Payne to C. W. Ramsden.

Under a revision of by-laws, the annual meeting reduced the CP's board of directors from 21 to 19 members. For the first time directors were elected by secret ballot. Those chosen were:

British Columbia—P. C. Galbraith, Vancouver Province; H. P. Hodges, Victoria Times.

Prairie—W. A. MacDonald, Edmonton Journal; R. M. Cantlon, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix; D. B. Rogers, Regina Leader-Post; Victor Sifton, Winnipeg Free Press.

Ontario—Senator W. Rupert Davies, Kingston Whig-Standard; Frederick I. Ker, Hamilton Spectator; Arthur R. Ford, London Free Press; R. A. Farquharson, Toronto Globe and Mail; John E. Motz, Kitchener-Waterloo Daily Record; Roy H. Thomson, Timmins Press.

Quebec—Herve Major, Montreal La Presse; A. F. Mercier, Quebec L'Evenement-Journal; John Bassett, Montreal Gazette; A. J. West, Montreal Star.

Maritimes—J. R. Burnett, Charlottetown Guardian; R. J. Rankin, Halifax Mail-Star; T. S. Drummie, Saint John Telegraph Journal.

New members of the board are Messrs. Burnett, Cantlon and MacDonald. Gillis Purcell is general manager and secretary, and C. A. Day is treasurer.

Mayor Claims Riot Provoked By Brethren

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que., April 20.—(CP).—Mayor Francois Roy of Shawinigan Falls, said Wednesday night that the stoning of a meeting hall of the Christian Brethren sect here last week "obviously was provoked."

Speaking as an "impartial conciliator" during a regular city council meeting, Mayor Roy said het had tangible proof that the Christian Brethren was connected with another religious sect—the Witnesses of Jehovah — a claim which had been denied by the brethren.

Mayor Roy did not amplify on the link between the two.

Prior to the demonstration, he said, the Witnesses had been distributing in the city "highly provocative literature."

Flying Lab Tests Killing Fleas, Flies

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 20 (AP)—United States navy and government officials will leave here Friday in a specially-equipped, sealed airplane.

Their co-passengers will be 25,000 fleas, bedbugs, roaches, flies and mosquitos.

The object: to test an automatic aircraft disinfection device.

The swarms of pests will be released in flight to attack the big shots as they see fit. Then the pilot will press a button, 20 nozzles will squirt out insecticide and, if everything works right, the bugs will die.

The navy thinks it has the answer to pests (insect type) hitchhiking their way in from foreign countries.

NATURE UNSPOILED

YOURS TO PROTECT

The BARN SWALLOW is the beautiful, fork-tailed bird familiar to everyone. His swift and graceful flight, with his handsome brown and purplish-blue coloring make him a delightful sight. He should be protected, as he destroys tremendous quantities of harmful insects.

Seabrooks Leave Belmont Twp. After 63 Years

HAVELOCK, April 20 (ENS)—The Township Hall at Preneveau was the scene of a large gathering on Monday evening when members of Belmont Women's Institute and friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seabrook met to honor the couple, before they leave the community to take up residence in Havelock.

A short program, with Mrs. Charles Ellis, president of the Institute presiding, included a reading by Mrs. George Hartin, guitar solo by Joan McGowan, song by Carolyn Anderson, a skit by Mrs. W. Ketchen and Mrs. W. Smith, a duet by Lillian and Billy Toms with the latter playing a guitar accompaniment, two duets by Mrs. W. Goadsby and Mrs. W. Anderson. Community singing was also enjoyed.

Receive Two Gifts

Two presentations were made to Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook. Mrs. William Ketchen presented an electric table lamp on behalf of the Belmont Women's Institute and an electric iron was presented on behalf of their neighbors and friends by Mrs. Allan Hubble, with Mrs. William Harris reading the address for both gifts.

Supper was served following the presentations.

Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook were married in 1887 and have since lived at their present residence, across the road from the Seabrook homestead where the former was born, with the exception of a year spent in the McGill settlement. They have always been deeply interested in all the activities of the community.

Mrs. Seabrook is a charter member of the Belmont Women's Institute, which she served as secretary for 16 years following its organization. The property now owned by the Ontario Rock Company was part of their farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Seabrook have purchased John Leask's bungalow on Quebec Street and will move here about May 1.

Barber Refused To Cut Hair Of Negro Child

TORONTO, April 20 (CP)—Because a barber refused to cut the hair of a negro child, the city of Toronto may soon inaugurate a new policy of requiring licensees to agree not to practice racial discrimination.

The case appeared before the civic property committee, which voted unanimously to investigate the complaint.

Victor Makins, the barber, admitted he refused to cut the negro child's haid and said it was because his shop was crowded with other children awaiting their turn. Mr. Makins said he had been a barber here 26 years and had never seen a white barber cut the hair of a negro.

Fascists Creep Back To Power Join Red Enemies In Italy

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

ROME —(NEA)— Democratic forces still hold the upper hand in Italy—for the time being.

But a little more than five years after their defeat, the Fascists are creeping back into power under the impact of Communist sabotage and violence, and it is no longer either a disgrace or a crime in Italy to have been a Fascist.

Holy Year pilgrims and tourists are surprised at the open evidence of new pro-Fascist sentiment and at the lavish display of Mussolini's pictures, diaries and books on the newsstands of Italy's big cities.

There is a story current here of an Italian who recently returned to Rome after many years in self-imposed exile. When he saw all the pro-Mussolini literature being offered out in the open, he asked a friend:

"Isn't the Duce's propaganda ministry overdoing things a bit?"

Twenty years of Blackshirt regime succeeded in linking a vast number of Italians to the Fascist bandwagon on a permanent basis, and today more and more young and old alike grumble that "under Fascism it was better."

In Italy, as in the rest of Europe, there is a strange new political phenomenon not yet fully understood in the United States. Both the Communists and the Fascists, although confirmed enemies, are working hand-in-hand to perpetuate economic and political chaos in their countries. Such disorganization is the stock-in-trade of both groups.

Recently I sat through a stormy six-hour session in the Italian Chamber of Deputies. For six hours I watched the Communist and Fascist tactics of violence and rowdyism in action. It was hard to imagine that the men behind it all was the mild, professorial leader of the Italian Communists Palmiro Togliatti, who is also the famous Ercoli, trained in Moscow for many years as a Red agent.

But to Italian old-timers, the while scene was a flash-back to the turbulent days which paved the way for Benito Mussolini's seizure of power.

Aiding these forces are the new economic difficulties facing Italy's democratic system.

Overpopulation, excess manpower and rising unemployment are serious problems. Since the first debates on how to utilize Marshall Plan aid, large-scale emigration has been recognized as Italy's economic recovery. After two years, nothing has been done about it.

Meantime, Italy today has 2,100,000 unemployed, and their ranks are constantly growing. To cut this figure, many industries are retaining excess labor. But wages for these "unproductive workers" inflate the costs of manufactured goods and make it difficult for Italy to compete on the export market.

Even more serious is the failure of Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government to institute the long-overdue land reforms.

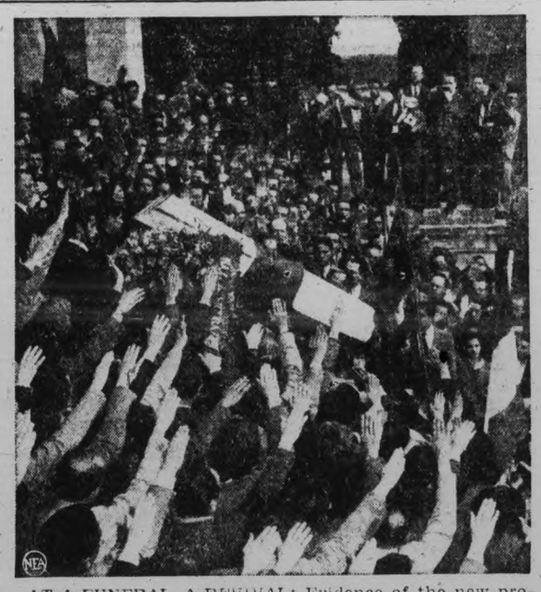
Out of an estimated 75,000,000 acres of productive land in Italy, the government had promised to distribute about 3,750,0000 acres to landless peasants and small farmers.

Thus far, nothing has been done to put this program into efect, and Communist-inspired land seizures in southern Italy and Sicily have been embarrassing to de Gasperi's government.

Equally embarrassing have been seizures by some of de Gasperi's Christian Democrats who wanted to beat the Communists to the punch and force government action. At that same time, the plan is meeting opposition within the premier's own party and from the powerful Farmers' Union.

At the moment, the Communists have lost some of their strength due to indiscriminate use of strikes as a political weapon. The influence of the Vatican and the Marshal Plan, which is more popular in Italy than anywhere else, have dampened pro-Soviet sentiments.

But time is on the side of Moscow and Palmiro Togliatti. Unless the de Gasperi government acts soon on the excess manpower and unemployment problems and does something about land reforms, any action may be too late.



AT A FUNERAL, A REVIVAL: Evidence of the new pro-Fascist sentiment now openly displayed in Italy is the old Fascist salute by these Romans at a funeral for a slain Fascist leader.

Total War Omits Nothing-General

VICTORIA, B. C., April 20 —(CP)—Lt.-Gen. Guy G. Simonds said Wednesday that modern war is total war and industrial and economic factors as well as the obvious military must be studied and co-ordinated.

He arrived here at the head of a party of 31 defence experts now on a Canadian-wide tour as part of the third annual defence course for senior civilian and service officers. The purpose is to study industry and defence problems.

Gen. Simonds, 46-year-old commandant of the Defence College at Kingston, declined comment as to possible increase in west-coast defences.

"This is a general assessment of defences and weaknesses," he said in an interview. "At the end of the course a report will be submitted to the government."

The party will fly to Whitehorse, Y. T., Friday and later will visit Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska.

Woman Dies One Day Before 100th Birthday

RUTHERGLEN, Ont., April 20 —(CP).—Friends of Mrs. Abigail Chaput were planning a big celebration for her Thursday. The occasion would have been her 100th birthday anniversary. The plans had to be called off, however Mrs. Chaput died Wednesday.

Runaway Truck Injures 2 People

TORONTO, April 20 (CP)—A three-year-old boy and a woman were injured Tuesday by a driverless truck that careened down a hill in northwest Toronto.

Paul Hartt, 3, suffered a broken leg when the truck hit his tricycle. Mrs. Annie Snider, 36, suffered leg cuts.

James Creighton, 18, driver of the truck said he was thrown from it as he swerved to avoid an automobile. He suffered abrasions and head injuries.

FAB WASHING TIPS

FROM HUNDREDS OF LETTERS PRAISING THIS FABULOUS WASHING DISCOVERY

FAB MAKES DISHES — SPARKLE!

"FAB is simply wonderful for dishes, pots and pans. It gets the most stubborn, cooked-on food off like a dream. Glasses, silver, dishes, come out of those Fab suds sparkling clean, needing only a whisk of the towel!" says Mrs. N. Sharley, Saskatoon.

FAB GETS COLLARS, CUFFS REALLY WHITE!

"FAB, rubbed into the grimiest spots on collars and cuffs, gets out even the most stubborn dirt! Thanks to Fab, white shirts wash whiter than ever . . . with far less work! I'm using Fab for all my washing . . . from delicate china to heavy laundry!" says Mrs. B. E. Metcalfe, Peterborough.

FAB WASHES GRIMY TOGS REALLY CLEAN!

"My husband does get his clothes greasy and grimy. Fab washes the greasiest clothes clean as a whistle . . . with less rubbing and scrubbing! I agree that Fab is truly fabulous!" says Mrs. J. L. Green, Bronte.

FAB MAKES BABY CLOTHES REALLY SOFT!

"Fab makes little woolens so soft and fluffy . . . kind to baby's tender skin. What's more important, they're CLEAN . . . I'm sure with Fab my baby's clothes are germ-free and SAFE!" says Mrs. E. K. Clarke, Toronto.

ALL YOU NEED FOR EVERYTHING YOU WASH!

FUNNY BUSINESS —By Hershberger

"This year we've decided to have a garden in spite of any flood!"

"You can quote us" say the ALLANS

"IT WAS JUST LIKE A MIRACLE," says Mrs. George Allan, 890 Garfield St., Winnipeg, Man., "the way KEM-TONE covered our old dirty walls with just one coat."

You, too, will like the way KEM-TONE covers most surfaces in one coat, without primer or sealer, and dries to a lovely, washable, matte finish. KEM-TONE is not a water paint . . . it's a resin and OIL finish that mixes with water and flows on quickly and smoothly from brush or Roller-Koater.

EDWIN A. ALLAN
1-1731 Franklin St., Vancouver, B.C.
"KEM-TONE is by far the easiest working paint I have ever used. It only seemed a matter of minutes before I finished the whole room."

Reds Refuse To Pay For U.S. Plane

Insist Plane Shot An Armed Bomber Taking Photographs

LONDON, April 21—(AP)—Russia today rejected a United States demand for compensation for the loss of an American plane fired at by Soviet fighter planes in the Baltic area April 8.

The U.S.S.R. also insisted the plane was a B-29 bomber, not an unarmed Navy Privateer and that it fired at the fighters first.

In a note handed to U.S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk at Moscow, Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky declared the plane was trying to "photograph Soviet defence installations."

The note said the Soviet government cannot accept for examination the U. S. demands for compensation and a guarantee against any recurrence of the incident.

It asserted these demands "are clearly absurd and without any foundation whatever."

The U. S. protest note declared:

1. The only American military plane aloft in the Baltic April 8 was the unarmed navy Privateer.

2. It did not fly over "any Soviet or Soviet-occupied territory or territorial waters adjacent thereto." The United States does not recognize the Soviet acquisition of Latvia.

3. Russia should punish those responsible for shooting down the aircraft.

4. The Soviet Union should pay appropriate indemnity for the lives of the 10 crew members lost.

5. The Russians should take precautions that a similar incident does not happen again.

Union Official Resigns After Fraud Charge

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — The union official involved in an alleged attempt to "obtain certification by fraud" at a New Hamburg, Ont., brass plant resigned several weeks ago on request, it was announced today.

The United Steelworkers of America (CCL-CIO) issued a statement commenting on Thursday's announcement that the Ontario Labor Relations Board had turned down the union's application for certification as bargaining agent for employees of Hahn Brass Company.

"The Board dismissed the case on a charge of fraudulent action by a union representative in misrepresenting dues payments," the statement said.

"The international union acted on the case immediately. Resignation of the representative was asked and received at the time of the hearing some weeks ago and before the board decision was announced."

Membership Fees

The board had criticized action of the union organizers in the case. It said that while they had received enough signed union membership cards, the employees had apparently been unwilling to pay the $1 initiation fees.

The board's criticism was aimed at the fact that the organizer had put up the $1 in initiation fees and then attempted to give the board the impression the money had actually come from the employees.

The statement from the United Steelworkers said "no criticism of the Labor Relations Board will be made by the union in the Hahn Brass case.

"Regrettably, the law prevents the board from ascertaining the wishes of the worker in the matter of union organization. There never was a suggestion that the majority of the workers had not signed union application cards."

US Orders Czech Consulate In Chicago To Shut Down

WASHINGTON, April 21—(AP)—The United States today ordered Communist Czechoslovakia to shut down its Consulate General in Chicago not later than May 1. The action, announced in a note to the Czech government, was in direct retaliation of an order closing the libraries of the U.S. Information Service in Czechoslovakia and the American Consulate General in the city of Bratislava.

The State Department's note rejected as worthless the Czech charges that the U.S.I.S. was being used as a cloak for spying activities against the Communist regime.

However, the U.S. Government agreed to carry out the closing order and to recall Joseph C. Kolarek, press attache at the American Embassy in Prague.

In stating that the United States is "obliged to comply" with the Czech demand, the note added that "the Czechoslovak government must, however, expect that its action can not escape serious consequences affecting various aspects of the relations between the two governments."

The Consulates normally handle trade, business and travel matters.

The note was a 1,000 word, hard-hitting attack on the Czech action. It charged that the Communist regime is "obliged to seek excuses" for an attempt "to isolate the Czechoslovak people from the outer world" along the same lines followed by other Communist - dominated countries of Eastern Europe.

The note came on top of a demand for an apology from Czechoslovakia for "improper" acts of Czech police against an American embassy employee.

An earlier note charged the police violated "the most fundamental human rights" in trying to entrap Katharine Kosmak, director of the USIS library at Prague and an American citizen.

With the complaint was filed an affidavit by Miss Kosmak. In it, she declared the police, by "use of fear and threats," tried to exploit a romance with a former employee, Ivan Elbl, in an effort to force her to misrepresent the aims and activities of the USIS.

Elbl is one of a group of former Czech employees who have signed statements declaring that the USIS in Czechoslovakia was actually engaged in spying against the Communist regime. Two of the group have been sentenced to prison terms.

Czech Minister Castle Prisoner

LONDON, April 21 (Reuters). —Dr. Vladimir Clementis, former Czechoslovakian Foreign Minister, is imprisoned in the Castle of Jarovina, in the high Tatra Mountains of Slovakia near the Polish frontier, unconfirmed reports reaching London today indicated.

Dr. Clementis, for many years a prominent member of the Czech Communist Party, resigned his appointment as Foreign Minister March 14.

It was generally believed at the time that he had been disgraced, but the cause of his eclipse has never been fully known.

It was officially announced in Prague March 14 that Clementis had resigned, and that the Prime Minister Antonin Kapotocky had recommended President Klement Gottwald to appoint Vilem Sirocky, one of the deputy-premiers as new Foreign Minister.

Clementis, as Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in the exiled Benes government in London during the war, had become suspect in a regime where all contacts with the West were now held to be incriminating, it was believed here.

Resignation of the 47-year-old Clementis followed rumors of his downfall which had been more or less widespread for several months.

Half Foreign Service Heads Former Nazis

BONN, Germany, April 21 — (Reuters) — Dr. Wilhelm Haas, chief of the organization bureau for West Germany's Embryo Foreign Service, said Thursday that 14 of the 31 senior members of the service were former members of the Nazi party.

He told a press conference that the government was satisfied, however, none of these men was in any way politically objectionable today.

"There are simply not enough persons with the required talent to fill our posts at home and abroad if we do not draw on former members of the Reich Foreign Office, who in many cases joined the Nazi party out of practical or moral cumpulsion," he added.

Red River Rises Ready For Worst

WINNIPEG, April 21 (CP) — The wheels of flood-prevention machinery gathered speed today as the turbulent Red River steadily continued to swell.

Southern Manitobans in the Red River valley Thursday night prepared to move their families, livestock and furniture to higher levels; dynamite crews blasted ice jams; barricades and dikes were being raised, and the reserve army stood by for emergency flood duties.

At Winnipeg, the Red tilted over the 18-foot level this morning. An ice jam forced the level upward to 18.9 feet between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. once the jam dissolved the level eased back to 18.4 feet. Peak in the disastrous 1948 spring season was 22.4 feet.

Meanwhile the crest of the Red and its swollen tributaries, which have hit northeastern North Dakota with its worst flood in 53 years, continued moving toward Grand Forks, leaving hundreds of flooded-out families in its path. Grand Forks is 150 miles south.

Provincial government engineers say that if the crest holds off in Manitoba for about eight days the bulk of local water probably will be drained off.

Girl 'Can't Say No' School Principal Can

TORONTO, April 21 — (CP) — Students of a West Toronto collegiate walked out of the auditorium in a huff Thursday when the principal called a halt to school election campaigning which threatened to turn into a vaudeville show.

The speeches of two student candidates were stopped when they tended more to off-color burlesque shows than campaigning.

A 16-year-old girl student also was halted mid-way through her rendition of a parody on the "Oklahoma" musical favorite "I'm Just a Girl Who Can't Say No."

The student elections, being held today, are part of Harbord Collegiate's civic education program.

Claim Sleep Cures Sickness

Reds Using Sleep In Serious Ailments

LONDON, April 21 — (AP) — Russian medical researchers, basing their work on the theories of the great Russian physiologist Ivan Pavlov, have succeeded in working "miraculous cures" of varied, serious ailments with long sleep, according to press reports.

The Soviet press has reported careful and long-term research with sleep cures in a number of Russian medical institutions.

The latest attainments in this field were reported in connection with surgery from the Vishnevsky Surgery Institute of the Academy of Sciences of the USSR. In another branch of medicine, a Stalin prize was awarded to a Professor Andreev here for successfully applying sleep to the treatment of internal ailments.

Andreev used lengthy sleep to cure stubborn, previously-uncurable ulcers of the stomach and small intestine. He is said to have obtained remarkable results.

In the Vishnevsky Institute, long sleep is being used in many cases to secure recovery without the use of any surgery at all. In other cases it is used to speed recovery after surgery.

The patient is put to sleep by the use of soporifics for 18 to 20 hours a day for periods ranging from two or three days up to 25 days, depending on the condition and the ailment. The drug used to induce sleep in the Vishnevsky Institute is sodium amytal which, it is claimed, produces a state extremely close to natural sleep.

A Russian paper recently reported a case from the Vishnevsky Institute of patient with acute extended peritonitis—a possibly-fatal illness. Surgery was undertaken and about four yards of the inspected intestine removed. Nevertheless, said the account, the patient sank fast and death seemed near. At this point the surgeons resorted to long sleep, 18 hours a day. The patient recovered.

Pavlov's suggestion on sleep therapy originally was applied to mental ailments here, and this is still its greatest field of use.

Quit Trieste Russia Tells Britain, U.S.

Naval Base 'Illegal' Demand Appoint Governor At Once

MOSCOW, April 21—(AP)—Russia demanded today that the United States and Britain get their 10,000 troops out of Trieste and that the strategic Adriatic area be organized as a free territory immediately. Charging the United States, Britain and France with "grossly violating" provision of the Italian peace treaty designed to make Trieste a free territory under United Nations supervision, a Soviet note insisted on "liquidation of the illegal Anglo-American naval base" it said had been established in the port city.

The note was handed here Thursday night to Diplomats of the United States, Britain and France by Andrei Gromyko, Deputy Foreign Minister. Published by the Soviet News Agency Tass, it charged Trieste "has been converted . . . into a military springboard occupied by the armed forces of the United States and Britain, which constitutes a threat to the peace and security of Europe."

(In Washington, American officials said the United States and Britain are within their legal rights in keeping troops in Trieste until the free territory is established. They asserted Russia has been chiefly responsible for the delay in setting up the territory because, they charge, the Soviet Union would not agree on a governor to administer the area under a mandate.)

(Britain, France and the United States in 1948 proposed return of Trieste to Italy, which formerly occupied it. United States officials now say that any settle-

Federal Government Opposes Public Works

TORONTO, April 21 — (CP) — The Toronto District Labor Council (AFL) was informed Thursday night that the Federal Government is opposed to any further public works projects because they would aggravate unemployment by diversion of materials from projects planned by private industry.

The executive said it had received a letter from Deputy Minister Arthur MacNamara saying the government is opposed to any competition with private industry for materials and men. The deputy minister's letter added that the government hopes provision for assisting unemployed will be discussed at an early meeting with provincial authorities.

Nationals, Reds Both Report Hainan Success

TAIPEI, Formosa, April 21 — (AP)—Hainan dispatches boasted, but Chinese Nationalists here still sweated today over the fate of the South China island invaded Monday by Reds.

There was little fresh news. One thing seemed certain: Nationalist and Chinese Communist troops for the fifth straight day were locked in a fierce struggle for the big island, 10 miles off the South China coast.

One dispatch quoted a Hainan defence headquarters spokesman: "We are going to announce a great victory soon."

(The Communists said Red Gen. Lin Piao's crack fourth field army went ashore Monday along a stretch 25 to 45 miles west of Hoihow, the capital, and cracked "line after line" of Nationalist defences.

(The first official Red version of the invasion was broadcast Thursday by Peiping radio and heard in San Francisco by the Associated Press.

(The broadcast said Red troops by the second day had smashed 10 miles inland and captured Fookshan (Fushan), 25 miles southwest of Hoihow. The Reds said they killed or wounded 200 Nationalists and captured 2,000.)

The Nationalists said 1,000 Red prisoners were paraded Wednesday through Hoihow streets.

Observers in Taipei feared that if Hoihow is captured or even isolated the Nationalists might lose control of Hainan Strait, the 10-mile stretch of water leading to mainland China. Then the Reds would be able to pour in reinforcements at will.

But Claire L. Chennault's civil air transport line flew its schedules today to Hoihow. This was taken as a sign the capital is not in danger.

Divide South Africa Into Racial Areas

CAPETOWN, South Africa, April 21 (AP). — A government-backed Bill which would divide all of South Africa into separate group areas for each race of people will soon be introduced to the South African Parliament.

Interior Minister Donges is to introduce the Bill which would, in effect, place ownership and occupation of land under complete government control without recourse to Parliament.

The Bill, which would be expected to come into effect piecemeal in various sections of the country, would set up three main "group areas"—for whites, colored people (Indians, Malayans, and mixed races), and native negroes. These areas could then be sub-divided into separate special groups for various categories.

B.C. Attorney-General Says Emigration One Solution; Must Obey Country's Laws

Consults Garson On Sect's 'Terrorism', Sons Of Freedom Cause Chief Trouble Making 'Real Effort' To Solve Problem

OTTAWA, April 21—(CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Wismer of British Columbia today announced that one of the solutions being sought to put a halt to Doukhobor terrorism is to get them to emigrate to another country. But while these and other solutions are being considered, "the governments are determined that the laws of Canada must be obeyed."

Mr. Wismer issued a 1,200-word statement after discussions with Justice Minister Garson on the best means of solving the Doukhobor menace which has taken on new importance with resumption of "criminal terrorism" in British Columbia.

Mr. Wismer expressed "great disappointment" that at the very time that the Provincial and Federal governments, together with the University of British Columbia and the National Research Council are "bending every effort to a solution of the Doukhobor question, there should be a resumption of criminal terrorism."

The two governments realized there was no easy solution to the problem, and they were employing a method which would be "just, Christian and orderly."

"The Doukhobors for some time stated they wish to emigrate," Mr. Wismer said. "If this is a genuine desire, and agreement to receive them can be reached with

Liberals Name Leader In Fall

TORONTO, April 21.—(CP). — Liberal House Leader, Farquhar Oliver, will definitely not stand for re-election to the leadership of the Ontario Liberal Party, it was learned today.

Mr. Oliver has informed the Ontario Liberal Association that he meant what he said when he tendered his resignation from the post last year.

Speculation as to the election of a new leader for the party was revived today owing to earlier reports that the convention was to have opened its deliberations in Toronto today.

"I do not know where that report came from, but it certainly was not right," said Norman Mathews, K.C., president of the Ontario Liberal Association today. "You can say that the convention will be held definitely in the fall."

So far only two candidates have definitely announced their intention to stand before the convention. They are Campbell Calder, Member of Parliament for London, and Ernest Livermore, Western Ontario lawyer.

Will Seize Cars On Drunk Driving Charge

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — The automobile of any motorist charged with drunk driving in Ontario will be seized as soon as the charge is laid, police said today.

The move is designed to prevent motorists charged with drunk driving from selling their cars before their cases come up for trial.

J. C. Bickell, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, issued the order under an amendment to the Highways Traffic Act passed at the last session of the Legislature.

From now on, when a motorist is arrested on a drunk driving charge, he will be given two choices. He can either give up his car to police or post a bond for it.

Police will keep the car until the trial. If the motorist is freed he gets the car back, or the bond if he has posted one. If he is convicted, the car remains impounded as long as the judge orders the licence suspended.

The amendment which cleared the way for this order was passed in answer to pleas of police who complained that motorists were selling their cars immediately after arrest on drunken driving charges. The result was that if the motorist was subsequently convicted, there was no car for police to impound.

New Fire Law May Break Ships

VANCOUVER, April 21 (CP)— Pacific Coast shipping men said today they have learned of new Federal fire regulations which may force small passenger lines out of business.

It is Order-in-Council PC 1896, passed last month as an aftermath to the Toronto Noronic disaster, which took a heavy toll of life.

The regulations, shipping men said, provide that all passenger vessels carrying more than 99 persons and making a complete round voyage of more than 15 miles "shall be fitted with an automatic sprinkler and automatic fire alarm system . . . effective for protection against fire in all enclosed parts of the vessel."

Operators here said there is not a ship so equipped on the BC Coast. They said they doubt if any in Canada meet the stiffened requirements.

"It will cost at least $100,000 per vessel to install a sprinkler system," said Capt. O. J. Williams, manager of Canadian Pacific Steamships.

"These regulations will result in many small companies being forced out of business, because their trade does not warrant this expense," he added.

US Shipping Strike Averted

Fear Telephone, Railroad Workers May Walk Out

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP) —A walkout of 4,000 deck officers which threatened to make idle 300,000 maritime workers on the Atlantic and gulf coasts of the United States was averted today.

Government mediators quickly shifted their attention to looming strikes in the railroad and telephone industries.

These strikes were due to start in the next few days.

The AFL masters, mates and pilots had been scheduled to force their long dispute to a head by walking out Saturday at midnight. But with the help of government conciliators, and backed by a threatened sympathy demonstration by all other AFL maritime unions operating from Atlantic to gulf ports, the controversy finally was settled.

Hiring and job security standards were the issues in the deck officers' drawn-out dispute. The union postponed strikes four times at the government's request.

In the telephone industry, the Communications Workers of America (CIO) said it is ready to make more than 200,000 telephone operators, equipment installers and manufacturing workers idle next Wednesday morning.

The CWA has demanded a 15-cent hourly boost in wages, as well as other concessions from Bell System companies from coast to coast. The firms have contended that phone workers already were well paid.

A state-appointed arbitration board in New Jersey Thursday awarded phone workers in that state a $2.50 weekly wage boost. This amounts to a 6½-cent-an-hour increase on the basis of a 40-hour week.

CWA's president, Joseph A. Beirne, said the New Jersey award could be used "as a base for agreements throughout the country."

In railroads, the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen has also set a strike for Wednesday morning. It is demanding assignment of a second fireman on multiple-unit diesel locomotives and a fireman on small diesels now operating only by an engineer.

The union is striking only a few key railroads to prevent creating a national emergency and seizure of the lines by President Truman.

Meanwhile the pension strike at Chrysler, which has made more than 100,000 automobile and allied workers idle, still is being negotiated. Spokesmen for Chrysler and the United Auto Workers (CIO) say there is some hope for an early settlement.

Harry Lauder Leaves Will Of $1,112,810

HAMILTON, Scotland, April 21 —(AP)—Sir Harry Lauder, Scottish minstrel who died Feb. 26, left £358,971 ($1,112,810), his will disclosed today.

The government takes £207,581 of it in death duties.

Chief beneficiaries are Sir Harry's niece, Miss Greta Lauder, his constant companion for many years, and other realtives.

UK Labor Gov't Put To Test In Budget Debate

LONDON, April 21 (Reuters)—Challenge upon challenge confronts Britain's Labor government as political opponents, labor and private enterprise, combine in an attack on wage and financial policies.

A Conservative party spokesman in London Thursday night announced the party's intention of bringing Sir Stafford Cripps' budget to a series of vital votes in the closely aligned House of Commons, where Labor's majority is only four.

Industrial relations were tangled, meanwhile, by the developing London dock strike. Also, Scottish trade unions produced a majority vote interpreted as a heavy blow to the wage-freeze policy ordered by the government and so far supported, despite developing difficulties, by the Trades Union Congress leadership.

Liberal party criticism of the new budget proposals, voiced in parliament Thursday night by the Liberal party leader, Clement Davies, indicates that Labor may expect a Liberal-Conservative voting coalition when the financial and taxation proposals come to the test in the house next week.

The heaviest political artillery will be brought to bear on Labor's tiny majority Wednesday when parliament will vote on such contentious points as the additional tax on gasoline. The new addition of ninepence (13 cents) a gallon brings the price of gasoline to three shilling a gallon.

The government may not regard votes on procedure matters as reason for resignation. But next week's votes on key items in the Chancellor's budget will be more difficult to ignore, and could bring the present session to a premature end.

Meanwhile, foodstuffs for rationed Britain lay useless in idle ships today as 6,000 London dock workers were on strike in protest against the expulsion of three members from their union.

In Scotland, the government heard new warnings of a possible revolt against the wage standstill and the anti-inflationary policy continued last Tuesday in the budget.

Delegates representing 726,000 trade unionists in Scotland voted support for "legitimate wage claims" on a resolution moved by Abe Moffatt, Communist leader of the Scottish mine workers. Moffatt interpreted the vote as an abandonment of the wage-restraint policy advocated by the government and the leaders of the Trades Unions Congress.

2 Convicted Murderers View Selves On TV

CHICAGO, April 21—(AP)—Two condemned murderers saw themselves on television Thursday night and a few hours later died in the electric chair for the $18 hold-up killing of a cab driver.

The doomed men, Alfonso Najera, 27, and Fred Varela, 26, were filmed in Death Row Thursday afternoon. The film then was put on a 7 p.m. newsreel-TV show and viewed by the men on a set lent them by Warden Chester Fordney.

Varella entered the death chamber at 12.01 a.m. today and was pronounced dead at 12.06. Najera followed at 12.14 and was pronounced dead at 12.20.

They were convicted of murdering a cab driver.

FIRST JEWISH JUSTICE—A new chapter was written this week in the annals of Canadian judicial history when Harry Batshaw, of Montreal, became the first member of the Jewish faith to ascend to a high court bench. Imperial Vets Pensions Urged

OTTAWA, April 21 (CP) — Better treatment of Canada's veterans of the First World War and other conflicts was urged in the Commons Thursday when the government moved to implement a plan to pay war veterans allowances to some 3,000 Imperial veterans in this country.

Members, most of them veterans of either the First or Second World Wars, urged that the allowances—pensions paid to burnt out soldiers—be increased to at least $50 a month for single men and to $85 for married men. The allowances, paid only to needy veterans, now amount to $40 and $70 a month for single and married men, respectively.

They also urged that the Veterans' Affairs committee, which last met in 1948, be made a standing committee so that annually it could study the needs and requests of veterans of all wars.

Live Here 20 Years

The debate was on a resolution to a bill extending the War Veterans Allowance Act to cover veterans of Commonwealth and allied forces who fought in the First World War, came to Canada later and have lived here not less than 20 years. It will apply as well to those who fought in the South African War.

Veterans Minister Gregg, said the extension will apply mainly to veterans who came to Canada in the 1920s, retroactive to April 1 this year. It was expected that approximately 3,000 of these would be added in the next year. The annual cost of the allowances would go up $2,000,000.

Another 1,500 such veterans may become eligible within the next 15 years.

The bill also provides for decentralization of administration of the allowances act. A number of district war veterans allowance authorities will be appointed across the country and given power to increase, decrease or grant allowances.

Rock By Harvey Road Not Twp. Responsibility

A division court action brought against the township of Harvey by Charles Allen, Harcroft, has been dismissed by Judge S. L. Smoke.

Allen testified that last September 21 he was driving north on the Squaw River road (between Burleigh Falls and Bobcaygeon) when he made a sharp turn and struck a rock lodged in the one-and-a-half-foot high road bank.

He claimed the township was liable for damage to his car amounting to some $120.

In a written judgment Judge Smoke ruled that the rock in question "not being within the travelled portion of the highway the action is therefore barred by statute."

Two weeks before the accident the blade of a power grader disturbed the lodgment of the stone by partly turning it round. But Judge Smoke concluded from the evidence that neither before nor after the accident had the stone protruded upon the travelled part of the road.

He assessed damage to Allen's vehicle at $120 but dismissed the action with costs.

McCarthy Asks Senate Subpoena More Witnesses

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) today challenged Senate investigators to dig beyond Louis Budenz's sworn testimony that Owen Lattimore was a member of a "Communist cell."

McCarthy noted that Budenz, a confessed former Communist, testified that his information about Lattimore, a Johns Hopkins University professor, came from men he said were high in the party—he named Earl Browder, Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Jack Stachle.

"I think the investigating committee ought to subpoena those men and get their story," McCarthy told reporters. Counsel for Lattimore already had asked that Field be subpoenaed so his testimony could be matched against Budenz'.

McCarthy has accused Lattimore, Far Eastern affairs expert, of being Russia's top spy in the United States.

Budenz said on the witness stand Thursday that McCarthy's accusation on that score was not technically accurate, but he did back up the Senator's contention that the Communists had exercised disciplinary power over Lattimore.

Charge Challenged

A former high-ranking army intelligence followed Budenz to the stand and bluntly disputed that Lattimore was a Communist.

Lattimore has flatly denied McCarthy's charges against him.

The inquiry into McCarthy's assertions that Communists and fellow travellers have infested the United States state department is being handled by a Senate foreign relations sub-committee.

Budenz said that Browder, former head of the Communist party in the United States, "referred to Lattimore as a Communist."

Browder Denies

In New York, Browder replied that he never made any such reference to Lattimore, and added: "I don't think I ever discussed Mr. Lattimore in my life with anyone."

Also in New York, Field put out a statement calling Budenz's accusations against him "a shameless and slanderous lie."

The committee is in recess until Tuesday when it will meet to consider whether to subpoena Field and others mentioned by Budenz.

Brig.Gen. Elliott R. Thorpe told the committee Thursday that Lattimore is a loyal American "and is in no way an agent of the Communist party nor of the USSR." Thorpe, now retired, was Gen. MacArthur's counter-intelligence chief during the war.

Leopold's Homes Splits Belgians

BRUSSELS, April 21—(AP)—Only one point was reported today to stand in the way of agreement by Belgium's three major parties on bringing King Leopold back from exile. But political observers said that dispute may still cause a deadlock which would leave the country's stormy Royal question unsolved.

The disputed issue is whether Leopold is to be permitted to reside in Belgium or must return to virtual exile once he delegates his Royal powers to his 19-year-old son, Prince Baudouin.

All parties agreed Thursday night on a compromise solution calling for Leopold to return and to turn the throne over to his son temporarily. This compromise was suggested by Leopold in a speech recorded from his exile in Switzerland and broadcast to the Belgians last week.

The Privateer, missing with its crew of 10 since the day fixed by the Russians as the day of the exchange of fire, has been given up for lost.

The Soviet note today, broadcast by Moscow radio and picked up by the Soviet Monitor in London, replied to the U. S. protest note of April 18.

Text of the Soviet reply:

"In reply to the United States government's note of April 18, 1950, the USSR government considers it necessary to state the following:

"As already reported in the note of the Soviet government of April 11, the American aircraft which violated south of Lepaya, Latvia, the Soviet frontier, according to verified date was a four-engined military aircraft B-29 Flying Fortress, which not only failed to obey the demand of the Soviet fighter planes to follow them and land at an aerodrome but opened fire on the Soviet planes.

"After the leading Soviet fighter aircraft had been compelled to fire in reply, the American aircraft turned off in the direction of the sea and disappeared.

"These are the facts established by proper verification."

CORNWALL, April 21 (CP)—Mrs. Angus Mercier, prominent Cornwall resident, died Thursday at the age of 101.

A native of Vankleek Hill, Ont. Mrs. Mercier moved to Cornwall a number of years ago and celebrated her 101st birthday with members of her family last July.

Mother of 18 children, she is survived by four sons and two daughters.

Barbers' Assoc'n Denies Race Discrimination

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — The Ontario Barbers' Association commenting on reports of an "unwritten law" against cutting the hair of Negroes, said today the organization "does not discriminate against anyone on account of race, color or creed."

H. Morgan, a Negro, complained to police this week that his son, Marshall, 7, was refused a haircut two weeks ago by barber Victor Makins.

Makins said there was nothing "personal" in his action but "it has been an unwritten law that a white barber doesn't cut a Negro's hair. I have never seen this changed in 26 years and I have worked in barber shops all over the province."

Edwin V. Wark, association secretary, said in a statement:

"The Ontario Barbers' Association ie organized for the advancement and protection of the industry, consisting of employers and employees alike. It does not discriminate against anyone on account of race, color or creed."

Morgan's complaint to police touched off an investigation by a city council committee. There were suggestions it might result in the city requiring applicants for barbering licences to pledge themselves not to practice racial discrimination.

Solve Reds' Atom Explosion

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP) —Representative Charles Elston (Rep.-Ohio) says the United States has solved the case of the atomic explosion in Russia last year.

"We know definitely that it was caused by an atomic bomb," the Congressman told a reporter, "and we know what the ingredients of that bomb were."

Elston is a member of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, which deals with A-bomb and other related matters and has inquired closely into the Russian atomic blast.

He declined to disclose how the United States got information about the Russian explosion, or to discuss the Russian bomb further.

There has been much speculation over whether the Russians had a true bomb, or whether the blast might even have been caused by some disastrous accidental explosion of a Russian atomic experimental plant.

Trading Very Slow On Toronto Market

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — Activity slowed to a comparative crawl as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Prices moved in a narrow path with some mining issues slipping slightly from recent gains.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,086,000 shares.

A wide list of junior gold producers dipped pennies. Newlund, a feature Thursday on underground news from the property at Sioux Lookout, Northern Ontario, continued in good demand today.

Base metals were strong at the opening but sagged as the session progressed. Anacon lead moved against the trend for a gain of nine cents at a new high at 81 cents.

Industrials showed signs of recovering from Thursday's late decline. Papers, utilities, foods and constructions showed majorities of fractional advances. Liquors, refining oils and textiles slumped.

Western oils also found support. Moderated demand lifted Pacific Petroleum, Calgary and Edmonton and Foothills Oil and Gas.

Guilty Drunk Driver Given Seven Days

Arrested Thursday afternoon on a charge of drunk driving, Oscar Spinks of Havelock pleaded guilty and was today sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Provincial Constable D. W. Coffey testified he went to a house north of Hastings, where he found the accused in a car. "He was drunk," said the officer. "He thought he was in Peterborough."

The officer said Spinks' car had knocked over a pile of wood, and was damaged slightly. A further charge of driving without a license was dismissed when the crown offered no evidence.

Attorney-General

a country to which they are prepared to emigrate, the Canadian government certainly would not put barriers in their way.

"But while this and other solutions are being sought, the governments are determined that the laws of Canada must be obeyed."

The Attorney-General said that although there are three sects, numbering 12,000 Doukhobors, he blamed only one, the Sons of Freedom, for the fires and destruction that has ravaged some British Columbia communities.

There were only about 2,000 of these Sons of Freedom, compared with about 10,000 members of the Spiritual Community and the Independent Doukhobors. Both of the latter groups merited "great respect."

Because an adequate solution to the Doukhobor problem must go "deeper than merely just punishment," Mr. Wismer said the B.C. government has approached the University of B.C. and other organizations "with a view to having a thorough scientific investigation made into the underlying causes of these outbursts of violence."

A Quaker organization the American Friends Service committee, "who have a deep understanding of the Doukhobor religious and other problems," have volunteered to assist.

A representative of this group has visited British Columbia and conferred with leaders of the Doukhobor groups.

Difficulty has been experienced in disciplining the Doukhobors serving prison sentences, Mr. Wismer added, and consideration is being given to segregate the Doukhobor prisoners to give them special study and treatment "in an attempt at mass rehabilitation."

The whole program will be subject of study of a special committee, including representatives of the two governments, N.R.C., the University of B.C., the B.C. Education Department and the penitentiaries branch of the Federal Department of Justice.

"From reports received from our representatives it is clear that a real effort must be made to solve these problems and to rehabilitate the Sons of Freedom group. It is appreciated that the remedies must deal with such factors as the spiritual, social and economic outlook of these people."

In Krestova, BC, tight police cordons and road blocks girded the fire-menaced Doukhobor settlement here today while an Ottawa policy statement on the religious sect was awaited.

Fire inflicted by nude, chanting men and women struck Wednesday at the hilly, 50-shack village, centre of the radical Sons of Freedom sect of the Doukhobors. Even little boys were observed setting fire to one of the rude cedar and mud homes.

Four in all were burned before Provincial Police arrived to quell the outbreak, third in two weeks. Five men and three women members of the "Freedomites" were arrested.

St. Laurent Loses Temper Charged Evading

OTTAWA, April 21.—(CP). — Prime Minister St. Laurent, usually a mild-mannered and soft-spoken, showed the Commons Thursday he has a trigger-quick temper capable of exploding when his integrity is questioned.

A spark from an Opposition member's charge that he was evading a question set off the explosion and resulted in a display of anger probably unmatched by Mr. St. Laurent in his eight years in the Commons.

His face flushed, his arms gesturing, the 67-year-old Prime Minister of French and Irish descent, defiantly shouted across the floor to jeering Progresive Conservatives:

"I would rather lose my temper than lose my reputation!"

The evasion charge was made by Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra). Mr. St. Laurent said he resented the charge and he wanted members of the House to know it. Mr. Green would never be able to put him in a position where "I have to evade any suggestion of his."

Boarder Fined $25 He Has Learnt Lesson

Convicted last Tuesday of obtaining food and lodging by false pretences, Keith Schweir, Water St., was today fined $25 and costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Schweir was given a month to pay the fine, and $20 he owed Mrs. Marion Phillips, Wolsey St., for rent he had not paid.

"I don't want to go back to jail," the youth said. "I've learned my lesson."

Schweir has a record.

CHANGE OF HEART — John H. Grant, 31, of Gardena, Calif., sits dejectedly in his Venice police station after his plot to blow up his wife and two children aboard an airliner failed when he had a change of heart as the plane was about to take off. The debt-ridden aircraft engineer, in love with a stewardess, had taken out $25,000 worth of insurance on his family.

BOMB PLOT FIGURE — Elizabeth Suomela, assistant supervisor of stewardesses for American Airlines, resigned her job in Los Angeles after she admitted a romance with John Grant, who plotted to kill his wife and children by bombing an airliner carrying 16 persons. She said she had been in love with Grant for three years.

Mt. Pleasant Gets Pulpit Light

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 21 (ENS)—Mrs. A. Bland was hostess to the Woman's Association of the United Church for the April meeting held at her home on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of twenty members and one visitor.

The president, Mrs. H. H. Lowes, was in the chair. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. R. Carr and the devotional was taken by Mrs. D. Lawson.

Mrs. Lowes reported that new numerals with "hymn" had been purchased to replenish the hymn board in the church and the pulpit light had been purchased and installed.

Arrangements were made to attend the annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery of the Woman's Association to be held at Lakefield United Church, Lakefield, on Wednesday, May 3rd.

The president and the secretary were appointed a life membership committee.

The purchase of an additional "communion service" was discussed and Mrs. H. Jamieson and Mrs. Lowes were appointed to purchase this.

The president reminded the members that this year will be celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of church union and a fitting recognition will be arranged at a later date.

Mrs. H. Bland and Mrs. H. Jamieson were in charge of the program.

Mrs. Althouse and Mrs. Downer, co-hostesses, assisted with the serving of refreshments.

Funeral Service Held For Annie M. Collins

Rev. F. W. Craik, of St. James' United Church, conducted the funeral service for the late Miss Annie Maud Collins on Thursday from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons.

Miss Collins was born in Peterborough, daughter of the late Elizabeth Connell and William Collins. She had always been an active member of St. James' United Church, having been a Sunday School teacher for many years and a member of the choir. Friends both from the church and the Canadian General Electric, where Miss Collins was a member of the Quarter Century Club, attended in large numbers.

Pallbearers were J. E. Girven, Thomas Glover, Ernest Lillico, W. K. McGee, Robert Booth and William Cochrane.

Interment was in Little Lake cemetery.

Communion Glasses Robt. Brown Memorial

ROSENEATH, April 21 (ENS)—A donation given by Mrs. Robert Brown in memory of her husband, is to be used towards the cost of new individual communion glasses and trays for the church, it was decided recently at a meeting of the Women's Association.

Mud Closes Road

ROSENEATH, April 21 (ENS)—A local drover, Mr. Gerald Rogers, driving a light truck from Roseneath to Burnley, ran into a soft spot on the road. The truck seemed to settle right down in the mud, requiring two tractors to move it. The road is closed to traffic until it can be repaired.

"COME ALONG WITH ME, LUCILLE . . ."—In his merry Oldsmobile, vintage 1901, Russell Cornelison prepares to set out from Louisville, Ky., on a cross-continental jaunt to Los Angeles. His handlebar moustache and duster stem from the same period as the auto. Cornelison hopes to average ten miles an hour while travelling, making it to Los Angeles in about two months.

Plans Completed For WA Bazaar

ROSENEATH, April 21 (ENS) — The Women's Association meeting was held in the township hall with Mrs. Neil Sherwin and Mrs. Ivan Thackeray as joint hostesses. The president, Mrs. Ford Derry, presided and Mrs. Bart Thackeray was pianist.

Balance of $284.46 was reported by the treasurer, Mrs. Fred Norris. Mrs. Arthur Braithwaite, convener of the Sunshine Committee, presented the report of that department.

Final plans were made for the annual bazaar to be held in the township hall on May 6. Mrs. Bart Thackeray, convener of the sewing committee, displayed a number of articles of sewing ready for the bazaar, and requested every member to contribute one piece of needlework for the sewing table.

Mrs. Ford Derry, convener of the parsonage committee, reported a new electric fixture placed outside the Church.

Plans were made to entertain the Warkworth Dramatic Club on April 26, when they present the play, "Closed Lips" in the L.O.L. hall, Roseneath. The executive was appointed a committee to be in charge of the lunch.

It was decided to share the expense with the Women's Institute in purchasing a new utility table for the hall.

The flower committee was instructed to purchase flowers for the Church.

Mrs. Rae Brown, program convener, announced the following numbers: A reading by Mrs. Earl Waldie. Mrs. Clarence Down was the winner of a lucky chair prize donated by Mrs. James Thompson.

The meeting was addressed by the Rev. R. C. White. The hostess served lunch.

Shopbreaking Charge

COBOURG, April 21 (ENS) —Wanted for shopbreaking in Port Hope Frank Battaglia, age 37, of Buffalo, who was arrested yesterday in Toronto, will be brought to Cobourg today. Provincial Constable Don Nicol went to Toronto this morning to bring Battaglia back here. Police say that on Dec. 14 Battaglia broke into Syd Wakely's service station, Port Hope, where he stole $25 in cigarets before taking to flight on the approach of Constable Lloyd Coughlin on his 6 a.m. beat. A Toronto report that Battaglia's car had been found in Cobourg was not correct.

Why Peterborough Should Be Zoned

At present this city has several zoning by-laws in effect. For instance, a section of the west end is specified to be residential, and no shops or factories may be built in the designated area. There are other similarly restricted sections. In general, however, the city has grown up piece-meal, and there has been no control of the use of land. As results, some of the city's best water-front has been made unlovely by factories and railway tracks (and useless to the public); a small factory is set in operation in the middle of a street which has been entirely residential, shacks make their appearance beside well-tended, substantial homes and reduce the value of the residences; shops are scattered here and there, often at inconvenience to shoppers—and some districts have no shops handy at all. Green areas have not been provided for in some sections; signs and billboards have been allowed to deface otherwise presentable neighbourhoods. The central commercial area is congested.

* * *

The haphazard development can be only partly mended now. But the development can be halted, and should be, by a zoning by-law which encompasses the whole city and its fifty-year future. Such a by-law is now prepared. The citizens will endorse it in principle; the time has come when they must approve it in detail. The details as well as the principles should now be brought to them, to each neighbourhood, as we suggested in these columns yesterday.

* * *

Undoubtedly individual objections and claims will run counter to the general intention of the zoning plans and the Master Plan of the City. Now is the time to adjust the separate and special interests to the general design. But the general purpose should not be lost sight of, and an adequate zoning by-law should be passed very soon.

A Fine Record Of Safety

Colonial Airlines has celebrated twenty years of operation during which no passenger or employee has been killed or seriously injured. Considering that the air line has moved 1,204,000 people over a total distance of 310,276,000 miles in that time, this is a fine record.

The motto of Colonial Airlines is "Safety is no accident". How true that is! There are mishaps against which vigilance is of no avail, but they are few. The majority of accidents are traceable, at last, to someone's neglect or to some precaution which has not been taken. In the air there is no such thing as a slight accident. Anything which interferes with the perfect operation of the plane may mean death for all on board. And yet, in twenty years, this airline has never had an accident, and asserts that its record is the reward of tireless precaution.

We wish Colonial Airlines well. And we wish that everyone in the country, whatever his work, would remember and apply that maxim, "Safety is no accident".

The U.S.A. Protests

The U.S.A. has protested formally against the shooting down of an unarmed American plane over the Baltic in a note to Russia; a verbal protest of less guarded nature has also been made by the State Department. It will be interesting to see what effect, if any, these protests have. Russian authorities have been as unhelpful as possible during the investigations which followed the incident. Russian airmen have been decorated in a manner which implies that they are being commended for having shot down an American plane. The situation is an ugly one and Russian authorities are doing whatever lies in their power to make plain their hostility toward the U.S.A. and their contempt for that nation's influence.

What this impertinence is intended to prove is beyond guessing. Russia knows very well the might of the U.S.A., and will not provoke a quarrel from which she cannot retire with honour. But Russia knows that in the present irritable state of world affairs the U.S.A. is not likely to threaten reprisal in a case of this kind. It is 100 years since nations could risk war over an international incident.

It looks as though Russia were trailing her coat. Having calculated how far the U.S.A. can be provoked without actual explosion, Russia is determined to come as near as possible to that mark. It is a very dangerous game.

In any consideration of this matter, however, it is impossible to repress two pertinent questions: What was an American plane doing in the place where this one was shot down? What would happen to a Russian plane flying over U.S. territory?

Bach For Peterborough

Wednesday evening the Toronto Mendelssohn choir, with symphony orchestra, and under the direction of Sir Ernest MacMillan, gave as one part of the week's bicentenary observances of Bach's death, the massive, exalted Mass in B Minor, one of the greatest achievements of art and human spirit. Again we must thank the C.B.C. which in the Wednesday of Holy Week, carried the St. Matthew Passion, and which Wednesday evening gave its listeners the Mass from Massey Hall in its entirety.

Fine as the broadcast may have been, it cannot take the place of hearing the work first hand. Many Peterborough people did go up to Toronto for the presentation. We were surprised to find that Massey Hall was not jammed to the doors for such a notable event. It was, in fact, only about three parts full. If the million people in Toronto and its suburbs cannot stir themselves to attend such a performance, outlying centres such as Peterborough will surely fill the void—if the people are informed about the concert in sufficient time. The management of Maple Leaf hockey games in Toronto have long realized that they get much support from outside centres like Peterborough, and do, through their publicity, and methods of ticket-sale, cater to the out-of-town supporters. Could the management of the Mendelssohn Choir and other concert organizations, not take a lesson from the hockey people, to their own, as well as outside centres' benefit?

Individuality In Building

We read with interest that the village of Scarsdale, N.Y., is planning a building bylaw which will make it impossible to build two houses which look alike in the same neighbourhood. The law is apparently detailed in its provisions, even to the placing of doors, the arrangements of windows and the use of attached garages.

There is a good deal to be said for such a law. In large cities, like Toronto, it is possible to drive through sections where as many as six houses, side by side, are identical. The effect on the eye is depressing; for anything we know to the contrary the effect on the people who live in the houses may be equally depressing. In other places one may see rows of houses which are the same in basic design, but which have been finished in slightly different ways. The slight differences deceive no one, and the effect is no better.

Individuality of plan costs more than uniformity, but it has its advantages. Rows of identical houses tend to decrease in value more quickly than property with more distinction.

There is one type of building in which similarity of plan can give a pleasing effect, and that is in a really well-planned terrace. For some reason terraces have never been popular in Ontario. Yet in the U.S.A. and in Europe there are examples of terrace design in which uniformity has produced an effect of beauty, and in these days of sound insulation there is no reason why a terrace house is less desirable than an attached one. Certainly a terrace is easier to heat.

The Scarsdale people are on the right track. The terrace builders can, if they choose, do a fine job. But for the rows of uniform houses the best that can be said is that they are cheap.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A snail's pace, if you are interested, is estimated to be about 15 feet per hour.

We object to that phrase "when all is said and done" because although it often happens that everything has been done, we have yet to be in a situation where everything has been said.

Reservations are being taken in New York for the first rocket trip to the moon on March 15, 1974. Two hundred people have signed on for the journey. We shall have to wait a while, however, as we are not sure our calendar is clear that day.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA.

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: What is the altitude of Peterborough? How does it compare with neighbouring towns?

ANSWER: Peterborough is 648 feet above sea level. If that seems low, then please know that Ottawa is only 215 feet above sea level, despite the long distance the Ottawa river at that place has to travel to join the St. Lawrence, and the St. Lawrence's distance there from the sea. Here are some neighbours' altitudes: Belleville, 287 feet, Lakefield 766, Lindsay 853, Haliburton 1,048, Bancroft 1,084 feet.

It is interesting that despite Haliburton's being in highlands, western Ontario places like Guelph (1,069), Kitchener (1,101) and Stratford (1,193) have higher altitudes.

ALPHA: What does the word "fruition" really mean? Has it anything to do with fruit?

ANSWER: That is a leading question, and obviously you know the answer. "Fruition" has no direct relation to fruits of a tree, and does not mean fructification, although both words ultimately derive from the same Latin word 'fructus' one of whose meanings is 'enjoyment', another produce or fruit. Our word fruition is used in the first sense, and comes directly from 'fruror'—to enjoy. It means pleasure derived from possession; enjoyment. So to use the word in such a phrase as "the plans to stop Russian expansion came to fruition last year" shows a hazy sense of the word's meaning. It does not mean that the plans bore fruit.

There is a host of fairly common words which are used loosely, or even ineptly, through a mistaken idea of their etymology. For instance, gingerly does not come from the word ginger. It is allied to the word gentle, from old French genzor—'pretty, delicate'. Gingerly means cautious, acting with extreme care; dainty, finicking.

Why is a cutlet so-called when it is not meat that is cut or sliced? The reason is that it has nothing to do with the word 'cut'. It comes from old French (as many of our meat terms do) coste-lette—a 'little rib'—'coste' is a rib.

The words pen and pencil are not connected. 'Pen' is from old French 'penne', from the Latin 'penna'—a feather or wing. (The modern French word for pen is, of course, 'plume'). Pens used to be quills. Pencil also comes from Old French and Latin—pincel, penicillum—painter's brush. The Latin penicillum is a diminutive of 'penis', tail.

The word 'sacrilegious' is often mispelt because people thing it is a combination of sacred and religious. It is not related to 'religious'; the stem comes from the Latin word for law—lex, legis. Sacrilegious (pronounced as religious) means guilty of the crime of sacrilege, or exhibiting irreverence; impious. (By the way, that last word is pronounced IMPius, not imPIEus—both i's short as in sit.

OLD SAWS ABOUT WEATHER: From time to time I have asked readers for a few kernels from their stores of folk weather-wisdom. Here are some which have come to Alpha's maw this week—Indian lore.

A robin sitting on the very top of a tree and singing is a sign of rain. So are flying squirrels sticking their heads out of their nests in hollow trees and uttering calls. (This last piece of information I do not consider very useful. The only flying squirrel I have ever seen was stuffed and in a case. Where have flying squirrels spread their wings to? They may be on the way to extinction, for all I know, although I have not yet seen any beer advertisement bewailing this.)

A new moon lying horizontaly means lots of rain. When it stands up pretty straight it means plenty of snow. I did not notice how the new moon stood on Monday and Tuesday.

Pointing at a storm will bring bad luck. If it has passed it will come back. Pointing at a rainbow is also unlucky—it will make you crooked.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALPHA: It seems to me that there are a lot of lawyers in town now. How many?

ANSWER: I myself was walking along the Court House building corridor the other day (somewhat alarmed, I must confess, in the unaccustomed, venerable and slightly righteous wooden surroundings) and a minor officer of long standing in the building asked, when I stumbled into the W.C. instead of through the door of the locked law library: "Are you a lawyer?", which alarmed me still more. Quite a few new lawyers have come to town, but they are generally replacing older men, and not swelling the numbers unduly. It seems that litigation and crime in Peterborough have not increased by leaps and larency to qualify the place as a new lush spot for lawyers. There are 22 practising lawyers in Peterborough today. Before the war there were 17-20.

WHAT THE READERS WOULD DO with a million dumped on their laps:

Miss P.B.: I would set up a perpetual fund to bring a good symphony orchestra to Peterborough for a one-week festival each year. Of course, that would mean we would have to have a good concert hall. Whether the million would also be enough to provide for building it, I do not know. Perhaps the concerts could be held in summer, on top of Armour Hill. Would not that be most pleasant? (Alpha's note: Yes, if it didn't rain; perhaps some of the million could be used to get a scientist or witch doctor to drive rain away on the scheduled evening.)

Mr. L.M.: I would buy up the Canada Packers plant, and the railway lines along the water front, and give the property to the city to convert into a parkway. (Alpha's hunch: Very good—but I'd bet your million would not do the trick. Perhaps you could do a dicker with the C.P. and the C.P.R.

A.R.: I'd buy up all the beer parlours in town, and set them up again on the English style of public houses (pubs). What the beer parlours need in this province is to remove the sense of sin hanging over them. The way things are now I feel guilty even looking at the outside of a tavern. Inside I feel just like a regular old devil.

FOR THE RECORD: After a late and slow upsurging, sap was running well by mild Monday. Because the season has been spread out, and with the warmth of the first days of the week, maple syrup will not be scarce in this district. It is selling at $4.50-$5.00 a gallon; at the bush and to old friends, I have heard that it can be had for $4.00.

ON A GOLDEN PLATTER

More Talk About Mr. Strachey

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

JOHN Strachey, Secretary of War for the United Kingdom, continues to be a lively subject of discussion on both sides of the Atlantic. What is now known as The Hague incident aroused further criticism of his appointment to the office he now holds, and further reaffirmation by Prime Minister Attlee of his confidence in Mr. Strachey. There have also been denials and counter denials regarding The Hague incident itself.

Nobody seems to know exactly what happened at The Hague. However, if we may judge by the resulting furor in London, something happened — and at a very high level. This has led impartial critics in the United States to name United States Defence Secretary Louis Johnson as the probable prime mover in the incident. Mr. Johnson, incidentally, is described by some unkind critics in Washington as the only bull who carries his own china shop around with him.

In the present political climate in the United States, it is not at all surprising to hear criticism of the appointment of Mr. Strachey to his present office, and of the appointment of Emmanuel Shinwell to the post of Minister of Defence. Neither Minister has ever admitted membership in the Communist party, and it is apparently doubtful they ever were members. Both men, however, freely admit that they had been convinced Marxists at one time, and there is little in the record of recent years to show any marked alteration in their convictions. This does not necessarily mean that their convictions have not altered, but it does leave them open to criticism from the Americans, who greatly fear Communists in high places in Britain—a feeling heightened by the Fuchs case.

This case aroused deep misgivings. Another source of apprehension is the retention of Frederic Joliot-Curie, admittedly a Communist, as head of the Atomic Energy Project in France. However, in fairness to Great Britain and to the Republic of France, we think it should be pointed out that this feeling of misgiving is not all one-sided. If Americans are justified in feeling apprehensive about these appointments, is there any reason why there should not be apprehension in Britain and France over the manner in which certain United States Senators are branding high United States officials as security risks, or worse? We do not think there is. It is a matter which works both ways, and it is far better dealt with openly than by whispered rumours, and subsequent denials.

PATIENT WAITER

A pompous individual stalked into the office and demanded to see the manager.

"I'm sorry, but he's not here," replied the receptionist. "Is there anything I can do?"

"No!" snapped the visitor. "I never deal with underlings. I'll wait until he returns."

"Very well, take a seat," said the girl, and went on with her work. Half an hour later, the man became impatient. "How much longer do you think he will be gone?" he demanded gruffly.

"About three weeks," answered the girl calmly. "He left for South America yesterday."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory.

O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord. (I Cor. 15: 54-58.)

Letter To The Editor

NO EVE ON DISPLAY

Sir: Painting in colour we read tells character, tendencies if any; so too does handwriting. By this criterion the men of Peterborough Sketch Club (now showing) are friendly toward nature, flowers, animals, houses and ships, even barns, but not (if one can judge by their absence) toward womankind or mankind (save its heads). Eve was conspicuous by her absence. Why?

Art has always been associated with the nude (in human form) particularly in sculpture; it was—so we were told Biblically, in the image of God; surely then it would be highly esthete to copy in art this form divine. It couldn't be (but that thought) that in this goodness they see evil—for if we are good only because we see evil, what good is it? Nor was it because of the difficulty in sketching—they can certainly sketch — most of them. It couldn't be because of inhibitions in this day and age—or could it? Or was it just because they would prefer a paradise without an Eve?

In my school days we had copy books to teach writing—painfully and faithfully we copied—so handwriting was all the same, and so the drawings, the nearer they were to the copy the better, personal originality was taboo. But today in writing and drawing, originality is encouraged (theoretically) but still hold on to old ideas in other thoughts, so the elite is born, but not the elect. The elect, is, when freed from the shackles of 'praise and blame', censure and sentence, and the examinations.

Mrs. N. Godfrey Association Head

YOUNG'S POINT, April 21 — (ENS)—A group of enthusiastic [illegible] and friends assembled in [illegible] on Monday for the annual meeting of the local Home and School Association. Reports given by the secretary, Mrs. D Darling, and the treasurer, Mrs. E. Johnson showed that a vast amount of work had been done over a period of three years, by a small group of people.

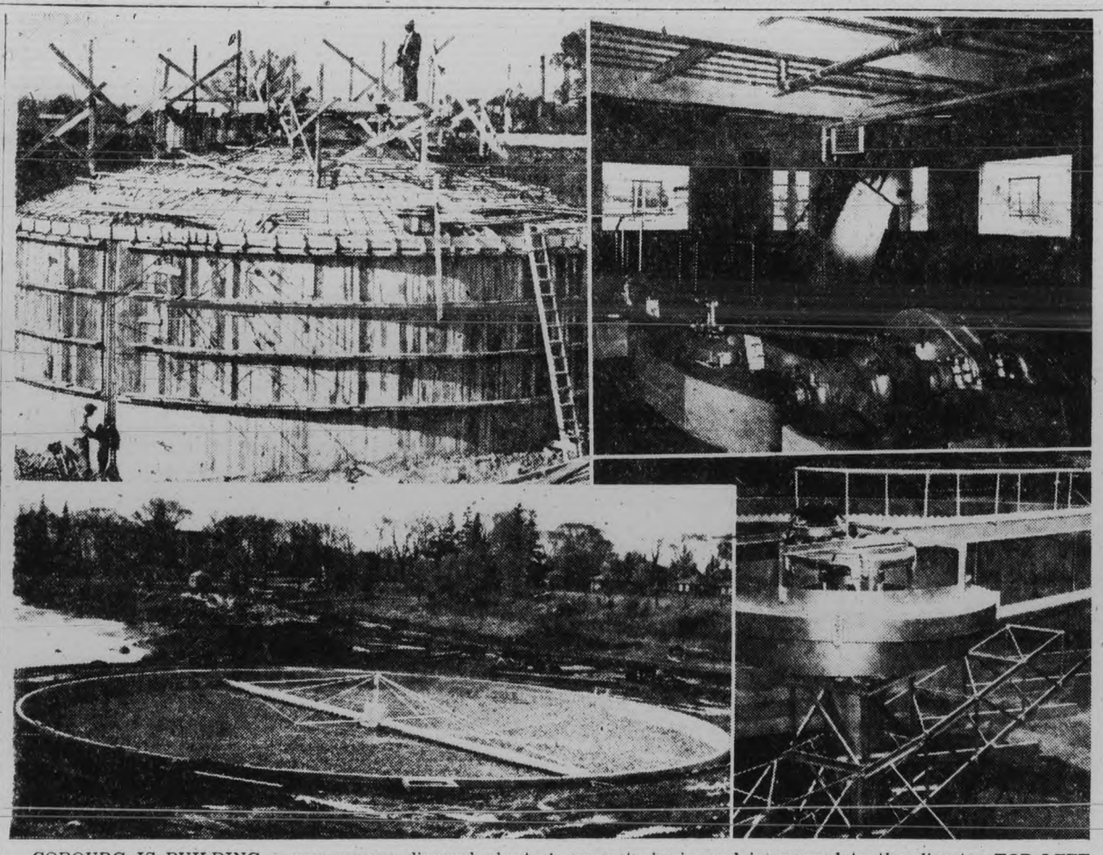
Guests from Peterborough were Mrs. E. Chambers, and Mrs. A. W. Nelson who told of deep interest being taken by tens of thousands of parents in Ontario in the welfare of children. Mrs. Chambers explained the need of co-operation between the two groups who have most to do with education of children, parents and teachers.

Election of officers for the ensuing year was conducted by Mrs. Chambers and resulted in the following being elected.

President, Mrs. N. Godfrey; Vice-President, Mrs. R. Brooks; Recording Secretary, Mrs. D. Darling; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. E. Johnson; Treasurer Mrs. J. Paris; Executive Members, Capt. Sloan, Messrs. J. Traynor, G. Tedfrod, L. A. Godfrey, Mrs. R. Breaker.

Conveners of Committees: Programme, Mrs. J. Jones, Social, Mrs. L. A. Godfrey, membership, Captain Sloan.

A cup of tea brought to a close an evening filled with inspiration and determination for those in attendance to give the best possible service to the children belonging to our School and Community.



COBOURG IS BUILDING a new sewage disposal plant, the most modern of its type. The operation is shown in the above pictures. The sewage is routed to the primary clarifier and from there it goes to the bio-filter LOWER LEFT. Then it goes to the secondary clarifier LOWER RIGHT where the sludge settles in this 85-foot diameter concrete basin and is pumped to the digester TOP LEFT where the sludge remains for several months, removed and spread on underdrained sand and gravel beds. Bermuda Easter Lilies Bloom At Roseneath

ROSENEATH, April 21 (ENS) —Bermuda Easter lilies are still blooming in Roseneath parsonage. At Easter the Rev. and Mrs. R. C. White received a large florist's box by air from Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, St. Davids, Bermuda, containing 24 Easter lilies.

Eleven days have elapsed since their arrival and they are still blooming.

They were in Roseneath United church for the Easter service and later some of the lilies were divided among the ill and the shut-in, the remainder going back to the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. White were on a charge of the United church in Bermuda prior to coming to Roseneath six years ago. They received a unanimous invitation to remain on Roseneath charge for their seventh year.

Chinese Nationalist Stabbed In Edmonton

EDMONTON, April 21 (CP)— The body of the secretary of the Chinese Nationalist Society in Edmonton, stabbed to death with a butcher knife in his grocery store Wednesday night, was found early today after a 19-year-old married woman gave herself up at police headquarters.

Police said Mrs. Marie Smith of Edmonton, who was accompanied to headquarters by her husband, has been charged with murder.

What happened in the tidy store of 42-year-old Weigh Hon Pon, proprietor of the grocery, was a mystery. But a trail of blood from a blood-stained bedroom through the premises indicated there had been a fight.

Truman Gives Aid To American Indians

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP) —President Truman Wednesday signed a bill to set up an $88,570,000 aid program for the Navajo and Hopi Indians of the Southwestern United States. The long-range rehabilitation program is designed to improve the lot of the Indians through development of their resources, improvement of medical welfare and educational facilities, and the resettlement of a large number of Navajos.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel — And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out about 2 pints of bile juice into your digestive tract every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the digestive tract. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills, 35¢ at any drugstore.

WA Supper Follows Afternoon Quilting

FRASERVILLE, April 21 — (ENS)—The W.A. group of Fraserville United Church met on Wednesday afternoon for the April meeting at the home of Mrs. Arthur and Mrs. Leigh Hewitt.

The afternoon was spent quilting. The president, Mrs. R. B. Lobb opened the worship service and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. R. Finley.

Mrs. Heywood gave a talk from the study book. After the meeting supper was served.

PEPSODENT gives you the WHITEST TEETH because PEPSODENT makes TEETH CLEANEST

WHITEST TEETH can be yours when you change to Pepsodent—because Pepsodent and only Pepsodent contains Irium, the marvelous exclusive ingredient that provides the greatest cleansing action ever offered.

Because of Irium, Pepsodent cleans your teeth thoroughly and safely—cleans better between your teeth—gets rid of every trace of dull, dingy film . . . and you'll like Pepsodent's delicious fresh minty flavor, too—it leaves your breath so clean and sweet.

Remember, Pepsodent with Irium gives you, too, the whitest teeth. Get Pepsodent Dental Cream today.

*Irium is the registered trade mark for purified alkyl sulphate

The Truth About Tooth Decay

Science has proved that much of the decay that makes cavities is caused by acid-producing bacteria . . . formed by tiny food particles which remain on the teeth after eating.

To prevent acid-producing bacteria from attacking the teeth, keep your teeth clean by brushing them immediately after meals.

Pepsodent with Irium gives you the greatest cleansing action you can get. Thus the surest way to fight tooth decay is to use Pepsodent immediately after eating. Pepsodent gives you the cleanest teeth and when teeth are cleanest they are safest from decay.

Manager Eddie Murphy of the senior "A" baseball Petes is calling for an open workout of diamond prospects at 1:30 Saturday (tomorrow) aft in Riverside Park. Everyone welcome to try o[ut] a berth on this entry in the Toronto Viaduct League. Prospects are bright for floodlights shortly in Riverside, and the project could be completed within a month when the council gives the green light. Poles for the arcs could be obtained in about a week, we're told. The schedule is due to open on May 13, with the Petes playing shortly after that in Oshawa or Toronto, likely the latter. It is expected that the opening here will be the traditional one on May 24.

Tennis season at the Kawartha Club starts within a month, Gord White advises. Newcomers or others interested are invited to apply shortly for details and membership. The courts are good, in ideal surroundings, just a mile out of the city on the Port Hope highway. Large club house and locker rooms with showers, refreshment stand, pro shop, etc., and the courts are floodlit for night play. Work is being done on them now as spring reluctantly arrives. Membership fees may be learned from any of the tennis committee: R. H. Stuart, W. J. Fletcher, Mrs. S. R. Adamson or the secretary G. F. White, the latter's phone number being 20176.

Brantford And Legion

OHA senior "B" hockey does a fadeout at Civic Arena at 8.30 tonight, whether or not Legion beats Brantford Nats. It's the sixth of their best-of-seven OHA finals, with the Nats being one up, and the next one in Brantford next week. Legion expect to win tonight to force that seventh scrap but, in any case, that's the end of OHA play here until late next fall. That's all there is, there isn't any more. Most likely a jam-packed arena to greet these two strong finalists as they tee off in this highly important fray. A great game indicated, and we look for a Legion victory after a hard fight. Don't pass this classic up, folks.

* * * * * *

Referee at the last game in Brantford were most lenient for two frames, and we agreed with 'em as it was a playoff game. They said before the third started that penalties would be kept down unless the offences were quite flagrant. But Manager Abie Yamolsky must have visited 'em before the third heat opened, as Legion were checked for several cheap penalties in the third, just enough to take the sting out of their drive as they strove to tie it up at 4-4. Before that, they let lots go, and Brantford got off lightly in the third. Yet, Legion who were down—and a team trying to tie a score up doesn't play rough hockey—kept getting the thumb. It was heart-breaking to the visiting players, and they're still burned up.

Planning A Celebration

Brantford writer gives Legion full credit for extending the Nats to the limit last game there, and thinks that the Brants' hopes may well rest on winning the toss for the seventh game. Of the fifth fray —that 4-3 thriller there Wednesday—he remarks: "The good crowd let up a yell of relief as the final bell rang. Manager Jim Ellis is going to howl loudly to the OHA about the referees, but he'll have eastern referees Friday." James, not a stout man, must have lost a lot of poundage as he excitedly exhorted his players and shouted at the referees." Down in Brantford, they're cautiously considering a celebration Saturday, but inclined to wait in case it should go seven games. We'd advise them to hold off, and not make too many plans even for next week.

Give Trophies To Winners Bowling Loop

Members of the Men's City Five-Pin League wound up a most successful season with a banquet and presentation of prizes in the Kawartha Room at the Empress Hotel last night.

President Jack Wade extended a welcome to the bowlers and their sponsors and the donors of the various trophies. He congratulated the boys on their fine showing during the season, particularly the individual prize winners. Mr. Wade made special mention of the fine work of Secretary Frank Wood, saying much of the success of the league was due to his efforts. He thanked the sponsors of the teams and the Examiner for coverage of the results each week.

The Duffus Cup, emblematic of the City League championship, was presented to Bill Harris, captain of Shockey's by Fred Whatley, manager of the Duffus Recreation Academy. Shockey Mein, sponsor of the winning aggregation, spoke briefly.

Dit Clapper presented his own cup and an individual cup to Doug Abraham, high average winner. Doug averaged 239 for 90 games. Dit jokingly remarked that if his own entry didn't improve he would start a bowling school and get a number of Form C players.

The Harold Davis Cup and individual cup for high three was presented to Frank McCormick by Roy Lewis, captain of Harold Davis' Sunoco team. Frank won the trophy with a smashing 1014 total.

Ray Cliford was presented with the Ed Riley Cup for high single by a former winner, Fred Martin. Ray's big game was 416.

Frank Wood gave out the prizes for the runners-up in the various events. Second high average went to Jack Wade with 236; third high average to Bud Goodson with 235. Second high three was won by George Walton with 961 and third high three to Harold Davis with 947. Second high single was won by Jim Herron with 411 and third to Tony White with 408. The team prizes for highest three games went to Bond Clothes who hit 3783; high single game to Cavanagh's with 1455.

Jack Wade had the honor of distributing over $1,500 in prize money to the 16 teams. This part of the program was well received by the boys. Tom Curvin, captain of the Old Timers said his team totalled 355 years in age. He said this would be the last season they would roll together as a unit.

Stan Murduff won the draw prize, conducted by Walter Firth.

Bilts Win 2-0 Stay In Running

By VIC MORRIS, JR.

MONTREAL, April 21—(CP)—A third-period goal by defenceman Walter Clune in the dying minutes of Thursday night's Eastern Canada junior hockey final series kept Guelph Biltmores' Memorial Cup hopes alive as they turned back the Montreal Canadiens 2-0.

A crowd of 11,529 saw a listless affair until midway through the third period when Clune fired a blistering shot from centre ice that deflected off the skate of a Montreal player and found its way into the goal.

The best-of-seven series for the right to enter the Memorial Cup final against the Western champions now moves back to Toronto for the sixth game, with Montreal leading th e series 3-2. If a seventh contest is necessary, it will be held at Montreal next Tuesday.

Half-Minute Remaining

Guelph's second goal came with less than a half-minute remaining in the game. Canadiens, for the first time, pulled their goalie and sent out six forwards. This strategy backfired when Ronnie Plumb snared a loose puck at his own blue line and coasted in alone on the empty Montreal cage to score.

Guelph outshot the Canadiens, 29-26.

Until the third period the crowd constantly called upon the teams for more action. The request was answered in the third period after Guelph broke into the scoring. Canadiens sent out their crack line of Dickie Moore, Art Rose and Bill Goold to get the goal back, but Biltmores threw up an impassable barrier with Steve Brklachich and Bill Ashley on the defence.

Goalie Les Hicks earned a well-deserved shutout as he turned in his best performance of the series.

Guelph was on the receiving end of seven minor banishments while Canadiens had four.

WINNIPEG NEWS

Winnipeg Stellars Thursday night trounced Windsor AKO's 46-30 to win the E. B. Bowering Trophy, emblematic of Canadian junior men's basketball supremacy.

Stellars won the first two games 47-41 and 43-41 while Windsor took the third 50-45, in the best-of-five series.

New York Rangers Edge Wings 2-1, Take Over Series Lead

DETROIT, April 21 (CP) — The courageous New York Rangers now are within one game of pulling one of the year's major upsets—a Stanley Cup victory over Detroit Red Wings.

The orphaned New Yorkers took the Wings 2-1 in overtime Thursday night to move out in front, three games to two, in the best-of-seven series.

The Rangers will have a chance to grab the championship Saturday night in game No. 6 and if they fail then will have another try Sunday night in the seventh and wind-up game of the series. The games will be played here since a circus is occupying the Rangers' home rink.

Rayner Stand Out

Slender Don Raleigh, a 155-pound centre, shared hero honors with Ranger goalie Chuck Rayner Thursday night as the New Yorkers stunned the Wings and 12,610 faithful fans.

The script resembled Tuesday night's game, with Raleigh again banging in the deciding goal in an action-packed overtime period.

On Tuesday it took him until 8:34 of the sudden-death overtime period to sink the goal that gave the Rangers a 4-3 decision.

He did it much faster Thursday night, blasting Detroit's hopes with a beautiful 10-footer after just 1:38 of overtime play.

It was a sweet victory for the Rangers, who finished fourth in the National Hockey League season, trailing first-place Detroit by nearly 10 games. The Rangers eliminated Montreal while Detroit knocked out Toronto in the semi-finals.

The Rangers grabbed a 1-0 lead Thursday night at 7:44 of the second period on a 25-foot backhand shot by Dunc Fisher, and came within two minutes of scoring a shutout.

Lindsay Scores

Ted Lindsay, leading scorer in the NHL this season, spoiled that as he poked in a four-footer at 18:10 of the final period to send the game into overtime.

The crowd, smallest turnout of the playoff series, gave the Wings an ovation after the goal. But it was the last chance of the night to cheer as Raleigh took charge of things in the overtime period.

The Rangers were a happy bunch after the hair-raising finish and expressed confidence that they can wind up the series Saturday.

"Let's win this next one so we can tuck away the championship and wind up this long hockey season," said Rayner.

Pirates Blast St. Louis Cards 8-4

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Murry Dickson, pint - sized Pittsburgh pitcher, persists in nursing a grudge.

Consequently, St. Louis Cardinals may find the road to the 1950 National League championship a rocky one indeed.

Dickson did not exactly jump for joy when he learned a year ago before the 1949 season that Bob Hannegan, former Cardinal owner, had sold him to the Pirates for a load of cash. Nobody likes to leave a perennial pennant contender for a second division club.

The little righthander showed his resentment the best way he knew how. He simply pitched his heart out every time he faced his former mates. The result? Dickson defeated the Cards five times in eight tries last year—more than any other pitcher.

Did It Again

Dickson made his first start of the season Thursday. And as can be guessed, Murry Clipped the Redbirds' wings again, pitching the Pirates to an easy 8-4 triumph.

That was the only game played in the National League. The rest were postponed because of rain and cold yeather. Inclement weather also cut the American League's activities to one game. In that one, Detroit again nipped the Indians in Cleveland, this time by a 5-4 score.

The triumph left the Tigers and the surprising St. Louis Browns as the only undefeated teams in the circuit. Each has won two. All victories have come on the road.

Dickson tamed his former mates with six hits including Stan Musial's second home run of the season.

Rochester Wins Season Opener; Leafs Triumph

By The Associated Press

Rochester Red Wings, favored in many quarters to win the 1950 International Baseball League pennant, are off to a good start.

Manager Johnny Keane's Wings helped open the league's 67th season Thursday night by downing Baltimore Orioles 5-3 in a night game at Baltimore.

Two scheduled openers were postponed because of rain, while in another, Toronto Maple Leafs turned back Syracuse Chiefs 7-6. Games rained out were Montreal at Jersey City and Buffalo at Springfield.

The Leafs jumped on Syracuse starter Bud Byerly for a 7-1 lead in the first four innings, but almost blew the game when the Chiefs rallied for five runs in the sixth to chase starter Lou Posshel. Righthander Max Peterson relieved Posshel and stopped the Chiefs on one hit the rest of the way to preserve the triumph.

Rochester righthander Johnny Yuhas allowed the Orioles seven hits in outdoing four Baltimore pitchers. The Wings also collected seven hits, but two of the blows were two-run homers by rookie Don Bollweg and Hal Rice.

Bollweg, up from Houston of the Texas League, connected in the first and Rice unloaded in the third to clinch the game. The game was called in the eighth because of Baltimore's 11 p.m. curfew.

Bracebridge Grabs Intermediate B Crown

BRACEBRIDGE, April 21 (CP)—Topping off a spectacular playoff winning streak of 20 games, Georgetown Raiders Thursday night won the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate B crown by defeating Bucko McDonald's Sundridge Beavers 6-3.

It was the fourth straight win for the Raiders in the best-of-seven series. McDonald, Liberal member of parliament for Parry Sound-Muskoka and playing coach of the Beavers, had paced his club to the title for the last two years.

Backed up by the superb netminding of Freddy Lawrence, the Raiders went ahead with a 5-1 lead by the end of the first period. They were outscored 2-1 in the second and then saw Beavers get the only goal of the last frame.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings won an all-important Stanley Cup playoff game in Toronto five years ago tonight, beating the Maple Leafs 1-0 after 14 minutes of overtime play to tie the final series three games apiece. However Toronto came back the next night in Detroit to beat the Wings 2-1 and take the Cup.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Walter (Turk) Broda, 35, said in Toronto Thursday he figures he's good for at least one more season as goalie for Toronto Maple Leafs.

"I'd like to play another year," he told an interviewer. "But I don't know what the boss (Conn Smythe, managing director of the National Hockey League club) has in mind for me."

That led straight to questions about Broda's weight. One of the liveliest hockey situations this season revolved around Smythe's ultimatum to Broda to trim his poundage to 190—or else.

Broda, 36 next month, said his present weight is 188.

"It's too much, though. I'd have to be around 185. If I'm going to play, I'll have to start working out with handball, sweatboxes and so on as early as July. I started too late last year."

At Kingston, Herbert Ditchburn, well - known speedboat builder, died Thursday in the General Hospital. He was 69.

Born at Rosseau, Ont., Mr. Ditchburn designed the famous series of Rainbow speedboats used in contests for the Harmsworth Trophy. During the second world war he was engaged in building steel boats at Trenton.

Survivors include his widow and a daughter, Mrs. E. R. Hopkins, wife of the deputy clerk of the House of Commons, Ottawa.

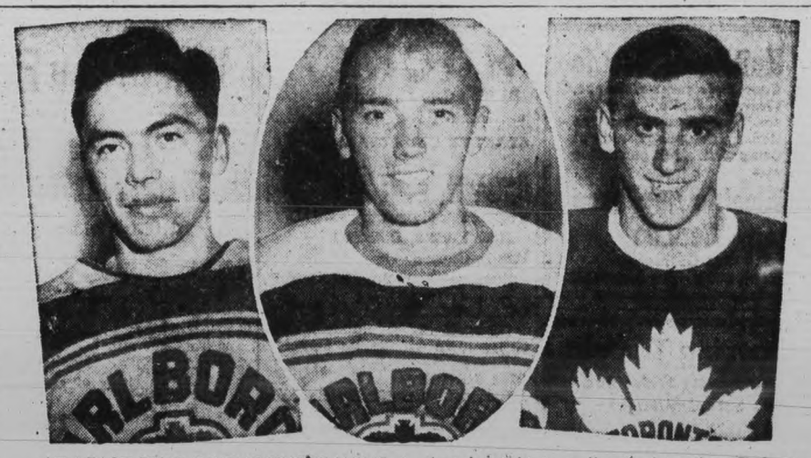
Parks Commissioner Walter Love indicated Thursday that Toronto may buy Oakwood Stadium, with a seating capacity of 7,000. No decision was reached, but Parks Board officials said they felt the selling price of $125,000 was too high.

Australia's star woman sprinter, Marjorie Jackson, reached Los Angeles Thursday to begin a months' training for a proposed race in the Los Angeles Coliseum relays May 19 against the Netherlands' Olympic champion, Mrs. Fanny Blankerskoen.

The shy 18-year-old typist twice last year defeated Fanny in Australia, and three weeks ago bettered the Dutch housewife's world 100-yard record of 10.8 by sprinting the distance in 10.7 seconds. This was at a meet in Sydney.

Accidental Death

TILLSONBURG, April 21 (CP) —William Storey, 46-year-old East Oxford farmer, was killed Thursday when his shotgun discharged while he was climbing a fence. Coroner K. B. McKenzie of Woodstock said death was accidental.



AT LEAST TWO OF THE THREE WINS [illegible] Toronto Dukes over Sherbrooke can be [illegible]d to this trio, a red-hot scoring line. Left to right: George Armstrong, Bobby Hassard ,Danny Lewicki. It is to be noted that Lewicki is well-suited to that Toronto Maple Leaf sweater. They'll be in Montreal Saturday night for the fourth game of the Eastern Canada finals, one the Sherbrooke Club will have to win. Otherwise it's curtains for the Dugremen.

Orchestra Leader Thinks Canadian Tops On Trumpet

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK—(CP)—Maynard Ferguson, Montreal trumpet player, is tops with orchestra leader Stan Kenton.

Kenton paused long enough during a busy two-night appearance here to hail the Montrealer as a "sterling asset" to his 40-piece jazz band.

"He's the most talked-about trumpet player in the country today, I guess," said the orchestra leader in an interview sandwiched between lunch and a recording session in a radio station. "We're really happy about him. He's wonderful.

"He's planning to set up his own orchestra when our tour ends in another four months."

Ferguson, regarded by many as Canada's top trumpeter, had his own band in Canada before he joined Kenton a few months back.

The Stan Kenton orchestra was here for two jazz concerts in Carnegie Hall. The appearance was part of a comeback tour which started in California Jan. 31. The cross-country swing already has taken the band to Montreal, Quebec, Niagara Falls, Ont., and London, Ont. for one-night stands. That winds up the tour's Canadian dates, the tall, good-looking conductor said.

Competition Stiff

Kenton, nattily dressed in a grey suit with striped tie, was asked why he quit the field 14 months ago.

"Band leading is a rugged business," he said. "It got so I just had to whip myself to go on stage and conduct. There were a lot of bands at the time and we were all billed alike there was too much competition in the field."

Why the comeback?

"I figured it was possible to do what I wanted to do, put the emphasis on concert music," he said earnestly.

"Jazz is a music that has developed and become too complex to play in any sort of tin pan alley manner now.

"There are lots of easier ways to make a living than conducting a band but I love it and that's what I want to do."

Kenton launched enthusiastically into the subject of jazz.

"I believe greatly in contemporary music," said the orchestra leader, who plays piano and composes as well. "The character of jazz has constantly grown . . . It has developed to a point where it is not even a part of popular music any more.

"I think what will evolve out of it will eventually be known as American classical music."

Another former Canadian, Chico Alvarez, also plays trumpet in the Stan Kenton orchestra. "I think he comes from Quebec but he has lived in the United States for some time," Kenton said.

Barrie B Flyers Win Game Ends In Fight

GUELPH, April 21 (CP)—Barrie Flyers took a one-game lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior B finals Thursday night by defeating Guelph Biltmores 4-2 in a rioutous series opener.

Immediately after the final whistle, a wild free-for-all broke out and several private battles were waged before the referees could break it up.

Danny Poland led the Barrie attack with two goals. Bill Sexton and Bill Fraleigh got singles. Ken Laufman scored both Guelph goals.

No Miss America 1950

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 21 (AP)—There will be no Miss America, 1950. This decision was announced Thursday by the board of directors of the Miss America Pageant. The board said it would dub the beauty winner in September's contest "Miss America, 1951." The current beauty, Jacque Mercer of Phoenix, Ariz., is Miss America, 1949.

Alberta Painter Prominent At 26

TORONTO, —(CP)— Dark-haired Roloff Beny is a successful young artist from Western Canada. At 26 this native of Lethbridge, Alta., has seen his paintings hung in some of the world's best commercial art galleries.

Benny was the first student painter to be accorded a one-man show in Hart House at the University of Toronto from which he graduated in 1945.

Recently a local department store devoted a week to an exhibit of the work of this precocious painter. All the pictures shown were finished in the last 10 years. They included etchings, lithographs, water colors and oils.

Gimpel's galleries, London; the Obelisco gallery in Rome; Kunsthaus, Zurich, Switzerland, and Knoedler's galleries, New York, all have examples of his art on display.

His early paintings show a strong western influence, with expansive prairie scenes, grain elevators and farming communities dominating his canvases. More recently, however, he has followed a trend to the abstract.

"I can't remember when I didn't paint," said Beny. "Certainly I was painting seriously from the age of 10."

At 15 he went on scholarship to the School of Fine Arts at Banff, Alta. The Canadian Watercolor Society accepted one of his scenes that year and sent it on tour across Canada. The Ontario Society of Art accepted one of his oils when he was 19.

Besides his studies at Toronto he attended the University of Iowa on fellowship and accepted a scholarship to New York University.

Four months ago he returned to Lethbridge after an 18-month visit to Greece and Italy, financed with the sale of his pictures. In those four months he completed five oil paintings and an "Aegean Notebook" filled with 20 lithographs reminiscent of his travels.

86% Electrified

OTTAWA, April 21 — (CP) — Of an estimated 3,504,000 households in Canada, 3,002,000—86 per cent—were served with electricity in October last year, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday. The report shows that British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec are the leading provinces in domestic electrification.

ICE AND FLOOD WATERS from the Cannonball River surged through the town of Mott, North Dakota (above) recently, ripping holes in buildings, knocking down telephone poles and flooding over 100 homes.

SpyHelpedCheck Buzz-Bombs Sent To Britain

MONTREAL, —(CP)— A wartime spy for the Allies told on a visit here how he advised the British of the location of German buzz-bomb launching ramps in France.

Jacques Thierry, now publisher of three weekly newspapers and president of the National Press Syndicate of France escaped from German prisoner-of-war camps seven times. After his last escape he was launched by the Allies on his ramp-finding trip.

Thierry got himself a job at one of the ramps and on various occasions was able to get away from his work to tip the Allies by carrier pigeon as to the ramp's location.

"The longest delay between the time I freed the carrier-pigeon and bombing of a ramp location was four hours," he said. "They sure didn't waste any time."

Taken with his regiment in Lorraine after the fall of France, Thierry was removed to a camp at Danzig. He escaped and walked 900 miles through Germany and into France before he was recaptured.

There, he said, he spent eight days with two French-Canadians taken prisoner during the Dieppe raid.

"They were shackled by the arms and legs. They were the only prisoners in the camp who were shackled," he said.

Thierry is in Quebec on a study of the language spoken by French-Canadians. He said he had been told that the French spoken here is purer than that spoken in his homeland. "This is what I want to find out."

British Fire Losses Reach Record Figure

LONDON, —(CP)— Fire destroyed property at a rate of nearly £43 ($133.30) a minute in Britain and Ireland last year. Damage in the two countries totalled £22,592,000, a record figure.

The total was £3,741,000 higher than in 1948 and double the 1946 figure. Fire, official journal of the British Fire Service, issued the statistics.

The worst month last year was November when the Gladstone dock fire at Liverpool contributed £2,000,000 to the estimate of £4,302,000. In December there were three big fires—at Covent Garden market in London, at a cocoa-butter mill in Hampshire, and a mental home in Waterford.

Heaviest loss of life was at Glasgow. There 13 were burned to death and 24 injured in a fashion-house fire.

Village Becomes Busy Oil Centre

GRETNA, Man., —(CP)—This southern Manitoba village, about 65 miles southwest of Winnipeg, is slated to become a beehive of activity this summer.

Situated on the international border near Emerson, Man., the village, with its 482 residents, will be the base of operations for the Manitoba end of the Edmonton-Superior, Wis., oil pipeline.

The International Pipeline company last fall purchased one farm directly north of the village and, it is expected, a pumping station will be constructed at the spot. An airfield probably will be built in the area as officials have said the pipeline will be checked by planes.

The 340-mile Regina-Gretna leg of the pipeline is expected to cost $28,500,000 of the total cost of $90,000,000. The whole pipeline will be 1,150 miles long.

More than 1,000 lengths of pipe already have been shipped into Gretna in preparation for the construction program.

Sentenced To Hang

EDMONTON, April 21 (CP)—Joseph Gilbert, 23-year-old Edmonton truck driver, Thursday was sentenced to be hanged July 19 for the murder last Oct. 8 of Sam Kee, North Edmonton market gardener. It was the second time Gilbert heard the death sentence pronounced upon him. He was convicted last December and sentenced to be hanged Feb. 22. On his appeal, a new trial was ordered.

HERVE MAJOR, News Editor of Montreal La Presse, who was elected president on Wednesday of The Canadian Press. In 1946 he was elected second vice-president and in 1948 first vice-president.

Pupils Of 2000 AD To Have It Easy

HALIFAX, —(CP)— What will the classrooms of 2000 AD be like? Prof. C. H. Mercer of Dalhousie University in Halifax thinks it will bear little resemblance to present day schoolrooms.

Pupils will likely be ensconed in swivel chairs, prophesies the professor. There will be no blackboards, which he described as "a curse." Students will relax in comfortable chairs and listen to a tape recorder spiel off the day's French lesson. Teachers, freed from the blackboard will devote their time to checking on their wards' attentiveness.

Prof. Mercer says the classroom of the future will be built around the microphone. Students will say their lessons to the microphone. The machine will play back the pupils' speech and the class will criticize.

For the teacher, life will begin at 55, predicts the professor. Teachers are at their best between the ages of 50 and 70, he says. Young teachers are too personal and sensitive, while the older ones see life and the pupils with eternity as a background. Prof. Mercer is 64.

He says students can't be taught the fundamentals of foreign language in three years of high school. The correct way to teach French, which is the professors specialty, is to have the pupils listen to the recorded lesson the first time. Then they should recite the lesson into the microphone and listen as it is played back.

The professor has great faith in the tape recorder and microphone as aids to teaching. "The future," says Prof. Mercer, "has great things in store for these gadgets."

Ont. Labor Board Accuses Union Of Fraud

TORONTO, April 21 (CP)—The Ontario Labor Relations Board Thursday accused the United Steelworkers of America (CCL-CIO) of seeking "to obtain certification by fraud" and turned down the union's application to be named bargaining agent for Hahn Brass Company of New Hamburg.

The board's judgment criticized the manner in which the steelworkers applied for certification.

It singled out the union's provision of receipts indicating that employees of the company had each paid the $1 initiation fee.

"Shorn of its inconsistencies, the organizer's version of the facts was that he had found the employees willing to sign application for membership cards, but unwilling to make any payment to the application and had therefore decided to put forward $1 of his own money for each card he obtained."

Counterfeit Suspect Arrested In Toronto

TORONTO, April 21 (CP)—Acting on a Montreal tip, RCMP and Toronto police raided a west-end house Thursday and arrested Frank Battaglia, a former professional boxer.

The gun-point arrest ended a three-month hunt for Battaglia and cleared the way for further investigation of the possibility that he was mixed up with a group which passed counterfeit money in Montreal.

The RCMP said Thursday its Montreal detachment is investigating circumstances there and will decide today whether counterfeiting charges will be laid against Battaglia.

Meanwhile, he is being held on a charge of breaking, entering and theft. The theft occurred in Port Hope, about 65 miles east of Toronto, last Dec. 14.

Brockville Approves Civic Centre Contract

BROCKVILLE, April 21 (CP) —City council Thursday night approved acceptance by Mayor Smith Reynolds of the bid of the Pyramid Construction Company of Brantford of $215,000 for construction of a new memorial civic centre. The brick structure will have an artificial ice surface of 90 by 190 feet with seating capacity of 2,500, and a second-storey auditorium seating 1,500.

The city has provided $50,000 towards the project and the remainder has already been raised by public subscriptions, during a campaign which saw a women's rummage sale yielding $7,000. The project is expected to be completed in the first week of October.

Truman More Formal In Press Conferences

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP) —President Truman decided on Thursday to hold his press conference in the old State Department building, instead of the White House, and to tighten the rules.

The new rules provide that:

1. All reporters will be seated.

2. Each reporter who wants to ask a question will be required to stand, gain recognition, give his name and tell whom he represents.

Under the old system, reporters stood in front of Truman's desk in the White House oval room and asked questions informally.

HERE'S A FLOOD WITH NO RIVER. Rapid melting of the deep snow covering Northwest Dakota has converted fields into lakes. Once the water bursts over such barriers as roads and fence lines, it rolls irresistibly over miles of land sloping gently eastward to the Red River. In places it picks up dangerous speed. An example is this four-car Northern Pacific train, derailed by overland flood waters.

NZ Bird Watcher Lives Hermit Life

By J. C. GRAHAM

DUNEDIN, N. Z. —(CP)— A man who has just returned from three months of self-imposed exile on a deserted island is developing methods of measuring bird populations which may be adopted by ornithologists throughout the world.

L. E. Richdale of Dunedin lived alone in a small shack on Whero Island, a half acre forest-clad piece of land off the south coast of New Zealand.

For his study Richdale has chosen five species of petrels which inhabit Whero Island. He has been watching the birds for 10 years now and in that time has spent about a year on the island.

His first task when he arrived for his latest stay was to check the 850 burrows he had recorded on previous visits. The petrels nest in burrows and some return to the same ones each year while others move on to new ones. Richdale's next job was to search the island for new burrows and record them.

Then the night work began. Each burrow had to be inspected in turn and the birds in them checked. Many had bands fixed by Richdale on previous visits, while on hundreds of others he had to place new bands.

To get the work done in the correct season Richdale had to work in all type of weather, sometimes in terrific winds. So exacting was the work that he lost 14 pounds and became so weak after prolonged observation in bad weather that he had difficulty at times in keeping to his schedule.

Now that his observations have been completed, a major task remains in collating all the data and putting his findings into a form readily applicable to other types of birds. Ornithologists in many parts of the world are awaiting the results of his work with interest.

Weather Changes Confuse Citizens and Scientists

By WILLIAM BOSS

LONDON, April 21 — (CP) — When weather men get together and discuss the outlook, their conclusions don't seem so different from the less instructed citizen's: "It's going to be either warmer or colder."

But between the experts of the Royal Meteorological Society and those of the Air Ministry's Meteorological office at suburban Harrow the weight of opinion seems to support the "warmers."

The society is celebrating its first centenary and recently members were guests of the Ministry's Harrow establishment. There the ministry experiments in the development of new weather-recording apparatus, arranges its supply to British Weather Stations throughout the world and also controls the international chain of weather ships watching the Atlantic air route.

The Harrow experts say the world's climate is warmer now than at any time during the last 500 years. Sir Robert Watson-Watt, president of the society, says a strong body of opinion among its members, headed by C. E. P. Brooks, supports the finding.

If the trend continues, they say, it will be accompanied by a decrease in storms.

Comments the weekly observer: "this is more comforting than the news we get from most other scientists."

Dr. Brooks says continuance of the trend would return Britain to the climate prevalent in Anglo-Saxon times, drier and warmer even than today's.

That's where the other extreme comes in.

Sir Robert said that other experts believe weather men 100 years hence will be studying development of the ice-age.

At Harrow a weather atlas showing British weather during the last 30 years is under preparation and its publication, it is said, will upset many popular ideas. One is the saying about "April showers" — Britain's April consistently has less rain than any other month.

Anyway, a consensus of the experts is that "some sort of weather change is in progress"—something commonly held by the layman.

Among weather records stored at Harrow, some extending back more than a century, are the first scientific charts of ocean currents, made in 1832, and the "met reports" of Scott's Antarctic expedition.

Frost Unveils Plaque Honoring Newspapermen

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — A plaque honoring the 175 employees of Canadian daily newspapers who died in the Second World War was unveiled Thursday by Premier Frost of Ontario.

The plaque, listing the 175 names, is in the Canadian Press building, (at 55 University Ave.) headquarters of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association and CP, national news-gathering association.

Premier Frost was assisted in the unveiling by Rev. N. A. Ballard, DSO, chaplain at HMCS York.

Representing the newspapers were A. F. Mercier, president, and R. H. Thomson, first vice-president, of the CDNA; and Herve Major, president of the Canadian Press; Victor Sifton, past president, and F. I. Ker, honorary president.

The services were represented by Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, Capt. F. R. Base and Lt.-Cmdr. Saunders of the navy, and Sqdn. Ldr. R. J. Morris of the RCAF.

OperateOnEskimoBoy Walks Like Animal

CHURCHILL, Man., April 21 —(CP)—An 11-year-old Eskimo boy who walks on all fours will undergo medical treatment in Winnipeg in an effort to return him to normal, doctors at Fort Churchill Military Hospital said today.

Kokiark was brought here from the Boothia Penninsula, 800 miles north of Churchill and well inside the Arctic Circle. He has a spine curvature, but a Roman Catholic priest who accompanied him here said the body had been straight and sturdy as a child.

The priest said that Kokiark was orphaned early and his condition was due to malntrition and to the fact that he would lie down in a curved position because he felt the cold and hunger less in that position.

Oil Company Boasts Profits

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — International Petroleum Company Ltd., Thursday reported consolidated net income for 1949 of $13,031,382, an increase of $1,240,912 from 1948. The net for the company and its subsidiaries is equal to 90 cents a share, compared with 81 cents a share the previous year.

Figures in the annual report are in United States dollars. Dividends totalled $6,931,951, as against $7,262,044 and consolidated net working capital showed an increase of $18,216,961 at $50,794,885.

L. P. Maier, president, said the dollar position of the company improved because of economies in capital expenditures and operations together with progress made towards settlement of exchange negotiations in Peru and in Colombia.

International Petroleum is a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey and has its head office at Sarnia.

Newfoundland Cadets To Visit Dominion

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 21 —(CP)—A group of 13 young officer cadets from Memorial University here will have a chance this summer to visit other parts of Canada and to meet officers from many other Canadian universities.

For the last three months, they have been taking a course on military training here. When the course is completed next month, the unit will go for three-months' training to military camps on the mainland.

One group will go to Kingston. Others will visit camp Valcartier, Quebec, and camp Shilo, Man.

Expected Smears Says McCarthy

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP) —Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) declared Thursday night that because he "challenged the Communists and their agents in the United States" he "automatically became a revolving SOB."

(As defined in an old joke, a "revolving SOB" is "an SOB any way you look at him.")

In a speech prepared for delivery to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, McCarthy said:

"I knew it would be thus—that villification, smear and falsehoods would follow, peddled by the Reds, their minions and egg-sucking phoney Liberals who litter Washington with their persons and clutter American thinking with their simple-minded arguments."

McCarthy told the editors that some of those of whom he spoke "write columns for your newspapers," and he said:

"It is your privilege to buy them; mine to ignore them."

Hold Shower To Honor Newlywed Southwards

HAVELOCK, April 21—(ENS). —LAC. Gordon Southward, RCAF, and Mrs. Southward of Calgary, Alta., who were married recently in that city, were honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Southward, on Wednesday evening. The hostesses were Mrs. Harry Hubble and Mrs. Cecil Toms.

The couple received many gifts which were arranged in a basket decorated in pink and white. They were also presented with a table lamp from the members of the Goofy Club, which was presented by Mrs. R. Melville, Mrs. Hubble reading the address.

Court whist and euchre games were followed by lunch served by the hostesses.

Those present were: Mesdames O. Parcels, A. Hubble, W. Rice, J. Davidson, G. Emery R. Melville A. Robinson R. Dooley, R. Campney, W. Forsyth, H. Hoard B. Post, W. Dafoe A. McLaughlin, H. Revoy, M. Whitney, G. Rigby, Sr., F. Oliver R. Bonney, H. Gerow.

Levi Harris Funeral

A largely-attended funeral service for the late Levi Harris, 81, of Lot 27, Concession 16, Smith township was held today at the Hendren Funeral Home, Lakefield. Mr. Kenneth Stewart, Jayman of Wesley United Church, officiated. Pallbearers were Percy, Vincent, Fred and Adam Harris, all sons, William Bullock, and Archie Gillis. Many floral offerings were borne by Keith, Joseph and Elwood Gillespie, Raymond Harrison, Mrs. George Newmaster, Ferne Bullock, Shirley Dunford, Elsie Gillespie and Mrs. Donald Warboy. Burial was at Lakefield cemetery.

Sunday Sports Approved In Toronto Parks

TORONTO, April 21 (CP)—The city parks committee approved Sunday playing of baseball, softball, soccer, rugby and cricket in a list of 14 city parks. Recommendations before city council which previously approved Sunday professional baseball. In the municipal elections Jan. 1 voters approved Sunday sport and provincial legislation subsequently ratified Sunday sport in municipalities which approve by local votes.

Only one park was deleted from the list of 15 submitted to the committee Thursday, east-end Kew Gardens, where a poll will be taken of neighborhood residents on the question.

The committee further approved major women's softball at the Sunnyside stadium on Sundays but postponed action on requests for Sunday roller skating at the downtown street arena, outdoor five-pin bowling on Centre Island and 10-pin bowling at a Danforth Avenue alley.

Dr. George Webber, secretary for the Lord's Day Alliance, and R. C. Chalmers, secretary for evangelism of the United Church of Canada, told the committee they had no objection to passing the hat, or free-will offerings, at the Sunday games but they did oppose compulsory admission.

Harwood News

At a progressive euchre party held by the Women's Institute on Wednesday, the following won prizes: Ladies' first, Miss Shirley Drape, second, Mrs. Walter Johnston; men's first, Mr. Thomas Butcher, second, Mr. Walter Johnston; lone hands, Mrs. R. E. Drope.

There will be a progressive euchre in the Harwood Hall on May 5, sponsored by the WA.

Canada Products To Be Shown At Trade Fair

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Everything at the Canadian International Trade Fair in Toronto May 29-June 9 won't be from other countries. Canada will be there too.

Her primary textile industry, for instance, reports that it will be represented for the first time with an industry-wide exhibit.

It will be put on through the co-operation of 60 textile manufacturers who feel that Canadian textiles are equal to any and superior to most imported articles.

This is a subject upon which the Canadian textile industry tends to be sensitive, though probably it needn't be since the "made in Canada" label has become a hallmark of quality. However, it is among the first to feel competition from other countries.

Here and There

Canadian exhibits at the first United States International Trade Fair in Chicago, Aug. 7-19, which follows the three-year success of the Canadian event, will include mining, fisheries, and manufacturers of communications equipment.

E. F. K. Nelson is the new general manager of the Canadian Retail Federation, succeeding the veteran George S. Hougham, who recently retired. R. S. Tinsley, who comes from Montreal via the west coast and the British West Indies, is assistant general manager.

A. E. Halverson is retiring from the board of directors of Imperial Oil, Ltd., after 37 years' service, in large part in western Canada.

Trail, B. C., where vegetation once suffered from the fumes of the great chimneys of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada, Ltd., now is benefitting from those same fumes. They are part of the chemical fertilizer used to help the growth of some 700,000 trees which Consolidated will have planted in Trail area by the end of this year. They are part of a beautification program which started several years ago

The public relations department of the Union Gas Co. of Canada, Ltd., has issued a booklet reviewing the history and activities of the company.

Suicide Verdict

ST. THOMAS, April 21 (CP)— A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury Thursday night into the New Year's Eve death of 18-year-old Irene May Catherall, whose body was found in the basement of her boarding-house with a .22 calibre rifle beside it. Dr. E. C. Gliddon said the girl had consulted him Nov. 2 and after tests he told her she was pregnant.

Urged To Resist Atom Censorship

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP) —The American Society of Newspaper Editors was urged Thursday to resist any atomic censorship which might hand over to politicians and military men the public's right to decide on the United States' use of atomic energy.

The society's committee on world freedom of the press, headed by Basil L. Walters of Chicago advised 400 editors opening their annual meeting to "keep the spotlight of publicity" on government officials' who deal with atomic power.

"Press freedom, as well as all other freedoms, has lost ground in many parts of the world during the past year," said Walters, executive editor of the Knight newspapers.

"This makes it all the more important that our American ramparts be even more carefully guarded."

Ben M. McKelway, ASNE president, urged the society to reject a proposal which has divided its members for a year—that ASNE set up a method for "disciplining" newspapers for breaches of ethics or responsibility to the public.

What's Your Guess?

LONDON, April 21 (AP) —The case before the King's Court of Appeals Thursday involved some people from Pwllheli, Caernarvonshire, Wales.

Said E. D. Sutcliffe, one of the lawyers: "I am going to call it 'Fellee.'"

Lord Chief Justice Goddard: "Poo-hellee."

They compromised on "Fwellee" and the case went on.

Charge No Barricades To Mark Hole In Road

GODERICH, April 21 (CP) — There were no barricades in front of a seven-foot hole on a rural road into which an automobile plunged, killing a mother and her baby, it was claimed Thursday in a lawsuit asking damages of $68,300 from Morris and Bullett townships and George Radford, Blyth contractor.

Plaintiff in the Supreme Court non-jury action is Laurence W. Jacklin, 34-year-old district farmer, who was driving his car on the township line on the night of Sept. 24, 1949, when it dropped suddenly into the pit. Passengers were his wife and five children.

Jacklin alleges joint negligence on the parts of the three defendants.

Escaped 2 Years 'Glad It's Over'

GRIMSBY, April 21 (CP) — Wanted by police since his escape from Burwash Industrial Farm two years ago, George Waynott, 48, was arrested Thursday.

He was picked up by police while working for a general contractor since 1948.

"I'm awfully glad it's over," he told police.

Waynott arrived in Grimsby in July, 1948, after breaking jail the previous month, police said. He gave his name as Waynard. His arrest came on information supplied police by the owners of a shack on the outskirts of town in which Waynott lived. The owners told police that mail arrived for "Waynard" in the name of Waynott.

He is said to have boasted on several occasions when drunk that he had escaped from jail.

His escape from Burwash was made June 20, 1948, with another prisoner named Brock. The pair had to swim a lake one-quarter mile wide. They became separated and Brock was drowned.

QUEEN'S PARK COST

The total cost of the Ontario parliament building, completed in 1892, was $1,300,000.

MYRTLE GAIL HOWELL, a patient at the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children in Montreal thinks this is a lot of money, and it is . . . $55,000 in ten dollar bills, presented to the Hospital by Norman Holland, vice-chairman of the hospital, representing the proceeds of the book, "Southern Sky Trails" which he wrote describing aerial trips totalling 1,000,000 miles through 49 countries. Myrtle has just placed the last $5,000, which Mr. Holland gave to the hospital, on the top of the stack. The total represents approximately one-half of the operating cost of the hospital for one year or the equivalent of the cost of treating 25 patients for six months. In the rear Miss Margaret Orr, RN, director, and J. M. Pritchard, president of the Shriners' Foundation fund, on the right.

Hospital Auxiliary To Furnish Floor In West Wing Of Hospital

The Women's Auxiliary to the Civic Hospital has informed the Board of Governors that it has $11,050 with which to furnish and maintain the west wing of the new hospital on the second floor opposite the main entrance.

This will be the Auxiliary's contribution, in addition to acting as the agency for receiving donations from organisations and private persons for experitures in the new building.

Most recent donations received by the Auxiliary were reported as follows:

Kinette Club, $500 to maintain and equip a private room; Otonabee Chapter IODE, $600 to furnish and mainain a private room; Loyal Orange Benevolent Association, $950 to furnish and maintain a two bed room; Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, $500 to furnish and maintain one private room.

More Cattle Sold Price Steady Toronto Market

TORONTO, April 21 (CP). — Cattle prices held steady on a heavy run with trade slowing up a little at the close this week at the Ontario Stockyards, the Dominion Marketing Service reported today.

Receipts of 7,893 cattle were 2,855 more than for the same week a year ago. Early trade was active and steady at last week's advance. Later trade showed some slacking off, although prices held about steady.

Medium to good weighty steers sold at $24.50-$26 with choice up to $27. Medium to good light steers sold at $23.50-$25, with choice up to $26. Medium to good cows were $18.50-$20 with tops at $21. Good bulls sold at $21-$22. Fed yearlings were mostly $23-$26 with tops at $26.50. A few lots of good stockers and stock calves brought $22-$25 a hundredweight.

Calves totalled 2,094 head. Prices were weak to $1 a hundredweight lower. Good to choice vealers closed at $26-$28 with only a few tops making $29. Common to medium calves were $15-$25. Common grassers sold at $12-$14.

Hogs totalled 3,096 head. The prices were 25 cents lower at $26.50 for Grade A. Sows held steady at $19 dressed.

Sheep and lamb receipts were only 184 head. A few good spring lambs sold at $35. Common to medium sheep were $7-$13, with good sheep at $13-$15.

"I will always be prepared to meet him head on here or anywhere else."

The outburst came during debate on what at first appeared to be a non-contentious resolution fixing House procedure for coming weeks. Before the resolution was adopted, members participated in three divisions and in 2½ hours of noisy debate.

The resolution eliminated the periods set aside for study of private members' legislation next Monday and next Wednesday and for every Wednesday thereafter until the end of the session. This is a customary mid-session manoeuvre to speed government business, but this time it ran into solid objection from opposition parties.

In referring to the debate on the pipe-line bills, Mr. St. Laurent said the government was anxious that parliament express its view and that it not be prevented from doing so by "talking-out tactics."

"Why," interjected Mr. Green, "don't you put the pipe line through Canada?"

"Because," replied Mr. St. Laurent, "in the pipe-line bill this parliament decided that when a company was incorporated to build a pipe line it might exercise its powers either within or without Canada, provided it did so in the manner determined by the Transport Board set up by this parliament to examine and consider where the line pass."

"That is evading the question," interjected Mr. Green.

."That is not evading the question," retorted Mr. St. Laurent.

"Yes, it is," Mr. Green persisted.

Mr. St. Laurent's color darkened and he shouted:

"I resent any charge of evading any question. The honorable member will never be able to put me in the position where I have to evade any suggestion of his. I will always be prepared to meet him head on here or anywhere else."

THE THREE TRUE ALBINO DEER in herd above were photographed at Vilas county feeding station near Milwaukee by a Wisconsin conservation department photographer, who shivered six days hiding in wait for the picture. The photo is believed to be the first ever taken of multiple albinos, which occur in partial state about once in 40,000 births.

ment of the Trieste question must take into account the interests of Yugoslavia, whose claims for the territory were backed by the Russians when the Italian peace treaty was signed in 1947 but those government since has broken with Russia and her satellites.)

The Russian note demanded immediate appointment of a governor for Trieste, the first step outlined by the Italian peace treaty for the organization of the free territory.

The note pointed out the appointment was to be made by the UN Security Council—of which Russia, the United States, France and Britain all are members — after consultation with Italy and Yugoslavia. Occupation troops — the United States, Britain and Yugoslavia now have 5,000 troops each in the area—to be withdrawn 4½ months after the governor takes office.

The Russian note made no mention of Yugoslavia. But the boundaries of the free territory, outlined by the peace treaty and cited by the Russians in their latest demands, include the Yugoslav occupied area.

Obituaries

DANIEL COWIE

A life-long resident of Hiawatha, where he was born 85 years ago, Daniel Cowie died Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Lawson, 424 Balliol St., Toronto. He had been ill some time.

Mr. Cowie was well known to tourists visiting Hiawatha during the summer. He was a member of Hiawatha United Church.

He leaves his wife, the former Frances Parker, three sons and six daughters: Mrs. John Pringle (Helen), of Toronto; Robert and Pauline Cowie, Mrs. Mina Edwards, all of Hiawatha; Mrs. John Lawson (Irene) and Mrs. Marguerite Shilling, Scot and Archie, all of Toronto; Mrs. M. Stacey (Hazel), of Detroit.

The funeral will be held Saturday, leaving the home of Mr. Cowie's son Robert, for a service at 2.30 p.m. in Hiawatha United Church. Mrs. E. Malcolm and Mr. Landers will officiate. Burial will be in Hiawatha cemetery.

WILLIAM JOHN HENDREN

William John Hendren, 79, of Reid St. Lakefield, died on Thursday at his residence following a lengthy illness. He was born in the village, son of the late Thomas Hendren and Hannah Webster, and has lived there a lifetime.

He leaves his wife, the former Annie May McBurney and two daughters, Mrs. Harry Hill (Eva) of Lakefield and Mrs. Arthur Widdup (Vera) of Hamilton. There are three sons, William Hendren and Roy E. Greene, both of Kaslo, B.C., and Jack Hendren of Slocan, B.C. Two sisters, Mrs. Benjamin Hunter and Mrs. James Walton and two brothers, George and James Hendren, all live in the village.

A private funeral service will be held at the Hendren Funeral Home on Tuesday at 2 p.m. The Rev. W. H. Tonge of Lakefield United Church wil officiate and burial will be at Lakefield cemetery.

Even when dried indoors... EVEN WITHOUT RINSING

Surf gives you Sweeter Washes

...whiter, brighter to look at!

...fresh-air-sweet to smell!

Surf contains a wonderful detergent which not only removes every last trace of dirt and grease, but of "dirty clothes" odour, too! Your wash is really sweet and clean—and it smells that way!

Surf gets clothes so deep-down SWEET and clean you can actually SMELL their freshness—even when you have to hang the wash indoors!

But Surf does even more than that. It saves you hours of labour because, with Surf, you don't have to rinse your clothes unless you want to!

Surf—the Surf that's now at your grocer's—has the magic power of grabbing and holding the dirt in the wash-water, so when you wring out the water you actually wring the dirt out with it.

And when you don't rinse, Surf's purifying ingredient continues working in your clothes, to keep them sweeter . . . in the linen closet or bureau drawer! So, if you prefer to rinse, add a little Surf to the rinse water.

Those rich, long-lasting Surf suds do 3 times the work of ordinary washday soaps, in the hardest water. They make short work of your grimiest, heaviest things, yet, they're safe for your sheerest stockings—your prettiest dresses . . . for baby's delicate things.

So get a couple of packages of Surf and try it next washday. It's especially developed for no-rinse washing. All the Surf your grocer now has is the amazing no-rinse Surf in the same familiar package.

"ORDINARY" CLEAN! Though you may think your wash is perfectly clean, a faint "musty" odour often betrays the fact that some remnants of dirt, grease or scum are still clinging to the fibres. Rinsing won't get rid of this . . . but Surf does!

SURF CLEAN! Even without rinsing Surf removes every last trace of dirt, grease (and scum) . . . every trace of odour, too! That's why it gets your clothes so white, so bright . . . so soft . . . so wonderfully sweet to smell!

City Will Brief Municipal Board On Spending Plan

At a sitting here of the Ontario Municipal Board Tuesday, May 2, at 2 p.m., city council will present a brief supporting the spending projects of which it is seeking approval. That was the recommendation of the legal committee of the council Thursday, with Mayor Swanston presiding in the absence of Ald. Adam Sands.

Total cost of the proposed works is $358,528. They are as follows:

Storm sewer on the west side of Park St. from a point 65 feet north of Brioux Ave. to the Otonabee River.

Asphalt pavements: Park St., from McDonnel St. to Park Hill Road; Rogers St. from the end of the present pavement to James St.; Lock St. from Lansdowne to King George St.; Monaghan Road, from Sherbrooke to Wolfe; and also from Frank St. to Lansdowne St.; Townsend St. from Aylmer St. to Park St.; Perry St., from Aylmer to Park.

Third project comprises storm drains to Lock St. from Lansdowne to King George; and Monaghan Road from Romaine St. to Lansdowne St.

Announcement of the Municipal Board is being made public for the benefit of citizens who may wish to oppose these works which are to be done according to the financing provisions of the Local Improvement Act. That signifies a frontage charge on property for part of the cost, and the city as a whole being leviable for the rest.

The members present with Mayor Swanston were: Aldermen Waddell, Gillespie, Anglesey and Dewart.

It will be the intention of the council, as directed by the committee, to submit reasons why the paving program should be resumed this year.

Light Opposition 1949

At the sitting of the Board here last year, the property owners were only lightly opposed from the council, and their petition to the Municipal Board was effective. Both Romaine and Burnham Streets were taken from the 1949 paving program.

Legal committee decided that the council should prepare a statement setting forth the reasons for the paving work, and especially on the local improvement plan.

Burnham St. objection last year was largely that the new surfacing was not immediately needed and further that the cost should be borne by the citizens generally.

Some residents didn't like the frontage charge and they said so. Romaine St. between Monaghan Road and Park St. has not been put back on the list, but Rogers St. is at the top of it.

Heavier Traffic

One of the contentions of the committee is that street traffic is much heavier than it was years ago, and that the wear and tear on the surface is greatly increased by the destructive combination of weight and speed, multiplied by the volume of present traffic.

Another fact they will stress is that on the wider streets the corporation pays 55 per cent of the cost as compared with 40 per cent of the cost of the narrower paving strips. That means, it was said, that the city as a whole bears the cost of the extra width of paving.

The statement will also review the council's position in proposing the filling of the old Park St. drain and the terms of payment by which only a small part is charged directly to frontage property.

The conference opens Sunday evening with church service.

North Monaghan Tax Rate Set

North Monaghan council has adopted the municipal tax levy for this year.

The county rate is 19.5 mills to raise $9,444.42, an increase of approximately $3,000 over last year.

The rate for the County Suburban High School Board is 6.5 mills to provide $3,145. The township rate is 11.5 mills for $5,567.56.

These items amount to 37.5 mills for a total of $18,156.98.

The local school rates have also been set as follows: For school area No. 1, adjoining the city: 4 mills to raise $733.36; and area No. 2, town hall section and Brealey's 6 mills to raise $1,478.82.

There is also a levy of 7 mills for $313.78 to be paid to Cavan school area which used to be in the Cavan union school section No. 9.

The general Public School levy is 6 mills for $2,847.81; and the Separate School rate is 10 mills for $95.

The rate information was obtained from Bruce Johnston, township clerk.

Pair Arrested For Car Theft

Arrested Thursday night at a doctor's office here, two Hastings men are now in Cobourg jail facing a charge of car theft. They were picked up by PC E. E. McDonald.

They are: Ralph Richardson, 22, and Kenneth Clark, 17. They are charged with theft of a car belonging to Adrian Clark of Warkworth.

The theft occurred early Thursday and police say the pair then drove back to Hastings, and finally to Peterborough, where they spent the night.

The stolen car was involved in an unreported accident on Simcoe St., and the two drove to Dr. Herbert Young's office on Stewart St. PC McDonald saw the car hailed a passing auto, and followed it. He arrested Clark in the car, and Richardson in the doctor's office, where he was being treated for a cut forehead.

PC McDonald turned the men over to Corp. Joseph Hanson, Provincial Police. The men were taken to Cobourg last night by Provincial Constable D. W. Coffey of Hastings.

GRAFTON'S GOLDFISH ARE SILVER SMELTS, currently running in schools into the mouth of Shelter Valley Creek below the village at Lake Ontario. As many as 200 fishermen from Toronto to Belleville gather at nights and their take has been considerable. The smelt run has been "on" for ten nights and is nearly over. Michael Calnan, of Grafton, (above) handles part of his night's take; he considers less than half a sackful not fair fishing returns, but says he has never eaten fish of any kind. Epicures rave about fried smelt.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Jaycees Hear Bishop Berry

Peterborough's Jaycees finished up their 12-week public speaking course Thursday night with an address by the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough.

A good-sized audience heard Bishop Berry take as his theme "Canadianism." He stressed the philsophy of Canadianism rather than the political and constitutional background of the country.

He stated that the roots of Canadianism are deep and because of this tradition the people are not so easily swayed by new doctrines as are some people elsewhere in the world.

There were also three Jaycee speakers. Gerald Grady, "Jaycee accomplishments of the year"; Dr. Keith Mitchell, "vaccination"; how serums are manufactured; and Gord Patterson, "income tax."

Don Clarke, chairman of the forum, introduced Bishop Berry and His Excellency was thanked by Doug Vaisey, president.

Three films were also shown.

Ex-POW's Celebrate

TORONTO, April 21—(CP)—A group of 40 former R.C.A.F. prisoners of war got together Thursday night to honor their liberation. The date they selected for the annual reunion was the birthday of their wartime host—Adolf Hitler.

All were interned at Stalag Luft III and were liberated in 1945 by Russian troops. They all now live in Toronto.

Ingersoll Votes Wet

INGERSOLL, April 21—(CP)—This Oxford County town voted wet this week after 35 years without legal liquor or beer outlets.

Vote for a government liquor store was 2,081 for and 1,356 against and for a Brewers' warehouse, 2,079 to 1,361. A 60-percent majority was required.

Both issues were defeated during the last plebiscite in 1945. Still undecided is the question of hotel beverage rooms.

FIRST CENTENARY SIGN

A new spot of colour enlivens the corner of Water and Hunter streets. The Sun Life Assurance Company offices have a conspicuous red, yellow and green sign across the face of their building, saying that the company "Salutes Peterborough's Centennial 1850-1950." Under it and flanking the doorway are two spanking new Union Jacks. It is the first centenary sign in the city.

Smelt Fishing, Cold Sport, But Big Business at Grafton

By NICK NICKELS

GRAFTON, April 21—They talk of nothing but fishing in Grafton these days, smelt fishing in the Shelter Valley Creek. The run has been on for ten nights now and is nearly over. One would naturally assume that Grafton, a village of 250 people east of Cobourg on King's Highway No. 2, would be very quiet, especially on a Wednesday half-holiday afternoon. But this is not so.

Two days ago the mail arrived at the Lawless general store and Post Office at 4.30 p.m. It had been raining steadily for hours. There was a sudden surge of life as school children, men and women appeared from all directions from across the village green. They headed for the store. And for the next half hour there was a brisk flurry of trading. Men gravitated in the eddy of buyers to a quiet corner by the oil heater. Gaffers and gnarled oldsters started to talk of smelt fishing.

A New Sport

Smelt fishing is a comparatively new sport along the Great Lakes—about five years old to the knowledge of Graftonians. A few fry dumped into northern Lake Michigan have reproduced themselves in countless millions. Each spring they seek the warm-water mouths of creeks and rivers to spawn on the gravel beds. The outlet of Shelter Valley Creek, a mile and a half below the village on Lake Ontario, suits them admirably. Fishermen from Toronto to Belleville come to Grafton every evening at this time of the year to try their luck. It is cold sport.

Two Peterborough die-hards, Clayton Selkirk and Bob Rooke, were bent on trying it. But they knew little, if anything, about the sport. Young Michael Calnan of the village offered to guide them and they had a right royal night of it.

Villagers claimed that Wednesday's pelting rain would "roil" the stream and make fishing a washout. Skies cleared at dusk and the wind blew fresh from the north-west. They drove through the dark over a boggy road to a sand dune bank on the lake, put on their waders and shouldered their dip nets. Guide Michael took them along the rough gravel beach where loud breakers rolled to their knees. It was hard going.

"How much further, Mike?" yelled Bob over the roar of the surf.

"Your are standing in the middle of the creek mouth now."

Water Was Rough

And so they were. The water was "roily", alright. Even the beams of theiir flashlights did not reach to the shallow gravel bottom. Mike started to swing his dip net like a reaper with a sickle. The others followed suite and soon were lifting a small smelt with every ten sweeps. An old peach basket was slowly filled.

The run started that night at 10 a.m. It might have come earlier or later but in two hours they called it quits and drove back to the village.

At an all-night service station they examined their take, 20 pounds of it. Smelt are a ciscoe or lake herring-like fish, slender and silvery with a sharply-forked tail. They average about eight inches in length, a six-year old adult, and 90 about 11 fish to the pound. A female fish nine inches long will lay 20,000 eggs which hatch in from 20 to 27 days.

Tasty Dish

Their sweet flesh makes fine eating. There are two schols of thought on preparation. Says one, roll them in batter and fry in deep fat, as is, uncleaned. The other side shudders and says they must be headed and cleaned before cooking. Both agree that they have the same register on taste buds as trout.

The smelt run has lasted for about ten nights, and the catch has been many or few, according to the water and air temperature. Experts in Grafton say the run is nearly over this year.

"When you start catching the occasional sucker, its wound up," they say. The Wednesday night trio caught a few suckers in their nets will not plan another trip this year.

Smelt have been publicized as the little fish that "smell like cucumbers." They certainly give off an odd odour. It's fishy.

Local UE Hosts At Quarterly

Peterborough's two UE unions will be hosts over the weekend to delegates from other UE locals at the quarterly district council meeting. About 170 are expected to attend from Ontario and Quebec.

Principal speakers wil be C. S. Jackson, Canadian president; George Harris, secretary-treasurer; and Ross Russell, organizing director.

The opening session will begin at 2:30 p.m. Saturday. Following the reports of district officers there will be resolutions on policy matters, and a general run-down of the present IUE and UE battle.

A dance will be held in the Kawartha Room of the Empress hotel at night and Sunday morning and afternoon will see the discussion on reports and resolutions.

Heading the Local 527 delegation are D. (Dune) Drummond, Tom Ross, R. J. Leonard and John Whalen.

UE members, not named as delegates, may also sit in during the business session as observers.

'Auld Lang Syne' Reminiscent Of Death March

By JEAN E. STENTON

CAEN, April 20—"Auld Lang Syne" is not a very popular song in Caen. It developed a new meaning for the citizens during the Allied bombardment. It was the song sung, amid rubble and flaming streets when fellow first aid workers were buried after being killed on duty. And many of them died helping others.

To those who remained in the city, the weeks before it was completely captured are a never-to-be-forgotten nightmare. Yet it had its humor, too. Mr Louis Dangeard, head of the Geology Department of the University of Caen, was in charge of a first aid section made up mostly of volunteer students. His is the story of civilian Caen under fire.

Jean Stenton

Of the 20,000 who remained in the city, many sought protection in the deep caves under the Abbaye Aux Hommes, sturdy church built by William the Conqueror. The Allies, warned in advance that the people were there, refrained from bombing the building. The remainder sought refuge in the quarries on the right bank of the River Orne. Mr. Dangeard had his headquarters in the Lycee, part of the Abbaye, but he slept at home or in his garden trench.

Plans Laid Early

Long before the invasion took place, the people of Caen had been organized for such a contingency. When they heard machine guns the first night before the landing it was a signal for German troops. But the people thought the battle had begun. They heard great numbers of planes and everyone expected with a landing under way the Germans would not let them out the next day.

Realizing the inhabitants had to have bread, the Nazis permitted them to leave their homes. The people filled their baths with water in case it was cut off and all the men reported to their previously designated posts, mapped out months before in case of invasion. Students volunteered for first aid work.

From 7 a.m. the first day of the invasion, shells fell on the town. At 11 o'clock, Jacobins Street was in flames. In 1940, everyone had tried to flee the city ahead of the Germans. But in 1944, everyone wanted to remain to be liberated by Allied troops. On the nights of June 6 and 7 there was a terrible bombing and another on June 8. Many of the 60,000 people left and while refugees clogged the roads the day after, they were fortunate that few planes appeared.

The city's fire engines were knocked out early in the attack so they could only try and put out the flames with pails of water. Three or four shells fell on the fire station and it was completely disorganized.

Work Well Organized

All the rescue workers gathered in two rooms at the church. One was for resting and sleeping and the other always ready for emergency cases. All their equipment was set up there and civic officials came to the lycee and tried to set up a working organization for the new town.

One of the biggest problems was to supply food for all the people in the church cellars, some of whom remained there for more than a month. One mother had five or six children in a corner about 4½ feet square.

A few of the bakers turned their backs on the war and went on with their work. Three students were appointed to pick up bread every day despite bombs and shells. They always had to work under fire.

John R. Marshall Ill In New York

Taken ill with a heart attack while in New York, John R. Marshall, chairman of the Board of Governors of Civic Hospital and secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Nashau Paper Company in Peterborough was unable to return home this week.

J. M. Hornal, superintendent of the hospital, read a letter to the Board Thursday from Mrs. Marshall, stating that her husband is in Wilson Memorial Hospital, Johnson City, New York, where she has been visiting him daily.

Heavy Hand Of Law Placed On 2 Drunks

Charged with being drunk, William Hagerman, Donegal St., was today sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp. It was Hagerman's third offence.

June Brown, Dummer township also charged with being drunk was fined $50 and $2.50 or one month. It was her second offence.

'Hydro May Return To Trent In Search For More Power Big Dam To Flood Stony?

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission may yet return to the Trent water system in its search for power, J. G. G. Kerry of Port Hope predicted Thursday night. When the major projects such as the St. Lawrence waterway and Ottawa River valley have been fully utilized the Commission will have to start developing the "low head" power sites, now considered uneconomical. One of these sources of additional electric power would be the undeveloped power sites on the Trent system.

Mr. Kerry, formerly of the Electric Power Co., was addressing the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. The Electric Power Company and its subsidiaries at one time controlled the production and distribution of hydro electric power throughout almost the entire Trent Valley area.

It later sold its holdings to the Commission.

Mr. Kerry told how his firm the Seymour Power and Electric Co., built most of the dams in this district and purchased others. (It was the original firm later merged in the large Electric Power holding company.)

Only One New Dam

Some of the dams on the Trent have been closed down now as uneconomical but, to his knowledge, the only large one built since the HEPC took over has been the one at Ranney Falls.

Although retired, Mr. Kerry maintains an active interest in engineering problems. And Thursday night he threw out a couple of "physical possibilities" that would certainly have an impact on the community if acted upon.

Build Big Dam

He suggested "scrapping" all the power dams between Stony Lake and Rice Lake and building one big dam to generate the same amount of power. Whether this project was "economically desirable," he was not prepared to say.

After his talk he elaborated briefly to the effect that it would require maintaining the Stony Lake level down as far as Nassau. This would be a costly operation involving building up the walls of the canal to contain the water, and the flooding of valuable property.

"A physical possibility," he repeated.

Looking back over his many years of hydro electric engineering in this district, he said there was only one thing he regretted.

Can Store More

"That is, that I did not have time to look into the regulation of the Trent system, because I am satisfied that it can flow in a much more regular manner than it does now."

He said the trouble was the variance between the high-water and low-water marks.

"I know a great deal more water can be stored at Stony Lake than now, and it can be enlarged," he said.

Apparently this enlargement meant the flooding of a large tract of land to the east of Stony Lake. He did not elaborate.

His estimate was that the Trent waterways system could generate 150,000 horse power. According to the 1931 Department of Surveys, about 84,000 horse power is now generated.

Beer Truck Ditched Before Rail Crossing

A good samaritan act was the cause of a minor accident on Highway 28, at the Fraserville railway crossing Thursday.

To avoid tangling with a train the driver of a westbound brewery truck skidded into the ditch.

Gerald V. Trolley of Cobourg, driver of a three-ton truck, also going west, stopped to see if he could lend the stranded beer hauler any assistance.

A half-ton truck driven by Harry Kelly of Port Credit promptly ran into the rear of Trolley's truck. The larger vehicle was undamaged but the half-ton will need about $75 to repair damage to the grill and hood.

Provincial Constable C. W. Tutton investigated.

Civic Hospital Overspent Budget $9,089.62

Civic Hospital has overspent its budget for the first three months of this year by $9,089.62, T. T. Rodger, treasurer, told the Board of Governors, Thursday. Since last month's meeting the finance committee has investigated the causes of the unexpectedly high expenditures and every effort is being made to cut down the deficit, Mr. Rodger said.

The dietary bill had exceeded expectation by $2,251.82 and was a considerable increase on last year's figure.

The dietitian pointed out, Mr. Rodger explained, that whereas a decrease of 10 per cent had been expected, the reverse had actually happened. Coffee and meat were up in price and there were increases in the prices of several other foods.

The bill for medical and surgical supplies was $1232. higher than the budget figure and drugs were up $1,105.21.

While the position calls for the serious attention of those concerned, it was not quite as bad as it might seem, Mr. Rodger said. With a reasonable expectation of a slackening in prices he hoped the deficit would be made up by July or August.

Students Return From Teaching

Students will return to their studies at the Peterborough Normal School Monday after a week's teaching in the rural schools following the Easter recess. This was their second full week of teaching in the country schools this year.

Each year the Normal students have a week of urban school teaching before both Christmas and Easter. Similarly, in the week after Christmas and the week after Easter they teach in rural schools.

If possible the students are placed in schools nearest their homes for the four weeks of special teaching. The area from which the students are attending the school is from Kingston on the east, Midland on the west, Bancroft on the north and the lakeshore on the south.

Police Capture Two

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — Police captured two housebreaking suspects Thursday night after a chase down the Mount Pleasant ravine. The men gave their names as Vernon King of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Gerald St. Amour of Lindsay. They were charged with breaking and entering.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Dairy Calf Club Meeting Friday, April 28 at 8 p.m. —More Peterborough Farmers Join Grassland Fraternity — Norwood Fair Oats Derby Fully Organized With 65 Members — Parents Invited To Calf Club Meetings.

Peterborough's crop of Grasslanders should show a fairly broad increase this year, according to intimations which have come to Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative.

"In the last two months", he said yesterday, "we have had 30 to 40 farmers in the office enquiring about "the new pasture" practice. I think the number would be nearer 50. They ask pretty nearly the same question in different ways, but essentially it is 'what do I do to get this improved pasture you hear so much about these days, especially from the Department?'

That is the way their number is growing, much like the membership in the Maple Cattle Breeders Association. Some farmers like to take their own time in arriving at a decision. But, as long as they get interested, that's the main thing, and it is one of our real encouragements."

Mr. Paterson said that for best results there was no stereotyped answer.

"Each case rests on its own peculiar conditions. There is the likelihood of difference in soil, difference in size of the farm, in the finances behind it. One man can readily afford to do a good pasture job on four or five acres. The next man can take on twenty acres. However, the ultimate objective in all cases is to get increased yields of milk or meat per acre. That's what it is all about."

So, spring finds quite a number of farmers equipped with seed and fertiliser, and fields to be made ready. Some are going into it for the first time; others are seasoned Grasslanders.

The ideal course is to begin planning with plenty of time. We had some enquiries started last fall. One farmer wants you to go out and look at his place. Another likes to work out the idea himself. Again the ideal way is to start with testing the soil, plan fertilizer program to balance the fertility as desired; decide on a mixture suitable to that field. Finally you come to the time when you go about getting the field ready and you have the fertilizer and seed bought and you are all set."

Mr. Paterson recommends the booklet "Better Ontario Pastures", issued by the Ontario Department.

The bulletin includes sections dealing with long term pasture and hay-pasture mixtures, and at the top of most of them is alfalfa. They are designed for three types of soils: (a) well drained clay-loam and heavy clay soils of average fertility; (b) light, sandy and gravelly soils; (c) low lying poorly drained soils subject to flooding.

The beef or dairy farmer considering a long term pasture should take the essential first step of having his soil tested. If there is any deficiency in fertility he knows what is needed to build is up. After that he can coast along with maintenance based on his estimate of the plant food cropped from the soil.

DAIRY CALF CLUB MEETING

The boys and girls who have signed up for the dairy calf club are asked to meet Friday April 28 at 8 p.m. in the office of the Department of Agriculture. Parents of the young folks are also invited.

This is the organization meeting for the coming season, and it is likely that two clubs will be formed. Several films showing calf club work will be shown.

WOMEN MEETING

Directors of the Women's Institute are meeting at the office of F. C. Paterson, Friday, April 28 at 2 p.m.

CHAFF IN THE NEWS

Nineteen Shorthorn bulls recently averaged $364 at Walkerton sales. Also at the Yorkshire sale in Bruce 11 boars averaged $115, and 18 breds sows $100.

Here are some prices from the Dufferin spring sale of live stock: Angus bull $300; Hereford heifers $259.50; Hereford bulls $256; Shorthorn bulls $328; Shorthorn heifers $265; bred sows $104.

Seeding in Perth county is two weeks later than usual. North Simcoe reports "a lot of heaving on some of all too few stands of alfalfa".

Lambton says: "A large acreage of alfalfa, red clover and sweet clover will sown this spring judging by the enquiries for legume innoculations."

BEEF CLUB MEETING

Boy and girls of the local beef cattle club are being called to a meeting Monday May 1 at 8 p.m. in the office of F. C. Paterson for organization.

✦ ✦ ✦

CALF CLUB HERD

Marie Cullen, member of the Cobble Hill registered Jersey calf club on Vancouver Island, B. C., won distinction recently with "Deerhaven Jean's Lady May" the calf which she raised as her club project in 1946. Marie has been a club member for five years and at the Annual Meeting of the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club it was anncunced that "Lady May" is the new Canadian champion for milk in the yearling class. Her record for 365 days is 10,715 pounds of milk and 540 pounds of fat.

Marie has been keeping all of her calf club calves and now has the nucleus of a registered Jersey herd. According to the club organizer, Mr. Eric Hamilton, this is the first time a Canadian milk champion for Jersey has been developed by a club member.

WON DAIRY SCHOOL PRIZES

Aubrey Wilson, 248 O'Carroll Ave., has resumed work at Campbell's Dairy after completing the winter course at Kemptville Dairy School with first class honors.

R. E. Hockaday of Lakefield also finished in that top rating.

Mr. Wilson was awarded a special prize of $10 as highest eligible student in engineering, cultures and separators; and $20 for second prize in a competion for practical buttermaking.

W. A. Allen, Campbellford RR-1 stood third in the first class honors group, and C. L. River of Madoc was next to Mr. Wilson. C. Irwin of Campbellford was another of the students in the top brackets. Mr. Allen won the $10 prize for high marks in milk testing.

REGIONAL SHOW AT NORWOOD

Directors of the Ontario Hereford Breeders' Club have notified the secretary of Norwood Fair that they are accepting his invitation to hold their 1950 regional show for Eastern Ontario at the Norwood Fair, Thanksgiving Day. Their show area is east of Yonge St., Toronto to the Quebec boundary.

✦ ✦ ✦

GRASS SILAGE

"Grass silage ofers a solution of Canada's winter feed problem", said Melvin Shuh, Kitchener, to the 1,000 farmers who attended Waterloo county annual seed fair. Grass silage brought his herd of 75 Jerseys through the last few winters with no loss of production and in better condition than had been his experience with hay and corn.

"It takes courage to go into this program," Mr. Shuh warned. "You have to keep afte. the land at all times, fertilize every year for greater yields, and plow your fields under and reseed every two years.

In Mr. Shuh's opinion the younger grass left lying for an hour after cutting made the best feed. He said it was cheaper than corn, and involved less trouble in growing and handling.

65 IN OATS DERBY

Norwood Fair Beaver Oats Derby has closed its membership list with 65 entries, reported yesterday by G. A. Brethen, president, as he was sending out its rules and regulations from the local office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The Fair Board has obtained for its Derby members 1,000 bushels of Reg. No. 1 Beaver oats, grading officially 99 per cent germination (14 per cent above requirements for No. 1 grade), and 100 per cent purity from noxious weeds and other grain.

'In addition for the first time in the history of this area, this grain is Panogen treated for smut. You are now all set with the highest quality seed grain to grow a bumper crop of which you will all be proud."

"You are a member of the Norwood Fair Field, Sheaf and Grain Club. This is the biggest competition of its kind yet attempted by any Ontario Fair. The average membership of such clubs has been around 13. Last year the highest was 30. The local Club has 65, and we are sorry we had to refuse others."

John A. Carroll, secretary of the Ontario Fairs Association, has expressed himself as amazed at the response of East Peterborough farmer to this Norwood Fair project.

Mr. Brethen in his circular announcement to the membership proposes these hints: Sow early, as soon as the field is fit to work; give proper cultivation to provide an ideal seed bed; don't sow the good seed oats on a field that grew oats last year, nor within ten feet of other varieties.

You will find 200-300 pounds mixed commercial fertilizer will pay dividends; 2-12-10 on average soils will plump the seed, stiffen the straw and give higher yields.

With 99 per cent germinations, two bushels of seed per acre on average fields will be sufficient. Be sure and save the registered tag from the sealed bag as proof of identification.

Further quotation from the Brethen letter may be given later. By that kind of enterprise, Norwood Fair is bound to extend its usefulness in the Peterborough rural community.

✦ ✦ ✦

DISCLOSING "BOARDERS"

Some of the 26 Peterborough farmers who joined the Dairy Herd Improvement Association are already getting factual results from the monthly round of their herds by Don Chambers. Some are finding from the test figures that their rating of milkers is not corresponding with the Chambers' scoring. In some instances, cows that were regarded as better producers are actually scoring down the herd scale. The "'boarders" are being exposed, and the odd one has already been sold. Culling on that basis has begun and there are likely to be more animals disposed of as the results of the next few months are listed.

Robert T. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, has been around to some of the herds with Mr. Chambers, and in his estimate, the value of the DHIP is already being demonstrated.

DAIRYING IN ALBERTA

The dairy industry of Alberta, valued at $56,000,000 last year, is expanding, Mr. R. S. Dickson of the Dairy Herd Improvement Plan of that province's Department of Agriculture, told the young men's section of the Junior Farmers at the Normal School this week. Planting of grasses and legumes as a means of preventing soil erosion has been providing pasture which in turn invited an increase in the cattle population.

Grasses are replacing silage, and throughout the province the number of silos is extraordinarily few, compared with the dairy province of Ontario.

Mr. Dickson accompanied Roy Ormiston of Brooklin to the Tuesday night meeting, and discussed the growth of dairying, the use of milking parlors, and other farming customs.

The smallest acreage in dairying is about 160. Good land can be bought at $15 an acre.

Mr. Ormiston talked in a practical way about herd improvement, and digressed to father and son partnership, with emphasis on rural farmers realizing that they should extend to their sons more responsibility in farm management as experience for the day when the younger men have to depend on their own initiative and decision.

Thirty girls attended this meeting and 25 boys. They were in separate panels of discussion, followed by a social hour together.

✦ ✦ ✦

JUNIOR CLUBS FORMING

Of the 35 boys and girls who have signed applications for the dairy calf club, only 12 may be regarded as "old" members.

Enrolment will continue until the two prospective clubs are organized this month. R. E. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, is expecting more than 40 finally, and those who are coming in should do so now.

Mr. Bell is grateful to the parents for their co-operation in getting the several clubs started. The tractor club has been closed for some weeks, and is ready for action. There are 16 applications for the forestry club and 11 already listed with others assured for the beef club.

"It is the help you get that counts in building up success," Mr. Bell said. "The response of the young people and their parents has been excellent, and we should have a good year. We will probably have two dairy calf clubs. Details of their areas have not yet been decided.

Keith McIntyre volunteered his help this week. He feels that club work has a lot to do with his two-year course at OAC, and now he wants to get young people interested and help them.

Junior farmers generally are committed to sponsorship, and everything so far is turning out well.

Present applicants are:

Former members—Harold Bolton, Gwelda Bolton, Gerald Bolton, Mary Wood, Leo Maloney, Gerald Coughlin, Audrey Bolton of Douro; Donald Irwin and Douglas Clark and Nora Wilson of Smith; Dorothy Chambers and R. A. Davidson of Otonabee.

New applicants are:

From Otonabee—Don Kindred, George Green, J. N. Blodgett, Kathryn Thorn, Norma McConkey, Jean Doris.

From Douro—Laura Bolton, Gerald Wood, Allen Bolton.

From Smith—Lorraine Middleton, Barbara Bulmer, John Sanderson, James McMullen, Barbara Mann, Pauline Fitzgerald, Ralph D. Sage, Shirley Tully.

From Emily—Dorothy Jackson.

From Cavan—Barry Whitnell.

From Asphodel—Eldon Van Volkenburg, Jim Leeper, Margaret Clark, Doris Brown.

Most of the young club members will have Holstein calves. The exceptions are Barry Whitnell who will have a Jersey, and the following Ayrshire group: Ralph Sage, Dorothy Jackson, James McMullen and Barbara Mann.

Aristocrats of their breed are these pedigreed Holstein bulls and heifers being loaded into a DC-4 air freighter at New York's International Airport. Raised at Carnation, Wash., the prize herd — valued at $30,000 — was flown to Milan, Italy, as part of a series of shipments to help rebuild Italian herds ruined by war. Above is inside view of plane.

A Good Catch

Fresh-water fish to suit all tastes abound in Ontario lakes and streams. The best bait, the best time and the best way to lure these fish are local lore. Let the U.S. visitor know how he can catch his full limit. His fishing satisfaction is another boost for Ontario's tourist industry. Yugoslavs Fear Reds To Start Sabotage Drive

By RONALD PRESTON.

Belgrade (Reuter's) Yugoslaves believe that the coming spring and summer may see the start of the third phase in the Cominform's campaign against Marshal Tito.

This phase they think will consist of active sabotage and acts of terrorism subversive groups and bands formed by agents now believed to be trying to infiltrate into the country.

Evidence of the existence of such agents has been obtained by the recent capture of a number of persons who are alleged to have been smuggled in from Albania and Bulgaria to organize sabotage and terrorism.

Two facts, the Yugoslav declare, emerged from the recent Albanian spy trial at Skoplje, in which five Albanian citizens and five Yugoslavs were found guilty of working for the Albanian secret service. It was alleged:

1. That the Albanian ministry of the interior is recruiting numbers of people for subversive action on behalf of the Cominform inside Yugoslavia. The Yugoslav public prosecutor stated at the trial that there are six "bases" in Albania where these people are being trained.

2. That the immediate tasks of the agents when they reach Yugoslavia appear to be to contact opponents of the regime and organize them into underground groups. Action in the form of sabotage or terrorism would come later on a given signal from Albania.

One of the defendants at the Skoplje trial, Ahmed Pero, told the court that he had no idea what tactics were to be employed against the Yugoslav authorities. His job was first to organize things. Arms and directives would come later.

Try Bulgarian Agents

A similar trial of Bulgarian agents is to take place at Nish.

Vlado Dedijer, the Yugoslav director of information, recently dismissed the smuggling of Cominform agents into Yugoslavia as "trivial incidents" and declared that his government was not taking them seriously.

On the other hand, Soviet officials have expressed confidence in private conversation with westerners that the conflict with Marshal Tito will end in their favor. One of them, dismising the idea of an attack by the Red Army on Yugoslavia as "ridiculous," recently declared: "We are in no hurry. There is plenty of time — one year, two years. . . they will toe the line in the end."

The possibility of an armed attack against Yugoslavia later this year as the only means of ridding the Communist world of the "Tito clique" is discounted also in Yugoslav circles here, although it is not excluded.

The Yugoslav view, as expressed privately by a senior official recently, appears to be that much depends on the attitude of the western powers. If they make it clear that an attack on Yugoslavia could not be isolated and would probably lead to a third world war, Russia would desist, since it is not thought here that she is ready for such a conflict.

The possibility of a surprise attack by Russia is strongly discounted here. Military observers consider that the five or six Soviet divisions now in Hungary and Rumania are not sufficient to do the job. The Germans, they say, found between 16 and 20 division none too many just to keep communications open in Yugoslavia, let alone subdue Marshal Tito's Partisan forces in the mountains.

PROPHETIC OF SPRING—There is a lyrical new spirit, a discreet femininity to current spring hats. At left, a side-swooping hat in pebble white felt takes deep plunge to side and rich moss rose daringly tucked into its snowy depths. Right, the "derby" gets a romantic lift as perky rose veiling. Can also be worn now with winter furs.

Wallaceburg Opens

WALLACEBURG, April 21 — (CP)—The bulk-carrier John R. Emery brought the first cargo of the season to Wallaceburg early Thursday, unloaded and departed without waiting for its skipper to receive the traditional top hat. Captain L. E. Gundry will receive the topper on his next trip here.

OLD CAPITAL

The first Russian state was centred on Kiev in the ninth century.

"Auld Lang Syne"

Ten men were responsible for procuring the daily rations of volunteers were never lacking, wine. This was one job for which Mr. Dangeard recalls with a laugh. They never lacked food throughout the siege and they salvaged whatever food they found in houses they were trying to save from the flames. Food taken from houses was always pooled.

Milking Brigade

Other students, many of whom had scarcely seen a cow before, were on the milking brigade. Every day they went to the meadow on the side of the town and milked the animals. They had a cart with a donkey to take milk for the babies in other shelters than the Abbaye. Cheese was a very popular item on the menu because all cheese factories had been abandoned and their contents seized.

Many was the chuckle enjoyed by the students over one of the tricks put over the Nazis. Deciding that Caen needed to renew its tobacco supply, some daring youths painted a lorry white with a Red Cross and drove 100 miles to Mons and back with the coveted supply. The Germans let it through without question.

The most difficult part of the job was to find the wounded who were still trapped in damaged houses. They had to check students in and out to make sure all returned. Sometimes it took more than 24 hours to get the wounded out of the ruins and the debris. Several students were killed in this type of work. A young girl 14, who was looking after young children was killed.

All cars in the city were painted white with a red cross so the Germans would believe they were ambulances.

Universitiy Destroyed

In the second devastating bombing of Caen, the university buildings were destroyed. Mr. Dangeard was under the steps of the university when a shell fell about [illegible] is from him. There was a [illegible] fire which destroyed everything. The university had been built in 1400 by the British and was destroyed in 1944 by the United States. A huge stock of rubber, which had been rescued from other ruins was stored in the college buildings for safety. That too was destroyed and added to the stench of fire which hung heavily over the city.

Caen was liberated on the left bank of the river by the British, but the right bank was liberated a week later. For a week the Germans, who were on the higher bank, could easily bomb the part where the Allies were.

During the period when the Nazis were on the right bank, it was hard for the inhabitants who wanted to go to the coast and be liberated. When they heard machine guns, they feared the Germans were returning.

Part of the inhabitants took refuge in underground quarries on the right bank of the river. But it was very damp and it was more difficult to bring them provisions. They were quite near to the German guns and dared not go out. The heavy fighting gave the civilians one advantage. Those taking supplies to the quarries got through the lines by wearing Red Cross armlets. The Nazis had no time to be bothered with them.

Didn't Stay

Members of the Gestapo left the first night of the big battle. Before leaving they took the 75 people who were being held in prison and shot them. During the fighting, Storm Troopers plundered stores and houses for whatever they could carry away.

Morale was sometimes affected by the burial services. They frequently had to bury the dead near the living and the latter were always upset at the sound of the service. It increased their fear and prompted the thought: "Perhaps next time it will be us." They were comforted, however. Mr. Dangeard said, when they saw the light German equipment passing on the road to Falaise.

Since the hospitals were destroyed, doctors had gathered in Bon Sauveur, an old monastery. They were all working day and night, even those only partly trained. There were big cellars there and the wounded were safe. Those were the worst cases. Less seriously injured were taken to the lycee at the Abbaye Aux Hommes. It is estimated that more than 10,000 were wounded. The worst cases were those in falling debris.

Several of the students were recommended for decorations, but many did not live to collect them.

IT'S ALL IN THE FAMILY.—John Antons of Portland, Ore., made a dramatic bid to try to stop his wife, Betty, from getting a divorce. Wearing a sign reading "Betty Unfair to Johnny and Jimmy," he is seen following his wife home after picketing her place of work. Jimmy is their two-year-old son. Antons offered $100 reward to anyone who could bring him and his wife together.

Trains Collide

BOSTON, April 21 (AP) — A slow-moving, eight-car train train packed with 500 passengers plowed into the rear of a standing local carrying as many more in a driving rainstorm Thursday night, but no one was injured seriously. Nineteen persons were treated for cuts and bruises at hospitals. None was held.

Geese Migrating

PORTLAND, Me., April 21 — (AP)—The northbound migration of Canada geese along the Atlantic flyway is normal this year, says Lee F. Brackett, district United States game management agent who conducted the seventh annual "Honker Census."

ShowmanRecalls Wild West With Buffalo Bill

CRANBERRY PORTAGE (CP) —Caribou Smith, 89, wild-west showman, cowpuncher and freighter, says: "Buffalo Bill and Calamity Jane were like father and mother to me."

He displays a frontier-model Colt—a .44-calibre on a .45-calibre frame— which he says was a gift from Buffalo Bill. He says he remembers "many scalps hanging from the belts of Indian friends" in his boyhood.

Caribou's story is that he ran away from his home in Yakima, Wash., in 1873, taking along a pony and a few supplies. His target was Wyoming, where he wanted to join Buffalo Bill and work on his cattle ranch.

(Buffalo Bill, or William Frederick Cody, was born in 1845, died in 1917. His early life was spent among Indians and he served as a Union Scout in the United States Civil War. His nickname came from contracts he made to supply buffalo meat for railway workers and troops in the American west.)

Cody gave him a job as a cowhand. Later, when Buffalo Bill started his famous Wild West show, Caribou went along.

Caribou speaks fondly of Calamity Jane. He says she found him in a gambling hall where he wandered by mistake, learned his story, gave him food and lodging and next day took him to Cody's ranch. He always came back from trips abroad to wherever she was living.

After leaving the Cody show, Caribou says, he worked the rodeos and stampedes all over the United States, then moved to Alberta in 1916. About two years later he moved to The Pas, Man., and soon was teaming freight to Reindeer Lake and Flin Flon, in that vicinity.

He retired in 1946, but couldn't keep still. He bought a team of horses and still does odd jobs, hauling wood, water and ice.

GRANDMOTHER RESCUES 7 CHILDREN FROM FARM BLAZE

Mrs. Jessie Fairbairn, 72, of Barrie, Ont., performs gallant feat despite broken wrist

1. In the 6-room frame farm-house, in Vespra Township, Mrs. Fairbairn was bathing the baby. Suddenly one of the other children — there are seven all told in the house — rushed in and breathlessly announced that the upstairs floor was on fire!

2. Finding out that the child's story was true, Mrs. Fairbairn took the baby and a 1-year-old girl in her arms and carried them outside. Then, in spite of her 72 years, and the fact that she had recently broken her wrist, the courageous grandmother re-entered the burning building.

3. Flames leaped at her down the stairwell, but Mrs. Fairbairn didn't hesitate. Choking from the smoke she ran up the stairs and led the four remaining children down to safety. We are proud to pay tribute to gallant Mrs. Jessie Fairbairn through the presentation of THE DOW WARD.

THE Dow AWARD

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. THE AVRO JETLINER, Canadian-built jet airliner, attracts a crowd at New York's International Airport, after completing a 365-mile flight from Toronto, Canada, in one hour recently. The 60-passenger plane resembles an ordinary plane except for the ambsence of propellers. There are two jet engines in each wing. The plane carried gifts and invitations on behalf of the Mayor of Toronto.

Griffen Charged With Keeping Betting House

Judgment was reserved until April 27 by Magistrate W. R. Philp Thursday in the case of Charles Griffen, charged with keeping a common betting house.

Griffen was charged April 1, following a city-wide raid by members of the Provincial Police anti-gambling squad.

Testimony revealed several slips that might have been records of bets placed were found in the Glen Lunch, 186 King St., where Griffen works.

Corp. John Cronin of the anti-gambling squad told court he entered the snack bar and found a punchboard behind the counter. "As I was doing this, Griffen pushed past me, went to a garbage container, and ripped up some paper, dropping it in the can.

"I later took the torn pieces of paper from the container, and joined them together. They had on them names of horses listed is that day's Racing Rorm. A copy of that day's Racing Form was also found on the premises," the officer said.

Second witness for the crown, Corp. Clifford Von Zuber, testified he found three slips of paper in Griffen's hip pocket. "These also listed names of horses," he said.

Not Blank Form

Cross-examining Corp. Cronin, defence counsel W. J. A. Fair asked: "In this search warrant you had, didn't you have it blank and fill in the names later?"

"No," said the corporal.

"Tell me, what is 186 King St. like?"—"It's a little, low building with a taxi stand in it."

"By low, do you mean. . ?"—"No, sir, I mean its height."

"If you found slips and things like these in my house, would you charge me with keeping a common betting house?" asked Mr. Fair.

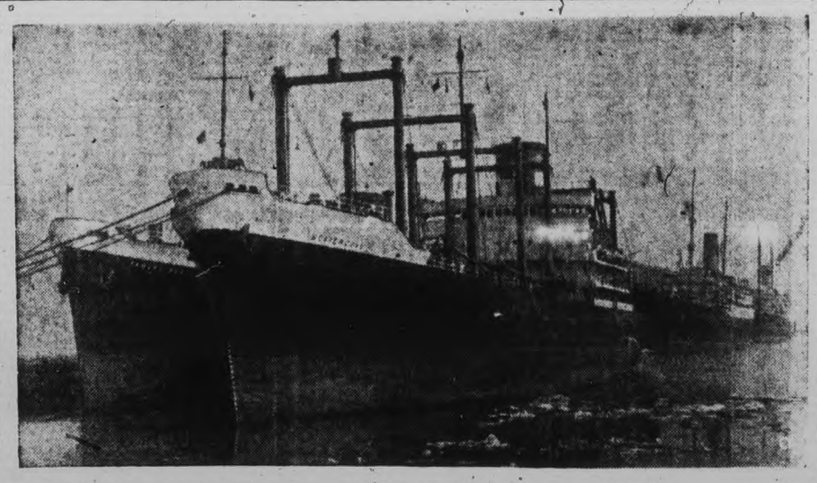
"If I had a search warrant, I would," answered the corporal.

Following the crown's case, Mr. Fair moved for dismissal, saying: "There must be evidence of traffic to and from the alleged betting house. These slips have no date on them—they might be two years old."

In argument, crown counsel John Bradshaw said: "From the presence of a Racing Form for that day, of the slips found in his pocket and those he attempted to destroy, I think the reasonable inference may be drawn that he was taking bets."

Mr. Fair refused to call a defence, saying: "I don't see any point in it. My client could only deny he took bets, and such denials don't seem to have much force in courts."

"This is a somewhat technical case," commented his Worship, "I will reserve judgement on it for one week."



NAVIGATION OPENING—The port of Quebec is jammed with ocean-going ships these days after a busy opening of St. Lawnavigation. Shown above tied up at Wolfe's Cove are some of the 1950 season's first arrivals, the cargo ships Beavercove and Beaverglen, and the liners Samaria and Franconia. Later the Beavercove won the race to be the first ship into Montreal this season.

Marble Slab To Commemorate Mr.-Mrs. Nicholls

A marble slab commemorating Robert Nicholls and his wife, Charlotte Jane Nicholls, is to be erected in the new Civic Hospital and the Board of Governors is hoping it will be in place in time for the official opening in May.

Mrs. Nicholls was founder of Nicholls Hospital and the following inscription will perpetuate her action:

"Erected in memory of Robert Nicholls and Charlotte Jane Nicholls. The Peterborough Civic Hospital is successor to Nicholls Hospital which was founded in 1885 by Mrs. Nicholls in memory of her husband. Under its Board Nicholls Hospital served this community until 1945, when it gave all its property and assets to establish this hospital."

WA Meets At Home Of Mrs. D. E. Scriver

HASTINGS, April 21 (ENS)—Mrs. D. E. Scriver was hostess to Group Two of the Women's Association of Trinity United church and Mrs. F. C. Foster presided.

The worship was in charge of Mrs. F. S. Crate and Mrs. J. M. Baker read the scripture.

Mrs. A. Waters was appointed to look after the sale of metal sponges.

Mrs. Foster invited the members to her home for the next meeting, May 16.

Mrs. Foster gave a talk on her recent trip to Nassau in the Bahamas, showing cards and baskets and beads made by the natives. Mrs. Baker moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Foster.

Paul and Maureen Humphries sang a duet.

The hostess served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. L. W. Humphries, Mrs. C. Oliver and Mrs. K. German.

Demand Better Coal From British Mines

LONDON, —(CP)— A new drive against "dirty" coal has started in Britain's nationalized mines.

Philip Noel-Baker, in his first major speech as fuel minister, told the House of Commons country-wide instructions have been issued in an effort to reduce the quantity of slate in coal.

He promised a redoubled drive at the pits for "cleaner filling, better lighting and better manning of the picking belts."

Conferences will be held among coal officials and merchants. One result, British newspapers speculated, may be a ruling allowing consumers to buy coal where they like, instead of being "tied" to one merchant as at present.

Noel-Baker said he recognizes dirty coal as a "genuine grievance."

Use New Method Preserve Poles

OTTAWA, April 21 (CP) — A preservative process, originated in India, is adding to the life of telephone poles used in Ontario and Quebec.

Thomas E. Eadie, vice-president in charge of operations for the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, outlined the process for the Board of Transport Commissioners Thursday as hearings continued on Bell's application for rate increases that would boost the company's telephone revenues in the two central provinces by 20 per cent.

He cited the process as an example of Bell's efforts to improve service and reduce costs.

Mr. Eadie said that for many years creosote had been used to preserve thousands of pine poles on its 26,000 miles of pole lines in the two provinces. He said creosoted poles tended to be wet and dirty in hot weather and were not suitable for urban areas.

As a result, Bell laboratories in 1938 purchased patents held in India for a chemical salt preservative process. Use of the process had been delayed because of the wartime shortage of chemicals but that in 1949 the company saved $11,645 by using the process instead of the creosoted product.

Tipplers Smiling Now In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, — (CP) — South Africa's whisky drought is being relieved by a drink which is prepared locally. Its base is a concentrate imported from Holland, but it is blended and broken down with spirit in the Union.

Regulations do not permit the new drink to be called "whisky" but in bars and bottle stores it is offered as a substitute by its trade-name when Scotch is not available. It has been widely accepted and customers regard it as "the next best thing" to Scotch.

1,000 Plays Year Written In Britain

LONDON — (CP) — The Lord Chamberlain's Office in St James's Palace is bulging with so many scripts of plays from prolific authors that several thousand copies are to be moved to the British Museum for safekeeping there.

The Lord Chamberlain's approval must be obtained before a play is eligible for public performance.

"We are getting about 1,000 scripts a year," said an official. "We have always kept copies as a national record but some years ago all scripts up to 1850 were moved to the British Museum to make room.

"Now our space is becoming limited again. We have so many scripts that the total is not known. Those submitted during the last 40 years alone total about 70,000."

At one time these scripts dated back to the days of Shakespeare Many disappeared before adequate storage provision was made Those now in storage in the Museum date from 1824.

May Stop Dope Peddling By Helping to Cure Addict

By MEL SUFRIN

OTTAWA, April 21 — (CP) — The Federal Government soon may open a new front in the full-scale war against drug addiction. Currently being considered is a program designed to strike a blow at the heart of the problem by setting up a pilot plant which would attempt to perfect methods of curing dope addicts.

Just what the government is up against is illustrated by the story of a man who was recently released from penitentiary after five years. He had been a confirmed adidct when arrested on a charge of possession of narcotics.

The day after he was let out of jail, he was re-arrested. He was in possession of dope at the time and had taken a dose of heroin not long before.

"It was all I ever thought about for five years," he told police as he headed back to jail.

Isolation Insufficient

The fact that mere withdrawl of a drug is not sufficient to cure addiction is recognized in Canada where the problem is already being attacked on two fronts.

Police are continuously rounding up addicts and the more-dangerous, seldom-addicted dope pedlars. On the international front, the Health Department is attempting to find a way of identifying the original source of a drug by its chemical make-up. If successful, this would enable chemists to trace illicit narcotics back to the country of their origin and thus help stem the flow from there.

The cure question has been subject of consideration by a Technical Advisory Committee on narcotic drug addiction set up by the Federal Government in 1947. It has cited evidence that treatment can result in successful cures in an appreciable number of cases, with consequent reduction of crime and economic loss.

200 In Prison

There now are some 200 criminal addicts in Federal Penitentiaries. The committee recommended that the Health and Justice Departments jointly set up a treatment centre. Main purpose would be to provide facilities for mental and therepeutic treatment of those of the 200 addicts behind bars who are willing and have any hope of permanent cure.

The government is currently considering the committee's suggestion that a 50 to 75-bed clinic be set up for this treatment.

The whole task would be to try to change the mental habits of the prisoners so they would not turn to narcotics again when faced with unpleasant situations after their release.

This alteration in mental outlook might be accomplished by discussions with a psychiatrist, by building up the patients physically, by giving them vocational and avocational training, equipping them with a decent means of support and by showing them how to make use of their leisure time so that, after release, they would not from sheer boredom revert to their old habits and frequent the haunts of addicts and others who prey upon their weaknesses.

U. S. Program

A program of this kind has been undertaken in the United States. Health Minister Martin has reported that in that country 55.7 per cent were fully cured.

Majority of prisoners paroled after treatment were found to have continued to abstain from narcotics over periods from six months to six years.

"Drug addicts can be reclaimed," said Mr. Martin. "It is an undertaking worth trying, even if it rescues only a few from bondage to drugs and saves some of the economic loss resulting from anti-social use of narcotics."

"So sorry, but the wife's superstitious!"

TV Aerials Present Poser To Authorities

LONDON —(CP)—Erection of H-type television aerials on municipal housing developments is causing embarrassment to local authorities.

Some have forbidden the aerials on the grounds of unsightliness; others are preparing special insurance terms and insisting on supervising installations.

Heston and Isleworth Council in Middlesex is considering a charge of 2s. 6d. (38 cents) a year to cover special insurance for damage to property and third-party risks.

"Under our tenancy agreements no tenant is allowed to erect an aerial without permission," said a council spokesman. "This charge will enable us to see that they are securely erected."

Ilford, in northeast London, is among the communities which refuse to allow H-aerials.

OLD FAITHFUL — While automobiles were stalled along the highway leading into Rosenfield in southern Manitoba, a horse and buggy managed to get through. This photo shows Highway 14A, south of the community, shortly after flood waters swept over the area this week in the worst flood the district has had since 1897. Dozens of families were marooned and rail and road traffic to four towns was halted for 24 hours.

Aide-de-Camp Sailor 25 Years

HALIFAX—(CP)— Capt. William Tanner is reluctant to say what his duties are as one of the King's two aides-de-camp from the Royal Navy Reserve. But he confidently expects to be able to attend a Buckingham Palace garden party this summer as a result.

A veteran of two wars and a sailor for 25 years, Capt. Tanner wase made an aide-de-camp last December.

He is skipper of the Canadian freighter Sibley Park. While his ship was here loading cargo for the United Kingdom, he told reporters the appointment is a "great honor." His predecessor was Capt. R. G. Thelwell, former master of the famous Aquitania.

Capt. Tanner went to sea as a youth abroad ships of the Clan Line, was a junior officer in the Royal Navy during the First World War and then transferred to the Cunard Line.

During his career with Cunard he served on such well-known liners as the Franconia, Carinthia, Samaria, Scythia, Carmania, Laconia, Berengaria and Caronia.

When the Second World War started he was a lieutenant-commander in the Royal Navy reserve. During the first four years he served at a minesweeping base and with a flotilla in the English Channel. He was a captain of a ship on D-Day.

After the Normandy invasion, he commanded a naval base on the west coast of India where preparation were made for a proposed assault on Singapore. He returned to the merchant service in 1947 as master of the Sibley Park, operated by Park Steamships Limited of Montreal and chartered by Cunard.

Frozen Apple Juice Help To BC Growers

VANCOUVER —(CP)— Frozen apple juice may give British Columbia's apple industry a big boost.

C. B. Powell, Canadian food broker just returned from California, reports experiments now are being made in freezing and concentrating apple juice.

"Frozen orange juice has been the biggest thing ever to hit the frozen food and orange industry," he said.

Concentrated juices save on freight charges. Mr. Powell said high freight rates cut sales of B. C. apple juice in eastern Canada.

Actually you are paying freight on water, which makes up a large part of the juice." If water is removed, charges come down rapidly.

B. C. growers were unable to dispose of a large part of their crop last year owing to a lack of markets. They gave the surplus to Britain.

Two Caretakers Tried For Thefts From Army Camp

SWEETSBURG, Que., April 21 (CP) — Georges Arthur Sirois, civilian caretaker of the Army's former summer camp at nearby Farnham, appeared briefly before Judge Maurice Fortin Thursday on charges of theft of articles from the camp.

Following a short session, during which only two witnesses were heard, Judge Fortin postponed further hearing to May 12.

Both Sirois and Auguste Baron, another caretaker, pleaded innocent when they appeared before Judge Fortin March 23. Baron, who has not yet appeared for trial, is charged with stealing items worth $1,077 and Sirois with stealing items valued at $115. Date of Baron's trial is not yet fixed.

At Thrusday's session, Capt. M. C. M. Cameron, an engineer officer of Quebec Command, testified to the value of certain types of stolen equipment, while a member of the Canadian Provost Corps testified he had been present at investigation into the matter.

A previous statement from Quebec Command said that the 31 huts, plumbing, other materials and fixtures that disappeared from the lightly-guarded camp of 200 small buildings cost $27,534 when new but now were worth $5,354.

Greater Community Effort Asked of Kiwanis Club

An official visit was paid Thursday to his home club, the Peterborough Kiwanis Club, by Lieut.-Governor William A. Richardson, of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime District of Kiwanis International.

Mr. Richardson told the club that during March the Peterborough club was the top club in the division, and is one of the top clubs in the district.

During March the local club earned 105 points for top lace. The Toronto Riverdale club placed second, Kingston third, East York fourth and Belleville fifth.

Points are awarded for reports being in on time, for membership, for reports on the large and small committees, for Key Clubs, and for club building.

Mr. Richardson's only criticism of the Peterborough club was that he felt it should do more community work for its size. During 1949, he said, about $3900 was spent by the club in community work and this year the figure has risen to $4600. Even with this increase suggested that the club set its sights higher.

Mr. Richardson expressed his admiration of the smaller clubs in the division such as Dunbarton and Madoc. He said that there is more work done in the small clubs in relation to club membership than in the large clubs.

The lieut.-governor said that clubs have the tendency to take in new members and leave it at that. He suggested that everything should be done to get a new member into the spirit of Kiwanis.

The speaker was introduced by Milf Hardill and thanked by Dennes Fitzgerald.

The Public Library and Murray St. Baptist Church will be used this year by the Kiwanis Music Festival, Vincent McCabe, past president, told the club. Entries total 685.

Turning Canadian Sea Food Into Tasty Meal-time Fare

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 22 (CP) — The games and fisheries department of Quebec has several recipes for turning sea-food into tasty meal-time fare.

Fresh or frozen cod fillets may be served "au gratin," with tomatoes or cheese.

Cut fillet into portions and place in greased baking-dish Cook in hot oven (500 degrees Fahrenheit) 10 to 12 minutes for fresh fillets and 15 to 22 minutes for frozen fillets.

✧ ✧ ✧

Fillets Au Gratin—Dip fillets in well-salted milk (one tablespoon of salt to one cup of milk). Roll in dried bread crumbs. Bake in oven.

✧ ✧ ✧

Fillets with tomatoes—one tin cream of tomato soup; one tablespoon of shallots (cut in small pieces); two teaspoons sugar.

Salt and cover with cream of tomato soup to which shallots and sugar have been added. Cook during required time.

✧ ✧ ✧

Fillets with Cheese Sauce — Ingredients of sauce: two tablespoons butter; three tablespoons flour; one cup hot milk; one-third cup grated cheese; one-half teaspoon powdered mustard; one-quarter teaspooon salt.

Melt butter, remove saucepan from fire and add flour gradually, mix well; add hot milk; cheese mustard and salt. Mix until cheese is melted. Cook five minutes. Pour over fish and place in oven.

✧ ✧ ✧

Fish Chowder — Ingredients: four tablespoons butter; two onions (finely chopped); three-quarters cup minced celery; two cups uncooked potatoes (diced); two cups uncooked codfish (chopped); four cups boiling water three cups milk; one tablespoon minced parsley; one tablespoon salt; one-eighth teaspoon pepper

Cook onion and celery five minutes in melted butter. Add boiling water, potatoes and fish Cook until potatoes are soft. Add milk, parsley and seasonings. Do not let boil after having added milk.

✧ ✧ ✧

Fillets in Turbans—Ingredients: small fillets of sole or cod; prepared mustard; one egg; dried bread crumbs; vegetable fat.

Wipe fillets with a damp cloth; salt, cover with a light coat of mustard. Roll into turbans Fasten with short skewer or toothpick. Dip in egg beaten with two tablespoons of water. Roll in dried bread crumbs. Place turbans on a greased baking-sheet. Cook 12 to 15 minutes in a hot oven. Serve with melted butter, not browned. Pour over fish while still bubbling. Garnish with parsley.

Radio Broadcasts Changed Character of House Debates

By LOUIS L. LECK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SYDNEY, Australia —(CP)— Radio is changing the traditional character of the Australian parliament.

Members no longer address their speeches to fellow members, but rather to a radio audience. The change began in 1946 when parliament, by legislation instructed the government-appointed Australian Broadcasting Corporation to air the proceedings of either House of Representatives or Senate every day parliament was sitting.

Members quickly came to regard the broadcasts as a valuable means of spreading party doctrine. The question period in particular became popular with them and members of both sides used it to criticize what they termed government by regulation and the civil service.

The present Liberal-Country Party coalition government which was in opposition when broadcasting of sessions was introduced, used to complain bitterly that parliament had become a mere cipher. Since the new government has been in power, however, there has been no indication it will curtail or abolish the broadcasts.

Broadcasting begins when the House meets—usually 2:30 pm. or when the House adjourns, whichever is earlier.

The 8 pm. call is regarded as the best listening period and therefore is most popular with members. The party whips arrange this call in an attempt to preserve an equitable balance.

Settled by Committee

Parliament appoints an all-party standing committee which decides whether the upper or lower House will be broadcast on any particular day. Generally the committee tries to air the proceedings in the House debating the subject of most interest, but the House of Representatives gets about three times as much radio time as the Senate.

There is no accurate means of determining the strength of the listening audience. The ABC broadcasts two programs simultaneously—one on a national network and the other on a state hook-up. Parliament is carried on the national program.

The privately-owned stations, which compete with those of the ABC, claim that about 85 per cent of the approximately 1,000,000 licenced radio sets in Australia at any given time are tuned to their programs, the rest to the ABC. It has also been estimated that one-third to one-half of the ABC's listeners tune to parliament.

A guess based on these estimates, therefore, would place parliament's listening audience at something in excess of 100,000 for routine speeches, although there would be a large audience for important talks.

An example of how speakers have the radio audience in mind occurred recently when Rowley James, colorful Labor member for Hunter constituency, was having difficulty with an ill-fitting denture during a speech.

Suddenly he turned to the microphone and bellowed: "And if my dentist is listening I want to tell him this. "I'll be home at the week-end and I hope my new teeth are ready."

Met Comedian Will Attempt Light Operas

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 21 (AP) Salvatore Baccaloni is making his American debut into light opera.

The rotund debutant has for many seasons been a leading basso and foremost comedian of the Metropolitan Opera House. He opens here next Monday in "The Chocolate Soldier."

"I have done light opera before," he said 'but that was long ago when I was in Italy. I have only a week of rehearsal for this show but I studied the part in New York. I do not find it difficult because the stage is the stage, whether it is opera, light or straight drama."

New Field

He agreed that the engagement might open a whole new field for him in the same manner that Ezio Pinza hit by moving from the Met to Broadway.

"But I would not want to be tied up, as Pinza is to 'South Pacific'," said Baccaloni. "even after he comes out here to do a picture, he has to go back to the play." The Basso added that he also is interested in movies and may do a color version of "Barber of Seville" in Italy this summer.

Baccolini said he would return to the Met next year. I sought his opinion of the controversial actions of the new manager, Rudolph Bing.

"He is a capable man and he has a tremendous job on his shoulders," was the answer. "As to how he succeeds, that will be determined after he has had his first season."

Outlines Opportunities

At the meeting of the Young Women's Mission Circle at Murray St. Baptist Church this week, the CGIT group presented the program. Their purpose was to interpret to the Circle what Baptists are doing among the new Canadians and they had as speaker Miss Nel Schell from Holland who explained the procedure by which these people are brought to Canada, then outlined the many opportunities open to Canadians to make the DPs as well as other immigrants feel at home. Miss Schell was introduced by Joan Naish and appreciation was expressed to her by Miss Marion Easson. With Miss Emiline Reed in the chair, items of business were discussed including the report of the nominating committee. The worship service was conducted by Misses Phyllis Thompson and Frances Healey. A social time afterward was in charge of Mrs. M. Curtis and Mrs. J. Sexsmith.

Bible Story Gives Challenge

The Woman's Association met at Grace United Church Wednesday evening with Mrs. H. Close, president, in the chair. Arrangements were made for a spring tea to be held at the church Wednesday afternoon, May 10. The Rev. E. W. Rowland gave a splendid address taking as his theme the Bible story of Moses and Hobab. In this case when Hobab said "No" to a request, nothing further was heard of him, but Moses' name lives forever, so he challenged the members to whether their answer be "yes" or "no". After some community singing a lunch was served by Mrs. M. Jackson and her committee.

Parcel Post Table A New Feature By Evening Guild

A good crowd turned out Wednesday afternoon and made the tea at St. George's Anglican Church a success. Hostesses were members of the Evening Guild and the president Mrs. W. White was responsible for the arrangements. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. E. C. Moore.

A parcel post table was a feature attraction. Small parcels valued at 25c had been sent in from numerous outside points and the sale of these netted $22. Mrs. W. Bannon had charge of these as well as the draw tickets on a quilt raffle.

Winner of the quilt was Miss Marie Derry, 165 Hunter St. E.

The fancy goods table was in charge of Mrs. H. Siddall and Mrs. C. Crouter was in charge of selling the home baked goods.

Spring flowers decorated the tea room and were centrepieces on the small serving tables. Mrs. Walter Hall was in charge of serving and her assistants were Mrs. A. Siddall, Mrs. E. Atkinson, Mrs. Roy Wannamaker, Mrs. May, Mrs. McDougall and Mrs. S. Parkes.

J. H. Rogers Wed In Ottawa

The marriage of Mr. Joseph Hayward Rogers of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Rogers, 512 Romaine St., to Mary Joan Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Clark, Ottawa, took place at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, Ottawa, early Monday morning. Sgt. George Prudhome officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Mrs. Alfred Griffin of Peterborough as matron of honor. Her bridesmaids were Miss Claire St. Jean and Miss Isobel Knight of Ottawa. Mr. Alfred Griffin was groomsman and ushers were Alan Clark and Frank Pasley.

The bride was gowned in ivory satin designed with French lace trimming on the nylon net yoke and peplum. Her floorlength silk net veil with fan corners was held in place by a coronet of seed yearls and she carried an arm bouquet of American beauty roses and bouvardia.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple left for a wedding trip. The bride travelled in a navy gabardine suit with navy and white accessories, a white flowered hat and shoulder spray of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will live at 527 Braidwood Ave., Peterborough.

Centennial Tea Nets Council $77

A number of business matters were taken up by the Local Council of Women at the monthly meeting Thursday afternoon with president Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus presiding.

Instruction on how to vote on resolutions to be presented at the annual meeting of National Council and the semi-annual meeting of Provincial Council is to be given the president by the executive.

It was decided the Council would purchase a tablecloth for use at meetings which would be inscribed with the crest, using funds from the centennial tea. Mrs. H. M. Dunford, Mrs. E. B. McWilliams and Mrs. A. A. McIntyre were appointed to look after this matter.

A suggestion to make Mrs. M. J. Swanston honorary vice-president of Council while her husband is mayor of Peterborough was unanimously approved. Mayor and Mrs. Swanston assisted the members at the recent centennial tea.

Reporting on the tea Mrs. McWilliams, convener, stated $77.52 was the net proceeds.

Mrs. J. Londerville reported 20 boxes of canned goods and other food that would be useful in Britain had been packed and sent in answer to an appeal from National Council. A full report was not available owing to the illness of her co-convener, Mrs. C. Olaveson.

Mrs. K. Simpson is receiving donations to make up $45 to provide maintenance for a crippled child in Europe through the Unitarian Service.

As archivist, Mrs. Simpson is collecting pictures and information for a history of Peterborough Local Council. Mrs. E. Wand and the president were asked to assist her on this.

Those wishing to attend the National Council annual meeting at London, Ontario, May 29 to June 3, were requested to write for reservations. The Provincial semi-annual meeting will be about the middle of May in Orillia and transportation will be secured if a sufficient number decide to attend.

Mrs. J. M. Fanning is acting as treasurer during absence from the city of Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy.

Mills, of Toronto, secretary of Baby Bands of the United Church of Canada, at their fifth annual rally. Mrs. M. J. Aiken extended a welcome to the 125 mothers present.

An impressive worship service with the theme "Motherhood" opened the meeting, Mrs. W. King, of St. Andrew's, and Mrs. S. J. Rowe, of George St., and Mrs. Ross, of Knox Church, assisting Mrs. W. R. Philp, of Trinity, who presided. Mrs. K. Kemp was at the piano.

Four-year-old Donald McMurchy, of St. James' Baby Band won all hearts when he sang "Jesus loves me" and another selection. He stood on a chair so he could be seen by his audience.

Mrs. E. Cardwell, of Stewart Hall, gave a reading entitled "Mother," by Edgar Guest. A choir of Trinity mothers known as Trinity Choral Group sang three numbers, with Mrs. D. B Gordon conducting and Mrs. O. Jameson accompanying.

Annual reports read by the presidents of the seven groups, George St., Mark St., Knox, St. Andrew's, Trinity, St. James' and Stewart Hall, gave an over-all picture of the work that has been carried on.

Highlight was Mrs. Mills' address in which she complimented the mothers on the splendid work they have done. She gave a description of the children's work in India, Africa and Trinidad, and children's wards in the WMS hospitals at Bala Bala and Bala Coola in B.C. She reported $15,000 raised in 1949 by Baby Band groups, a fine contribution to a great work.

Mrs. Mills was introduced by Mrs. D. B. Gordon. Mrs. E. Alton expressed the general feeling when she conveyed a sincere vote of thanks to Mrs. Mills for her impressive address.

The Rev. Mr. Aiken closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. J. Nicholls had charge of a short recreational period. Lunch was served in the church parlors with Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. S. D. Carver, honorary presidents, presiding over tea urns. The table was lovely with a madeira cloth and a low bowl of pink snapdragon and white and pink tulips, flanked by silver candelabra with green and pink tapers.

16,459 Mentally Ill Patients In Ontario Hospital

Number one medical problem of today, mental illness, was discussed by Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, Thursday afternoon at the meeting of Local Council of Women.

The alarming number of people suffering diseases of the mind is evident from the 1948 figures he quoted: some 50,000 in Canadian institutions at a cost to the government of 25 million dollars a year, and of these 16,459 in Ontario hospitals. The institutional treatment being given is proving successful to a great extent he said.

However, Dr. Kelly pointed out that mental illness could be almost entirely prevented by wise parentage and careful training of children.

He stressed child training as most important since the great majority of mental disorders are traced back to a childhood problem that was not satisfactorily solved. "The child needs a home in which there is one parent of each kind and where he feels secure and receives consistent and reasonable discipline," he said.

People of all ages who have problems they cannot solve finally decide to ignore them and come to live in a little world of their own and this is the basis of most mental illness Dr. Kelly pointed out. "Everyone can bear a certain weight of responsibility but when the level of tolerance has been exceeded they become mental cases."

Preventing the birth of mentally and physically defective children is also necessary to reduce the burden such people place on friends and their country. Dr. Kelly said that if a pregnant mother is affected with German measles her child is almost sure to be defective so that such a condition is being considered as just cause for an abortion. To prevent this happening, medical officers are encouraging the disease among young girls so they may be immune when they reach the child-bearing age. Hereditary is another cause of defective children, and the third mentioned, the most easily remedied, is nutrition of the mother.

Dr. Kelly blamed the increase of mental disorders on the way people are now living. "We have to learn more and more how to live with people" he said. "Personalities and characters are constantly changing because they are being subjected to varying spheres of influence and the advance of civilization."

Mrs. Donald Hill, child welfare convener, introduced the speaker and he was thanked by president, Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus.

DOROTHY DIX

Advises Vacation From Mate Best Cure for Fed-up Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife claims that because of my constant ill-treatment of her she has lost her love for me and that without love she will not go on living with me. We have two sons, one 12 and the other 7, whom we both dearly love, but she says it is best for the boys if we part. My wife is of spotless character. I consider myself the same. We both work. We both are ill-tempered at times. Her physical condition is not what it should be. I fear for her future. She says that if we patch up our difficulties it would be hell on earth for all, but I do not believe this, knowing the extent and fullness of her love. She also says that I will be the same within six months, but I have had my terrible lesson. I want to re-establish my home. I want my wife to leave her outside work. What is your advice in the matter? E. G. V.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The remedy is very simple and easily applied. It consists of a railroad or steamship ticket. Send your wife off somewhere for six months, the farther the better, and let her find out from actual experience what breaking up her home and separation from you will mean and, take my word for it, she will come back to you as eagerly as a bride.

Can Avoid Divorce

I am firmly convinced that more than half the divorces could be prevented if only disgruntled husbands and wives would try the absent treatment on themselves first. A couple get fed up on each other and reach the point where everything each does irritates the other. They can see nothing but blemishes in each other and they mull over old quarrels until they make mountains out of mole hills. Very often they are worn out and nervous and would be irritable with any one, and they find their perfect target in those to whom they are married.

I think your wife will make a terrible mistake if she leaves you without giving you a chance to prove your repentance. It will be a crime for her to deprive her children of a father who loves them and who will be able to give them a better chance in life than she could. And she will be bitterly unhappy herself if in ill health and alone she attempts to support herself and the children.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have a darling baby three years old and a good husband. But I have an old maid sister-in-law who makes life miserable for me. She tells me that I don't know how to bring up my child. If we play the radio, we are low-minded. If I say I am tired, I am lazy. When I have been up three nights and three days with my sick baby, she tells me how old and haggard I look. Everything I do and don't do she criticizes. My husband tells me to pay no attention to her, yet how can I help it when she comes to my house and irritates me so? What shall I do?

PERPLEXED WIFE.

ANSWER: Take your husband's advice. Pay no attention to her. The faultfinding of such a woman is no more to be seriously considered than the yapping of a little dog at your heels.

Jealousy and envy are at the bottom of your sister-in-law's criticisms. Jealousy and envy of your youth, of your joy in life. Surely when you think of that you can find it in your heart to be sorry for her in her loneliness.

Don't fret yourself over what your sister-in-law says or does, and don't worry your husband by repeating her acid remarks to him. Forget what she says. Don't argue with her. Dont try to defend yourself. Any phonograph will run down if not wound up. And remember that there is no such buffer for sarcasm as good nature. It glances harmlessly off those who laugh at it.

Cultivate a funny bone in dealing with your in-law. You will really enjoy her after you come to see how ridiculous it is that she could ever worry you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a young doctor, married with a small family. My wife has become very jealous because of my flirtations with my women patients. Don't you think it is perfectly all right for a doctor to flirt a little with his young women patients, doing it only to get their practice? I wish you would write something to make my wife feel as I do about this situation.

DR. C. B. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I don't think any writer on earth who could convince your wife that her husband's flirtations were harmless, and that it was an innocent amusement for him to make love to other women.

✧ ✧ ✧

Are children a good investment?

An old bachelor of my acquaintance says no. He declares that the wail of the first baby rings the knell of romance, and that thereafter the parents are no longer lovers but merely Mother and Dad, slaves to despotic brats without mercy and without gratitude. He says that children rob their mother of her good looks shatter her health, reduce her to a nervous wreck in caring for them; that they absorb all the money that might have gone to beautify her and give her proper clothes. He says that they work their father into premature old age, and that having thus despoiled their parents children regard them with contempt as a couple of dull and frowsy old morons whose opinions are not worth considering.

"As for children holding a couple together," he exclaims, "so do handcuffs, with just about the same amount of comfort in so doing. Heaven help and pity all the husbands and wives who are being held together in this way! Show me any other business that one can put the same amount of time, labor, patience, health and enthusiasm into and get as little out of as bringing up children! When they are young they make your arms ache, and when they are older they make our heart ache when they are not actually giving you a pain in the neck."

Seem Total Loss

It is undeniable that when we look at the children of a lot of our friends and acquaintances they do seem to be a total loss, and we wonder that their parents ever thought it was worth while to raise them. For there is Mary who has laid her youth and beauty and gayety on the altar of the cradle and who is not treated by them with the consideration that they would show a servant. And there is Bob, who was so good-looking and dashing and full of promise, and so ambitious when he was young, but who has been turned into a hump-shouldered work horse straining on the collar by his childen.

And Mary hasn't had a good night's sleep since her girls began having dates and going out with God knows whom, and coming home any old time in the morning. And Bob has almost got pen-paralysis from paying his boys out of scrapes. And both he and his wife live in mortal fear of the autocrats who rule them with a rod of iron and who won't stand for any nonsense from them.

Not much percentage in children like those.

But our own children now. That is different. Entirely so. True, our Mamies keep us worried sick with their parties and their free-and-easy ways, and we are always getting Bobby out of trouble and wishing that he wasn't so temperamental that he can't find any job that suits him or that he considers worthy of his talents. But, somehow, in some way that we cannot explain even to ourselves they are worth all they have cost us and we don't begrudge the price we have paid

Carry On Name

Maybe it is avatism. Maybe it is because there is in each of us the cosmic urge to hand on the torch of life. Someone to come after us. Someone to give us at least the earthly immorality of carrying on our blood and name

Also, children are a good investment because they provide us with a never-ending source of interest. They are the real fountain of perpetual youth into which we dip and are rejuventated. By the time we get middle-aged we begin to be bored with ourselves, and life becomes flat and dull and tiresome. Our cards have all been dealt and we know just about what the future holds for us.

Then come our children to animate the scene. Our girls and boys, full of ambition, full of hope, full of possibilities. We relive our youth in them and, at least, believe that they will achieve the things that it was beyond our power to do.

And not all children are wild and wayward. Not all children are ungrateful and unloving. Oftener than not they repay the love and tenderness that have been lavished on them in the same coin. Thousands upon thousands of old men and women would be lonely and forlorn in their last days if it were not for the cherishing of a devoted son or daughter. So, in spite of what my bachelor friend says I think children are a gilt-edged investment.

6—In Memoriams

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of my dear brother Jimmy, who died suddenly April 21, 1947:
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear brother,
I do not think of you.
—Sadly missed by sister Gwyneth and Ben.

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of my dear brother Jimmy, who died suddenly April 21, 1947:
Three years have passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away.
God took him home—it was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Ever remembered by sister Frances, Chum and family.

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of our dear little son, Jimmy, who passed away suddenly April 21, 1947.
Gone from the earth so swiftly,
Just like a flower in bloom;
So young, so fair, so loving,
Yet called away so soon.
We shall meet him some bright morning
Resting by waters fair,
He is waiting for our coming,
In the upper garden there.
—Sadly missed, and lovingly remembered by Mom and Dad.

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of my dear brother Jimmy, who died suddenly April 21, 1947.
No morning dawns, no night returns,
But that we think of you,
Remembering long, your dear young face
And things you used to do.
—Dearly loved and sadly missed by Kay and Justen.

ARMSTRONG—In loving memory of our dear little friend, Jimmy, who passed away suddenly April 21, 1947:
O happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still.
—Ever remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Weir and Phil.

BURNHAM—In loving memory of Sgt. J. F. (Jake) Burnham, who passed away seven years ago.
All his toils and conflicts o'er,
Lo, he dwells with Christ above;
Oh, what glories he's discovered
In the Saviour whom he loved.
—Sadly missed by mom, dad and family.

U.S. SEEKS NEW POLICY TO HANDLE REDS

Plane Attack Provokes New Crisis

Break In Relations Remote Possibility May Consult Envoy

WASHINGTON, April 22 — (AP) State Department officials today weighed several courses of action to meet a serious new crisis created in Soviet-American relations by the Russian fighter attack on an American plane.

The Baltic incident which cost 10 United States airmen their lives prompted demands for drastic action from Congress—possibly including a break in diplomatic relations.

While administration leaders shied away from any such extreme step, several other lines of action remain open.

These include sending a strong new note to Russia, denouncing the Soviet version of the Baltic incident; recalling Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, for consultation, and carrying the case either into the United Nations or the International Court at The Hague.

Russia's latest note, bluntly rejecting the United States position on the Baltic affair, evidently foreclosed the possibility of working out any kind of a settlement through normal diplomacy between Washington and Moscow.

Dean Acheson

The note brought prompt reaction from State Secretary Dean Acheson at a press conference Friday, while in Congress there were immediate demands for severe action by the American government.

The Russian note restated the Kremlin's claim that on April 8 an American B-29 flew over Soviet Latvia, opened fire on Russian fighter planes and was in turn fired on —after which it disappeared. That was precisely the position which the Kremlin had taken in a previous protest to Washington last week.

Jealous Husband Slays His Wife In Port Huron

PORT HURON, Mich., April 22 (AP)—War veteran Robert Delacy, 26, fired a bullet through his wife's head Friday night, then led police on an 80-mile-an-hour chase and finally killed himself with the same gun.

The night's violence and tragedy ended months of quarelling between Delacy and his 28-year-old wife, Thelma.

When it was all over, police found a pencilled note from Delacy on the seat of his car.

"God forgive me," he had written, "but I just loved Thelma too much."

Many times, Sheriff's officers reported, they were summoned to the Delacy home just outside the city to quiet disturbances.

Last night two neighbor couples were visiting the Delacy's when the husband, an unemployed garage worker, took a German Luger pistol and killed his wife with one shot after an argument.

Then he drove off in his car, still carrying the gun. Police set up road-blocks.

Before anyone could locate Delacy, Coroner Arthur H. Smith, who owns the funeral home where Mrs. Delacy's body was taken, received a telephone call.

"Save a place for me," the husband's voice said. "I'll be joining her."

Wed On A 'Dare' Marriage Illegal

MONTREAL, April 22—(CP)—A marriage performed on a "dare" 15 years ago was written off as non-existent in Supreme Court Friday when Mr. Justice A. I. Smith found that the two parties had been married in the United States to avoid provisions of Quebec law.

Action to annul the 1935 marriage was taken by Margaret Campbell, formerly of Cornwall, against her husband, Dr. George W. Sugden, Montreal dentist.

She testified she met Sugden when she was 19 and her persuaded her on a "dare" to go to Massena, N.Y., where the marriage was performed by a justice of the peace.

She said they had gone to the U.S. to escape provisions of Quebec law which required her to have her parents' consent. No such consent was possible, she said.

Mr. Justice Smith found that although the bride's home was in Ontario, the husband-to-be was domiciled here and consequently came under Quebec law

Beat Dancing Partner With Wiggling Snake

CHICAGO, April 22—(AP)—From now on if Emil Van Horn whips his dancing partner with a six-foot bull snake it will cost him $1,000.

Van Horn, and Miss Carol Borgia, 24, are adagio dancers in a night spot.

He was charged with disorderly conduct after she complained he chased her into her hotel room April 12 and beat her with a wriggling snake as long as a man is tall.

She told the judge snakes scared her to death, even when they aren't used to whip her.

Van Horn said he was only trying to show Miss Borgia how they could use the snake in their act.

17 U.K. Freight Cars Held 24 Hours By Reds

HELMSTEDT, Germany, April 22 — (AP) — Seventeen British freight cars were hauled through here into West Germany early today after Russian guards had detained them for more than 24 hours. British authorities said the Russians detached the cars at Marienborn, inside the Russian zone. British authorities refused to say what cargo was in the cars.

Fear Indiana Dispute May Trigger Telephone Strike

NEW YORK, April 22—(AP)—Ernest Weaver, president of Division 6, Communications Workers of America, said today a strike call would be issued within 24 hours to 10,000 telephone installation workers in the United States if the Western Electric Company did not change its position in a South Bend, Ind., dispute.

At South Bend 104 union members struck March 27 when six of them complained the company wanted them to walk half a mile across a muddy field to work on a new television centre.

Western Electric Company is the installing and manufacturing subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, better known as the Bell System.

The telephone system is faced with a strike Wednesday over wages unless federal mediators are able to resolve the conflict. The strike date has been postponed 60 days under a truce obtained by President Truman.

Weaver said the membership of division 6 had authorized a strike call on the issues of wages, independent of the South Bend grievance.

Friday sympathy walkouts started in Seattle, Portland, Ore., Fargo, N.D., and other cities.

Although the division's 10,000 members are only a small part of the communication's union's 200,000 members in the Bell system, they occupy a key position in the industry. Since Western Electric operates in almost every state, the far-flung division picket lines would compel a general telephone work stoppage if they were honored by other divisions.

Police Nab 112 People In Chinatown Raid

TORONTO, April 22—(CP)—Police swooped down on gambling rooms in a Chinatown building Friday night, seized 112 persons and $600 cash. They outwitted a lookout equipped with an electrical warning system and removed gambling apparatus from the rooms.

Strikes Ties Up 11 Food Ships

LONDON, April 22 — (AP) — A leading union official today turned down a back to work offer from striking London dock workers.

The National Dock Labor Board reported that 7,931 men, out of a total dock area force of 27,000 were on strike today. This was an increase of about 100 compared with yesterday.

The board said 39 vessels, including 11 food ships, were idle. Eight were reported undermanned and 55 others were being worked. The report said two vessels, idle yesterday, sailed during the night.

The strikers, in an unofficial meeting Friday, voted almost unanimously to return to work if the Transport and General Workers' Union would poll all dockhands on whether its executive council should reinstate three expelled dockworker representatives.

Refusing the offer, general-secretary Arthur Deakin said he would make "no response to an unofficial body."

The three men were expelled from the union council because of their wildcat leadership of London's crippling dock strike last summer.

'Should Seize' Reds Hold As Hostages

PHILADELPHIA, April 22 — (AP)—The United States should seize and hold 10 Russia soldiers and sailors now in the U.S. as "hostages" for the 10 Americans in a Navy plane shot down by the Soviets in the Baltic Sea, says Maj.-Gen. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan.

Donovan, wartime head of the U.S. office of strategic service, said the Americans may be alive and prisoners of the Russians.

"The 10 Russians should be held until indemnity which the United States has asked is paid," Donovan said. "Or until the Americans are returned safe and sound — and the possibility that they are prisoners of the Russians should not be excluded."

Donovan presumably referred to Russian military men now attached either to the Embassy in Washington or as Liaison officers to Russia's United Nations delegation.

Gravestones Down

FRANKFURT, April 22. — (Reuters).— Vandals, who overturned 16 tombstones in a Jewish cemetery here last week, have been identified as three children between 6 and 15, Frankfurt police announced today. Though the father of two of the children were found to be former Nazis, "there was no evidence" that the desecration had any political motive, police said.

Trygve Lie Sails For Europe

May Visit Stalin Over UN-China Crisis

NEW YORK, April 22 (CP) — Secretary-general Trygve Lie of the United Nations sails for Europe today on a trip that might develop into a third-party mission to Moscow.

Officially he is to confer with British and French government leaders in Paris and London, and to attend UN group meetings in Paris and Geneva. The trip was planned long before the current sharp deterioration of relations between Washington and Moscow.

Talked With Truman

But the UN chief executive has had an invitation since last November to visit Moscow. And he talked with President Truman at the White House Thursday.

Should Lie visit the Kremlin, he might present to Prime Minister Stalin concrete proposals designed to bring the Russians back to the UN meeting they have boycotted since Jan. 10 because the Chinese Nationalists remain in the world organization.

Lie insists he will not make up mind finally about the invitation to Moscow until he reaches Paris. But all developments support the probability of a visit to the Russian capital as part of the "Save-the-UN" campaign which has taken the secretary-general to Washington twice recently. Sailing in his party today will be his chief Russian aide, assistant-secretary Konstantin Zinchenko.

UN In Bad Order

Lie told correspondents at Lake Success Friday that "the UN machine is in bad order, its affairs are worse than before." But he said also his talk with Truman was "encouraging."

The secretary-general cautioned that his trip won't produce a quick solution to world troubles, but he hoped something would result in time.

Strength Key To Peace Says Truman

Views US Arms Show With Claxton As Relations Worsen

ELGIN AIR BASE, Fla., Apr. 22—(CP)—Steadily worsening relations with Russia added their own significance today to President Truman's weekend inspection of a spectacular display of United States ground and air power which also is being witnessed by Defence Minister Brooke Claxton of Canada.

In the face of developments, including Moscow's rejection of a State Department protest against the shooting down of an unarmed American plane over the Baltic region, top U.S. policy advisors sought to minimize the importance of the current demonstrations.

These advisors emphasized that arrangements for Truman's visit to Fort Benning, Ga., and the Elgin air force base here were made several weeks ago, long before the latest exchange of notes with the Russians over the plane incident.

There was little doubt however, of the seriousness with which Truman regarded the war games Friday at Fort Benning, topped by a co-ordinated artillery-infantry-tank attack supported by air support from powerful jet planes.

Truman was moved to say he believes there will be no third world war if the United States does not relax in its preparedness program.

The President spoke informally at a luncheon before most of the top military and civilian brass of the U. S. armed forces.

The President told the officers he believes in preparedness to prevent a world conflict.

He added: "it took us two wars and 30 years to find out that our place in the world was one of leadership. Now we want to maintain that leadership for peace and the welfare of the world as a whole, unless we want to do as we did after the First World War and bring on a third one.

"I don't think," Truman continued, "we are going to bring on that third one. I am an optimist and always have been. I proved that in 1948, I think."

Claxton, who also witnessed the thundering display of firepower, said "the demonstration of fire-power, weapons, equipment, and personnel that we were privileged to see. . . was impressive evidence of the immense strength of the United States."

"The fact that this strength will be used for purposes of maintaining the peace is itself the greatest guarantee of peace in the world today.

"It has been a great privilege for me to attend this exercise with the President, Secretary Johnson, members of the cabinet and the chiefs of staff.

"The fact that a Canadian should be invited to attend is another demonstration of the way our two countries work together."

I Got Fooled!

TORONTO, April 22 (CP) —Because he sold a customer two shoes for the left foot and refused to take them back again because "I got fooled when I bought them," H. Ballinger, second-hand dealer, had his licence put on six months probation Friday by the Police Commission. He was told to improve his business ethics or lose his licence.

Canada Needs More People Commons Says

OTTAWA, April 22 — (CP).— All parties agreed in the Commons Friday that Canada should have a larger population.

They also agreed that to get that larger population Canada must tap the populous countries across the Atlantic and the heterogeneous groups in the displaced persons camps of Europe.

But their views varied on the course Canada should follow to get the desired immigrants.

Immigration Minister Harris said the government plans to adhere to the policy set out by it in 1947. That policy stated the government would foster the growth of the population by encouragement of immigration.

The government would seek by legislation, regulation and vigorour administration to ensure the careful selection ond permanent settlement of such numbers of immigrants as could advantageously be absorbed in the national economy.

Not Good Enough

George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, said that was not good enough. He said there should be a new declaration of policy. Whatever that policy was it should call for business-like administrative methods.

He mentioned particularly the need for overseas examining offices and reception centres on this side to be more closely-knit and operated in ways that would make newcomers feel they were wanted and being accepted as equal parties in a great country.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF Leader, said Canada should admit more professionals, people versed in medicine, arts, music, and the like. He also said Canada should join with other nations in undertaking to absorb some of those in displaced persons camps who were maimed or partially maimed during the war.

Boy Scalded To Death Mother Arrested

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP) — A 22-year-old mother was arrested today on charges she mistreated her two-year-old son who died Jan. 10 of burns from scalding water. Mrs. Florence M. Schaffer, a former theatre usherette, said that her son, Richard, accidentally fell into a tub of hot water where she was washing clothes. Authorities said an autopsy showed the child might have been held forcibly in the boiling water.

Doukhobors Flaunt Laws Burn Four Buildings; 80 Fanatics Crowd Jails

Ignore Warning of BC Attorney-General Fear Violence To Continue Have Set Fire Total Of 10 Buildings

KRESTOVA, B.C., April 22—(CP)—Fire was Krestova's answer Friday to a government warning that "the laws of Canada must be obeyed." Despite a warning from Attorney-General Gordon S. Wismer, the property toll continued to mount. Nude, hymn-chanting members of the Sons of Freedom, offshoot of the orthodox Doukhobors, "expressed themselves" by burning four buildings—three homes and a communal kitchen.

The Provincial Police jail at Nelson, 23 miles east, bulged as the nude protestors, both men and women, were herded in by the truckload. Ten were arrested Friday.

At the latest count 80 "Sons" were lodged in the jail and a wooden annex was pressed into service. Fifty-six were arrested this month; the others are awaiting trial for previous outrages.

Since the burning began three days ago—fire is the "Freedomites" symbol of protest—a total of 10 dwellings have been destroyed in this East Kootenay headquarters of the Doukhobor fanatics.

Krestova is 250 miles east of Vancouver. Its population is roughly 1,000. Residents live in unsanitary frame or mud-plastered hovels.

Police said they feared violence would continue today, despite road blocks and heavy reinforcements from other Kootenay communities.

The violence continued as Attorney-General Wismer announced a three-point federal-provincial program to solve the vexatious Doukhobor problem.

Pending a solution, he said, "the governments are determined that the laws of Canada must be obeyed."

One solution to the problem would be to have the Doukhobors emigrate to "any country that will accept them." The 2,000 "Freedomites" announced last July they planned to move back to Russia or to Turkey. Nothing has developed of this, however.

Order Veronica Lake To Pay Mom $11,500

LOS ANGELES, April 22 (AP) —Veronica Lake was ordered by court to pay $11,500 to her mother, Mrs. Constance V. Keane of New York City. Mrs. Keane alleged the actress failed to keep 1943 agreement to pay $200 weekly support. The actress' earnings were estimated at $4,500 a week by her mother.

Prayers Answered

PLATTSBURGH, NY, April 22 (AP). — Mrs. Harold T. Healey had prayed in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church every day for 55 days that the body of her five-year-old son would be recovered. Harold Healey slipped off a retaining wall into the Saranac River in the centre of this northern New York State city last February 26. As Mrs. Healey knelt in the church on Friday she was informed that "your son has been found."

Indian Threatens To Starve, 'My Last Gesture'

QUEBEC, April 22. (CP)—Le Soliel reported today that Jules Sioui, 43-year-old Huron conducting a hunger-strike for recognition of rights he claims for North American Indians, has refused to move to a Quebec hospital from his home at Loretteville Reservation.

Le Soliel said in a front-page story that Sioui, whose fast so far of 60 days has been broken only by a pint of sweetened water daily, was asked to enter hospital by Dr. O. Leroux of the Indian Affairs Department in Ottawa. The doctor visited Loretteville this week.

The Huron whose weight has fallen to 117 pounds from its normal 170 said he intends to stay in the Loretteville home adjoining his grocery store and barber shop until the end.

"My determination is final and without remission," he told Le Soleil reporter Gerard Morin. "Absolutely nothing will change my decision. My last gesture has been made."

Reporter Morin said Sioui declared he expects to die of starvation within 50 days and has prepared a testament blaming Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Last February Sioui sent to the Prime Minister an "ultimatum" demanding freedom from "slavery" for the Indians. He asked that the Prime Minister visit him at Loretteville Reservation and sign an undertaking granting the Indians independent nationhood and administration. He said he would fast until the Prime Minister appears before him.

Thursday, Sioui mailed a copy of the request to the King seeking his intervention.

Reporter Morin who visited the reservation Friday and questioned other Hurons said they appear to be "happy" and do not give the impression that Sioui has "popular sentiment behind him."

Jailed Two Months For Striking Referee

CALGARY, April 22—(CP)—Kenneth Goddard of Calgary, who climbed over the boards and struck referee Jerry Trudel during a hockey game April 9, Friday was sentenced to two months in prison at hard labor.

Goddard was one of four men arrested on charges of assault occasioning bodily harm to Trudel. The fracas occurred in the closing minutes of a hockey game between Canmore and a Calgary entry in the Big Six League.

The three others involved were Steve Krizan, Joe Sawchuk and John Hurschka of the Canmore Club. The charge against Hurschka was dismissed and Krizan and Sawchuk were remanded to Monday.

Chrysler Dispute Deadlocked

Mediators Threaten To Call Off Peace Talks

DETROIT, April 22—(AP)—Federal mediators early today reported a "hopeless deadlock" in the Chrysler strike, now in its 88th day, and threatened to call off peace talks.

Arthur C. Viat, regional director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, made the bleak report after a long bargaining session broke up at 1 a.m. EST.

It put a damper on latest hopes for a quick return to the job of 89,000 Chrysler workers, whose strike already is the second longest in the automobile industry. Its cost now is estimated at $1,250,000,000.

Contract Matters

The deadlock developed over a series of non-economic contract matters after a general agreement had been reached in the pension dispute from which the strike stemmed. Mediators had hoped for a week-end settlement.

Viat said another meeting would be held today. Unless the company or the United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.) is prepared to give ground at that time, he said, mediators will call for an indefinite "cooling off" period of perhaps several days.

Viat said such non-economic contract issues as grievance procedure, union security and seniority rules produced the deadlock.

Pension Agreed

Chrysler and the U.A.W. have been in agreement at least in principle for several days over the financing of $100-a-month pensions, company-paid except for the part covered by Federal Social Security.

Meanwhile, Automotive News, trade publication, estimated that Chrysler Corporation, its employees, dealers and supplier plants will have lost, to the end of this week, a total of $1,190,115,280 in sales and wages.

This compared with $1,457,000,000 estimated as the total cost of the industry's longest previous strike—a 113-day walkout at General Motors plants that made idle its plants from November, 1945, to March, 1946.

Automotive News estimated that under production schedules interrupted by the strike, Chrysler would have built 420,000 cars in the period since the walkout began Jan 26.

May Color Highways To Stop Complaints

TORONTO, April 22 — (CP) — Colored roads might make irate motorists stop complaining that nothing is done to alleviate bad road conditions after snowstorms, Deputy Ontario Highways Minister J. D. Millar jokingly said Friday at the annual convention of the Ontario Motor League.

"Although we spread 400,000 tons of sand and 50,000 tons of salt on the highways last winter we still got complaints," the minister said. "We are seriously thinking of coloring the salt next year to prove that the department is on its toes most of the time."

Howe Forecasts Investments Will Hit Record

OTTAWA, April 22 (CP) — Public spending by all three levels of government—Federal, Provincial and municipal—is expected to spark an all-time high in Canadian capital investment spending this year.

Trade Minister Howe forecast in the Commons yesterday that capital investment spending in 1950 will reach the $3,600,000,000 mark—up five per cent over last year's record investment of $3,400,000,000.

Public outlay on capital goods planned this year should reach $1,100,000,000—up 19 per cent over last year's $930,000,000 — said Mr. Howe in tabling two departmental documents—the outlook on private and public investment and building material supplies.

Half By Governments

About half this amount, the Minister said, will be made directly by Federal, Provincial and Municipal governments and the balance is for government enterprises, institutions and housing.

Private investment on such things as business enterprises, private institutions and housing is expected to remain at last year's $2,500,000,000 level.

Direct government spending is expected to rise 21 per cent to $553,000,000 from last year's $450,000,000.

With building materials more plentiful than a year ago, Mr. Howe said Canada's construction boom will mean the possible spending of $2,300,000,000 on building alone, an increase of 12 per cent over 1949's $2,000,000,000 expenditures.

Investments Decline

Mr. Howe said almost every category of economic endeavor in Canada is expected to share in investment prosperity, with the exception of agriculture, manufacturing and forestry. In these groups the total investment is expected to decline seven per cent to $861,000,000.

One of the largest capital expediture gains over last year is expected to be in the utilities field where a $703,000,000 investment is planned—up to 10 per cent from 1949.

Medical Man Talks To Life Underwriters

Dr. Russell W. Zinkann, associate medical director of the Mutual Life of Canada, spoke to the Life Underwriters at their meeting Friday at the Empress Hotel, on Underwriting Trends.

Before his appointment as associate medical director for the Mutual Life Dr. Zinkann served with the armed forces as assistant director of medical services in charge of personnel; he rose to the rank of colonel.

The Medical Life Insurance Research fund which is now working on degentative diseases, was granted a fund of $2,000,000 in 1949, which was contributed by insurance companies—85% issued standard, 6% sub-standard, and 3% declined.

He mentioned the expectation of life, which at the time of Caesar was only 18 years, and has risen until in the year 1949, had reached 67.8 years.

President Roy Irwin was in the chair and he won the booster prize. The speaker was thanked by Mr. J. Marshall.

Transport Plane Down Near Tokyo

TOKYO, April 22 — (AP). — A United States Air Force transport plane lost in a storm crashed Friday night in mountains southwest of Tokyo with 35 persons aboard.

The fate of the 27 passengers, including one of Gen. MacArthur's key officials, and crew of eight, was undetermined hours after the accident. The four-engined C-54 plane was returning to Japan from the Philippines.

Bad weather cancelled an aerial hunt by six planes and two helicopters. More than 200 ground searchers had been unable to find the wreckage this afternoon.

Frank E. Pickelle, head of MacArthur's Foreign Trade Division, was one of the passengers.

The search centred around one of Japan's most famed beauty spots—the mountains behind the beach town of Odawarai, 52 miles south-west of Tokyo on Sagami Bay.

The plane last was heard from at 11:08 p.m. Friday night. It radioed it then was over Oshima, an island at the entrance of Sagami Bay. It was running into rain and gusty winds.

The Air Force gave the C-54 clearance to land at Tachikawa Air Base 20 miles west of Tokyo. That was the last heard from it.

An intense search was imemdiately organized. Two Flying Fortresses, four small observation planes, and two helicopters took to the air. Then the weather closed in, the planes were called off, and the job was left to the ground hunters.

Thirteen Air Force search teams of four men and an interpreter each, 90 soldiers divided in two groups, and dozens of Japanese police and villagers, were in the search.

Order To Seize Drunks' Cars RousesComment

Order of the registrar of motor vehicles to seize cars of persons charged with drunk driving immediately following their arrest, aroused some comment today from Peterborough lawyers.

A news story from Toronto on Friday said the order was made to prevent drivers selling their cars after they have been arrested. From now on, a motorist arrested on a drunk driving charge can either post a bond or give up his car to police.

"I think it is all part of the pattern," said Crown Attorney John Bradshaw. "As a matter of fact, I wouldn't be surprised to see drunk drivers in Ontario fined as much as $500 or $800 in the future. There might eventually be a penalty of 30 days in jail."

"Of course," he went on, "it has been our practice in the past to hold the cars, but then we didn't require a bond."

Not Effective

"As long as it is a bona fide sale," remarked T. J. Carley, "I don't see why the man can't sell his car. The car didn't cause the accident. And I don't see how this order is going to be effective in reducing drunk driving."

"I don't see why the man should be penalized beyond the penalty he receives under the code," Mr. Carley went on. "A man might well need the money. And if he happened to be a man who needed a car in his business, seizure of the car might force him to change his occupation."

Police Chief John Thompson said: "It's been the habit here to hold the car at the station until the driver is either convicted or acquitted. This won't make much difference that I can see."

"It doesn't seem fair that a man should be deprived of his car while he awaits trial," said W. J. A. Fair. "Constitutionally, the legislation is intra vires of the province. Most of the time, they hold the car anyhow although there has been a conflict of opinion of magistrates as to whether that is correct."

Layout Plans Ready For Handicraft Centre

A proposed layout of rooms and equipment for the handicraft centre which is to be established at Dixon House, was shown to the executive of Peterborough Handicraft Guild Friday by Mrs. J. Wharry at a meeting in the Public Library.

Mrs. Wharry, who represents the Guild on the Recreation Commission, told the executive the new centre, which will open in the near future, should cover the needs of the whole city for crafts of various descriptions.

Equipment is being provided for each class and an official opening, when equipment and handicrafts will be displayed, is being planned for the early fall.

Mrs. R. H. Parker, president, was chairman of the meeting and the following conveners of committees were elected:

Program, Mrs. G. A. Reinhardt; membership, Mrs. O. C. Kallay; educational, Mrs. J. Hornal; exhibits and sales, Mrs. E. Frost; research and archives, Mrs. G. A. Reinhardt; and social, Mrs. J. W. Miles.

Junior Club In Ghost Play

"The Soft Hearted Ghost" was an unusual subject and not an easy play for presentation by the Junior Dramatic Club of St. George's Church. The performance on Friday evening in the basement of the church was a credit to the youngsters and provided excellent entertainment for the audience, which filled the church basement.

The play was presented under the direction of Jim Edwards.

Marion White played the part of Mother Ghost, Philip Brook, Father Ghost, and Dave Parry, the son Ghost. Others in the case were Kathleen Haslitt, Betty Baird, Patsy Cacacella, Albert Roger, Bert Ross, Douglas Sanders, Barbara and Lorraine Heath and Edward and Gerald Warner.

Philip Brook provided additional entertainment, giving an impersonation of Al Jolson and Gail and Sandra Wood played piano solos and duets. J. Hodson played the piano accordion and a sing-song was led by Emily Sholdice.

Man To Nervous To Open Safe, Saves $1,500 Pay

YONKERS, N. Y., April 22 — (AP)—Sometimes it pays to be nervous.

Samuel J. Colin, 63, entered his window cleaning company Friday and found two young bandits had taken over.

"Open your safe," ordered one of the burglars.

Colin, his hands shaking, tried several times but the safe wouldn't open.

"I'm too nervous," he told the intruders. "I'll give you the combination and you open it yourselves."

They fiddled with the lock for a half hour. They accused Colin of giving them the wrong combination.

"Why don't you take the money in my pocket and call it quits?" Colin asked.

The bandits, unnerved themselves, took $287 from Colin's pocket and fled.

The unopened safe contained a $1,500 payroll.

2 Czechs To Die On Spy Charges

PRAGUE, April 22—(Reuters) Two Czechs were sentenced to death today by a State Court on charges of high treason and spying for the United States.

Death sentences were passed on Maj. Jaromir Nechansky, 34-year-old British-trained wartime parachutist, and Veleslav Wahl, 28-year-old law student. They were the main defendants. Both had pleaded guilty, to being co-leaders of a spy ring.

Another defendant, Milos Sprysl, 29-year-old bookkeeper, was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor.

Three other defendants received terms ranging from 18 to 25 years.

Jiridohnalek, 43-year-old Doctor of Law, dismissed from the Foreign Affairs Ministry after February, 1948, when the Communists took power, received 20 years hard labor.

Miss Zdenka Vackova, 25-year-old office clerk who had pleaded only partly guilty, received 18 years hard labor.

Unloading Areas Improve Parking

Three unloading areas for trucks, recently designated on George St., have so far been successful in reducing double parking, Police Chief John Thompson said today.

"Double parking will never be cut out entirely," said the chief, "but these unloading areas have done a good job in cutting it down."

"As long as the public co-operates, they will work well," the chief said.

Two of the areas are on either side of the street between Hunter and Simcoe Sts., and the third is on the west side of George St., between Simcoe and Charlotte Sts.

Car Failed To Stop Driver Is Charged

Vernon Revoy, 287 Park St., was charged with careless driving and driving without brakes after an accident Friday night in which a car driven by Revoy and a motorcycle collided.

Revoy was fined $15 and $2.50 by Magistrate W. R. Philp and warned: "You're apt to kill yourself or somebody else without brakes. There's no excuse for this type of carelessness."

Edward Foley, of Keene, driver of the motorcycle, suffered a bruised knee.

Foley was driving south on George St. and had stopped at Lansdowne St. Revoy, driving south behind Foley, could not stop and turned out to the left to avoid him.

A truck had just turned on to George St. from Lansdowne, and Revoy, according to police, tried to go between the truck and the motorcycle.

The front step on the truck was broken and the front end of Revoy's car was damaged. The windshield of Foley's cycle was smashed.

Department Plans Municipal School

A one-day school on municipal affairs will be held at the Peterborough County Court House on April 27. All local municipalities, including the city, will send representatives.

The school is an annual affair, and is being held in each county in Southern Ontario this spring. The Hon. George H. Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs, has asked that the elected representatives of the municipalities not only attend themselves, but also arrange for the attendance of their local officials.

This would include clerks, treasurers, assessment commissioners, assessors and tax collectors. The day-long class will begin promptly at 9:30 a.m.

Lectures will be divided: Half will be on topics relating to municipal administration and procedure, and the other half will be on the increasingly complicated subject of assessment.

There will also be an explanation of the new legislation and how it will affect the various municipalities.

Cornwall, Kingston and Belleville will have classes next week before the school moves to Peterborough.

Students' Riot Ends In Meeting With Principal

TORONTO April 22 (CP)—A mob of more than 1,000 high school students, peeved at their principal for putting a crimp in a school election campaign, staged a near-riotous demonstration outside west-end Harbord Collegiate Friday.

Police were sent to maintain order as the students overflowed into the street in what they said was an effort to hold a "free democratic meeting."

By mid-afternoon teachers were attempting to continue classes, but they had only a 50-per-cent attendance.

Halted Speeches

Chief gripe of the students was the action of principal W. T. Graham in halting speeches at an election campaign meeting Thursday night. He stopped the speeches when the campaign threatened to develop into a full-fledged vaudeville show.

Two youths were halted when they began injecting jokes they had heard at a Toronto burlesque show, and a 16-year-old girl got the gong half way through a parody on the "Oklahoma" song, "I'm just a girl who can't say no."

Resignation Demands

The demonstration Friday, punctuated by demands for the principal's resignation was followed by an unscheduled assembly in the school at which principal Graham told the students their outdoor meeting was "illegal."

Blair Laing, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, said he strongly supported the principal in maintain discipline.

A students' grievance committee was named to air student complaints against principal Graham at a meeting to be held next Tuesday night. In the meantime the annual elections for the students council went on as scheduled after things quietened down.

Mercer Wilson Medal Presented W. Parker

The William Mercer Wilson medal symbolical of outstanding service in masonry was presented on Friday evening to William R. Parker, a member of Corinthian Lodge. The medal is presented to men who have not had the privilege of occupying the master's chair but who have rendered outstanding masonic service. One medal is permitted to a lodge.

Mr. Parker for years has been on the sick and visiting committee of Corinthian Lodge and his visits to the hospitals and his contributions of flowers to the sick marked him for outstanding service. The presentation was made by R. F. Downey, assisted by Rev. Dr. D. B. Gordon.

PRESSURE PLAY: Soviet-controlled territory (shaded areas) virtually surround Yugoslavia, which Moscow now calls "a base of American imperialism."

Reds Ready To Turn On Heat In Cold War With Tito

ROME, Italy — (NEA) — The long-simmering feud between Soviet Russia and Yugoslavia, it is believed here, will boil over this spring.

Italian political circles in close contact with developments in the Stalin-Tito private cold war predict that increased Soviet armed pressure against the the Belgrade government may be only a few weeks away.

Where and how this pressure will be applied is the big question mark. Perhaps Stalin will call for armed attacks against Yugoslavia by one or two of Moscow's satellites (probably Romania and/or Albania). Or possibly he will work through increased internal pressure and partisan warfare.

But it is regarded as significant that border clashes between Yugoslavia and the satellite countries, unprecedented in violence and scope, have increased markedly in the past few weeks.

Even more significance is attributed by persons intimately familiar with the Kremlin's methods and policies to Moscow's charge that a recent meeting of American diplomats in Athens was a "criminal plot" designed to set up a new "nest of aggression" in the Balkans.

"The creation of the Athens-Belgrade Axis," the Romanian newspaper Pravda said on March 28, "means nothing less than the inclusion of Yugoslavia in the aggressive North Atlantic Pact, transforming Yugoslavia into a base of American imperialism with all the fateful consequences for the Yugoslav people."

If Yugoslavia is now a "base of American imperialism," how much longer, it is asked here, will Moscow tolerate its existence.

At the same time there are strong indications that Albania, which is today little more than a Soviet armed fortress and submarine base at the mouth of the Adriatic, has been designed as Moscow's spearhead in the forthcoming attack against Yugoslavia. This role, it is said, was assigned to Albania at a secret meeting of the Cominform held on the Hungarian-Yugoslav border.

A half-primitive country populated by about a million rugged peasants and mountaineers, Albania is one of the traditional trouble spots in the Balkans. Its geographic position — bordering on Yugoslavia and Greece and close to Italy—is of incalculable strategic value to the Russians.

Since Tito's break with the Cominform, Albania, once closely allied to Yugoslavia, has been completely sealed off from the rest of the world. But a number of Albanian political leaders recently managed to escape from Tirana.

According to these refugees, Moscow's tiniest "People's Democracy" is a land of silent terror. Premier Enver Hoxha has been stripped of all power and is virtually a prisoner of the Russians. Although a loyal Stalinist and the first Cominform stalwart to attack Tito, Premier Hoxha had studied in western countries and has many ties with the West.

It is reported that last spring he secretly asked Great Britain and the United States to grant him new diplomatic recognition. Thus, the Albanian refugees report, Premier Hoxha's purge is only a question of time.

The undisputed rulers of Albania, it is said, are the Soviet Minister, Dimitri Chuvakhin, who once served as a diplomat in Washington, and a Major General N. J. Pavlov, who commands a well-trained force of 5,000 Russian "technicians" and about 12,000 former Greek Communist guerrillas.

Meanwhile, Tito, who is an ex-pupil of Stalin, is frying desperately to weaken the ranks of the Cominform in Western Europe. A group of his agents, who before his break with the Cominform worked in close contact with the Italians, are now operating both in Milan and Rome where they seek to split the Italian Communist Party.

That they are achieving some success is perhaps best proven by the fact that the party of Palmiro Togliatti, who was himself recently criticized severely by the Cominform for "weak leadership," has had to expel eight of its functionaries for Titoism. Togliatti also warned the Italian Communists "to intensify vigilance against Titoist agents."

As in France and elsewhere in Western Europe, the Italian Politburo is sharply divided between "extremists" and "moderates."

Latest reports say that, unless wiser heads prevail, the extremists are preparing an attempt to blow up U. S. Atlantic Pact arms scheduled to arrive in Naples sometime this month.

Guiseppe di Vittorio, chief of the Communist-controlled trade union federation which has been steadily losing members, is opposed to further acts of violence and political strikes.

But di Vittorio, too, seems to be on Moscow's purge list.

Mystery Writers Dine On 'Witches' Broth'

By ED CREAGH

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—The Mystery Writers of America held their annual clambake Thursday night in an atmosphere of fluttering bats' wings, corpses in the broom closet and a dagger in every chest.

Fun? There hasn't been so much mock mayhems since the late Mr. Bluebeard started using his wives' necks for meat-cleaver practice. Bluebeard, of course, wasn't kidding. These whodunit authors were — or so they said, anyway.

Take the menu, for instance. It led off with chilled hemlock cup (hemlock being a deadly poison), got down to business with a soup called "witches' broth", came through with bared breast of duck euthanasia for the main course.

After the dessert (creme de la crime) the annual awards were presented. "Edgars," they're called—in honor of Edgar Allan Poe, a fair hand at the horror business himself. Then came the stage show, in which the crime writers kidded the goose-pimples off their industry and each other.

These mystery writers, who supply gore and suspense to the magazines, book publishers, movies, radio and television, really are gentle souls at heart. Or so they said, anyway.

Bela Lugosi, the screen spine-chiller, was on hand as guest of honor—only the program called him "ghost of honor."

Rain Maker Fails Nature Comes Through

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Mother nature once again has thwarted New York City's official rainmaker who hopes to wheedle more rain from reluctant clouds.

The $100-a-day rainmaker, Dr. Wallace E. Howell, took of Thursday on a cloud-seeding flight over the watershed area, but turned back in less than an hour. The clouds were so high, that the police department Amphibian bearing Howell and his 150 pounds of dry ice couldn't climb over them.

It was Howell's fourth aerial attempt to seed the clouds with dry ice in hopes of coaxing more moisture to help fill the city's reservoirs.

Incidentally, it has rained anyway on all four occasions.

JUBILEE VISIT—Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, carries a large pilgrims' cross through the Holy Door of St. Peter's in Rome, in a procession marking his jubilee visit to Vatican City. Dean of the US Catholic Episcopate, the Cardinal later was received in private audience by Pope Pius.

Claims He Proposed Rocket Firing Craft

LONDON — (CP) — The naval bombardment provided to support the 1942 Canadian-led raid on Dieppe was only one-sixth of what a military commander would have required in land warfare, Col. H. F. G. Langley told the Royal Commission on Awards to Inventors.

Langley presented his own case on a claim concerning combined-operations rocket and mortar craft. The commission recommends monetary awards to persons whose inventions aided Allied victory.

The officer said the Dieppe raid proved conclusively that the old type of naval bombardment was totally inadequate if Allied forces were ever to invade Europe and avoid great casualties.

Langley told the commission his proposal that the solution lay in rocket-firing craft met with widespread opposition. But after the invasion of North Africa rocket - equipped tank - landing craft were used in every major amphibious operation.

IUE Protests Election Of UEW As Bargainers

BROCKVILLE, April 22 (CP)—The International Union of Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) said today it will protest the election of the United Electrical Workers as bargaining agent for the 670 employees of Phillips Electrical Works Ltd.

The I.U.E. contends that the Communist-dominated U. E. W. violated the 72-hour, no-propaganda period prior to the vote two days ago. The U.E.W. won by a five-vote margin.

The protest, to be dealt with by the Ontario Labor Relations Board, includes a charge that the U.E.W. spread rumors and scattered pro-U.E.W. pamphlets around the factory the day of the vote.

Fenella WI Elects Officers For Year

ROSENEATH, April 22—(ENS)—Election of officers was the important business at the April meeting of Fenella Women's Institute. The meeting was held in Fenella hall on Thursday afternoon, the president, Mrs. James Waldie presided. Mrs. Elmer Harper was appointed secretary pro-tem for the meeting.

The following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. James Waldie (re-elected); first vice president, Mrs. Frank George; second vice president, Mrs. Beecher McDonald; district director, Mrs. Ambrose Fanning.

The secretary-treasurer will be elected at the May meeting. Lunch was served by the members.

Awarded $27,939

HAMILTON, April 22—(CP)—John Therrien, 26, injured in an automobile accident near Chatham 11 months ago, Friday was awarded $27,939 in a jury judgement against a Windsor man and a car-renting company.

Therrien claimed one leg is permanently injured.

Defendants were Mike Melich of Windsor, driver of the other car involved in the accident, and U-Drive It Ltd., Windsor. The Jury found Melich, driving the rented car, was responsible for the accident and Therrien's injuries.

Aunger Sisters Die In Montreal And N.Y.

MARMORA, April 22 (ENS)—Two sisters of George and William Aunger died within two days of each other last week. Mrs. Sprague, whose funeral took place in Barkers, N.Y., on April 15, two days after her death, and Miss Lillian May Aunger, who died in Montreal April 14, were daughters of the late John L. Aunger and were half sisters.

Their father lived in Blairton and Miss Aunger was well known in this district. She had many friends, particularly among the older residents.

Miss Aunger, who died at the age of 68, was heard to fall in her room. Medical aid was summoned but she died in a short time. Her body was returned from Montreal to the home of her brother William Aunger, west of Marmora village, and the funeral service was conducted at the house by the Rev. D. G. Young, paster of St. Andrews United Church. Burial took place in Maple Grove cemetery, Havelock.

Pall bearers were W. B. Wilde, Robt. Peoples, Wm. Peoples, Clarence Wallbridge, Wilson Parcels and Jesse Anderson.

School Extension

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 22 —(CP)— A secondary schools extension program that will cost an estimated $750,000 was approved at a combined meeting of the Board of Education and the Advisory Vocational Committee Thursday night.

A five-room extension to the Collegiate Institute including a new gymnasium, and a six-room enlargement of the technical school, including the establishment of two new Vocational Training shops, received the Board's authority.

Our Dream

We had a dream last night, so irrational, so amazing, so utterly dream-like in fact, that we cannot refrain from telling our readers about it.

* * *

We dreamed that somebody connected with the Government arose in the House of Commons, and said: "His Majesty's Government thanks all the business firms, large and small, for the work that they have done in the past year in collecting Income Taxes from their employees at the source. By doing this they have saved the Government a great deal of money, for they have borne the expenses themselves: they have collected taxes from some people who might otherwise have given us a great deal of trouble; they have taken upon themselves the opprobrium which always attaches to anyone who takes money out of a worker's pay envelope; they have done a good job for the Government, and the Government is grateful."

* * *

Smiling with pleasure at this show of courtesy we awoke, realizing that it was a dream, insubstantial, evanescent, and unlikely to happen.

Wordsworth Centenary

On April 23rd, 1850, William Wordsworth died at the age of eighty and the height of a fame he had been slow to reach. It had been more than fifty years since the publication of Lyrical Ballads, which had caught the ear of only a few enthusiasts, and he had not become Poet Laureate until 1843. If his fame at his death a hundred years ago was tinged by his portentousness as Hermit of Grasmere (or as F. L. Lucas has pertly phrased it, Grand Lama of the Lakes), his sonnets on nature (such as the wonderful "It is a beauteous evening") and on patriotic themes (London, 1802), his songs (The Solitary Reaper, Daffodils), and his longer reflective works, for instance Intimations of Immortality and the Ode To Duty, had entered the hearts and minds of a generation. His fame has endured, and it is not the fame of the honoured but unread.

On the eve of the centenary of his death it is fitting to enquire why Wordsworth has worn so well. To Tennyson he seemed "think-ankled"; to Swinburne he was "a Philistine"; to Rossetti, "good, you know, but unbearable". He has not the wizard's chromes or the mental power of Coleridge, the mists and soaring spirit of Shelley, the lovely tenderness of Keats. He cannot tell a story nor depict character (with the possible exception of Michael). He has no humour, not the passion of Byron nor the grace and tone of Tennyson.

Yet Wordsworth's poetry lives daily beyond the reaches of any of his contemporaries' verse. It lives primarily because of its simple strength and its happiness, two qualities of the essence of the man himself. Both are positive and deep-felt, intertwined as in The Happy Warrior. Wordsworth believed in himself, his mission as "a dedicated Spirit", in human nature happy as the Highland Lass, in the insuperable courage of the mind. The heroine of The White Doe meets disaster with Wordsworthian fortitude:

The mighty sorrow hath been borne,
And she is thoroughly forlorn;
Her soul doth in itself stand fast,
Sustained by memory of the past
And strength of Reason.

Above all, Wordsworth believed in nature, from which human nature and all else stemmed and had its being. This belief sustained the poet throughout his life and is at the core of his work: Herein is his happiness, his strength, and his faith.

For I have learned
To look on nature, not as in the hour
Of thoughtless youth; but hearing oftentimes
The still, sad music of humanity,
Nor harsh nor grating, though of ample power
To chasten and subdue. And I have felt
A presence that disturbs me with the joy
Of elevated thoughts; a sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns
And the round ocean and the living air,
And the blue sky, and in the mind of men:
A motion and a spirit, that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things.

Thus the poet is well pleased to recognize

In nature and the language of the sense
The anchor of my purest thoughts.

The simple, plain language in which the poet writes of the touching majesty of the city of Westminster, of the sea in anger, of the world "poisoned at the heart", of "authentic tidings of invisible things" and "the very littleness of life" will give Wordsworth survival long after other's more exalted or tortured phrases have become mere milestones of literary history. Even if Wordsworth's skylark is earthbound:

Deep in the general heart of man
His power survives.

Wordsworth is a nature poet, but Man is part of nature and does not take second place to it. The poet tells us that 'the mind of Man is the main region of his song". His so-called "return to Nature" is an indication of his radical independence which lead this homespun man to wear woollen stockings even to Court, under his silk ones; and in his early years to espouse with other young English radicals in the first years of the French Revolution the cause of "liberty, equality, fraternity". When the Revolution sank to tyranny, he turned from it, as he turned from the machines and cities of England which would enslave the human spirit.

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers:
Little we see in Nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon.

In his protest against the brutality of machine civilization, his call to renovate the spirit, and his patriotic appeals to the soul of the whole nation, he is still a living voice. He has a special cogency in our times. We are entering a new mechanical age, as was Wordsworth in his day; and we have passed through a major war and out into an uneasy post-war age, as did Wordsworth, whose Hitler was Napoleon.

His philosophy may not suffice now (nor did it in his time) but his verse has authentic power, beauty, and can minister to us. As Landor says:

There is a sheepfold he rais'd which my memory loves to revisit,
Sheepfold whose walls shall endure when there is not a stone of the palace.

Unfurl Centennial Flags

Exactly four weeks from today the first large official function of Peterborough's centennial year will be held. The Prime Minister of Canada will pay an official visit. Four weeks slip by quickly. The Centennial Committee and the Council are making plans, not only for the May ceremonies but for other events in the anniversary year. What are the private citizens, individually and in groups doing? Let this commemoration be not a half-hearted, half-baked thing. It will not be fully successful unless the public not only support what the city is doing officially, but also in their own spheres do their bits—even down to having the street and house-grounds in fine celebrating condition. Now, for instance is the time to dust off the household's flags and to have them ready for display when the special weeks come round. The first is less than a month away.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Amyas Pilgarlic, Esq.

Dear Pil:

I had an enlightening experience yesterday, when I went to the exhibition of pictures at the Toronto Art Gallery with my friend Crosshatch, the artist. I had rather dreaded the visit, for Crosshatch knows a great deal about pictures: I know nothing of them. Crosshatch is widely admired for his taste: I am often told that my taste is all in my mouth. Crosshatch despises Oriental rugs, for which I have an innocent affection. In short I am afraid of Crosshatch and shrink from displaying my ignorance when he is around.

When we entered the gallery, therefore, I was ready to put on an act as an Art Connoisseur. I had determined to pause for at least ninety seconds before every third picture, and to nod approvingly at least once in each room (but not at any special picture, for fear of showing ignorance). I reminded myself to stand at least eight feet from the pictures when looking at them, and to squint a lot, so as to look discerning. I worked up a little repertoire of remarks, such as "Interesting treatment", "Character there", "Nice feeling for colour", which I could murmur if Crosshatch liked a picture. I was loaded for bear when I entered the art gallery.

Judge of my amazement then, when Crosshatch whizzed around the rooms at a fast walk, neglecting whole wallfuls of pictures; he marched right up to others and glared at them, and tried the paint with a fingernail to see if it were dry; often he sniggered and sometimes he burst into a loud, derisive laugh; once he swore sharply, and made several people jump. We covered the show in half an hour flat, and he said, "Come on, let's get out of this", loudly enough for several obvious Art Lovers to hear him. But they whispered "That's Crosshatch" in reverent voices, which seemed to make it all right.

Next time I go to an art show I shall know how to behave. Maybe somebody will mistake me for an artist.

Yours in the pride of enlightenment,
SAM.

To Chandos Fribble, Esq.

Dear Fribble:

Has it ever struck you that Canada has contributed very little to the slang of the English language? Why should this be? Certainly not because we are a nation of purists. My own guess is that if we think of a good slang word the world immediately assumes that it comes from the U.S.A. Do you know of any distinctively Canadian slang?

I have been leafing idly through Partridge's "Dictionary of Slang and Unconventional English" and it is crammed with words from Australia but not a Canadian word can I find. I looked for "beaver"—meaning to chop down a tree so unskilfully that it looks as if a beaver had gnawed it, but it is not there. Surely that is a Canadian invention?

Yours enquiringly,
S. MARCHBANKS.

To Dr. Raymond Cataplasm, M.D., F.R.C.P.

Dear Dr. Cataplasm:

A patient of yours told me recently that you had advised him to take up a hobby, to relieve his nervous tension. The poor wretch was thinking of trying oil-painting, but I took the liberty of recommending an artistic hobby of my own, which I have practised for years with wonderful result. Not only am I completely free from nervous tension, but my nerves are rather slack, and tend to flap in a high wind.

Briefly I draw on pictures in magazines and newspapers. Not in the common, childish way, of course. I never put moustaches on women, for instance. I work in delicate graduations of light and shade. I improve upon nature. On a picture of Winston Churchill, as an example, I superimpose a handsome head of curly hair. Upon Mr. Attlee I put a neat wig, of the type which he could easily get from his colleague Aneurin Bevan. On pictures of brides I try effects of maturity — bags under the eyes, ice-tongs around the mouth, and a few subtly shaded hollows in the neck. Upon bathing beauties I work up amusing illusions of bow legs and knobby knees; superfluous hair, however, should not be overdone. I never stoop to the crude device of putting spectacles on pictures, preferring the more delicate suggestion of a wall eye or, if suitable, a bug eye. Many pleasing improvements may also be worked on groups of children, charity committees, and prize-winners of all kinds.

The relief which this affords to the nerves must be tested to be believed. It leaves the high-strung completely unstrung.

Yours helpfully,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

To Haubergeon Hydra, Esq.

Dear Mr. Hydra:

Enclosed find a cheque for $2.16; this added to the $11.26 already deducted from my salary in weekly portions by my employers, completes the full sum of $13.42, the total of my income Tax for the past year. It is also, if you care, almost an exact quarter of my yearly earnings, and I hope that you, as Deputy Confiscator-general, will take the utmost care of it.

Are you aware, sir, that when Captain Cook went to Australia in 1770 one of his men pointed to a kangaroo, and said "What is it"?. A native, standing by, said "Kan g'aroo", meaning "I don't understand you". But the sailor thought that it was the name of the beast, and it has stuck to this day.

Now a similar error occurred when Jacques Cartier first set foot on the soil of our country. "What do you call this place?" he cried to a native. "Canada", cried the Indian in return, and Cartier took it for the country's name. But the Indian—one of the Crokinole tribe—actually said in the remarkably economical language of his people, "Take my advice, gentlemen, and go back where you came from; the taxes here are well-nigh insupportable". That is what Canada really means, but the time for turning back has passed.

And so, Mr. Hydra, as you press my $13.42 into the hand of a career diplomat who is going to fly round the world in order to see whether it is round or merely egg-shaped, or as you send it to a Western wheat-grower who needs it to enable him to go to California for the winter, remember how hard I had to work to earn it.

Yours maliciously and grudgingly,
MARCHBANKS THE TAX-SERF.

To Big Chief Marchbanks

How, Marchbanks:

I lucky Indian, Marchbanks. Why? I tell. Last week Chief Fishbone-in-Throat die. Young man, Marchbanks. Only 102. Once I nearly marry his daughter, Princess Blocked Drain. Now Fishbone dead, Ottawa want succession duties. They take wigwam, take wampum, take truss off corpse. Bury Fishbone all busted. Now Blocked Drain poor woman. Owe Ottawa money. She offer Ottawa corpse of Fishbone but Ottawa refused because of rupture. Only want fancy corpse. I lucky Indian, Marchbanks. If I married Blocked Drain might have to work too, now. Instead I got job on roads. Wave red flag. Authority, Marchbanks.

How, again,
OSCEOLA THUNDERBELLY,
Chief of the Crokinoles.

SILHOUETTE ON THE SILKEN CURTAIN

The Absent-Minded Professor

(FROM THE LONDON TIMES)

OCCASIONALLY a casualty occurs among the more enduring jokes for which no obvious explanation offers itself. What, for instance, has become of the Absent-Minded Professor? At one time we could hardly open a comic paper without meeting him, trotting down the street with no trousers on, perpetrating in the lecture room or the laboratory some amnesiac solecism; but now he seems to be vanishing. Why? He is certainly a very old joke—far older, for instance, than the missionary being eaten by cannibals.

It must be some time now since the last evangelist suffered at the hands of his dusky brethren this grievous and terrible indignity, yet we still (for reasons which, though obscure, can hardly be held to do us credit) find the whole idea irresistibly funny. Why has the savant's absence of mind ceased to amuse us?

Perhaps the fact that education is compulsory has enhanced our respect for learning. Perhaps the alarm which the atom bomb inspires in us has created a new-found respect for a class of persons to which so many of its inventors belong. Perhaps we are all getting so absent-minded ourselves that we do not care to contemplate the effects wrought by this weakness on intellects more massive than our own.

* * *

'Professor's Wife' in the Times

I HAVE read with interest your article on the disappearance of the absent-minded professor, and should like to assure you that though he may have vanished from print he is by no means extinct. We have in our house a very lively and typical specimen, displaying the distinctive markings of his species.

He was early christened "The A. M. P." by his children, who observe with delight his habit of spreading marmalade on his bacon, of handing up the butter dish to be refilled with coffee, of sitting squarely on the cat, to their mutual surprise and discomfort, and of pouring salad cream lavishly on apple tart.

Although he has never been known to go out without his trousers, I remember with pleasure the occasions on which he has bidden tender, if vague, farewells to the wrong person; and though he is far from absent minded in his own particular branch of science, the fact that his feet rarely touch the earth in his own home is a source of perpetual and affectionate amusement.

I do not claim that our absent-minded professor is unique, as many are to be found in the northern part of this city; but I should like to correct the view that the breed is dying out, and I much enjoy the distinction of having a joke of my own to enliven the sober pace of academic life.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting. (Ps. 139: 23, 24.)

* * *

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God. (Rom. 12: 1, 2.)

The Issue of Religious Tolerance

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

LIKE the public generally, most citizens of Shawinigan Falls were shocked by mob violence against the Christian Brethren sect last week. Many letters to The Evening Citizen reflect this attitude, but the correspondence includes some excuses for vigorous and even illegal reaction against the "incessant zealotry" of certain sects. Yet the unwholesome state of civil liberties in Quebec province today is the result of giving rein to intolerance.

The provincial government's Padlock Law set a bad example years ago. Recently, a Jewish cultural organization was locked out of its premises in Montreal, and 44 Christian clergymen have protested that this action was taken without opportunity for enquiry or proof of criminal offence. Authoritarianism at Quebec has cracked down on labour organizations. Local imitators have taken action against street corner preaching and the distribution of literature. Perhaps even the courts are not unaffected, for last December the Supreme Court of Canada found that the trial judge had directed the jury wrongly in the case of Mr. Aime Boucher, a Jehovah's Witness. Sometimes crimes against person and property seem to go unpunished in Quebec.

Undoubtedly one sect in particular conducts itself in a provocative manner, and as one Evening Citizen correspondent remarks, it should show respect for others if it wants to be respected. But persecution gives colour to its denunciations of Quebec's "burning hate." Encouraged by publicity, the sect redoubles its zeal. Roman Catholicism begin to acquire an undignified resemblannce t an elephant frightened by a mouse.

The fundamental issue, however, is religiou freedom. Small sects have just as much righ as great churches to make converts if they can. Roman Catholics and Protestants, whose organizations began as persecuted sects, are quick to protest religious persecution in other lands. They should be alert to champion tolerance in Canada.

Unconsidered Trifles

A woman's anguished voice shrilled over the telephone. "Oh, officer, two young men are trying to get into my room through the window."

"Sorry, lady," was the reply. "You've made a mistake. This isn't Police Headquarters. This is the Fire Station."

"Oh, I know that," said the voice impatiently. "It's the Fire Station I'm after. They need a longer ladder."

Trent Valley Canal boys are frequent targets of irate summer water tourists, occasionally American, about lack of information on canal cruising charts. There is no need for any more of this. Their old set of 26 Trent charts have been replaced and reduced to five. The local office provided up-to-date data and the Canadian Hydrographic Service, Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, came up with the new set. Their boat "Bayfield" checked the data and sounded the water from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario in '49. New maps sell for 25 cents each, $1.25 for the set.

Several new markers have been set up at questionable points. Down at the sunken railway causeway on Rice Lake, Harwood way, there are two new steel pyrmadil floating buoys, one more at the mouth of the Otonabee. There should be no more cause for skippers going aground or hitting any hazards if they secure a new set of these charts. Even lockage systems are shown in individual inserts.

The city is planning on having two uniformed sea scouts each day at George St. wharf throughout the summer cruiser season, to give information to water tourists. That is good. Strangers can do with this sort of service as uptown merchants are aware.

Tourists Shop Now For Holidays

"Tourists are shopping around for suitable holidays this year," warned D. Leo Dolan, Canadian Travel Bureau head, at a recent tourist operators' meeting at the Soo. Of the 46,000 inquiries received by the bureau during March, Mr. Dolan did not say whether this figure was up or down from last year. He stressed courtesy and service and any possible improvements at resorts. There is a new service to resorts called "fogging", the spraying of establishments and properties to make them bug free.

This chemical campaign is being launched in the Kawarthas by a Peterborough service representative and is heartily endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce. Those operators who subscribe are assured of their places receiving three treatments before the season begins and if an application is made in bad weather, there is another immediate dusting, for free. It is something new in Canada, but has been proven in the USA and should be a boon to district resort people. We do have flies, skeeters and sech but looks as though science is looking after them nicely now.

Pit Trap For Carp; Smelts Here

While observing the smelt run at Shelter Valley Creek, Grafton, this week, our Graftonian guide, Michael Calnan, showed us a large pond depression at the edge of Lake Ontario. Mike said that it was made by commercial carp fishermen last summer who used it as a trap after the fish had been driven out of the swamp into it. They did well, it is said, and the same firm may come back again this year. We could show them a few highly productive areas in our neighbouring inland lakes, if they are interested.

Speaking of smelt, the run is nearly over for this spring, after more than ten nights. The boys are taking the occasional suckers which indicates the end. Grafton seems to be one of the most popular smelt fishing spots along "The Front". As many as 200 gathered nightly at the mouth of the creek and some came away with a tub full each, half-a-sack catch was considered fair.

New Community A-Building

A new community in the county will take shape this summer at the Nepheline Mines, Blue Mountain. Houses, community centre, school and stores are on the drafting boards and a couple of homes have already been built. It will be a company town for employees and is likely to have the fetching name of "White Rock".

With trout fishing opening a week from today, may as well get straightened out. The date, April 29, the limit, 15 fish or 10 pounds, which ever the greater. This is straight from the department press release.

• • • •

The usual flow of tourist inquiries is stepping up in pace at the Chamber of Commerce, both in direct mail and from federal and provincial travel agencies. The Ontario department publish a daily list that shows at least five or six inquiries about the Kawarthas. In direct mail, manager Jim Fraser has heard recently from Toronto, Cleveland, Bridgeport and Cincinnati, all in Ohio, Glen's Falls and Rochester in New York State, Hagarstown, Indiana, and Saginaw, Benton Harbor and Detroit in Mhicigan.

Mention is not being made of this matter to indicate that there is an unprecedented tourist flow heading this way, but, it shows what an imporant function the Chamber has in directing tourist dollars to all of us. Some requests are weird and wonderful and will provide a lengthier discourse at a later time. No doubt our requests sound as queer to American centres. We could both do well to brush up on our geography.

SHORT TAKES: C. A. Pruner of Akron, O., arrived at his Pigeon Lake Lodge a week ago to find ice had played hob with his docks and shoreline; his reservations are practically filled for the season . . . Wonder if game wardens are keeping their eyes peeled for the two worthies who have been selling game fish from a truck in the city; fresh duck can be had as well as bass at 50 cents a pound . . . . A picture of some little girls in a Toronto paper who snared a nice trout with a skipping rope was poor publicity . . . A bit mentioned here two weeks ago about a guiding school in the Kawarthas has met with instant approval by one large district operator: he grades most of his guides as "poor" at his establishment. A travelling guide school may be formed by the department in the future: a meeting concerning the project is being held at Dorset now . . . Kiwanis Club bait casting school is a reality; be at Rube Wilson's service station, McDonnel and Reid Sts., Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. . . . . There is some talk, talk that is, about a sportsmen's show being put on in the Civic Arena in June; is this definite? . . . Peterborough Nature Club will have their first field outing on May 13, around Mount Pleasant way; everyone is welcome to go along and the man to contact is, appropriately, Lewis R. Bird at 4148.

Ladle In A Pot Of Gold

Mutability

From low to high doth dissolution climb,
And sink from high to low, along a scale
Of awful notes, whose concord shall not fail;
A musical, but melancholy chime,
Which they can hear who meddle not with crime
Nor avarice, nor over-anxious care.
Truth fails not; but her outward forms that bear
The longest date do melt like frosty rime,
That in the morning whitened hill and plain
And is no more; drop like the tower sublime
Of yesterday, which royally did wear
His crown of weeds, but could not even sustain
Some casual shout that broke the silent air,
Or the unimaginable touch of Time.

TWO PETERBOROUGH MUSICIANS who won renown as early as the 1910's and later went to the Canadian West, there to stimulate musicial interest are LEFT, Julia Grover Choate, violinist, granddaughter of Thomas Choate, founder of Warsaw, and RIGHT, Helen Davies Sherry, gifted soloist, daughter of Dr. Davies, former organist of St. John's Church, Peterborough. Miss Choate won an Earl Grey trophy against the stiffest competition in the land in 1910. Helen Davies Sherry, soloist at St. Paul's Church before moving to the West, made her debut in Massey Hall with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. Next month Mrs. Sherry is adjudicating the Moose Jaw Music Festival, together with Bernard Naylor, Anglo-Canadian composer and orchestral conductor.

Peterborough's 'Golden Age' of Music

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

Peterborough music-lovers of two generations will be grateful to the Examiner for its recently published tribute to the life and work of the late Richard J. Devey. Like other earlier residents of the city, I recall with a sense of indebtedness the singularly helpful contributions of the former organist and choir-master of St. John's Church to the enrichment of musical life.

In Mr. Devey's hey-day, musical enterprise called for real effort. Cultural achievement did not come through discs or dials or in handy packages of refills. Aestheticians and musicologists and their monstrous logomachy were scarcely heard of — there were still artists and musicians. Dollars were dollars in those days but people contrived to do things for themselves—and do them well.

Difficulties that then beset musical endeavor are illustrated by the story of the misadventures of Mr. Devey and his "Peterborough Operatic Company" when they went to Toronto under arrangement to present "The Geisha" at the fourth annual Earl Grey Musical and Dramatic Trophy Competition at the Royal Alexandra theatre on April 5, 1910. Mention is made as well of the appearance of the Peterborough Madrigal Club. Directed by the late Rupert Gliddon, this group sang Gounod's "By Babylon's Wave", Buck's "Hymn to Music" and McFarren's "You Stole My Love". The story has already been told of the delays which made it necessary for the Operatic Company to return to Peterborough late at night by costly special train and of how poetic justice (with pecuniary recompense) overtook them in a happy sequel—a command performance before Earl Grey at a gala concert in Peterborough.

In the interest of completeness, I am impelled to supplement the bit of musical history presented by the Examiner. It is fitting that the honor won by another Peterborough musician at the same competition should have its place in the record.

Earl Grey Silver Medal

For it was on Friday, April 9, 1910, that the present writer's sister, Miss Julia Grover Choate, played on the Royal Alexandra theatre stage the violin solo which won for her the Earl Grey silver medal in the Dominion-wide competition. The event called out a galaxy of talent. "Reverie" by Vieuxtemps was the competition selection.

Julia Choate had begun her studies with a half-size violin at her Warsaw home, under tuition of her grandfather, the late Thomas Choate, founder of Warsaw, and of Robert Tucker, a versatile English violinist and bandsman. She became a pupil of Mr. Gliddon at the Peterborough Conservatory and later of Mrs. Dreschler Adamson of Toronto. She too, has interesting recollections of the competition, which provided a stern test for one of her tender years. On her arrival in Toronto a survey of the list of her competitors—all from Canada's largest musical centres — Toronto, Ottawa, London and Montreal—was little short of terrifying to a newcomer from the provinces. For, as Mr. Devey recalled, the Peterborough of that time was an incredible place on the Hayseed Loop, out of which "nothing good could come", in the view of the priggish sophisticates of Toronto's haute monde..

Preliminary chatter told of the intensive training and superlative talent of some of the entrants. Julia Choate took counsel with her teacher. What chance had she against such odds? Mrs. Adamson smiled quietly, imperturbably, adding only a softspoken "Just wait and you'll see". Rays of confidence broke through the gloom clouds. Misgiving and diffidence vanished.

Serenely, Peterborough's budding artist met her audience, her accompanist being Mrs. Adamson's daughter, Miss Lina Dreschler Adamson, who has since added to her own lustre as a teacher at the Toronto (now Royal) Conservatory. The "Reverie" was received with acclaim and Peterborough musicians did not go empty away from the Earl Grey Competition of 1910.

In an editorial article "Her Triumph" written a short time later, the late F. R. Yokome, then editor of the Examiner, remarked:

Miss Julia Choate was at the Conservatory of Music last night presented with two medals for excellence of violin work. The young lady is to be congratulated. In her glad hour of Tuesday evening all the disappointments of the early stage were forgotten. The tiresome hours in gaining a knowledge how first to hold the violin, then how to use the bow and all the rest of the exacting routine the following of which is so necessary to perfect elegance and artistic work.

Many are the young men and women who have taken up music and thrown it aside, taken up French to forget it, took fitful starts at shorthand and dropped it. And then they wonder why it is they never succeed.

Miss Choate has won a triumph and her determination and artistic temperament should win other laurels for her if she perseveres to the end.

"Golden" Age c 1910

The Examiner has referred to the years just after the turn of the century as "Peterborough's Golden Age of Music". The writer, who was a member of the Examiner editorial staff part of that time, shares the pride of Peterborough people on the achievements of the period and believes it would be lamentable if the full significance of what was then accomplished should be obscured by a narrowing of observation to a local field of vision. Overall observation doubtless transcends poor human powers—yet horizons can be widened by those with eyes fitted for the undertaking. A broadened perspective reveals that 40 years after the so-called Golden Age, Peterborough's musical spirit, overleaping provincial and national lines, persists as a dynamic social force in far corners of the continent.

What makes a golden age golden? The inquiry here seems to be pertinent. Our use of the convenient colloquial "golden" is doubtless meant to signify an age to which we ascribe exceptional values. Employment in the arts of a term which seems better fitted to the physical sciences is not without its hazards. One thinks of two golden ages—those of the golden egg goose and of the ego-centric Midas which were short-lived because their potential values were short-circuited by the short-sighted. A multiplicity of such cases may suggest to us that golden ages are never created by (or for) people who, like the infecund army mule, are "without pride of ancestry or hope of a hereafter."—in other words, people without a sense of seminal, hence, persisting values.

But Nietzsche gives us what is, perhaps, a more revealing view of the gold metaphor. Thus: "But tell me, how did gold come to have the highest value? For this reason, that it is uncommon and of no use and bright and mellow in lustre. It is always radiant".

Progress of Peterborough: XVI

Peterborough Becomes A Log Hut Village With Government House and Irish Shacks

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

Robinson reported "During the first three months Col. Burke and most of my assistants were laid up with fever at Cobourg and I had everything to see to. The surgeon was obliged to remain there with the largest party, and those engaged with me in building had not even the advantage of medical advice. . ." In September and October, five buildings were erected to serve as headquarters for the settlement scheme. The largest of them, known as "Government House" was of logs with square gables and shingled roof, 40x20 ft., and a small wooden porch over the central door, which opened into the middle of three rooms of nearly equal size. This housed Robinson his assistant McDonell and various others who visited them, as for several years it was the largest residence in town. In the east room Robinson had his private office and bed; the middle room was a general office, and the west room was used as a kitchen.

This "mansion" faced south on the southeast corner of Simcoe and Water Streets, about 30 feet from the former and 40 feet from the latter. A large area north across Simcoe street behind the house was fenced in as a garden and several small sheds and stables were built between the house and the riverbank.

Four smaller log houses were built standing in a row facing east on Water Street, along the eastern edge of the present Market Square. The largest and northernmost, used as residence by Dr. Reade and for church service, was 20x18 feet, and stood on the site of the front part of the Market Weigh-scale House. The two central cabins were used as storehouses for provisions and supplies, and the southernmost was the general office where Robinson, McDonnell, and the clerk, Richard Thornhill, issued orders for locations, provisions, and other supplies.

Logs, Because Mill Failed

The fact that all these cabins were built of logs is significant; Scott's mill had failed just when it could have been profitable, due to extremely low water from the back country. Mrs. Stewart commented the next February: "We all went to the banquet together from Dr. Reade's house to Government House, nearly opposite to Dr. Reade's. You must know that all these houses which sound so grand are merely log houses, and little better than the cabins at home. Dr. Reade's house is a very small, miserable, inconvenient place, but is only a temporary one. The Government House is the best I ever saw for a log house. . ."

She was equally critical of the Irishman's huts "very odd, being made with poles standing up, bows or branches of trees interwoven, and mud plastered over this . . . These huts already cause the 'Plains' to be called a village . . . Dr. Reade has come as the emigrants' doctor; he is liked among the poor Irish; he is a very humane, hospitable, friendly little man. The poor creatures suffered a great deal, and many died. . . The mill at Scott's is again stopped. . ."

Another famous person arrived at this time, Samuel Strickland, coming to look for a farm to buy; he wrote later in his book "27 Years in Canada West": "I walked 27 miles through Cavan and Monaghan to the town of Peterborough, which at that time contained one log house and a very poor sawmill. . .I found several hundreds of Mr. Robinson's emigrants camped on the plains Many had built themselves huts of pine and spruce boughs; some with slabs and other with logs of trees. 3 or 4 government storehouses and a house for the Honourable Peter Robinson were in course of erection. I had letters of introduction to that gentleman and also to the Honourable T. A. Stewart and Robert Reid . . As I did not like the appearance of the lodgings I was likely to obtain in the new town, I went on to Mr. Stewart's and presented my credentials. . ."

Survey Ordered

The Surveyor-General on Oct 18, 1825, ordered Birdsall to survey the Peterborough townplot: ". . .The lines must be sufficiently opened, so that they may be traced with certainty, laying down on your plan and also inserting in your fieldnotes everything worthy of remark . .such places as appear to you most suitable for public purposes, such as church, parsonage, burial grounds, courthouse, etc. The streets passing west from the river Otonabee through the tract under lease (the millsite) are excepted therein, and are to be opened to the river, but not to be laid out into lots within the limits of that tract; and although the diagram does not show any allowance for a street on the riverbank, yet you will in the survey leave one chain in width back from the bank along the whole front of the town, excepting only in front of the leased tract. . "Birdsall completed the survey the same autumn aided by Irish chainmen; his field-notes are preserved in the Peterborough Public Library.

A few years later he also surveyed the "Scotch Village" across the river, owned by Burnham; one legend is that Burnham bought this tract in 1804 for $20 and a horse from the original grantee, but in actual fact it was partly reserve-land and partly granted (200 acres, broken lots 29 and 30, concession 13, Otonabee) to Richard Ferguson on Oct. 9, 1821, and so recorded in maps as late as 1829; Burham must have purchased or exchanged it later.

The original town boundaries were: Smith Street on the north, Park Street on the west, Townsend Street on the south, and the river on the east. Water Street instead of being a riverfront promenade which would have improved the town's appearance greatly, was actually set back from the river for most of its length; for several decades it was the town's main thoroughfare, as we shall see. King, George and Queen Streets were patriotic in origin, London, Dublin and Edinburgh Streets are for British cities; Antrim and Donegal Streets are named from North Ireland; there was no Cork Street!

Officials and soldiers were commemorated in Brock, Hunter, Murray, Dalhousie, Aylmer, Simcoe, Gilmour and Wolfe Streets, also Lundy's Lane. District gentry were remembered by Stewart, McDonnel, Reid, Robinson, Rubidge, Boswell, Crawford, Benson, Havelry, Walton, Bethune, Weller and other streets; incidentally, Reid Street on some early maps was "Reade Streets" in memory of the doctor. The Burham family named Burham, Mark and Rogers Streets in the "Scotch Village". Birdsall named one street for himself, and four others for his daughters: Charlotte, Maria, Sophia and Elizabeth; Elizabeth Street was later renamed Hunter Street East.

Distillery Started

Meanwhile Scott, with his mills idle because of low water, decided to start a distillery to satisfy the influx of settlers. His still was set up in his house, and as he was too poor to buy a metal "worm" for it, he used a long wooden tube cooled by water, through which the vapour was passed. There was no way to purify the spirits, but the raw whisky was sold for 10c or 15c a gallon, or exchanged for a pound of meat or flour (which the Irish had in excess). Even the Irish, accustomed to "poteen bogdew," expressed their opinion of it in the words of one man "OH! such whisky!"

Restless with delay and fever, the Irish were also being stirred up by Bastable of Kingston and others; these were encouraged by Governor-General Dalhousie, who favored only military settlements, and opposed "the idly-disposed emigrants brought by Robinson . . .relieving the south of Ireland of a burden which was thrown upon the industrious classes of this young country . ." He had a strange ally in William Lyon Mackenzie, radical editor of the "Colonial Advocate" of York, who wrote in his paper December 8, 1825: 'MR. ROBINSON'S IRISH SETTLERS. . .these people have an ardent desire to go to the United States, and that they frequently desert. No less than 30 of them decamped lately in one night. . ."

These malicious rumors were strongly denied by officials like Orton of Smith's, Creek and Fitzgibbon of York, who visited the village, and by Thomas Stewart who wrote "Not one complaint has there been against them by any of the old settlers, and it is the general opinion that where so large a body of people are brought together none could conduct themselves better. When we first heard of their coming among us we did not like the idea, and immediately began to think it necessary to put bolts and bars on our doors and windows; all these fears have vanished. . . Mr. Robinson has also been particularly fortunate in his choice in the Medical Department, as the care, humanity and great attention shown by Dr. Reade could not be exceeded. . ."

Robinson reported: "I exact the strictest obedience; there are many idle rascals exciting the people to disobedience, but I am determined to carry a high hand at the depot. . .It is provoking to work hard and then to be misrepresented. . ." He imprisoned one Irishman, John Finn, with good effects upon discipline, but soon released him and gave him a lot with the others. Most of the unrest speedily disappeared when Robinson and his assistants started settling the immigrants on their lands, during late October and November, 1825.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Shockey's and Clapper's clash at 7:45 tonight in the YMCA to open their best-of-three City Basketball League finals. Some of the best OABA players in the city decorate these lineups, and it should be interesting all the way between two strong squads. Second game some time next week, perhaps early. Girls' Basketball League finals will be settled Monday evening in the YWCA when Nurses and Normals tangle at 7.30 in the junior playoffs. Nurses can take it with a win then, having one victory now. If Normals capture this contest, the teams go right back at each other about 8.30 the same night for the championship. Winners have been declared in the senior and intermediate brackets.

Open workout for senior baseballers at 1.30 this aft in Riverside as the Petes prepare for their campaign in the Toronto Viaduct League. Team has till June 15 to import players—it's July 15 for students—and may draw from the surrounding district. Lights expected early in the season here. We note where the parks board in Niagara Falls, Ont., is spending almost $30,000 to increase fan facilities for baseball, and where most Western Ontario cities are spending a lot on the sport this year, figuring it'll all come back in time. George Ticcony, with Oshawa last season, is going with Waterloo this year. And it is announced that Peg Hurst will manage the Oshawa entry in the Viaduct League.

PMLA-ers Make Plans

While not much is being released yet on local senior lacrosse, a number of husky aces are in town and all looks promising for a strong "A" entry. The gutted-stick followers of this borough will have a real team to cheer for in another month. Walt Murphy informs us that the Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association will hold its annual meeting next Friday night at eight in Ken Kingston's home on 21 Manning Ave. Last year's managers, coaches and officials are urged to attend, as well as prospective managers and others interested in the PMLA-ers. This was a large and well-handled organization last summer and should be equally good in 1950.

A big crowd in Civic Arena last gloaming thrilled to the fighting finish dished up by Legionnaires. Down 3-0 in the third period to the free-wheeling Brantford Nats, the Ellis outfit suddenly remembered they were champs and roared back into the picture with three markers to send it into a scoreless overtime stanza. Had they played like that the first two frames, the issue would never have been in doubt. But they couldn't click right at all for two innings and pretty nearly took it on the whiskers. You can't fool around long with the husky Brants. However, Legion got back in the hunt in the nick of time and forced a draw. A real thriller that one.

* * * * * *

OHA Misses Not A Bet

This series is on the points system, that is two points for a win and one for a tie. Nats now have three wins and a tie, or a total of seven points. Legion have two and one for five points. Next game is listed for Monday in Brantford and a win for the Nats will give 'em the senior "B' crown. A win for Legion would mean both teams had seven points, and the OHA procedure then is to have a brand new series, likely home and home games, goals to count. The OHA doesn't mind at all ordering extra games as that august body takes a cut off the top of every playoff contest, and what's the hurry anyway?

* * * * * *

The Holota-Pigeon-Stemmler line was dynamite for the Brants last e'en, and they were all going well from Goalie McGrattan out. Legion worked hard and threatened at times, but looked below peak form for two periods. They then went to work and had a good margin on play in the third and through the 10-minute overtime session. We liked the all-around work of Al Burns over the distance, while Bob Parnell toiled throughout. Sixty Coombs was another worker, and the first line came close on a number of occasions. Nicholls wasn't giving away much in the home net, and they all turned in a stellar effort the last half. The big crowd really roared when that tying marker slithered over the line.

Legion don't think much of playing on the heavy ice at Brantford again; apparently the plant there isn't too good... And we're getting crippled up with a malady known as bus-itis complicated with symptoms of Brantford-itis.

GATHLEEN McCORMICK, dimpled ice darling of the Montreal Figure Skating Club, was one of the featured stars who appeared on the Carnival card at the Montreal Forum last Friday. The six-year-old has earned an enviable reputation as an accomplished blade artist.

ONTARIO JUNIOR "C" SOFTBALL champions in 1949, Hastings will be back in the running again this year to defend their championship. The Hastings juniors won the cup which was up for competition for the first time last year for teams representing towns with a population of less than 3,500. Members of the team are: back row, left to right, Stan Stevenson (manager), Howard Fairman and Fred Crate (coaches), Guy Wellman (sponsor); middle row, Gord Fennell, Porter Fife, Jim Morrow, Ab Beavis, Don Lemoire, Paul Stevenson, Dick West; front row, Boyd Kelly, Martin Mueller, Ken Oliver, George Holmes, Laverne Thomas, Morley Richardson.

Derby Nominees Take Trial Spin

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Top-ranking among the Derby candidates in the Eastern United States clash today in the $40,000 added Wood Memorial at Jamaica. The race has assumed added importance with the defeat of Oil Capitol, winter book Derby favorite, in the Scarlet Gate Purse at Keeneland Friday.

An even dozen three-year-olds, all but three eligible for the May 6 Derby at Churchill Downs, were entered in Jamaica's 1 1-16-mile fixture. Robert J. Kleberg's Middleground was expected to rule a slight favorite over C. T. Chenery's Hill Prince. They are the top Derby candidates in this sector and never have met.

Should all 12 start, the race would gross $49,300 and net the winner $34,750—high in the history of the stake. However, should one horse scratch, the victor would receive $250 less (that is the starting fee) and drop the first money below the $34,600, which By Request won two seasons ago.

Charge Former Boxer With Car Smuggling

TORONTO, April 22 (CP) — Frank Battaglia, 34-year-old former professional boxer, Friday was charged with smuggling an automobile into Canada from the United States and was remanded to April 28. Bail was set at $2,000.

Earlier he was charged with breaking and entering and theft of $25 worth of cigarets from a service station at Port Hope, 70 miles east of Toronto.

Battaglia was arrested at gunpoint in a rooming-house here on Thursday by RCMP and Toronto police investigating a counterfeit ring said to be passing bogus money between Buffalo and Montreal. Police said Friday that Montreal persons were unable to identify Battaglia in that connection.

Remember When—

Winnipeg's greatest year in winter sports was climaxed by a civic banquet here 19 years ago tonight. Bringing home four-way honors were Elwood Millionaires, Canadian junior hockey kings; Winnipegs, senior hockey titlists; Frank Stack of Winnipeg, international indoor speed skating champion, and R. G. Gourlay's curling rink which won the Canadian title.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Clare Van Horne, manager of the London major ball club since its formation in 1944, resigned on Friday. The announcement of his retirement came on the eve of the club's first practice of the season.

Bill Farquharson, business manager of the local Senior Intercounty League club, said that Jack Fairs, popular catcher of last year's team, would be appointed acting-manager of the squad. Fairs is assistant football and baseball coach at the University of Western Ontario, a native of Tillsonburg and a former Welland baseball star.

Van has been mixed up in baseball in London for more than 20 years. He first rose to fame as a junior pitcher.

Van Horne has built up an impressive record in senior intercounty ball. His teams have won the championship four times during their six-year history. They also have won the Canadian sandlot congress title twice and in 1948 defeated Fort Wayne for the sandlot "world series."

Philadelphia honored Connie Mack Friday as the 87-year-old patriarch showed the home folks his 50th edition of the Philadelphia Athletics—the team he hopes will bring him that long sought "one more pennant."

By official proclamation of Mayor Bernard Samuel, it was "Connie Mack Day." And everybody co-operated, but the weather man and Boston Red Sox. A cloudy and cold day kept the opening day attendance down to 8,184. The Bostonians whipped the A's 8-2.

Manager-coach Lew Hayman of Montreal Alouettes said Friday that Tom Casey would be a welcome addition to the Alouette football team but he has no knowledge of Casey's plans.

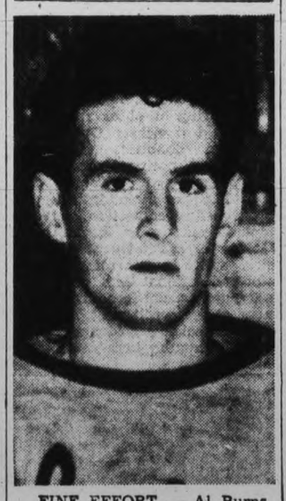
Casey has let it be known in Hamilton that he won't be with the Wildcats of the Big Four next season because he wants to attend medical school and can't do it in Hamilton.

The speedy Negro backfielder is reported to have had an offer from Winnipeg Blue Bombers, in which city he could attend university of Manitoba.

Seeking relief from Ontario's 15-per-cent amusement tax on all "professional sport," officials of the Argonaut football club were told by Premier Frost Friday at Toronto that they would receive a rebate of the tax on all sums expended by the club for charitable purposes.

However, other revenue of the club will be subject to the tax, it was learned.

"Our position is that the club comes within the scope of a professional club and that the club is subject to tax," Premier Frost said. "Our ruling is that all such clubs are subject to tax. However if any of the organization's profits are used for charitable purposes or for the furtherance of pure amateur sport, the club will receive a rebate of the tax for such expenditures."



FINE EFFORT — Al Burns turned in a fine effort both defensively and on the attack for Legion last night as they tied Brantford 3-3 here in overtime to prolong the OHA senior "B" final playoffs.

Church Softball

A meeting of the church softball group will be held Monday in the YMCA, Vice-president Jim Edwards announces. All churches are requested to have representatives on hand to put in entries for the season and deal with other business. It is the last date for taking entries.

Buffalo Whips Springfield 8-4

By The Associated Press

Manager Stan Hack and his Springfield Cubs were roughly treated in their International Baseball League debut Friday night.

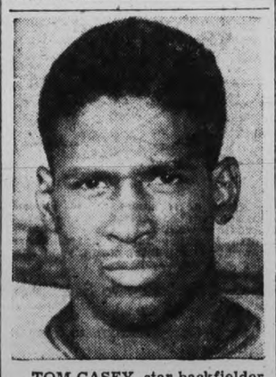
Springfield, which replaced Newark, made its first appearance in 50 years in the International circuit but Buffalo Bisons spoiled things by beating the Cubs 8-4.

The Cubs drew first blood, scoring twice in the third inning to drive rookie Hal Wood from the box in favor of Al Carrasquel.

Buffalo scored once in the fifth and drove starter Gene Costello out in the sixth with a three-run barrage. The Cubs came back and tied the score at 4-4 with a run in the last of the sixth but Jerry Scala doubled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth. The Bisons iced the decision with three more in the ninth. Two runs came on Jack Hussey's home run.

Montreal Royals also spoiled Jersey City's opener by crushing the Giants 13-6 before 5,567 fans. The Royals pounded five giant pitchers for 11 hits including home runs by Charley Thompson and George Schmees.

A scheduled game between Rochester and Baltimore was postponed because of cold weather. Toronto and Syracuse were not scheduled.



TOM CASEY, star backfielder with Hamilton Wildcats of the Big Four Football Union last year, likely will play for Winnipeg Blue Bombers this year.

Legionnaires Battle Back To Gain a 3-3 Draw With Brantford In Playoff

Battling back in the third period from behind a 3-0 lead by Brantford Nationals here last night, the local Legionnaires sewed up the game in the dying seconds of play to force a scoreless overtime period. The next game being in Brantford early next week. If Brantford wins that one, the series is over. If Legion wins, the series is tied on points and a new home-and-home series will probably result.

A capacity crowd saw an indifferent Legion squad go through the motions for two frames and then come to life in the third to fight as of old and stay in the hunt. Play was fast and clean throughout, with the husky Nationals having a good margin of play for two heats, and Legion dominating play in the third and all through the overtime stanza, a 10-minute inning.

Couldn't Click

The Ellis outfit couldn't seem to get untracked for two periods, missing passes, failing to check back in a hurry and not fighting into the corners or around the net. They looked like a well-beaten team as the squads skated off the ice to end the second period with Brantford in front 3-0. Legion surprised their supporters in the third with a reversal of form, hustling all the way to earn three goals, the last coming half a minute before the gong for regulation time. They almost won it in overtime, having a big margin on play.

Al Burns shone for the homesters with a fine defensive display and also on the attack, being in on two goals. Stewart, Coombs and Hill got the markers, Coombs also having an assist, as did Godfrey and Montgomery. Holota was hot for the Nats with two goals and an assist. Pigeon got the other one and helped on one more, while Stemmler was in on three, as Pigeon and Jamieson each aided on one. Both goalies were sharp and didn't give away anything in a neat scrap, and all the players battled hard in this important playoff.

Pressed Hard

The Nats pressed from the start, with Pigeon almost clicking for a goal early. Parnell had a good try, and then Pigeon put the visitors one up on a corner pass-out in close with his back-hander, Holota and Stemmler aiding. Stemmler went off shortly for hooking but was back in time to aid Holota on another goal with Pigeon on some poor Legion clearing in close. It was hot and even for a space with Hill once testing McGrattan at nearby range, but the Nats having a good margin on territorial play in clean going.

Linn was thefted by Nicholls early in the second as the Brants poured in again. Holota made it 3-0 from Jamieson and Stemmler on a rebound after a screened shot on Nicholls' doorstep. It was speedy and quite clean, with the Nats still having more of the play, though they couldn't cash in on a cross-checking penalty to Crowley, due to good checking by Legion. Doug Mortimer got the finger next for tripping but Legion held off their attack until his return. Toward the end, the homesters began to click better and gave McGrattan a few busy minutes, a Crowley-Burns thrust in particular being close. The frame ended 3-0.

Went To Work

Legionnaires went to work in the third and had a big edge on play as they poured in in waves on the visitors' defence and goalie. Stewart broke the goose-egg on a rebound from Coombs after a passout as they raced in fast. Coombs got another shortly with a slap shot as they ganged up hard, Burns and Godfrey being in on the play. A Crowley-Rochetta rush nearly paid off and later Burns and Vitarelli were robbed on a combination play. Messmer went off for holding Stewart late in the chukker and that one did it. Legion turned it on hotly as time raced away, and Hill finally slithered one into the cage in a close-in scramble. Burns and Montgomery aiding, after several had taken a whack at the loose puck. The crowd nearly went wild, but the period ended right after.

Watson came close to start the overtime stanza, but Legion then took over and had most of the play. They were in on McGrattan's doorstep repeatedly but couldn't slam the disc by him. The Brants got away for the odd rush, but were held in their own zone for a minute at a time more than once as Legion tried desperately to cop the victory. Time ran out and it wound up as a deadlock.

Brantford — Goal, McGrattan; defence, Smith and Simpell; centre, Stephen; wings, Watson and Hnatiuk; alternates, Pigeon, Holota, Stemmler, Leconte, Linn, Campbell, Messmer and Jamieson.

Legion — Goal, Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Burns; centre, Rochetta; wings, Vitarelli and Crowley; alternates, Parnell, F. Mortimer, Greenlaw, Hill, Stewart, Coombs, D. Mortimer and Montgomery.

Referees—W. Morrison and P. Patterson.

Yankees, Page Win Three Of Four Starts

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

"Yeah, but I got Joe Page."

This has been Casey Stengel's stock reply in nearly every discussion concerning the relative merits of his New York Yankees and the power-laden Boston Red Sox.

More than once during the spring training grind the Yankee manager was reminded that the Red Sox owned the greatest hitters in Ted Williams and Vern Stephens and the best pitchers in Mel Parnell and Ellis Kinder. To all this Stengel would reply:

"Yeah, but I got Joe Page."

This statement becomes more significant as the American League pennant race nears the close of the opening week.

To date, the Yankees have played four games. They've won three and lost one. Page, the brilliant relief artist, has been summoned to relieve faltering mates in three of them. The Yankees won all three. Page saved two for other hurlers and received credit for the other.

Allowed One Hit

Bucky Harris, veteran pilot of Washington Senators, sweated and fretted Friday as Fireman Joe set back eight of the nine men to face him to help the Yankees defeat the Senators 14-7. It was New York's home opener of the season with 27,877 fans turning out in the chilly weather.

Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra and Byrne homered for the Yankees who blasted five Washington pitchers for 18 hits. Eddie Robinson accounted for three of the Senators' runs with a homer and a single.

Tigers Unbeaten

A home crowd of 44,642 watched the unbeaten Detroit Tigers register their third straight victory by defeating Chicago White Sox 4-1. The only other unbeaten team is St. Louis, winner of its first two games. The Browns and Cleveland were idle Friday.

Vic Wertz was the hero of the Tigers' triumph. His homer with two on in the eighth broke up a 1-1 deadlock. Until then, right-hander Virgil Trucks of the Tigers and southpaw Mickey Haefner of the White had dueled on even terms.

Detroit Juggles Line-Up For Winning Combination

DETROIT, April 22—(CP)—The puzzled Detroit Red Wings revamped their line-up as they hoped to turn back the New York Rangers' bid for the Stanley Cup hockey championship tonight.

New York sports a 3-2 lead in the series and can wrap up the championship by winning game No. 6 tonight. If Detroit triumphs and ties the series, a seventh and deciding game will be played here Sunday night.

The Red Wing brain trust made no secret of the fact that it is amazed at the play of the Rangers who had been figured in preseries dope as a soft touch for Detroit.

Veterans Return

Veterans Clare Martin and Pete Babando, both of whom have seen practically all of the series from the bench, were called on for active service again as the Wings juggled their manpower. The return of the two experienced men means that a couple of rookies will be benched tonight, but no final decision will be made on them until game time.

Reports from the Ranger camp indicated that New York was confident of posting its third straight victory over the Red Wings.

The Rangers won a 4-3 overtime decision Tuesday night and added a 2-1 overtime verdict Thursday night.

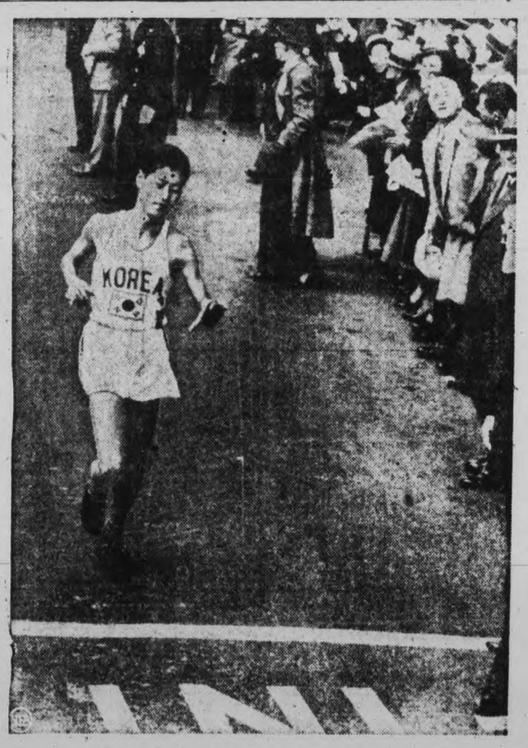
10 Games Ahead

Those two decision jarred the National Hockey League champion Detroiters, who finished nearly 10 games ahead of the Rangers in regulation league play.

Friday coach Lynn Patrick gave the Rangers the day off and the entire squad attended the Detroit-Chicago baseball game. It was the first time many of the young Rangers had seen a major-league game.

When Don Raleigh scored his second straight overtime goal Thursday night to give the Rangers a 2-1 victory and their present edge in the series, the Rangers all acted as if they were "in." "That may be our trouble," Patrick said.

"There's no doubt that we're in the driver's seat now. I'm fairly certain we're going to win. But we're going to have to fight for it. The Rangers aren't a team that can coast. We've just got to battle for all we're worth. That's how we've got this far."



KOREAN WINS MARATHON — Smiling Kee Young Ham, a Korean high school senior, finishes the 54th annual Boston Marathon a half-mile in front of the second place finisher. Ham covered the rugged 26-mile, 385-yard course in two hours, 32 minutes and 39 seconds, seven minutes off the course record.

DICKIE MOORE, right, is shown holding his head in despair after knocking in what proved to be the winning goal for Guelph Biltmores. Moore deflected the high flying puck when he attempted to catch it. Goaler Roger Morrisette doesn't appear too happy about the whole thing. In lower photo, three of the Mad Hatters who played the role of giant killers are shown relaxing in their dressing rooms. Left to right, Captain Wally Clune, who was credited with the goal Moore knocked in, Goaler Cliff Hicks and Ron Plumb who got the clincher in the last minute of play.

Farmers Object To CBC Policy Of Federation

OTTAWA, April 22 —(CP)— Pitching battle against the executive of the powerful Canadian Federation of Agriculture, two Ontario farmers charge the federation's radio policy does not represent the views of the federation's 400,000 farmer-members.

Howard A. Prentice of St. Catharines and John J. Pollock of Niagara-on-the-Lake, submitting a brief to the Massey Commission on Arts, disclaim sympathy with the federation's declaration that Canadian radio should continue to be controlled by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Free Enterprise

Claiming membership in the federation, the two farmers said "by and large farmers of Canada are advocating free enterprise. We believe the CBC should be allowed to continue; but the CBC should not be permitted to have the power of life or death which it has over the private radio stations today."

"Private radio should be encouraged, not discouraged."

The two Ontario farmers said that officers of the federation at the recent annual meeting at Niagara Falls "prevented a free expression of opinion" when an amendment to redraft the federation's radio policy was ruled out of order by the chair.

The brief by the two men, while filed with the Commission, has not been formally aired in a public hearing. The Commission now has adjourned its Ottawa hearings.

Not Members

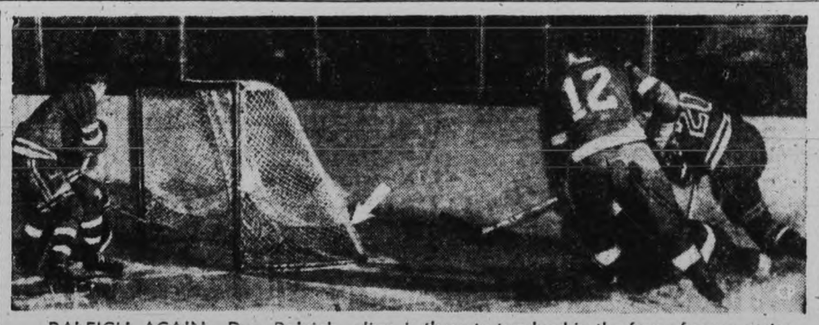
However, H. H. Hannan, president of the C.F.A., said in a letter to the Commission that the men were not members of the Federation and that the brief was "full of inaccuracies and misconceptions."

"These gentlemen are in error when they say they as individuals are members of the C.F.A., for the reason that there is no individual farmer membership in the national body. The Canadian federation is a federation of the various provincial federations, which in turn are federations of farm organizations within their own provincial boundaries.

14-Year Policy

"The policy of the Canadian federation," continued Mr. Hannan, "as restated in the brief presented to your Commission last September has been the same throughout the 14 years of the existence of the national body.

"Insofar as knowledge of the Canadan federations's brief among individual farmers is concerned, it would be obviously physically impossible to have placed a copy of this in the hands of the 400,000 or more individual farmers who are embraced within local farm organizations or various kinds that are affiliated with provincial federations, and through them, with the national body."



RALEIGH AGAIN—Don Raleigh, slim centre for New York Rangers, is shown, left, after scoring the winning goal in overtime in the fifth game of the Stanley Cup finals at Detroit April 20. The 2-1 victory over Detroit Red Wings gave the Rangers a three-to-two lead in the four-of-seven series. The puck, arrow, can be seen in the Detroit net. Raleigh had won the fourth game in overtime on an almost-identical play. Ranger's Ed Slowinski (20) is ridden out of play by Sid Abel (12) of Detroit.

Dies After Crash

TORONTO, April 22 — (CP) — Anton Hren, 24-year-old Toronto motorist pinned in his damaged automobile early Friday when it crashed on the highway at nearby Port Credit, died later in hospital here. An inquest was ordered. Hren suffered head and internal injuries.

Robinson Flattens Beckett In Third

COLUMBUS, O., April 22 (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson, world's welterweight champion, lowered the boom on Cliff Beckett, of Sudbury, in 45 seconds of the third round of their scheduled 10-round fight in Columbus Memorial Hall before a crowd of 2,231 Friday night.

The knockout came in a flurry of lefts and a savage overhand right. Robinson weighed 155, Beckett 157½ for the non-title scrap.

Regina Pats Win Western Crown, Heading East

REGINA, April 22.—(CP).—Regina's amazing Pats Friday night won the western berth in the Canadian Memorial Cup hockey final.

The scrappy youngsters defeated Port Arthur Bruins 1-0 to take the best-of-seven series 4 to 1. Today they head east to take on the winners of the Guelph Biltmores-Montreal Canadiens eastern final.

Murray Armstrong's charges — seven still of juveinle age—dropped the first game 8-5 on Port Arthur ice and went on to take two convincing victories before moving to the home sheet. They tucked the first home game under their belts with a handy 4-1 win, and polished off the series by giving goalie Bob Tyler his second shut-out of the series.

Upset Wins

Paul Masnick, high-sroring pivot, goth the game's only goal, taking Jim McGowan's pass in the second period, he snapped a 12-foot screamer between Paul Morin's legs.

The triumph climaxed a series of upset wins since Pats finished the Western Canada Junior League season. Finishing third, they took Moose Jaw Canucks 3 to 1 in the league finals, then upset the league-leading Lethbridge Native Sons in the fifth game of the best-of-five final.

Prince Albert Mintos, winners of the Northern Saskatchewan Junior League, toppled four straight to advance Pats to the series with Bruins.

Tillsonburg Wins Ties Int. Series

TILLSONBURG, April 22 (CP) —Tillsonburg defeated Port Colborne 3-2 Friday night to even their best-of-seven intermediate OHA championship series one-all.

The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the first period. They battled on even terms through a scoreless second with Gee of Tillsonburg breaking the deadlock in the third when he took a pass from Cooper, rifled the shot past Gruhl who played a standout game in the Port Colborne net.

Gee lead the Tillsonburg attack, notching two goals and earning an assist. Hynds scored once. Cochrane scored both Port Colborne counters.

Port Colborne pulled out their goalie and iced six forwards in the dying minutes of the game in an effort to get the equalizer.

The third game will be played in Fort Erie Monday and the fourth game in Tillsonburg on Wednesday.

Lock Workers Gain Support

Production workers in Raybestos and Ontario Marble—who together with those in Peterborough Lock make up composite Local 527 UE—have given the lockworkers a promise of moral and financial support in their contract dispute with the company.

The lockworkers have turned down the recommendations of a Conciliation Board and have voted to take a strike vote Tuesday unless some agreement is reached with the company.

No substantial progress was reached at the meeting Thursday morning between company officials and the negotiating committee, but another one has been called for Monday afternoon.

If negotiations fail then, the strike vote will be taken among the 180 production workers in the plant.

The Conciliation Board recommended no wage increase and a boost in production if an actual slash in the wage schedule were not to take place.

About 130 workers are in the bargaining unit at Raybestos and another 30 at Ontario Marble.

Siamese Twins To Be Separated

TOFIELD, Ata., April 22 (CP) —Brenda and Beverley Townsend five-month-old Siamese twins, in two weeks may be separated by the first operation of its kind performed in Canada. Doctors are hopeful the operation will give the girls a chance for a normal childhood.

Born Nov. 17 in this village 35 miles southeast of Edmonton, the twins are joined together from the third upper rib down to the navel. They are held together face to face.

Although their blue eyes follow any activity in their tiny hospital nursery and they wriggle, gurgle and squall as would any five-month-old baby, medical men agree that if life is to hold any happiness for them the separation operation must be performed.

The youthful parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. (Bud) Townsend, want their first-born to have every chance. They want the babies parted.

So in the first week in May, Brenda and Beverley—their joined existence a rarity that occurs once in millions of births—will be moved to the Royal Alexander Hospital in Edmonton. A team of specialists will work with Dr. William Freebury, the young Tofield doctor who brought the girls into the world, on the delicate operation.

Mission Circle Hold Last Pot Luck Dinner

WARKWORTH, April 22 (ENS) —The Mission Circle of Cramahe Baptist Church held their last pot luck dinner of the season on Thursday at the home of Mr. Wallace Griffis.

The members quilted a quilt which was to be donated to the White Cross. It was decided to donate $5. to the mission over which Agness Lee presides.

Mrs. C. Rusk, Mrs. S. Peebles and Mrs. T. McKague read and Mrs. Donald Ducie gave the topic.

Toronto Writer Dies

TORONTO, April 22 — (CP) — Funeral service was held Friday for Mrs. Nixon T. Berry, former Toronto newspaper feature writer. Mrs. Berry, born at Dundas, was women's editor of the Varsity Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Toronto. She later wrote a daily feature "Mother of Four," for the Telegram and contributed to the Globe and Mail. During the second world war she did public relations work for the Women's Voluntary Services.

To Sign Contract But Most Lots Not Yet Secured

Peterborough is about to sign the contract with Eastwood Construction Co. for the building of the new city hall, but the council has not yet obtained title to the land it requires in the George, Murray, Water Streets block.

One of the tenants has a two-year lease that does not expire until August.

Mayor Swanston remarked this week that one lot that might possibly be held up for two months should not interfere with the first stage of the work.

City solicitor W. F. Huycke, K.C., sent notices this week to tenants and owners who have not yet sold or moved out. There has been no reference in council of late to progress of negotiations for the constituent properties of the site block.

From one source it has been learned that settlement has been arrived at only for about one-quarter of the properties in the block, not including the home of the late John J. Turner at the corner of Water and McDonnel Streets.

Evidently what Mr. Huycke did on Thursday was to mail notices of expropriation hearing, a legal procedure of securing possession which begins before Judge S. L. Smoke Wed., May 26.

Less Successful

In the reports from owners it transpires that the negotiations carried on by Mr. W. H. Bosley, Toronto realtor, have not been as successful as the council had hoped.

There are properties on Water, Murray and George Sts., the value of which for purchase by the city has not yet been settled.

Procedure of the council is to apply to Judge Smoke for an expropriation order, pay into court a sum sufficient to meet probable amount of the payments which may be ordered. Possession and right of entry on property is obtained in that way. With that order, tenants have to get out and owners give up, but the amount of the payments for the individual properties, to be determied by Judge Smoke, may not be settled for months.

GREENING GRASS.

Some city lawns and parks are turning green. St. John's Church south sward has definite new verdure today, one month and a day since spring officially arrived.

THE FIFTH GENERATION is the focal point of the above picture. Sandra Joyce, born three weeks ago to Mr. and Mrs. John Burley, 709 Lock St., represents the fifth generation of the family. Mrs. Elizabeth Wetterlind, INSET who is in Sweden, is the great, great grandmother, Mrs. T. B. Hawkins, great grandmother who came to Canada 49 years ago at the age of 15 is justly proud of the four generations in Peterborough. Only regret is that her mother, who has never left Sweden, cannot join the family circle. The picture shows LEFT to RIGHT: Mrs. J. Burley, mother of the new baby; Mrs. T. B. Hawkins, great grandmother, who has the baby in her arms and Mrs. C. Wilson, grandmother. Nurse Enid Apps of the V.O.N., is standing with her hand supporting the baby's head. Prospects Bright For Grants To Fair Projects

"Very cordially received," was the report today by G. A. Gillespie, secretary-manager of the Peterborough Exhibition, of his interview Thursday with Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture.

The Minister expressed willingness "to contribute dollar for dollar with the Dominion and the city of Peterborough" on certain improvements which are being considered by the Exhibition Board at Morrow Park.

The Dominion has already agreed to pay $3,000 a year for ten years. Payments have been made for two years, leaving eight years effective in that agreement.

One of the projects for the park is the erection of a building primarily for the use of the Exhibition, and also for city and country community purposes. It is still in the stage of consideration. If city council was agreeable to participate on even financial terms with the province and Dominion, it is apparent that a substantial sum could be made available for that proposed work.

Mr. Gillespie said he preferred to make his report to the directors of the Exhibition. Enlargement of the grandstand was also mentioned, and there was some reference to the laying of a paved roadway through the park as an extension of George St. This has been a city proposal at the request of a large number of the residents south of Lansdowne St.

Five Generations of Family Four Live In Peterborough

By HAZEL PAUL

When Sandra Joyce Burley was born three weeks ago to Mr. and Mrs. John Burley, 709 Lock St., she set what is probably unprecedented family record. Not only is she the fifth generation on her mother's side of the family, but the third member of that generation born in Peterborough within the past 15 months. A fourth was born four days after her.

Sandra has five grandmothers, the oldest, Mrs. Elizabeth Wetterlind, who lives in Sweden.

Mrs. Wetterlind has just had her 85th birthday. Her daughter, Mrs. T. B. Hawkins, who is great grandmother of the new baby, came to Canada in 1901 when she was 15, to take up house work in a Montreal home. There she met her first husband, but some time after his death, she married again.

Canada has been Mrs. Hawkins' home since she left her native land, returning only once, 20 years ago, for a holiday. Last year she proudly received her Canadian citizenship papers.

Her daughter, Mrs. C. Wilson, 210 King George St., is grandmother of the baby Sandra whose 21-year-old daughter is mother. The other two grandmothers are on Mr. Burley's side of the family.

The fifth generation was established on January 1 last year, when twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. H. Windsor, 338 Armstrong Dr., were the first New Year babies. Four days after Sandra's birth, another cousin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Grady, Montgomery St., was born.

Although Mrs. Hawkins has lived in Canada 49 years, and has now become a Canadian citzen, she has continued to observe some of the finer swedish customs which win the admiration of all who visit her home.

She lives on the first floor at 709 Lock St. and her daughter has a second floor apartment.

One of Mrs. Hawkins greatest enjoyments is her garden. In true Scandanavian style, she keeps a trim front garden with lawn and flowers beds and in the summer there is a profusion of flowers.

Perhaps her most treasured possession is a copper coffee service which was owned by her first husband's mother in Sweden and is more than 85 years old.

A Swedish cook bakes differently from the Canadian style and Mrs. Hawkins' baking is always in demand when St. George's church is holding a bazaar or tea.

No Lime Needed In Country Soil We're Alkaline

"Peterborough soil does not need lime," said Frank C. Paterson agricultural representative, in reference today to a Canadian Press report of an increase of 48% in the use of lime in some sections of the province as indicated by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Total tonnage of limestone for soil conditioning last year was 38,411 as compared with 25,875 in 1948.

Wentworth, Essex and Brant top the list of limers with 4,369, 3,209 and 3,146 tons respectively. County soils programs are largely responsible for this increase.

"Most of the soil south of the Precambrian shield and we are in that area, is high in lime, and is therefore alkaline," Mr. Paterson said. "Calcium content of our land in Peterborough is just a little higher than we would like to see, at least in some instances.

"In Welland, Haldimand, Wentworth, Brant Norfolk Simcoe, Essex and some other counties one of the first things farmers have to do in their soils program is to neutralize acidity by the application of lime. Our farmers know that legumes do not grow well in acid soil.

One Car to Kinmount

"Any way, liming of the land does not concern our farmers, at least not yet. Of course, there are always exceptions. In 1948 we distributed a car load of lime in the Kinmount area, and there are some spot in Belmont, where a little could be applied. But, most of our Peterborough land is amply supplied with calcium. We have large sections to the north of us where you can see the limestone rock. That means calcium.

"Some of our Peterborough city gardeners ask us how much lime they should use. I mean residents growing flowers and vegetables, not our commercial gardeners. When we tell them they don't need any lime, some of them have been inclined to doubt our advice, but that is the fact."

TRIP TO DES JOACHIMS

About 74 members of the CGE Foremen's Association plan to visit the Des Joachism hydro electric power development site on Ottawa River on May 13. There will be two buses making the trip leaving here on Saturday morning and returning Sunday night.

City Barbers Draw No Color Line

Peterborough barbers canvassed today said they had no objection to cutting a negro's hair but insisted they had a perfect right to say "no" to any customer. When it came to the last word they were the boss.

"The problem has never arisen here," said one thoughtfully. "There's no negro problem in this city; there are some in Toronto. Just the same I don't belive in discrimination."

The query arose because a couple of days ago a 7-year-old Toronto negro boy reported to his parents that the neighborhood barber had refused to serve him. The barber told the Toronto press he had turned the boy down because of his color and added that it was an unwritten law in the trade that a white man did not cut a negro's hair.

A hot controversy followed, including some threats to cancel that barber's licence.

Asked if he would turn down a negro, Mercer V. Cooper of Monaghan Rd. replied: "Of course not. I can see no objection to it at all. And I've never heard or seen any cases of it in Peterborough."

Unaware of Unwritten Law

He said he was unaware of any unwritten law on the subject and added that he had seen a good many "blacks" come into his shop. They were not negros but members of the "great unwashed."

Sedgwick's Barber Shop, Hunter St: "No, we've never heard of any such a law, but we do think we have the right to turn away a customer who is unclean We're against discrimination here."

"Are you sure the barber gave his reason for refusing"? the Examiner was asked in turn.

Depends on Customer

"It all depends on the customers: that's what it boils down to," said Stan Davis of Simcoe St.

"I've cut negroes' hair in this shop. Mostly they were chauffeurs over here during the summer season, and they were all fine fellows."

Mr. Davis stated he was unaware of this so-called unwritten law against negroes in Canada but said it was certainly a fact in the United States. In Detroit where he worked for some time the whites went to their own shops and the negroes to theirs.

"There was never any trouble," he said. "The situation never arose."

As long as customers were clean and had the price to pay he didn't give a rap for their politics, religion, color or social standing.

Similar sentiments were heard at the Smith and Freeman Barber ship, Simcoe St.

"But," said Jack Smith, jabbing with a pair of scissors for emphasis: "If they're dirty—out. The same goes for anybody."

One humorous twist that came out of the survey was that while none of the barbers would discriminate against a negro several of them weren't sure if they could cope with their dark kinky locks.

In Toronto negroes are welcomed at "barber college" because it gives the rookie tonsorial artists a chance to try their skill with this type of hair.

Spring's Sprung

A city watering truck was prowling drippingly along the streets Friday afternoon. Youngsters are banging around with pop guns. Penny firecrackers are popping from the hands of young fry, so spring has sprung.

County Roads Now Passable

Motor traffic on county roads if finding the going "heavy" in spots but "passable."

That is the verdict of J. D. Kean, county engineer and road superintendent, just returned from a survey of driving conditions on county roads.

Recent rains have helped speed the frost from the ground and township roads, in particular, have suffered. Some residents say this is the worst spring they can remember as far as driving conditions are concerned.

The four county graders are all at work, and Mr. Kean feels that considering the unfavorable weather, they have done a remarkably good job in keeping the roads in shape.

The second half of the Warsaw road—from the end of the mulch surface into the village—is quite soft, but motorists can get through all right.

Though closed to traffic earlier this month the Buckhorn road is now open and has been for about a week. The "spongy" sector where it joined with Highway 28 is now fairly well dried out, though a few soft spots remain.

Ennismore, Douro, Dummer, and some parts of Otonabee are having trouble with their township roads. Heavy trucks on the road to sewage disposal plant in Otonabee have been a source of worry to that municipal council.

Wallis Heights Old Home Of Captain James Wallis Subdivided Into 180 Lots

By HARRY THEOBALD

The residential development of Peterborough to the west is plainly moving up the long, easy slope of "Merino", once the fine estate of Captain James Wallis, on the city's rim.

One of the home sites on that rural plateau along the North Monaghan-Smith boundary has been purchased by Dr. C. B. Waite. Windows looking off toward the sunrise from the house which, it is understood he intends to build on that 'coign of vantage', will apparently be on a level with the roof of the new Civic Hospital. Miles beyond are the hill of Northumberland, south of Rice Lake, and in the foreground is the bowl of Peterborough, and its valley of the Otonabee River. At night the lights of the city seem like an illusion of some fairyland.

Mr. George Roper has retained the name of the sea captain who retired to Peterborough many years ago, and chose for his estate that elevation with its gradual stages of approach from the centre of the city.

30 Lots Already Sold

Wallis Heights has been subdivided into 180 lots. Thirty of them have already sold. Some others are on option. Five houses have been built, and new interest in that area will be stimulated by the purchase this week of thirteen lots by Ald. T. D. Miller along the northern reach of Wallis Drive, extending from the vicinity of the lawn of "Merino" to Park Hill Road.

Wallis Drive has been opened southerly to Sherbrooke St., and lies west of the new houses of Haig H. Kelly, James F. Dunn and Harold S. Matthews, south of Wallis Heights.

The subdivision was laid out according to a master plan which has been approved by the Ontario Department of Planning and Development. The farm was bought three years ago by Mr. Roper. Its lots have been laid out with 100 foot frontage and depths of 150 to 190 feet. Three bungalows are nearing completion on Cedar View Drive, a street that is being opened in the southeast section of the subdivision. They have been built for Eldon Paquette, George Gosselin and Phillip Rochetta.

Two new houses are on Maple Crescent, immediately east of the Wallis residence. They are owned by Clayton Krug and H. M. Pitts. Nearer that central block, Walter Howell has bought a lot, and others nearby have been taken by Robert R. Asselstine, mechanical engineer at the De Laval Company; B. K. Scarlett, electrical engineer with C. G. E. Company; Rodney Blackwell of Peterborough Co-Operative Services.

James S. Craig, architect, is planning his home immediately south of "Merino," and to the west of it is the lot bought by Dr. C. B. Waite.

Ranch Type of House

It is understood that Ald. Doug Miller intends to construct ranch type houses along Wallis Drive, similar to those he has built on Hillcrest Ave. south from Weller St., one of which is his own home.

Mr. Roper told the Examiner today that the number of enquiries in recent weeks indicates that the interest of prospective home builders on that fringe of the city is being actively sustained.

The draft of the subdivision features Wallis Drive, running north and south through the property. Extending easterly from it to the boundary of the subdivision in that direction are Cedar View Drive, Melville Road, Briar Hill Road and Maple Crescent.

Roper Road circles the house in a wide arc to the west, with a southerly entrance off Wallis Drive. Other roads to be opened in that section of the subdivision are: Merino Road, connecting Wallis Drive and Roper Road adjacent to the Roper residence and its four apartments; Edgewood, Moorecraig and Kingwood Roads.

The subdivision was designed by J. S. Craig for Mr. Roper, and was surveyed by John G. Pierce.

Shoppinf Centre

Four lots on Park Hill Road, east of Wallis Drive have been ambitiously designated for shopping purposes. The future of the subdivision should keep pace with the growth of Weller St., and eventually it may all be incorporated in the city, although for the present there is no desire or intention of that inclusion and urban attachment. The soil is a sandy loam.

Traffic approaches are by way of Sherbrooke St. and Park Hill Road to Wallis Drive, and from the trend of building in that direction it is likely that Weller St. north of Civic Hospital will be projected through the Wallis Drive.

The far view in a wide sweep of the city and townships to the south and east is a highly attractive asset of those 100 acres which Captain Wallis chose for himself as a farmer when his seafaring was ended.

Someday, it is readily imaginable, that the whole 180 building lots will be occupied.

Examiner Girl Pays Homage To Peterborough's Fallen

By JEAN E. STENTON.

BENY - SUR - MER, April— When the military cemetery at Beny-sur-Mer is completed, members of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders who are buried there will be in one of the loveliest spots in Normandy.

The neat white gravestones stand in pleasant contrast to the brilliant green lawns which surround them. The 600 Canadian graves there have all been adopted by French people in the area and lovely plants and flowers adorn each tomb. On special anniversaries, the people bring bouquets of flowers. Now that spring is here daffodils form a splash of color in every direction.

Jean Stenton

"Canadians are not on foreign soil here, we are brothers," Madame Duquesnel of Beny-sur-Mer told me. "They were the first to come in the liberation and they were one with us."

"An English-Canadian mother whose son lies here came to visit the cemetery. She was anxious before her arrival because his grave was in a strange land. But she went away happy because she realized he is not in a foreign country. We people here want to and will do everything in our power to preserve the memory of these men. They are like our own sons."

Not Alone

I think that the Canadians buried at Beny are fortunate in their friends. Many of them were first buried in a meadow on Mme Duquenel's farm, with white crosses marking each grave. Later they were transferred to the official cemetery. It is Madame's ambition to have a cross erected on that spot. She says that Canadian blood was left there, making it one with French soil and she would like to see a small memorial marking the place. She feels it is a pity that they have been moved, because visits to the graves cannot be quite as frequent. She is quietly campaigning among the villagers for funds and hopes before too long to see her dream come true.

It was at lunch, overlooking her stonewalled courtyard, that Mme. Duquesnel told me of the devotion of the people of Beny to our dead While the men were buried in her meadow, all the people of the village, even the old ones, made a pilgrimage to these graves and brought flowers. This was continued not for a month or two but a very long time.

Visit Graves

Now that they have adopted the graves, the inhabitants of Beny-sur-Mer pay at least six official visits in the year with flowers, and many of them oftener. Flowers are placed on the tomb on the anniversary of the soldier's death, his birthday, June 6 (invasion day) May 8 (Armistice) November 1 (All Saints Day) and November 11. It was my privilege, accompanied by two French people, to pay my respects to these Peterborough boys visiting each of the following graves:

L-Cpl. Ernest A. G. Bell, son of Mrs. E. Bell, Otonabee, killed in the attack on Caen;

CSM George M. Dickson, Peterborough and Lindsay, killed in the battle for Caen;

L-Cpl. John Ernest Lewington, whose parents live on Auburn St., killed in attack on Caen;

Pte. Frederick R. Drummond, brother of Mrs. G. D. Haig, Smith Twp., killed on move up to Les Buissons;

Sgt. Charles Chunn, who boarded with Mrs. E. P. Sheehan and was employed at the Bonnerworth, killed in the fighting around Les Buissons;

Cpl. Gordon Richard Heath, Peterborough, killed in fighting around Hell's Corners (Les Buissons);

Pte. John Patrick Hobbins and Pte. Michael Hobbins, killed within an hour of each other around Les Buissons, sons of Mrs. Mary Hobbins, 200 Lake St.

Pte. Gerald Dedeck, Haliburton;

Sgt. Walter Metherell, original member of the Bren Gun carrier section of the SD and GH who came from Nova Scotia the year before he enlisted.

Lt. John Stanley Couper, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Couper. Cameron Highlanders;

Pte. Sidney Howard Youngs, related to Mrs. J. Schweier, 516 Wolfe Street and in Peterborough till his enlistment;

Rfm. Michael G. McLaren, Regina Rifle Regiment;

CSM Frederick J. Linsey, son of Mrs. J. Hierons and brother of Mrs. J. V. LeTourneau, Mrs. T. Parkes and Richard, Peterborough, killed at the crossing of the Orne River.

To those parents who have boys buried here, I would stress again how well the graves are looked after and what thought and care are lavished on them by their Norman friends.

Cadet Training Starts Monday

PCVS boys will commence cadet training Monday afternoon in preparation for the annual inspecion which will take place May 18. Cadet sessions will be held from 3:30 until 4 p.m. each school day until May 5. During the week before the inspection the cadet school period will be 1 hour in length. Several morning periods lasting for a half hour will replace the afternoon periods.

Students in Grade XIII are exempt from cadet training. During the cadet periods the fifth formers will have their regular classes while the girls in the other grades will have study periods.

Cadet Lt.-Col. Al Northcott is the officer commanding the 500 cadets. The boys will receive their instructions from the cadet officers who will be assisted by the 12 teacher-instructors headed by Chief Instructor Lt. Col.-H. A. Craig.

The instruction will consist of: ceremonial drill, inspection drill, battery and troop drill, first aid, map reading and field craft. A special class will give a performance of ack ack gunnery, radar and predictor.

The inspecting officer is expected to be Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, C.B.E., D.S.O., area commander of Eastern Ontario.

Norwood Church Full For Kempt Funeral

NORWOOD, April 22—During the funeral of Alexander Kempt, which took place Thursday in Norwood Baptist Church, all places of business in the village were closed. The church was filled to capacity for the service, conducted by the Rev. A. E. Homer, formerly of Norwood and now of Perth, who was assisted by the present pastor, the Rev. E. E. Pugsley.

Pallbears were employees of the Post Office and Rural Mail Couriers and the flower bearers were business associates.

WIND WHISTLES IN WHISTLE—Twin tornadoes zipped through Whistle, Ala., and four other communities in the Mobile Bay area, causing scenes like this. Although there were no injuries at this spot — where this woodworking factory was levelled—14 persons were injured at other places.

Gals On The Go: Boys Loll It's Twirp Week At PCVS

The age of chivalry was revived topsy-turvy at PCVS this week not by the boys but by the girls. It was Twirp Week, sponsored by the Students' Council and suffered by the girls while the boys live in comfort.

Everything the boys are supposed to do for the girls under normal circumstances, the girls did this week. The weaker sex have been serving their strong mates by carrying their books to school, helping them off with their coats, helping them off buses and opening doors.

Even the regular school system has been affected by Twirp Week. Upon entering and leaving the classrooms the boys lead the way for the girls. Usually the girls leave first but this was Twirp Week.

Another regulation the girls had to follow really met the acid test lastnight dates. The girls had to call for the boys as well as give them the bid out. They had to pay the way of the boy to the show or dance and had to lead the boy, if she could while dancing. The boys had consented to take the girls home.

Affected Dress

Even the school dress of some of the students was changed by Twirp Week. Some of the senior boy students displayed earrings and kerchiefs while some of the girls wore ties or bow ties.

A rumor slipped through the school Friday that some of the more popular boys in the school were having switchboards to handle the large number of calls expected last evening. Most of the boys wanted Twirp Week extended to include Saturday but the suggestion met with the disapproval of the girls.

Twirp Week ended last night at the collegiate gym where the students held a Hard Time dance. The students went through the square dances with different colored socks, jeans and old clothes for only 25 cents a person or 25 cents a couple.

Twirp Week was planned by the Students' Council as part of its program to promote a friendly atmosphere throughout the school. Sam Murphy, president of the council, said that everyone was able to take part in this event, unlike the school sports where only a few are able to participate.

The red-headed Irishman added that the girls can hardly wait until next week to see the impression they have made on the boys.

Jumped Into Bay To Elude Police

HAMILTON, April 22 (CP).—Two alleged burglars leaped into Hamilton Bay early Friday to escape a cordon of police who had surrounded the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club. The pair returned voluntarily from the water and submitted to capture after they found the water too chilly.

The early-morning swimmers and three others, who police claim were trying to break into the club, were charged with attempted shopbreaking while armed. They later appeared in court and were remanded eight days.

In the round-up, police seized a stocking mask, rubber gloves, two loaded revolvers, a jimmy bar, a stolen car, and a pair of stolen licence plates.

The night watchman at the club saw five men heading towards the club quarters and called police.

The arrested men are Robert Ardell, Rodney McKenzie, Gerald F. Gill, Joseph Rudyk, and Kenneth Gordon.

Police said that Gill and Rudyk were the two men who jumped into the bay in an effort to avoid capture.

They also announced that Gordon alias Rawn was wanted by Provincial Police in Stayner on charges of attempted shopbreaking and escaping bail.

Bars Removed

COBOURG, April 22 (ENS)—The bars were removed today The bars were removed Friday from the Ontario Training School for Girls. Actually the bars are heavy screens. The superintendent, Miss Isobel MacNeill, has always held the opinion that the barred windows serve no useful purpose.

Miss MacNeill said that removal of the screens was not for the purpose of observing the effect on the girls but simply because she had never approved of the barred windows.

Woman Trapped In Mud

DUNBARTON, Ont., April 22—(CP)—Mrs. William Sawden said she was trapped in mud over her knees Thursday night and screamed for almost half an hour before neighbors came to her rescue. Neighbors said they dug for more than an hour before she was released. Mrs. Sawden said she fell into a hole in the road while returning from a party near this village, 20 miles east of Toronto.

WMS Hear Missionary Tell About Rhodesia

MARMORA April 22 (ENS)—St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society held the April meeting at the home of Mrs. John W. Richardson on Tuesday. Owing to the funeral of Miss Aunger, a number of members were absent, and sympathy was expressed for the bereaved relatives and friends.

The president, Mrs. Barlow, welcomed the visitors from Stirling and Mrs. Prentice conducted the Easter worship service, with Mrs. Young and Miss Brown taking the readings. A short business period was conducted by the president and Mrs. Sweet gave a brief report of the Presbyterial held in Napanee two weeks ago.

The highlight of the afternoon was an address by Mrs. Butcher, of Stirling, a retired missionary from Rhodesia, Africa. Introduced by Mrs. Sabine, she spoke for nearly an hour on the climate, living conditions and people in that part of Africa. She had a number of articles, water jug, sleeping mat, red cloth for a skirt, etc. Mrs. Barton thanked the speaker.

Mrs. Prentice sang a solo. Mrs. Young pronounced the Benediction. Refreshments were served.

Mesdames Eggleton, Sutherland and Jones accompanied Mrs. Butcher and were welcome guests at the meeting.

Church Official Board Chooses 2 Delegates

HAVELOCK, April 22 (ENS)—Charles Roberts and J. Brown were appointed to represent the Havelock-Trent River charge of the United Church to the Bay of Quinte Conference and Peterborough Presbytery respectively, at an official board meeting at the parsonage on Thursday.

The minister, the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh, was asked to obtain a guest speaker for the 25th anniversary services.

It was decided to order 150 copies of the May issue of the United Church Observer.

Services in the Belmont Lakes area mission will commence on May 14 with Morley F. Hodder of Montreal, student minister, in charge.

WI Re-elects Mrs. Wm. Post

WESTWOOD, April 22 (ENS)—The 17th annual meeting of Westwood Women's Institute was held on Tuesday in the Town Hall, with the president, Mrs. William Post, presiding.

Mrs. F. E. Birdsall took the chair for election of officers, which resulted as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. A. Wood; president, Mrs. W. Post; first vice-president, Mrs. T. Cardwell; second vice-president, Mrs. E. W. Sargent; sec.-treas., Mrs S. Graham; corres. sec., Mrs. W. Morris; auditors, Mrs. Hutchinson and Mrs. Wood; district director, Mrs. W. Renwick; pianist, Mrs. E. Birdsall; press sec., Mrs. E. Sargent; directors on board, Mrs. J. Thompson and Miss J. Davidson; director on executive, Mrs. E. Birdsall, Mrs. E. Sargent.

Wilson; Home Economics and Health, Mrs. A. Wood; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. H. Neilson; Community Activities and Public Relations, Mrs. F. Neilson; Historical Research and Current Events, Mrs. J. Thompson; Resolution, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of life membership certificates and pins to two of the oldest charter members, Mrs. Jane Thompson and Mrs. Robert Wilson.

All reports showed a year of progress. The treasurer, Mrs. Stuart Graham, reported total receipts were $516.67, with a balance of $225.25 on hand. There were 25 members in 1949 and at 12 meetings during the year there was an average attendance of 14.

Donations had been made to the Sick Children's Hospital, the Canadian March of Dimes, Norwood Fair Board and to the Community Park. Fruit and flowers had been sent to the sick and shut-ins and a large bundle of white goods sent to the Cancer Relief Fund.

Buy For Town Hall

A large Union Jack was purchased and placed in the Town Hall, also a bingo set. A short course on oven meals was held and was well attended.

The Institute catered at the farm auction sale of Harry Carter by serving sandwiches, pie and coffee. A sumptuous dinner was provided for members of the Hastings Masonic Lodge and their ladies, in Wesley Hall.

The semi-annual fees for the Blue Cross hospitalization amounted to $217.20. The oratorical contest for Westwood and district was sponsored by the Institute and two brides were honored during the year.

Mrs. R. J. Douglas was winner of the penny collection draw for a Kenwood blanket.

Reports of standing committees were given: Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. F. Neilson; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. H. Neilson; Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. R. Wilson; Historical Research, Mrs. J. Thompson; Publicity, Mrs. L. Hutchinson; Home Economics, Mrs. E. Sargent.

FUNNY BUSINESS —By Hershberger

"Pete's found a way to compete with taxis on rainy days!"

One day — each week,

The Boy who delivers your Examiner
calls to collect

He has so many customers he can't afford to give credit for he must pay for his papers on fixed dates and counts on his collections to make his payments. Your courteous carrier boy assumes a financial burden he cannot afford to carry when you ask him to wait for his money. He collects on the same day each week — you know which day — and when he has to "call again" to collect from you, delivery of his whole route is delayed on several days. Have the money ready for the boy the day he collects—the correct change, if convenient. Help him to meet his financial obligations promptly, and to make delivery on time every day.

DADDY'S IN DEBTOR'S PRISON — In Haddam, Conn., Mrs. Earl J. Goodrich and her nine children wait word of their 41-year-old husband and father, jailed under Vermont's "poor debtor's law." Gooodrich was imprisoned after he failed to keep up $50-a-month payments in an $800 settlement for reckless driving. The children range in age from 2 months to 14 years.

Forty Children Attend Board Meeting

MILLBROOK, April 22 (ENS) —Janet, Judy and Patsy Hobbs entertained St. Andrew's Mission Band in their home on Thursday afternoon. There were 40 children present. Alice Hawkins, president, was in the chair for the business period when reports were given by Dorothy Ball, secretary, and Janet Hoggs, treasurer Mrs. Arnold Fallis discussed the worship service which the Millbrook group is to conduct at the Mission Band rally in St. James' Church, Peterborough, on May 6, and assigned parts to the children.

The story of "A Flying Trip to Korea" was told by Hrs. Homer Ouellette. Bernard Ingham lighted the candles on the worship centre. After the children repeated the call to worship in unison, and sang a hymn, the Scripture lesson was read by Alice Hawkins. Janet Hobbs took up the collection and held it at the front while the children gave the verse of dedication. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Janet, Judy and Patsy.

Taking a Glance Back At Doings In Year 1880

When a charter was secured for the incorporation of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada on April 29, 1880, no lady went out without a corset; no gentleman wore a soft collar; home was incomplete without a "whatnot" in the corner containing French snuff boxes, dried sea horses and coral; and it was an exceptional office that had a typwriter—or a blonde stenographer—to say nothing of a telephone, relates the telephone company's publication, "Blue Bell."

Birdie Hats

During this decades ladies wore such items as birdie hats and bustles, "plush drawers, quite tight with a deep frill of lace at the knee" and red silk stockings covered with gold swallows.

Under the oil lamps people were reading such best sellers as "Ben Hur" and "Little Lord Fauntleroy," looking at the stereoscope or the family album, listening to daughter recite, "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight," or gathering around the golden-oak organ to sing, "Bringing Pretty Blossoms to Strew on Mother's Grave."

Life moved in a leisurely manner. Adventurous young men tore around on high-wheeled bicycles and took their sweethearts for a drive in a rented buggy or a surrey with a fringe on top. People traveled to work or took outings in horse cars—or, in some cities, cable cars or steam elevated railway trains. It took a crack liner at least seven days to cross the Atlantic and air transport meant an ascent in a balloon at the county fair.

Action In News

In their newspapers, people read of such events as the assassinations of Czar Alexander and President Garfield; of the death of Billy the Kid, reputed to have killed a man for every one of his 21 years; of John L. Sullivan becoming heavyweight boxing champion (bare kunckles) of the world; of the opening of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show; of the Northwest Rebellion and the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway; of the publication of the Revised Version of the Bible; of Mr. Gladstone replying to a petition on Home Rule for Ireland "in a neat little speech that lasted an hour and a quarter"; of Steve Brodie jumping off Brooklyn Bridge; of Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee and the coronation of Kaiser Wilhelm II; of how Jack the Ripper was terrifying London; and of the erection of the Eiffel Tower for the World's Fair at Paris in 1889.

Phone of Period

The telephone in the '80's consisted of three boxes mounted one above the other on a board attached to the wall. The uppermost box contained the magneto generator which the caller cranked to ring "central" or another party on the same line. The receiver, shaped like the receiver of a desk-stand telephone, had two red bands painted around the handle. The middle box had a hole in it for the mouthpiece of the Blake transmitter. The lowest box contained the battery which supplied the talking current.

When a subscriber rang the central office by cranking the handle of his ringing generator, the annunciator drop associated with his line on the switchboard came down with a noise like a chunk of lead falling on the floor, rousing even the drowsiest night operator. Operators were frequently boys or men, which was a good thing, considering that the operator's set weighted about six pounds.

"Well?"

Instead of "Number please?" they answered "Well?" with a rising inflection of the voice. Calling by numbers was not introduced until 1884 and then only in large cities, so that operators had to memorize the names, addresses and telephone numbers of all persons in the exchange area.

Wires were usually carried on fixtures mounted on the roofs of buildings rather than on poles, and in the downtown areas of large cities, the view of the sky was almost obscured by the maze of wires.

By the end of the decade it was possible to call places as far as 200 miles away if "atmospheric conditions" were favorable.

Mystery Explosions

DAYTON, O., April 22 (AP) — Three more mysterious explosions rocked sections near Dayton Friday, about 24 hours after the first burst caused a flood of rumors and telephone calls. Reports of two late-afternoon blasts indicated they were heard in an area about 10 miles long and two miles wide north of Dayton.

FOOTBALL COMMISSIONER?—Joseph (Joe) Breen, former backfield star with Toronto Argos, is expected to be named first commissioner of the Canadian Intercollegiate Football Union. Breen, shown in this recent photo by Rice Studios, also starred with Toronto's Varsity Blues and later coached Queen's University. He is president of Canada Cement.

LEADING VIOLINIST, Betty Hagen of Edmonton, daughter of a Norwegian-born locomotive engineer, is an artist on the violin. Jacques Singer, conductor of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra, said that "some day she'll be Canada's finest violinist." She started taking lessons when four years old and now—at 19— is achieving international recognition.

CGIT Doings

GEORGE STREET

The worship service this week was taken by Joan Tremaine, Victoria McKim, Shirley Head and Carol McKenzie, who took as their theme, "God Made All Things". Joan Tremaine, president of the senior group, was in the chair for the business when it was decided to go bowling instead of holding the regular meeting. After settling on the date of May 6 for a rummage sale, the rest of the evening was spent in playing games and having a sing-song.

KNOX

The meeting opened with a short devotional period conducted by the president, June Drummond, which was followed by the discussion of plans for the annual mother and daughter banquet. The reaffiliation service with the WMS was then held. The president opened this service and the responses were made by Mrs. H. Clegg, representing the WMS. Candles representing health, education, opportunity and home were lit by Alice Frey, Ann Menzies, Daisy Panter and Esther Brown. Beverly McDougall then gave Mrs. Clegg a donation for the work of the WMS. On behalf of the WMS, Mrs. Clegg presented the World Friendship insignia to Arlene Williams. Margaret Johnston closed this service with the benediction.

Graduation from the Explorer group to the CGIT was held, Frances Clarke, Lois Williams, Marjorie Drummond, Grace Sargeson and Donna McDougall had their red Explorer ties replaced by the black CGIT ties by the Explorer leaders, June Drummond and Alice Frey, who also gave them their CGIT crests. Mrs. E. McIraith and Miss Inez Barrer welcomed the girls into the CGIT. The girls of the group then presented June Drummond with her CGIT pin for her work during the year. Arlene Williams, Marjorie Drummond, Lois Williams, Betty Reville, Daisy Panter, Beverly McDougall and Alice Frey were then initiated into CGIT and the meeting closed with taps.

MARK STREET

Ruth Hendren reported that the group were much interested when the film strips, "Boy Meets Girl", "Boy Dates Girl" and "Boy Marries Girl" were shown. Considerable discussion followed, which was led by Mrs. B. Morewood.

ST. JAMES

Carol Dorrington led in the devotinal period and was assisted by Donna Moffat, Joan Cunningham and Marlene Anderson. The girls enjoyed a duet by Lorene Keating and Hazel McLaren. The girls' work board tea was announced and Ardythe Halcrow, Dorene Hutchinson, Lorene Keating and Anne Gibson were chosen to serve at this tea. It was moved by Carol Dorrington and seconded by Anne Gibson that members from the CGIT groups at St. Paul's and George St. be invited to a party which will be held in the near future.

ST. PAUL'S

Mary Irwin reported that Irene Kelly opened the meeting with the reading of the scripture and prayer. Plans were made for the mother and daughter banquet which will be held May 8 when Mrs. D. Bruce Gordon will be the guest speaker. It was moved by Christine Monk and seconded by Norma Ball that the president of the junior group reply to the toast. There was further discussion about the dance to be held on May 26, it was announced that Mrs. Hustwitt will instruct the girls in dancing. It was decided to write letters of appreciation to Miss Betty Brown, Mrs. A. Spencely, Mrs. C. G. Boyd and Mr. C. Gledhill for their assistance at the Easter vesper service. Ruth Curtis then inroduced Mrs. M. Moore who spoke to the group on the care of the hair. Normal Ball thanked Mrs. Moore before the meeting closed with taps.

TRINITY

The girls of Trinity CGIT were entertained thsi week by the Living Link Mission Circle. The workshop took the form of a short play, "The King of the Jews," enacted by Mrs. A. Legon and Mrs. H. T. Rehill. The CGIT had a short business session when it was decided that each girl would make a donation of candy for the grils' work board tea. Carol Hughson, Edythe Nichols and Anne Grant were delegated to take the candy to George St. Church on Thursday afternon. Member of the Circle served orangeade and cookies after which Joan White expressed the thanks of the CGIT to the members of the Circle.

Old Picture Collection Thrills St. John's Guests

Oldsters who missed the afternoon tea at St. John's parish hall Friday afternoon missed a great opportunity for reminiscing. Attracting the attention of all ages was a collection of old pictures of Peterborough people and places dating back as far as 1828 when a few log huts and a rail fence marked the site of this thriving city.

There was a picture of the first street car, a small rickety looking affair which carried a streamer to advertise the ball game. The steamer "City of Peterborough" was shown going through the narrows where the lock bridge has been erected and two scenes were taken at the opening of the Lift Lock on July 4, 1904. A picture of "Inglewood", former residence of Mr. W. E. Sherwood was easily recognizable to newcomers in the city as Mount St. Joseph. Another was of the Erskine home on Armour Rd. which has changed only through age and there was one of the first brick houses in the city, built in 1848 by Sheriff James Hall. R. B. Rogers houseboat was another reminder of by-gone days.

Of greatest interest, however, were the pictures of various groups who took part in activities which form the history of local culture. There was the White Cap Sisters, the opera house performance of Geisha and one picture showing clearly all those in attendance at an opera house performance, the Broom Drill, the Bal Poudre, the Community Festival of 1924, the first Historical Society formed by Henry Rogers. Other pictures were of well remembered people. An oil painting of Dr. and Mrs. Geo. Burnham and friends at a picnic showed the ladies in fussy gowns, tightly laced at the waist, and wearing equally fancy hats, elbow length gloves and high heeled boots.

Miss Ruby Quartermaine and Miss Florrie Burnham selected the pictures from their own collections and borrowed from Miss D. Wood, Mrs. A. B. Lambe, Mrs. L. Geale, Mrs. Hazel Dean, Anderson, Miss Denne, Mrs. Austin Miss M. Collins ,and Mrs. Mark Burnham.

Miss Margaret English brought her stereoscope and scenes of Peterborough about 40 years ago and these delighted no end. She also had a picture of the first kindergarten class at Central school.

Guests were received during the afternoon by president of the Afternoon Branch WA, Mrs. G. H. Moore, assisted by past president Mrs. H. C. Sootheran.

The tea table was lovely with a bouquet of tulips, daffodils, and narcissus, and lighted candles. Mrs. C. W. Balfour, Mrs. F. M. DelaFosse, Mrs. G. S. Cameron and Mrs. A. Brown filled the tea cups and they were served by Mrs. G. Groombridge, Miss R. Quartermaine, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. W. Flowers, Mrs. P. Martyn, Mrs. H. Lemmings, Mrs. R. Ford, Mrs. J. Cochrane, and Mrs. C. Barton.

Mrs. D. J. Eldred convened the tea room and has as hostesses Mrs. J. W. Mills, Mrs. W. M. Cruthers and Miss F. Gladman.

The sale of home cooking was in charge of Mrs. F. Lawless and Mrs. W. T. Dyer.

Good weather favored the Branch and their tea was more successful financially than last year. Proceeds will be used for church work.

Bowling League Present Prizes

George St. United Church Bowling League elected officers for the season 1950-51 at a meeting this week. The slate is:

Honorary president, Mr. Alex Northey; president, Mr . Chas. Stenton; vice-president, Mr. Roy Lawrence; secretary treasurer, Miss L. Knapp; games committee, Messrs. Roy Lawrence, Cliff Hurle, Don Darling, Gordon Brown; mat committee, Messrs. Norman Tutt, E. Ingall, Grant Clarke, A. W. Lean; referee, Mr. Gordon Brown; reception committee, Mr. Chas. Stenton, Mesdames Gordon Brown, A. W. Lean, S. Sluggett, E Hales; social committee Mrs. H. Bateson, Miss E. Taylor, Mrs. Don Darling, Miss Helen Hopkins.

Prizes for the winter schedule were presented as follows:

First, Mr. A. W. Lean's team; Second, Mrs. E. Hale's team; Third, Mr. H. Deyell's team; Consolation, Mr. N. Tutt's team.

Winners for the evening's games were Mr. R. McKee and Mr. Grant Clarke tied, Mr. McKee drawing the first prize and Mr. Clarke receiving second.

A special prize went to Mr. Alex Northey as the oldest member and one of the most regular attendants. There being only three members on the team winning highest number of points, a prize was left over. This went by popular consent to Mrs. J. M. Tanning as the eldest lady bowler.

Members of the team receiving consolation prize were called to the platform to play a selection on the musical (?) instruments they received.

Refreshments and a social time followed evening's games before business meeting which was presided over by Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple.

B.G. Golfers Elect Miss Lois Enborg

Business Girls of the Peterborough Golf Club held their first meeting of the season Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. S. J. Williamson, Aylmer St. The executive elected for 1950 is as follows:

Captain, Lois Enborg; Vice-Captain, Loretto Sullivan; social convener, Dorothy Lane, assisted by Virginia Smith; sports and trophies convener, Mary Sullivan assisted by Barbara Williamson; ringer scores, Gladys Mortimer assisted by Betty Meagher; secretreasurer, Myrtle Hunt assistant secretary treasurer, Marjorie Bonter.

At close of the business discussion a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Williamson.

426 Attend Zone Rally Legion Ladies' Auxiliary

When one attends a meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion they are among women who, in most cases, have given much for humanity's sake in the life of a husband or son. Yet one finds they are continually working for and benefiting those whose fortunes may be low, and are extremely willing to give good sized donations from their own small substance.

Four hundred and twenty six such women were in Peterborough Friday evening for the annual zone rally, held here for the first time. They honored this city with representatives from each of the 18 auxiliaries in the following proportion: Apsley, 8; Ajax, 27; Brighton, 12; Frankford, 23; Lindsay, 54; Sunderland, 3; Claremont, 12; Colborne, 11; Cobourg, 35; Fenelon Falls, 12; Uxbridge, 14; Whitby, 31; Millbrook, 23; Lakefield, 17; Haliburton, 2; Bowmanville, 25; Oshawa, 21, and Peterborough members made up the balance.

Special guests for the occasion were Mrs. C. McGill, of Meritton, second vice-president of the Provincial Command, Mrs. M. Richardson, of Toronto, Provincial treasurer, and Mrs. E. Evans, of Oshawa, zone representative, who conducted the meeting.

Dinner guests were Magor M. J. Swanston, the padre, Rev. W. J. Gilling, president of the men's branch No. 52, Mr. P. J. Burke, zone commander, Mr. Cy Hopkins, of Lakefield, and member of the ex-service women's branch 452, Mrs. Grace Morewood.

Past president Mrs. A. Parrington proposed the toast to the King, and a toast to Branch 52 was given by Mrs. G. Stevens and replied to by Mr. Burke. Mrs. R. Ritchie gave a toast to the Provincial command to which Mrs Richardson responded. She said 1,100 members in this zone represented nearly 11 per cent of the total membership in 23 zones of Ontario.

The Mayor extended greetings from the Council and invited outsiders to visit Peterborough for some of the centennial functions. Mr. Gilling said grace and also spoke to the women with reference to his war service days. Mr. Burke expressed appreciation for all the services rendered to the men's branch by their Auxiliary.

The women were urged to strive especially in this 25th anniversary year of the Canadian Legion to increase their membership and build up an Auxiliary that would be able to do outstanding work in helping dependents of veterans and all those who have seen service by zone commander Hopkins. He suggested that secretaries arrange an exchange of minutes with other auxiliaries so they might see what is being done by others.

An all-round picture of the work carried on in this particular zone was gained from the reports of each Auxiliary. Each had an account of some successful project and a bank balance to report, though one has been organized only a month and several are less than two years old. Lindsay has a membership of 88 and is organized just one year, yet their report was as extensive as any. Fenelon Falls with 22 members reported having purchased a cemetery plot in which to bury veterans. The Haliburton Auxiliary is maintaing a ward of four patients in Sunnybrook Hospital. Several reported plans to help with building new halls and others have provided equipment such as stoves. The report of Peterborough was re... Mrs. S. Windsor and mentioned 455 pounds of food sent to England in the year and $3,000. realized on Poppy Day.

Donations to the Legion University Scholarship Fund were solicited by Mrs. Richardson who said this scholarship will be offered indefinitely.

Mrs. McGill replied to the numerous queries put in the question box in the manner of Dorothy Dix. She remarked that study of the by-laws would have provided answers to most of the questions.

Mrs. A. Mason, president of the Peterborough Auxiliary, had been favored by local merchants with gifts for table favors and draws. Raffle tickets were sold as a means of paying for the food served.

Winner of a 15-pound cooked ham was Mrs. W. Simmons of the local Auxiliary, and another member, Mrs. E. Porter won a pair of pillow cases raffled by Fenelon Falls group. Various other prizes were given lucky ticket holders.

Centennial Song To Open Pageant

There will be an unique opening to the annual YWCA Gym and Ballet pageant of Peterborough's centennial year being held on the evening of May 30. at Brock Ballroom.

When some 350 participants take formation on the floor they will sing the "Peterborough Centennial Song", words and music of which have been written by Mrs. Adam Sands.

Mrs. Sands and Mrs. Maurice Holt, who are in charge of publicity for the pageant, introdued the song last week at the Ladies' Curling Club banquet and it was well received.

Title of this year's ballet production by Miss Caroline Littlefield is "Enchanted Princess". There will be more than 300 girls in costumes which are now being made in workrooms at the Y by members of the various church groups.

IODE CONVENTION

MONTREAL, April 22—(CP)—The Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire will meet here May 26-31 for its 50th annual convention, it was announced today by Mrs. Frank P. McCurdy, national president. More than 1,000 delegates are expected to attend.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Woman Can Get Her Man With Standard Basic Tactics

A young woman who frankly admits that she wants to marry asks how to get her man.

Well, first select your hunting ground. Go where men most congregate. There is no use in going gunning in a forest in which there is no game. If you live in a little village where there is nothing masculine and eligible between 17 and 70, shake the dust of it off your feet. Anyway, it is good strategy for a woman to keep herself in circulation. Strangers always have an allure for men. That is why so many girls marry away from home.

Dorothy Dix

Next, get your ammunition ready. Make yourself as good-looking as possible, for the first thing a man ever notices about a woman is her personal appearance. The beauty parlors will do much for you. Good clothes will do more, for thank Heaven few men can distinguish between what a woman has on and what she is, and they think any girl pretty who has on a pretty frock. But be careful not to look so expensive that a man will figure he can't afford your upkeep.

Don't Tip Hand

Don't stalk your prey in the open. Men like to think that they are the chasers instead of the chased. Make it seem accidental that you are always Sally-on-the-spot where the man is. Never force a man to take you to places or hound him with telephone calls, and never, never, never complain that you are neglected. Men are like sheep about women—they follow the leader, and the more you are in demand, the more they want you. It is good policy to stay at home and read an improving book some nights and pretend you have a date, even if you have none.

Don't come down with your hat on ready to step out every time a man calls. There is no background against which a girl shows up so attractively as her own drawing room. Remember that when a man marries he does it to get a home. There is nothing in a restaurant, with a waiter with the bill in his hand hovering in the background, that turns a man's thoughts toward matrimony, but many a girl starts a man eating out of her hand for life by feeding him angel's food that she baked herself.

Study your man and adapt your tactics to him. It rouses the sporting blood in some men to flout them, others it drives off. Some men want a dancing partner others a housekeeper. Some men are monologists who never weary of the sound of their own voices, others sit on the back of their necks and wait for a woman to entertain them. Some men want to be mothered and have a woman fuss over them with cough remedies and mufflers, while others are infuriated at the mere suggestion that they could possibly fall ill.

If a man is a talker, lend him your ears. If he is dumb, chatter like a magpie. If he is fond of eating, feed him. If he wants to step out, grab your hot and go. Flatter him. Make him feel that you are the one person on earth who really appreciates how great and wonderful he is. Men marry oftener to get a claque than for any other one thing.

Don't Talk About Self

Never talk to a man about yourself. Not even after you are married to one will he listen patiently to your reminiscences of when you were a little girl and wore pigtails. Nor will he want to hear anything about your inner thoughts and feelings. And never make the fatal error of telling your troubles to a man. Men want women to be always gay and smiling, and the minute one turns on the weeps they beat it for the front door.

Keep the spotlight turned on a man. Be his press agent. Encore his stories. Laugh at his jokes. Quote his opinions. Repeat his wisecracks. Ask him to sing or pull rabbits out of his hat or whatever parlor tricks he does. Insist upon his telling that excruciatingly funny story again. But never pull any humorous stuff yourself or display how clever you are. You must have noticed how many brilliant old maids there are, which is a tip to the wise.

Be soft. Be sweet. Be feminine. No man wants to marry a hard-boiled woman. He wants a wife who will be more heart than head and who will smother them in tenderness. The clinging vines have it all over the sturdy oaks, ladies, in getting husbands.

Always keep your man conscious of you as a woman. This pal business never gets a woman anywhere matrimonially speaking. Men don't marry women who look and act so much like their brothers so that they forget they are women. It is the woman whose femininity hits them in the eye that gets them.

Don't wear your heart upon your sleeve, but neither hide your affections behind a barrage of coldness and indifference. Above all, remember that love begets love, and nothing so convinces a man that a woman is of superior taste and judgment as to know she is crazy about him. Many a man has married a woman just because she cried for him.

So, after all the way to get your man is just the way to get anything else you want. Go after him.

Peterborough's Golden Age of Music

To this a student of ethical phenomena adds that these are the precise characteristics of the radiant virtue which imparts spiritual values. In no respect is it of service, he continues, it has no further purpose beyond itself.... The highest value of life is inevitably a spending of life.... 'To do nothing more than is needed' is a phrase which refers only to serviceable values, to the useful. But only that which exceeds above want, only the useless, the superfluous, the overflowing never ceases to possess the highest value. Radiant virtue is not the ethos of the fulness of life but the meaning which the fulness of life acquires through its overflow; it is an issuing forth without anxiety as to whither it goes. It is like the wind-scattered pollen, which with its tremendous overproduction most easily attains its result without the least selectiveness.

A glance at the consequences of Peterborough's so-called "Golden Age" of music seems to justify the belief that it had a radiance of its own. Within two generations we have seen a quickening of musical impulses among considerable numbers of people in regions afar which have been irradiated by the beams issuing from Peterborough's Golden or Radiant Age. A glance at what has happened in one smallish area in Western Canada will provide us an illustration which doubtless has many parallels.

Let us look at the sequel. Since her days in Peterborough — the memorable days of the Gliddons—Julia Choate has lived in Rosetown, Saskatchewan. The nearby and larger Saskatoon, has been the home of the former Helen Davies (now the wife of George Sherry, once of Norwood). Among those of the older generation the artistry of Helen Davies, one of Peterborough's most gifted soloists, lives as a delightful memory. "Nellie" Davies, daughter of the late Dr. Davies, former organist of St. John's Church was the inheritor of a rich musical tradition. A moment's digression may be pardoned, as one recalls an interesting incident in the life of Dr. Davies whose recitals at St. John's were genuine musical "events". The celebrated Fred Archer, then deemed the world's greatest organist, who gave a recital in Peterborough about this time, is credited with the remark, "I don't see why you should bring me to Peterborough. You have as good an organist right here". On the same occasion, Archer finding a stop in the St. John's organ recalcitrant, is said by one who was present to have reached again for the "ciphering" mechanism and with a mighty tug to have pulled it out "by the roots", tossing it aside.

When the two Peterborough musicians went West as brides, the sparsely settled Saskatchewan prairies seemed to be a barren and forbidding ground for the transplanting of musical culture. But the splendid expoliation since 1910 tells its own story—a story which if put into parable form might remind us of the few kernels of "Red Fife" wheat grown by David Fife in Otonabee which rolled back prairie frontiers to new frost lines, adding untold millions of bushels to Canada's grain production.

Massey Hall Debut

In 1917 Helen Davies Sherry, who had made her debut in Massey Hall and was soloist in St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, became the choir leader of Knox United Church, Saskatoon. On her retirement in 1947, her 30 years of service came to a memorable conclusion with a testimonial gathering of 300 persons and the presentation of a purse. Rev. D. G. Wilkie commented upon the impetus Mrs. Sherry had given to music in the province, adding that the standard of music she had maintained was the highest in the West. Three essential qualities had made this possible, her musical background, her marvellous training, and her capacity for hard work.

Through the same years, Julia Choate Graham had been irradiating the progressive Rosetown area with the beams of Peterborough culture. Carrying on her violin work as concert artist and teacher, Mrs. Graham also was progressively successful in the field of choral development, her choruses and orchestras winning top honors at many festivals. Numbered among her violin pupils are some of nation-wide repute.

Indeed, the record of the devoted service of Helen Davies and Julia Choate is written indelibly in the history of pioneer musical development in Western Canada, and if only two among the Peterborough-bred artists of earlier years have accomplished so much, who shall try to measure the still-widening lustre of the Golden Age?

The story of the Golden Age is not "a tale that was told." It is a tale that "is to be told." It is predicated not on the verb "to do," but on the verb "to be." Linked with it inseparably are such names as those of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Gliddon; of the glorious old 57th Battalion Band; of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music; and of many talented vocalists and instrumentalists who served their generation well.

Sousa Played Gliddon

Reference to another fascinating bit of history seems here to be apropos. On the occasion of a visit to Peterborough by the celebrated Sousa's Band, its leader John Philip Sousa, the "March King," suggested the playing of a march composed by Rupert Gliddon, the "Vanguard," and invited the leader of the 57th to conduct for it. The arrangement, made the day before the Sousa concert, raised a problem calling for a quick solution. Scores for a band of such magnitude were not available. But again the resourcefulness of Peterborough musicians was equal to an emergency. Julia Choate Graham, then a Conservatory teacher, recalls how she and a few companions worked all night under Mr. Gliddon's direction to complete the scoring. By the time the saffron tints were glowing in the East, the notation was ready and the tuneful, piquant "Vanguard" came off with customary Sousa verve under the Gliddon baton.

Incident might be piled upon incident testifying to the richness and variety of musical life in the "Golden Age." Yet such bits of history, interesting as they may be, are only signs of the ebullient, overflowing vitality characteristic of radiation of spiritual values. In such a state of affairs there is no quantitative category and no place for commercial chicane or utilitarian niggardliness.

Hence in considering "What Makes a Golden Age Golden?" we may do well to turn our attention to the values of the Human Spirit which alone give it countenance.

◇ ◇ ◇

Music-making in Peterborough did not spring up suddenly out of nothing. In the above article we have glanced at a brief but interesting period in what is essentially a cultural continuum. Peterborough town and county have much reason to be grateful to the pioneers, who came into the wilderness not only with axes but with tuning-forks—and, above all with vision. Among the county's earliest musicians were men of sound training and broad experience in the art. For well on to a century before the so-called "Golden Age" there was music and good music in Peterborough County. In the wooded "hinterland" choruses were singing the musical classics and trios and quartets were playing tastefully and skilfully at a time when, even in Toronto, family chamber music was extremely rare. The present writer proposes in later articles to survey some of the phenomena of music in the district's earliest years of settlement.

Mrs. R. Green Hostess to Evening Auxiliary

HAVELOCK, April 22 (ENS)—Mrs. Ronald Green was hostess at a meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the Havelock United Church on Wednesday.

The president, Mrs. E. D. Chiles, was assisted in the devotional period by Mrs. J. Watson, the topic being the Easter service.

Mrs. C. J. Gall gave a reading about the work of Miss Curtis, a United Church missionary to Japan from Toronto and also gave a travelogue of her trip to California a few years ago. Mrs. Gall included an account of her trip to Oregon and her return through the Rockies.

A solo was sung by Mrs. Fred Chase accompanied by Miss Beulah Chase. The program was in charge of Mrs. G. Buchanan, who presented a music contest with Miss Chase at the piano. It was won by Mrs. R. Williams.

An invitation will be sent to the Norwood branch to attend the May meeting.

A lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. G. Buchanan and Miss B. Chase.

6—In Memoriams

KENT—In loving memory of mother, Mrs. George Kent, who passed away three years ago
Gone but not forgotten
—Ever remembered by Dot and Jim McGovarin.

TERRY—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Raymond Francis Terry, who passed away April 22, 1949:
The one we loved has gone to rest,
His fond, true heart is still.
His hand that always helped us
Now lies in death's cold chill.
God gave us strength to fight it
And courage to bear the blow.
For what it meant to lose him
No one will ever know.
—Ever remembered by his wife and sons, Gary, Allan and Gordon.

KENT—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. George Kent, who passed away three years ago today:
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore
'Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Ever remembered by daughters Betty and Helen and sons Art and Ira.

KENT—In loving memory of mother and grandma, Mrs. George Kent, Sr., who passed away three years ago today, April 22nd, 1947:
—Sadly missed by daughter Betty son-in-law Deb and grandchildren Joan and Fred.

KENT—In loving memory of Mrs. George Kent, who died April 22, 1947.
"Peaceful be thy rest dear Mother
It is sweet to breathe thy name
In life we loved you dearly
In death we do the same."
—Sadly missed by Bill, Jean and Bobby.

7—Cards of Thanks

The family of the late Mrs. Sara Payne wishes to thank the Sisters and nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital, attending doctor, friends and relatives for their kindness and floral tributes during their recent bereavement.

We wish to take this opportunity to sincerely thank everyone for their acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy in our recent bereavement. We also wish to extend thanks for the beautiful floral tributes to our loved one.—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lobb and Raymond.

Ontario and West Blamed for Shift from Empire

HALIFAX, April 22—(CP)—A university professor told a women's convention Friday that a movement sparked by "left-wing Ontario people and some farther west" is mainly responsible for Canada's movement away from the Empire.

Dr. H. L. Stewart, professor of philosophy at Dalhousie University, told the Provincial Chapter of the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, that the British Empire is being liquidated.

In Canada, appeals to the Privy Council had been abolished and the statute of Westminster passed.

"Then, very quietly, the word Dominion is dropped. Then we heard the flag was to be revised. The National Anthem is also on the way out, I think, in many quarters," Mr. Stewart said.

"Please do not suppose that this is chiefly a French Canadian movement with headquarters in Quebec."

The movement stemmed from "left-wing Ontario people and some farther west," who appealed to national sentiment and pride.

Following Dr. Stewart's address, the Provincial Chapter passed a resolution asking that if a distinctive Canadian flag is adopted it include the Union Jack in the senior quarter.

Postal Workers To Give Courses On Proper Mailing

ST. CATHARINES, April 22—(CP)—C. H. Bray, of Hamilton, a representative of the Post Office Department, Friday told the annual meeting of the Ontario Girl Guide Council how the department will assist Guides to qualify for ther new proficiency award—the postal badge.

The Post Office, he said, will conduct courses on how to wrap, address and mail letters and parcels, how to register and insure them. Post Office officials will conduct the tests.

He said older persons are "hopelessly ingrained in their bad habits of sending mail" and the Post Office now is concentrating its educational program among young people.

At Ottawa a Post Office official said the course for Guides is part of an educational program to "teach people to use the mails properly."

"Postal workers are glad to cooperate in this work," he said. "They do not regard it as a headache."

The course will be available to Guides throughout Ontario and postmasters themselves will act as testers.

Mrs. D. Bruce Wilson, of Toronto, was elected Ontario commissioner of the Girl Guides Association. She succeeds Mrs. Gordon Conant, of Toronto.

New members for the council's executive committee include Mrs. R. Dow, Whitefish Falls, and Mrs. E. B. Code, Perth.

Lakevale Aid

Monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid, Lakevale Presbyterian Church, Fowler's Corners, was held at the home of Mrs. Melville Deyell Wednesday evening with president Mrs. Wm. Richmond in the chair.

Mrs. Ken Norse gave the scripture reading. Mrs. Richmond led in prayer. The president gave a reading entitled "Easter Greetings" Roll call was answered with a verse of scripture showing 11 members and one visitor present.

Secretary Mrs. R. L. Blackburn read a letter from the secretary of Bethel WA inviting members to meet with them on May 9.

Mrs. Melville Moncrief had charge of the topic which took the form of an Easter message. She explanied how the Crucifixion originated and why Jesus was crucified. Jesus was not put to death for guilt but it was all part of a plan. She told of the Three Crosses and what they represent.

Mrs. Harry Fowler Jr., sang "The Old Rugged Cross." Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

Remove Screens

COBOURG, April 22 — (CP) — Protective mesh screens placed on the windows of the Ontario Training School for Girls when it opened here in 1942 have been removed, Superintendent Isobel MacNeill said Friday. She said their removal does not constitute an "experiment" but is "just that we feel it is wrong to have bars on the windows of this institution."

Able To Pay For Social Services Says St. Laurent

WALLACEBURG, April 22 — (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent sees Canada's economy holding up under the weight of expanded social services.

In a speech here Friday night he said that "provided it is realized that social services have to be paid for, and so long as we are prepared to meet the cost in an honest and straightforward fashion, I cannot think that there is any danger of ruin from the expansion of social services."

On a swing through western Ontario the Prime Minister moved today to Sarnia. Friday he was at Dresden where he told a welcoming crowd that "happily for us we have democratic institutions where the liberty and dignity of the individual are recognized. We are all of one nation. We are all one, dependent on one another."

Tour Theme

Social service was the theme of his address and talks as he progressed in the quick tour.

In his address to the Rotary Club here he said that expenditures on education, family allowances and health "are really investments for which the community has a right to expect a social and economic return."

The function here, at $10 a plate, was in aid of crippled children. Mr. St. Laurent said the Federal government was providing $500,000 under the national health program to support provincial projects for crippled children, but this was only to supplement existing activity.

Pay For Part

He felt that it was reasonable that the Federal treasury should bear some of the cost of social services "while leaving the primary responsibility to the provinces. The healthier we can make the next generation, the greater will be its capacity to produce wealth. Money spent on crippled children may be, and generally will be, returned to the community many-fold in the increased production of later years."

The Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent were showered with gifts on arrival here. At a civic reception they received a handsome India rug from the Chippewas on Walpole Island and other gifts from various societies and firms. They were greeted in several languages by spokesmen on the different communities.

Greater Progress

At Dresden the Prime Minister championed the liberty of the individual and the inter-dependence of all Canadians. Mentioning that Dresden was the terminus of the underground railway for United States slaves before the United States civil war, he said that young Canadians today can look forward to greater progress than their parents have known, and he envied them their prospects.

Veteran Faces Charge Involving Sum Of $886

COBOURG, April 22 (ENS)—Mervin Mackie of Cobourg was charged in court Friday with making a false statement in respect to the sum of $886.04 from the Veterans' Allowance Board during the years 1947 and 1948. At the request of defence counsel T. F. Hall, the matter was adjourned for two weeks.

Leslie Blakely of Gore's Landing, was fined $25 and costs on a careless driving charge. Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine said he saw Blakely driving erratically on Highway No. 28 early on the morning of April 18. The driver appeared to have been drinking but blood sample sent away was found to contain 1.2 parts of alcohol per M. A drunk driving charge was withdrawn.

Charles and Joseph Ellis of Campbellford were remanded until Thursday when they appeared in court here on a charge of robbery with violence. The complainant, George Stollery of Seymour township, is still in Belleville hospital, after the alleged robbery and when the pair appear next Thursday the case will be adjourn to the Belleville Hospital that afternoon.

Goes Trout Fishing Returns With Eagle

HAMBERY, France, April 22—(Reuters)—Jean Grosso, fishing in the alpine torrent of Boya, Sav, caught a trout and a royal eagle on the same rod.

He was landing the trout when the eagle, which had a wing-spread of 4½ feet, swooped down.

The fisherman swung the rod, stunned and captured the eagle.

Former Singer Dies

TORONTO, April 22 — (CP) — Edith L. Martin-Perry, noted singer and linguist, died Friday after a prolonged illness. She was pre-deceased by her husband, Mrs. Martin-Perry studied music here and in Europe and was active in concert and recital work as well as teaching voice, piano and languages. For her work entertaining invalid soldiers during the first world war she was made a life member of the YMCA.

RELENTLESS SEARCH into use of new drugs ACTH and Cortisone will be speeded with funds raised in first nation-wide appeal of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society from May 1 - May 15. ACTH is made from pituitary glands of hogs as displayed here by Nellie Morris, 400,000 hogs' glands required to make one pound of drug, available in Canada only for research at the present time.

Safety Rules Won't Break Small Passenger Lines

OTTAWA, April 22 (CP) — Tighter safety rules laid down for ships at sea will not necessarily force small passenger lines out of business, a government spokesman said Friday.

The new regulations were passed by a recent order-in-council following Toronto's SS Noronic fire disaster that took 119 lives last September.

They make it compulsory for passenger vessels operating in Canadian waters to be equipped with an automatic sprinkler and fire alarm system if they carry more than 99 persons and make a complete round voyage of more than 15 miles.

Force Owners Out

In Vancouver Friday, Capt. C J. Williams, manager of Canadian Pacific Steamships on the west coast, said the regulation would result in many small companies being forced out of business.

He said their trade would not permit the additional expense of installing the required equipment.

It was pointed out in Ottawa, however, that there is an escape clause in the regulations which will permit exceptions to the rule.

Tabling the new regulations in Commons, Transport Minister Chevrier said care will be taken to avoid curtailing services.

Mr. Chevrier said that, "consistent with safety," the board — rather than individual steamship inspectors—will make the decisions on any relaxations.

The Transport Minister said on Friday that no passenger ship will be allowed to enter into service without complying with the new regulations "to the extent which is practicable."

Other Measures

The regulations also bring into force a wide range of other safety measures, resulting from the recommendations of the Kelloch commission inquiring into the Noronic disaster.

They include:

1. Highly-inflammable paints may not be used.
2. A continuous fire patrol must be maintained.
3. Public address systems must be provided (on ships carrying more than 100 passengers.)
4. Ships tied up at dock—such as the Noronic was—must have more than one exit to the shore, and when tied up for more than one hour, must have connection with the shore fire alarm system, or otherwise the shore telephone system.
5. Crews must have regular fire drills and training in fire fighting.

Baptist Speaker Visits Havelock

HAVELOCK, April 22 (ENS)—The Rev. J. F. Holliday of Toronto, field representative of the Fellowship of Independent Baptist Churches of Canada, delivered an illustrated address on "Miracles in War-time Europe" at the Baptist Mission in Havelock on Thursday. The guest speaker and the Rev. L. V. Bigelow, pastor of the Havelock congregation, served together with the First Canadian Army in Europe. Captain Holliday showed 70 colored film-slide photographs of Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany; and emphasized the reality and the value of the witness given by hundreds of consistent Christian servicemen during the war years.

The Havelock Baptist Mission is planning a program for the spring and summer months, including a visit from the Rev. Blake Hunt of London with his motion picture film "Charge That to My Account"; a week of evangelistic services conducted by the Rev. Luther Schaeffer of Toronto and a Daily Vacation Bible School directed by workers from Christian service centres.

The Mission in Havelock was recently taken over by the Fellowship of Independent Baptist Churches as part of an expansion program that is planting fundamentalist Baptist congregations in new areas at the rate of one new church or mission every three weeks. This Baptist group has undertaken more than 30 major building programs in less than two years and has 20 more new buildings in prospect.

Its congregations range in size from large established churches with 700 members to small mission causes.

Twenty-seven Women Pack Bale For Europe

WARKWORTH, April 22 — Twenty-seven women were present at St. Paul's United Church Women's Missionary Society meeting on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday school room and assisted in packing good-sized bale of used clothing for shipment to Europe.

Mrs. Harold Buttars and Mrs. Clarence Massey, program conveners, had prepared and had charge of the following program: A solo by Mrs. Jim McCleary, followed by a reading and solo by Mrs. D. H. Evans and a reading and solo by Mrs. Allan Buchanan and Mrs. R. Jolliffe; Mrs. W. G. Allen gave a reading and this was followed by a musical number, entitled "He Is Risen," given by a sextette composed of Mrs. D. H. Evans, Mrs. Allan Buchanan, Mrs. R. Jolliffe, Mrs. W. G. Allen, Mrs. J. McCleary and Mrs. Clarence Massey.

Mrs. H. G. Lester, the president, conducted the business meeting and Mrs. H. Buttars, finance secretary and Mrs. W. Barringer, supply secretary, gave reports. The treasurer, Mrs. Geo. Bowen, announced that the sum of $40 was sent to the presbyterial treasurer for the first quarter.

Mrs. Harry Kelly offered her home for the next meeting to be held on May 4 and Mrs. M. Peterson and Mrs. B. Buchanan volunteered as lunch committee.

A lunch was served.

Cave-In Pins Workman Under Big Rock

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22 — (ENS)—Joseph Brethour, 52, of Church St. narrowly escaped death or serious injury here today, when the side walls of an excavation caved in, and a large half-ton boulder pinned him to the side of the hole. Mr. Brethour has been digging to reach a sewer at the rear of a Front St. property for the past week. The sewer is imbedded in the core-wall of the Trent Canal, about 16 feet below the surface. He had reached the sewer and was breaking the cement from around it when the sides caved in, holding him in a vice-like grip. He called to Everett McCoy, 24, who was working with him, to summon help. McCoy met Chas. Calver as he reached the street and Calver quickly summoned aid. Jack Storie of the Water and Light Commission, was the first to go down into the pit. Later with the aid of buckets and ropes, stones and dirt were cleared away so workers could move the heavy stone with crowbars. It took about 20 minutes, during which time Mr. Brethour talked cheerily and gave directions to the rescue workers and warned by-standers from the edge of the pit, lest they too join him at the bottom.

Doug. Burgis and Roy Ford were finally successful in bringing Brethour to the surface. He was removed to the office of Dr. W. W. Baker for treatment. There were no bones broken, but the man received cuts and bruises.

Killed Bear with Axe

Readers may remember a story back in 1933 regarding Mr. Brethour. He was cutting wood on the 9th line of Dummer township and struck a bear that he found under the roots of a large tree, with his axe. Bruin apparently didn't like this, and came out of his hiding place and proceeded to bat Joe around. Joe stood his ground, striking back at the bear with his axe and throwing in the odd punch whenever the opportunity presented itself. Finally after 20 minutes of mortal combat, the bear lay dead at Joe's feet.

Vagrant Girls Poser For Court

COBOURG, April 22.—(CNS).—Three Toronto 'teen age girls appeared in police court Friday on vagrancy charges and Magistrate R. B. Baxter, admitting frankly that he didn't know what to do with them, remanded them until Monday. Their names are Loraine and Dorine Smith, twins aged 17, and Lenore Ryan, 18.

Provincial Constable C. Meadows said that he picked them up after a motorist reported at the Port Hope police station at 1.45 a.m. April 18 that five girls were trying to flag a ride and he thought they might have escaped from some institution.

The constable said he checked the ages of two of them and found them 15 and 16 years of age, in spite of their statements to the contrary and they were returned to their homes.

Constable Meadows said that enquiries were made with the view of getting the other three girls returned to their homes in Toronto but without any success.

Captain D. W. Rea of the Salvation Army, investigated the case and learned that the Smith girls had been in the care of the Salvation Army Home on Pape Ave., but had left it a year and a half ago. The Salvation Army was of the opinion that nothing more could be done for them, he said.

"Well, if an organization like the Salvation Army feels it is no use trying to help these girls any more, I don't know what we can do," the magistrate said.

The Smith girls told the court they had not lived at home for some time. Their father was dead and they did not get along well with their stepmother. The Ryan girl said she could not get along with her family either.

"I'll remand all of you until Monday," said the magistrate.

WI Re-elects Mrs. Charles Ellis

HAVELOCK, April 22 (ENS)—Mrs. Charles Ellis was re-elected president of Belmont Women's Institute at the annual meeting on Thursday in the Township Hall.

Other officers elected were: First vice-president, Mrs. William Ketchen; second vice-president, Mrs. Gardner Gawley; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Clarence King; pianists, Mrs. William Anderson and Mrs. Donald Anderson.

Directors: Mrs. Alex Keene, Mrs. Edward Barker, Mrs. Horace King; district director, Mrs. Wm. Harris; press reporter, Mrs. Arnold Dafoe; auditors, Mrs. Harry Scott, Mrs. William Aunger.

The financial statement showed that progress had been made throughout the year with receipts of more than $360 and a balance of $49.97. The society subscribed to the Cancer Fund, Sick Children's Hospital and Havelock-Belmont branch of the Canadian Legion. They held two benefit dances, catered for the WI district annual meeting and the Home and School convention at Havelock; packed a bale of clothing for the Unitarian service committee, held a children's day when they provided treats for the children of the community and also a program of sports with prizes.

Donate Quilt

A quilt was donated to a family which lost its home by fire and no charge was made for the work of quilting two more for other residents of the district.

The report for the sick and relief committee given by Mrs. Randal Vansickle was as follows: 16 boxes of fruit and five boxes of chocolates distributed at Christmas to the sick and shut-ins; three plants, two boxes of candy and three boxes of fruit distributed at other times during the year. A number of cards had also been sent and three wreaths were purchased.

It was decided to hold a bingo in the Township Hall on April 26, when the draw on a quilt will be held.

Tea hour hostesses were Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. E. Barker, Miss Violet Scott, Miss Lottie Keene.

Truck Hits Car

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22 — (ENS)—Douglas Norton of 79 West Moir St., Belleville, was charged with operating a motor vehicle with faulty brakes as the result of an accident on Centre Street on Friday morning.

Norton, driving a truck was coming north into the town, following a car driven by Preston Hall of Campbellford. Hall had apparently slowed his vehicle to make the turn down the steep hill at the Catholic Church, and when the truck driver tried to slow his vehicle, the brakes failed. The front end and grill of the rear of the car. Chief Constable George H. Hardy investigated.

Leopold's Son May Be King On Compromise

By ALFRED CHEVAL

BRUSSELS, Belgium, April 22 — (AP) — Bespectacled Albert Charles Leopold Axel Marie Gustave Baudouin, 19-year-old Duke of Brabant and Prince to Belgium, today stood a good chance to become the temporary ruler of the Belgians.

His father, exiled King Leopold III, decided yesterday to stay out of his homeland after turning over his royal powers to Baudouin under a compromise agreement drawn up by the leaders of the country's three major political parties.

Liberal party leaders were to meet today to discuss the newest proposal to return the King to his throne and then remove his powers temporarily. Leopold's chief supporters, the Roman Catholic Social Christians of Premier-Designate Paul Van Zeeland, are scheduled to meet tomorrow.

Socialists Wait

Leopold's chief opponents, the Socialists, deferred their approval of the compromise. They had refused to accept it if Leopold were allowed to remain in Belgium while his son exercised the royal powers.

The King, exiled since 1945 because he surrendered to the Germans and did not escape in 1940 to Britain with his government, had opened the way to the compromise. Seeking to end the crisis which has left Belgium with only a caretaker government for the last six weeks, the King in a broadcast April 15 suggested the temporary delegation of power to his son.

Leopold's supporters hoped, Baudoin's "temporary rule" would be followed quickly by the King's return to his throne. His opponents were confident the King would abdicate formally, making his son the monarch when Baudoin turns 2' in September, 1951.

THIS IS "THE VOICE"—Mrs. Mabel Egan is known as "The Voice" at Ottawa's Chateau Laurier Hotel. This 60-year-old Irish woman who says she will take sauce "from no man" is the hotel's room-service operator but is also classified as a hotel "official" because of her ability to get things done.

Woman Power In Operations Of One of Largest Hotels

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 22—(CP)—A plump, rugged 60-year-old Irish woman with a passion for work has been a power in the operations of one of the country's biggest hotels.

Men fear and respect Mrs. Mabel Egan, known as the "voice" at Ottawa's Chateau Laurier hotel. She is the kind of woman, she says, who will take sauce "from no man" and once her Irish temper is aroused "can fight back with the best of them."

Mrs. Egan is a virtual steam-engine of energy, a power plant that can put in 16 hours' work daily and "think nothing of it." She has gone years without a vacation and hasn't asked for any. She doesn't care if she never gets one.

Touching the scales at nearly 200 pounds, Mrs. Egan is the hotel's room-service operator, classified as a supervisor and a hotel "official" because of her unique ability to get things done. She also has the knack of knowing the culinary tastes of every prominent person who calls the hotel home.

Salary? Mrs. Egan gets a normal take-home pay of about $50 weekly, but she's satisfied. Work is more important—and she gets plenty of it.

From early morning until late at night she sits inside a glass cubicle in a corner of the hotel's big, sprawling kitchen, catering to the hunger of the hundreds of transients that daily fill most of the 640 rooms.

Room service is a big business. On the average the room-service staff serves about 8,000 meals monthly to rooms and the hotel management proudly boasts that this service is second to none in the world in efficiency.

Mrs. Egan gets most of the credit. "Private service," she answers sharply, with a voice almost masculine in power and resonance, as she picks up her cradle telephone.

Red-painted finger nails hover over a stub of a pencil, as she fills out a constant stream of orders for breakfasts, lunches, teas and dinners.

Tireless Worker

After 27 years doing the same type of work, writing out orders, checking the food before it rolls out to the elevators, keeping the waiters alert, one might tire of the job—but not Mrs. Egan.

"I hope to do a big job for the Canadian National Railways (who own the Chateau) before I retire," says Mrs. Egan with a smile. You get the idea it's going to be a long time before she quits.

Her tastes are simple. For instance, she's content to buy clothes 'from the back racks" of downtown stores. She likes to dress up a bit, but regrets she isn't "about 120 pound and slim." She is partial to red dresses. Her black hair is bobbed.

Although married, her life appears centred on her job, to get things done and exude service and efficiency from her cubicle, a six-foot-long and four-foot-wide room containing a worn, battered desk.

"Private service," she keeps calling over the telephone—not "room service" as is the custom in most hotels. Mrs. Egan believes private service is what the Chateau gives—a meal served privately in a room.

A dozen or more white-uniformed, room-service waiters hover outside the cubicle. The young and middle-age men jump at every command. Her alert hazel eyes watch for any signs of laxity.

'Come on lad," she may say to one, "wake up and hear the birdies sing—and you are forgetting the salt and peppers for that tray."

Some of the staff call her "ruthless" and complain that she is hard to work for. None, however, have a bad word to say about her work.

Scorns Sickness

Even sickness can't keep her away from the job. A big ulcer developed on her right leg. Doctors prescribed rest and hospital care. Mrs. Egan said "humbug!" and began to treat herself.

Without missing a day's work, she kept trying one remedy after another. She found that cold compresses gave some relief. Soon the ulcer disappeared and none of the staff was aware that anything had been wrong.

She has an uncanny talent for fixing names to voices. William Aylett, hotel manager, tells the story of how when the King and Queen visted Canada Mrs. Egan was sent west to prepare the Hotel Vancouver room service for the royal visit.

While there, she picked up the phone to register an order:

"Yes, sir," she said, "right away Mr. Mackenzie."

It was Senator Ian Mackenzie then defence minister, in Vancouver on the royal tour. Mrs. Egan recalled the voice, among the hundreds she heard that day, from the time he stayed at the Chateau.

Mrs. Egan is an early riser. She gets up with the sun and sometimes before. After washing and cleaning her centretown Maclaren street house and looking after her invalid husband who is 81, she grabs a cab and dashes to work. For Mrs. Egan it's mostly work—and more work.

"Tom Sawyer" Forms Basis Of N.Y. Musical

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, April 22 —(CP)— The playwrights' producing company has a well-stocked portfolio from which to draw on for the 1950-51 theatre season in Manhattan.

As of now, the company has in the bag—or nearly in it—five major dramatic projects.

One is a musical based on three Mark Twain stories — his childhood classics, "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer," and "Life on the Mississippi." The project began as a joint undertaking, with Maxwell Anderson supplying the book and composer Kurt Weill the lyrics. Weill had completed five songs for the production before his death recently. Another composer now is being sought to complete the musical end of the production. It will be called "Huckleberry Finn."

The playwrights group also plans to produce two plays by Elmer Rice, "Love Among the Ruins," on which the author is about to put the finishing touches, and "Not For Children."

The fourth project is a play by Robert Sherwood, as yet untitled. Sherwood now is in Britain working on it.

Lastly, the playwrights intend to send on tour the musical, "Lost In The Stars."

Names In The Bright Lights

Reports from Hollywood say that Hume Cronyn and his wife, Jessica Tandy, would like to act in the new comedy by Wolcott Gibbs, "Season in The Sun" which is planned for next season. If so, it would be the first time Cronyn, born in London, Ont., and his wife have acted together in the same play here. Gibbs is the drama critic for New Yorker magazine. . . Margaret Sullavan is expected to return to the Broadway stage in the fall in "Hilda Crane," this new play by Samuel Raphaelson is a project of the Theatre Guild. Miss Sullavan's last appearance in Manhattan was in "The Voice of the Turtle." . . . Margaret Phillips able young Welsh-born actress, has been signed to succeed Irene Worth in the role of Cella Coblestone in "The Cocktail Party." She takes over June 2. About the same time Henry Daniell will succeed Alec Guinness as the psychiatrist who dominates the action of the T. S. Eliot drama.

Change of Pace

Starting this Sunday, Ballet Theatre is moving in to center theatre for a three-week engagement with a company including Nora Kaye, Igor Youskevitch, Antony Tudor and Hugh Laing . . . Broadway's newest play "With A Silk Thread," has Claire Luce as star but the drama by Elsa Shelley left the critics cold. They found the story of domestic and matrimonial problems dull and artificial, despite Miss Luce's able performance.

RESORT MURDER — Mrs. Bettie Renner, 38-year-old Washington lawyer and ex-FBI clerk, was found slain in an abandoned well in Nassau, Bahamas. The tall brunette, who had been on a vacation, was clad only in a brassiere. She had been beaten on the head.

Ontario Secured 47 Industries

TORONTO, April 22—With an employee total of 21,000, equal to the population of Niagara Falls, 47 new industries were brought to Ontario last year through the Department of Planning and Development. The new plants had a capital investment of $33,000,000, Planning Minister William Griesinger told the Empire Club Thursday.

Though devaluation of the English pound was making it more difficult to obtain new industries, Mr. Griesinger said he was hopeful 1950 would be as successful.

Twenty of the plants brought to Ontario in 1949 were obtained through the efforts of Ontario House in London.

Outlining his department's functions, the minister called for greater co-operation between all governments in future.

"We must realize that we in Ontario cannot prosper unless the Dominion prospers," he said. "We intend to co-operate in every way with the Dominion Government—of course we aren't going to sell the province out—but the welfare of the whole country should be out aim. When the next Dominion-provincial conference takes place, you will see a fine spirit of co-operation from good old Ontario."

Regarding housing, Mr. Griesinger said it was not the Ontario Government policy to go into building and interfere with private enterprise. But Ontario was willing to go into partnership with the Dominion in communities where housing was needed and builders were unable to finance projects. The province's second mortgage scheme had resulted in 15,000 homes.

Under his department, 13 conservation authorities had been set up in Ontario, covering 10,000 square miles with 273 member municipalities.

"It is true that we are not in position to carry out some of the conservation work we would like to. We agree with the Dominion Government that the timing on some projects in not right and they should be held back to see if there is a recession," he said.

'It's Just A Job' Says Cagney, EvenLovemaking

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, April 22 (AP) —Meet James Cagney, the star who never went Hollywood.

Jimmy is one of the most familiar stars in the film galaxy, but he is seldom seen around Hollywood. He never cavorts in night clubs with pandas or other companions. He assumes none of the airs of a movie star and cares not a hoot for publicity.

The oscar winner is back at work before the camera in "Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye." In this one he plays a Phi Beta Kappa killer —a college professor turned criminal. What does he do when he isn't brandishing a gun for the screen?

No More Goats

"Raise chickens," he replied in an underworld tone.

"I used to raise goats," he added, "but they multiplied too fast. Now I just concentrate on chickens and the grains they eat.

"You don't read about me in the papers when I'm not working. That's because I don't go anywhere or do anything. When I finish a picture, I retire to my farm in New England. And I stay there until I have another picture to do."

He has long alternated between musicals and dramas, good guys and criminals. I asked which he preferred.

Only A Job

"It's just a job to me," he answered. "The main thing I want is variety."

Even love making is a routine to Cagney. "That's a job too," he said. "You don't even think about it as romance."

Cagney, ever serious about his job, was wearing his dancing shoes. He practices during his lunch hour for his next picture, which will be a musical.

"You have to keep it up," he said. "If you once let yourself get out of condition you can never regain what you've lost."

ST. LAWRENCE BIG GAME—The thrills of hunting Beluga, such as the one shown above, are said to compare with the quest for big game in Africa. These big white porpoises, found in the cold waters of the St. Lawrence River, are hunted now for sport rather than for their oil and tough hides. This picture was taken by Dr. Vadim D. Vladykov, Quebec Fisheries department biologist, who is an authority on Belugas and their habits.

Prophet Amos Was Farmer Who Came To The City

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD.

If we could imagine some healthey, clear-eyed, intelligent farmer coming into a modern Gotham, we should have a fairly accurate picture of the prophet Amos, the herdsman farmer, going into the big city, in the long long ago.

This modern farmer might have to be one of the last generation, before farming itself became something of big business, and the farmer himself became involved in the problems and conditions that affect the country as a whole.

That farmer, coming from his simple life and tasks, might not be fair in all his judgments. He might know from experience how true it is that all wealth comes from work and the soil, but he might not realize how much that is fine and worthy in the complex life and culture of modern society is based upon the accumulation of generations of work and productivity. His vision, if clear and uncorrupted, might also be somewhat narrow.

But with great clarity of vision, and with a keen sense of life's elemental honesties, he would see many things as Amos saw them in that long ago. He would see on many hands the struggle for wealth and power, with too often a disregard of either honesty, or the rights and welfare of others, in that tense pursuit.

He would see signs of efficiency in the building and management of the city, but he would soon be aware of the corruption and graft that too often went on beneath the surface.

He would observe the widespread craze for gambling, and the passion to get something for nothing, and the less obvious forms of ease, luxury and self-indulgence, in which many lived as actual parasites, giving nothing to society in return for all that they enjoyed.

He would see, also, grosser forms of evil, the dissipation, the licentiousness, the disregard of wholesome relationships between men and women, the breakdown of family life, the poverty in contrast with great wealth, and the neglect of little children in slum areas, with the resulting juvenile delinquency.

All this he would see, and a great deal more that would shock him, even in a society in which there is much that is more occasion for worthiness and pride; for it is to be hoped that the farmer-prophet would not be a complete pessimist.

But he would not be a prophet if he did not see the evil, and deal with it. A prophet is a social physician; and what would one think of a doctor, who ignored a diseased part of the body to dwell upon how well the rest of the body might be?

What did Amos and his fellow prophet Hosea, have to say about the evils that they saw? My next article will explore their message.

Resurrection Of Christ Fundamental Of Christianity

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Jesus of Nazareth, whom God raised up.—Acts 2:24.

These are the opening words of the first Christian sermon. "Jesus of Nazareth, whom God raised up; having loosed the pain of death, because it was not possible that He should be holden of it". It was news, good news. The speaker is a fisherman telling his own people this wonder, the resurrection of Jesus. It is a statement which has enabled men and women to face terrible deaths.

"Because I live ye shall live also" is the claim of the Lord and he proved it by rising from the dead. He was crucified, dead and buried. He really died. The spear thrust into His heart certified that. The Roman officer signed the certificate. The resurrection of the Lord is the fundamental article of the Christian faith.

The earliest written evidence is 1 Cor. 15. St. Paul's confession "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins and that He was buried and that He rose again the third day according to the Scriptures. The resurrection was a miracle. He was risen in His spiritual body. There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body. His mortal Body was dead when placed in the tomb. The power of God change it into a spiritual body, which enabled Him to pass through the stone cave and appear where He wished. It enabled Him to appear in the midst of the Apostles. The resurrection of the Lord means that He is living in the spiritual realm. You can realize His Presence when you pray.

It is a living truth that will enable you to look upon the face of your dead and with pallid lips whisper "It is the Lord, let Him do what seemeth Him good" and the still, small Voice will whisper: "What I do now thou knowest not, but thou shalt know hereafter". He will bring to your mind some passage of the word to give courage and faith. He will comfort you because He is Man and has suffered. A Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. The daughter of a famous modern scholar died. He witnessed to his faith by this epitaph on her tombstone: NEVERTHELESS I LIVE. How heart moving.

You may be moved to read, mark, learn and digest the following Scriptures, written for your uplift:

If any man be in Christ he is a new creature. Old things are passed away, behold all things are become new. For since by man came death by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

THE LORD JESUS SAITH: BECAUSE I LIVE ALSO YE SHALL LIVE ALSO.

Deaconess Shows Skill

VANCOUVER—(CP)—A deaconess in rural areas needs to know how to wield a hammer, ride a bicycle, row a boat and do housework as well as preach the gospel.

Miss Quickfall was speaking to the church's British Columbia synodical of the Women's Missionary Society.

Miss M. Quickfall, a deaconess of the Presbyterian church, says rural work is encouraging "but sometimes mud is a great difficulty—there were five Sundays last year we couldn't take outside appointments."

Firemen Rescue Woman

HAMILTON, April 22 —(CP)—Prompt action of the town fire department Friday was credited with saving the life of Mrs. H. M. Morrow, of West Flamboro township, who early today crashed through boards covering a well in a barn and fell into an estimated 10 feet of water.

Mrs. Morrow's call for help was heard by her daughter who immediately placed an emergency call with the Valley Town fire brigade.

THE PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

BUILDING SUPPLEMENT

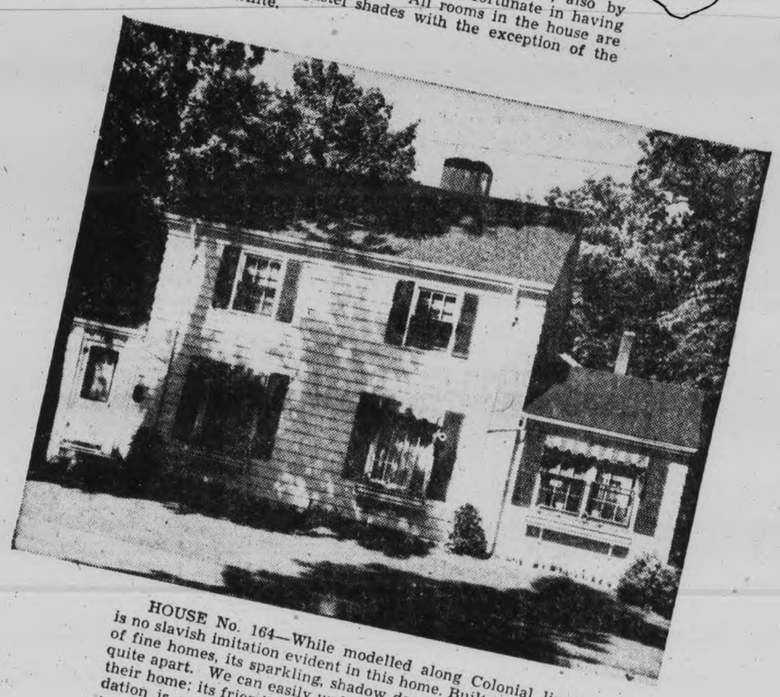
Spring 1950

HOUSE No. 423—This little cottage seems "just right" as you first see it, nestled on a broad corner lot. Even the garage and border wall contribute to the picture of graciousness that greets the eye from every angle. The owners chose grey stone for exterior walls, and authentic Colonial millwork detail. The picturesque lentils under the eaves of the hipped roof, which can be seen in the photograph, are repeated on the garage. The latter building is of stone and in complete architectural harmony with the house. Shutters and doors are black, with all trim in cream.

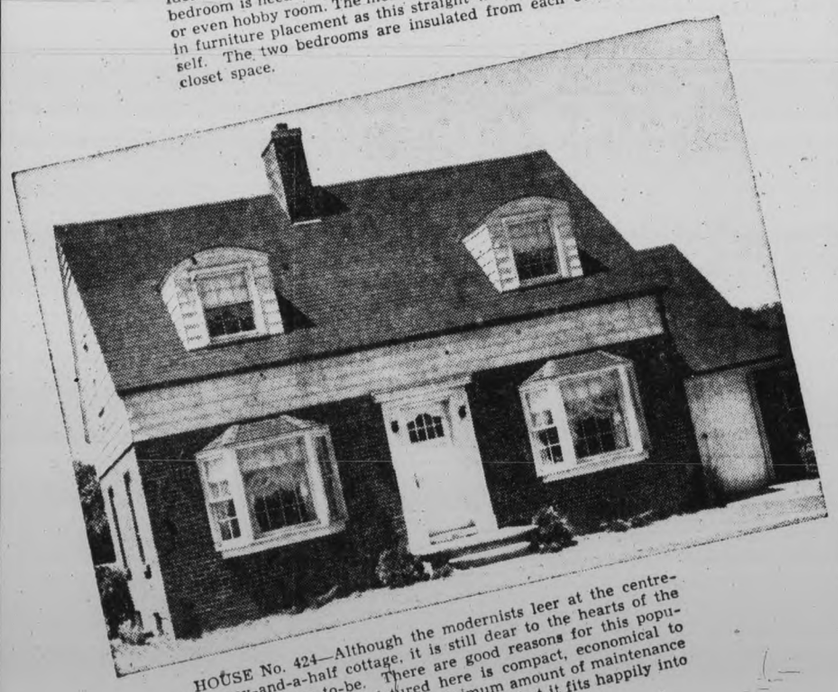
Springtime is building and remodelling time. Whether you plan to just add a few shelves or to build a complete new home we hope that ideas and plans contained in this supplement will assist you with your project. You will find many helpful suggestions not only in building but in layout, landscaping and utilitarian ideas.

HOUSE No. 446—Original plans for this attractive bungalow did not include the sun room or the utility room. These two wings give a broad frontage to the house, and add immeasurably to its character. The general appearance has been enhanced, also by thoughtful foundation planting. The owner is fortunate in having a lot 100' x 200', all well landscaped. All rooms in the house are plastered, and painted in pastel shades with the exception of the kitchen which is white.

HOUSE No. 358—Here is an economy cottage of the first order. Such simple grace would make it welcome in any neighbourhood. Ideal for the very small family, or a retired couple. Where only one bedroom is needed, the other could be used as a study, guest, dining or even hobby room. The most inexperienced would have no trouble in furniture placement as this straight-walled plan is simplicity itself. The two bedrooms are insulated from each other by ample closet space.



HOUSE No. 164—While modelled along Colonial lines, there is no slavish imitation evident in this home. Built in a neighborhood of fine homes, its sparkling, shadow dappled facade seems to set it quite apart. We can easily understand the owners' enthusiasm over their home; its friendly character charmed us, too! Closet accommodation is good throughout the house. There are three bedrooms upstairs, each with cross ventilation.



HOUSE No. 424—Although the modernists leer at the centre-hall, storey-and-a-half cottage, it is still dear to the hearts of the majority of owners-to-be. There are good reasons for this popularity. A home such as pictured here is compact, economical to build, easy to heat, and requires a minimum amount of maintenance through the years. Added to this is the fact that it fits happily into the Canadian scene. What more could one ask for?

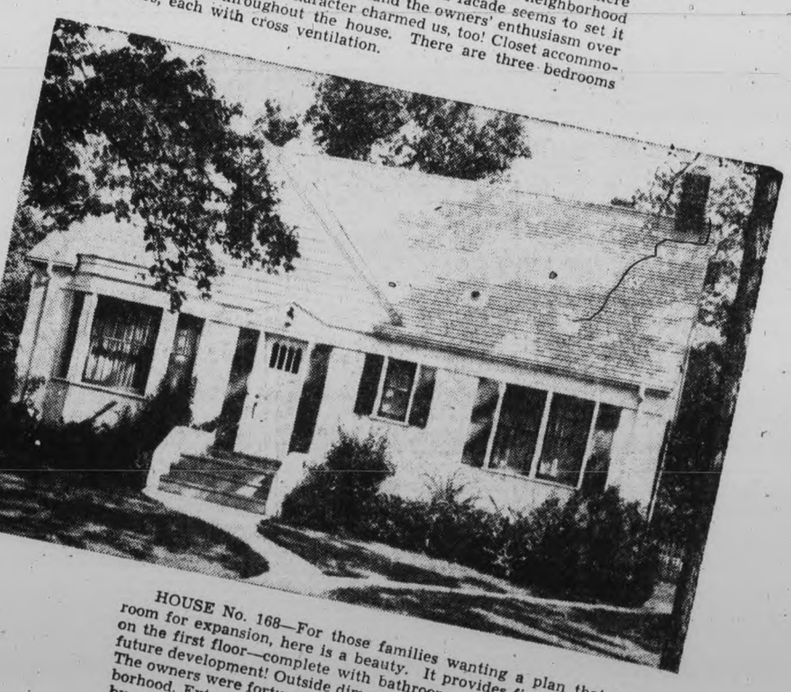
More than fifty businesses supplying most products and services used in connection with a home are represented in this supplement. It will be a handy source of reference for any work you may require to have done—so why not file it away where you can refer to it when the need arises.



HOUSE No. 168—For those families wanting a plan that has room for expansion, here is a beauty. It provides five snug rooms on the first floor—complete with bathroom—and room upstairs for future development! Outside dimensions are approximately 36' x 27'. The owners were fortunate in having a wide lot in a splendid neighborhood. Exterior walls of the first storey are white stucco, topped by cedar clapboards. Shutters are blue black and the roof soft grey.

For plans of homes illustrated in this supplement and those which appear each Saturday in the Examiner write Home Building In Canada, 372 Bay Street, Toronto, Ont.

Good Architect Will Keep House Cost Down

Whether you plan a new home or extensions to an old one . . . there's no investment you can make more profitable than the services of a good architect. Not only will he assure you of a soundly constructed and truly livable house . . . a house you can be proud of . . . but in addition, his training and experience can guide you along the most economical path to home ownership. His fees are modest considering the benefits obtained, ranging usually from 2 per cent to 10 per cent of the expected cost of the house, depending on how far you wish him to carry through with your building project.

Architects are experienced in "building to a budget" . . . if $8,500 is your limit he can design and specify accordingly to give you the most for your money. Beyond conserving your building dollars, the architect-built house will give you a feeling of satisfaction . . . of being sure things are right as far as exterior and interior beauty are concerned, to say nothing of knowing that convenience and durability have been built into the house as well!

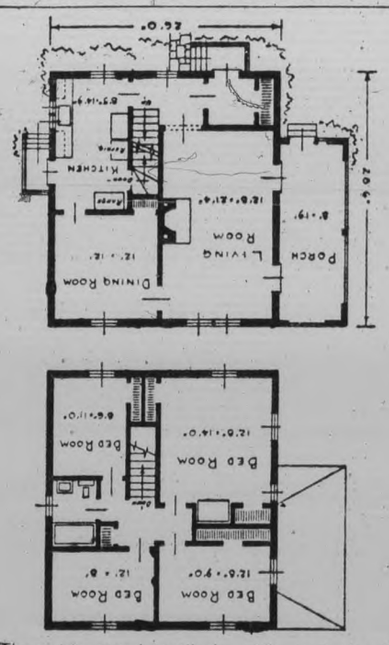
A Good Plan Is An Economy

Whether or not you know much about house planning and building, so long as your architect has a knowledge of your needs and preferences he is the one best able to solve you fundamental problem: how to get what you want for what you can pay. Often he may advise you against some particular pet plan you have in mind . . . take his advice seriously. He is your guarantee against faulty and unlivable design, poor workmanship and other pitfalls.

Having explained to him your family requirements and preferences, your architect will first submit sketches that interpret your ideas. Maybe the first set will not appeal . . . others will follow as your criticisms or the original studies show the architect more clearly what you really have in mind.

Rough sketches will eventually be translated into complete working drawings and specifications. If desired, he will invite reliable contractors to bid on your project. He will remind you of things not included in the contract itself . . . items which do not necessarily pass through the hands of the general contractor. If cost is too high, he can suggest revisions making the least sacrifice of things you want.

Personal supervision of the construction of the house he has planned is a service by the architect to the owner which ordinarily accompanies designing. In this capacity the architect is of inestimable value to the owner, acting as professional adviser and representative in drawing contracts, complying with building codes and lien laws, certifying charges . . . in general, seeing throughout construction that the owner gets what he pays for. With materials in short supply, his experience is a big help in electing alternative materials to use when your building supply dealer is unable to fill a specific order.



NO. 302—Single, straightforward lines are the first attraction when passing this house. It has dignity, with an unmistakable touch of regency about it. The hip roof is red, shutters are black and the walls are grey cedar-grain singles. An examination of the plans reveals that the house is basically almost square; having a depth only 2' 6" more than its width. Although the stairs to the second floor are centred, the entrance is off centre, overcoming the objection many have to looking up a long flight of stairs when entering a house. There is a good vestibule with coat closet. Many will like the big living room with its open fireplace in the middle of the long inside wall. French doors lead to the screened porch at the side. The kitchen arrangement is broken by doors, but this work room is bright and has a good service entrance. There is easy access to the front door as well. On the second floor are four bedrooms and a well-placed bathroom. For further information, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

School Equips Extra Classroom

NORWOOD, April 22 — The manual training room at the public school will be equipped as a classroom ready for the fall term, the Board decided this week after discussing overcrowding in the five classrooms at present being used by 210 pupils.

Estimates presented at the meeting revealed that the cost of converting the room will be approximately $2,000.

Mrs. Pakenham, principal, asked that she be given the position of teacher of the new class and that another principal be appointed. Since she became principal in 1942, the school had increased almost 50 per cent and the task had become increasingly difficult. She had enjoyed the work but would now prefer to take the new class.

A vote of thanks for her capable service was passed by the Board.

Value Of Finished Product Increased With Good Design

Good design is not a cost item in the construction of a home—yet how tremendously it affects the value of the finished product. Material and labor used in the building of a well designed, attractive home cost you no more than if you build an ugly, unattractive one.

Here are 10 fundamentals of design and planning you should understand before building—of particular importance if you must build to a limited budget:

1. Small homes are best kept simple in design with emphasis on good proportion. Simplicity means a reduction in the number of design elements and a minimum use of material.

2. Build to a plan that produces a simple, economical framing system for walls, floor and roof, using standard sizes of lumber and other materials.

3. Generally speaking, a square or rectangular house is most economical due to the simplicity with which it can be framed.

4. Unbroken eaves and plain simple roof areas simplify exterior appearance and construction also help keep down roofing costs and roof maintenance.

5. Stock millwork available at every lumber yard and mill should be used as much as practical. You may use it for finish trim around doors and windows, at the angle between walls and ceilings and walls and floors, door and window frames, window sash, kitchen cupboards, etc. Stock items are available in good design and are less expensive than units made to order.

6. Whether you build large or small, your home should blend with its neighbourhood. While it shouldn't be exactly the same as all the other homes on the street, neither should it stick out like a "sore thumb".

7. Hall space should be minimized as much as possible without affecting circulation. Hall space merely provides privacy and ease of access to the various rooms.

8. Your plan should provide for a compact arrangement to simplify installation of plumbing, heating and electricity services.

9. It is usually most economical in a one-storey house to have the bathroom and kitchen side by side so that the plumbing pipes for the kitchen sink and bathroom fixtures can be concentrated in one place. If your home is to be two storeys, place the bathroom over the kitchen and the laundry under the kitchen to achieve the same economies. This will cut down material and installation costs.

10. Fake dormers, gables, chimneys and similar devices should not be considered. Only a needless expense, they are usually glaringly obvious.

When the utility room in your home is on the first floor and the basement is used for winter drying of laundry, a chute to the basement is a convenience. This does away with the problem of carrying heavy, wet clothes down the stairs. A clothes container equipped with casters should be placed under the chute. It can be moved around easily as clothes are hung. The container should be about 30 inches square and 18 inches deep with the top about 36 inches above the floor.

Coat Of Paint Does Wonders If Furniture Needs Face Lift

Even the worst old horrors long consigned to the attic can be brought up to date with little more than a coat of paint and freshened designs. Painted furniture is currently enjoying more popularity than has come its way for many years . . and the reason is not hard to find. While the war may be over, stocks of new furniture at prices we are willing to pay are not yet quite as plentiful as we would like. What better answer than the "remodelling" of some of those old discards stored in the attic . . . all that is needed is paint and a little imagination.

Paint can truly perform miracles if handled with any degree of care and originality . . but remember, making over old furniture isn't so different from making over old clothes . . the result can be a masterpiece or look like a hand-me-down. Whether the finished product is gong to look professional or amateur is often just a question of following simple directions.

Recognition of the demand for this type of work is evidenced by the repair and furniture remodelling departments installed by many of the department and furniture stores. Here they are prepard to slim dowh, re-style and decorate with paint in colorful design . . transforming even the ugliest duckling into a swan. Much of their work resembles the beautifully painted European peasant piece so popular at the present time.

While there are stores that will do this work for you, why not try your own hand at painting? Perhaps you've never done much painting and hesitate to try. Remember then that those makers of rustic peasant furniture were not artists and their tools and materials were very humble. Give it a try. Just use your imagination. . put a little zest and humour into your styling . . and you'll find the results both worthwhile and enjoyable.

Informal Style Best for Amateur

There, are many styles and moods to paint in. Informal styling will of course allow greater freedom of expression for the amateur and you'll find the bold, jaunty peasant spirit fine for almost any informal room. Most imprta t . . this is definitely the easiest to paint. . . mistakes need not be taken seriously as in formal work.

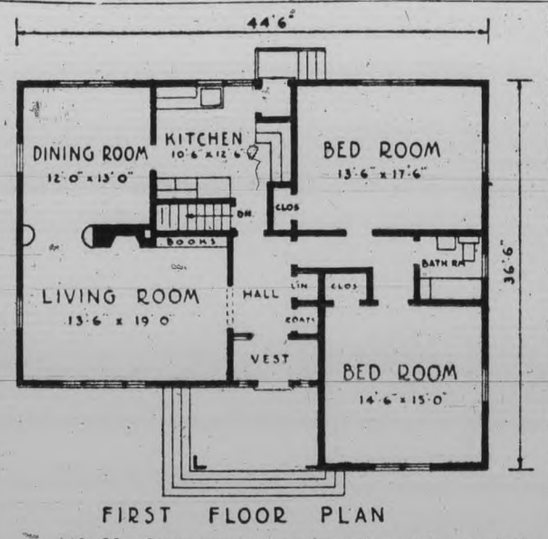
If formal styling is your goal, then perfection of finish is much more important. . .and difficult. However, while the work may tend to be a little tedious at times, you'll have even greater pride in the finished product.

Achievement of that beautifully dull, smooth surface found on store-painted furniture has usually involved the use of equipment the amateur will not have . . .spray guns, buffers and special type of paint. Don't let this discourage you though. Enamel is your answer. Simple to apply, enamel dries quickly and provides a smooth hard surface when applied full strength. If you want to dull the shine or semi-gloss enamel, cut it down with flat undercoat paint of proportion approximately half and half, but be sure to mix thoroughly to avoid a streaky surface. More undercoat will make the surface even duller but less durable. It must be borne in mind, though, that undercoat paint usually come only in white requiring your own tinting, whereas enamel comes in an unlimited variety of lovely shades and colors.

Another idea for creating a dull antique surface is to give your furniture several coats of flat paint, tinted to the right shade. and following up when the surface is thoroughly dry by rubbing on a coat of raw umber or mixture of raw and burnt umber. When wiped off there should be faint traces of the tone, especially in cracks and corners. Then, when the surface is dry again, go over with a coat of thin shellac, thinned 4 to 1 with alcohol. Follow this when dry with a thorough waxing . . . and plenty of elbow grease.

30 Trumpeter Swans

GRANDE PAIRIE, Alta., April 22 — CP) — Thirty Trumpeter swans are resting near a small, water-filled depression on the farm of Billy Salmond north of here. The rare, beautiful white birds—largest flying birds on the continent—have been arriving in pairs and groups since Sunday. The lakes of the Grande Prairie district where the swans nest each year are still frozen and covered with snow.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN

NO. 33—Some people like a bungalow and some don't, but about everyone will admit that this one has enticing qualities. Walls are sparkling white stucco, while roof and shutters are dark red. The concrete floor and steps of the porch are red, too. Wrought iron work is painted black. It is obvious the owner of this property is a rock garden enthusiast. Most of the front garden is devoted to his hobby and the great variety of colors which meet the eye when looking over this picturesque hedge seen in the foreground will long be remembered. Using the plan shown, there would be five large rooms in the house, two bedroom, living room, dining room and kitchen. The tiny but adequate bathroom is handy to each of the big bedrooms. Plenty of fresh air is assured with cross ventilation available in every room but the kitchen. For further information, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

HOUSE NO. 405—It isn't every day you see an owner-designed economy house as well done as this one erected in Ontario, by Murray Kirk, builder. There are two first-floor bedrooms, separated by the bathroom, across the rear of the house. Each of these rooms has a good closet and two exposures. The living room is ample in size, but has no fireplace. A small vestibule provides privacy and protection from the weather. Arrangement of kitchen, dining room and service entrance is commendable, although one corner of the dining room carries considerable traffic. Stairs rise to the unfinished second floor from the centre of the house. For further information write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Poor Roof Drainage Foundation Menace

Do your basement walls show signs of dampness at certain points immediately after a downpour? If the basement walls were waterproofed, and weeping tile laid around the footings, it is possible that the drain from the bottom of your downspouts to the storm sewer is clogged, causing gallons of water to be left around your foundation walls. Check this point during a storm. Water may be seen gushing out between bottom of leaders and the top of tile drain pipe.

Perhaps your roof water is not carried to a storm sewer at all, but just carried a few feet away from the house, in which case you will want this condition remedied.

If there is no storm sewer in your district the most satisfactory method may be to connect a specially shaped tile to the end of your downspouts which will join underground drain tiles leading to a dry well.

A dry well is merely a hole in the ground more or less, filled with very coarse stones and covered over so fine soil can't get in and fill up the air spaces. Water is led to a dry well and it then gradually seeps away into the ground. In some instances a drain leads away from the dry well if there is a suitable outlet for it. Always locate a dry well so the drainage from it is away from the house.

Using a barrel

A barrel put into the ground about a foot below the surface, its top and bottom having been removed, and the barrel filled with coarse gravel, will do nicely for drainage from downspouts. The top of the barrel is covered with wire mesh to hold soil and sod from sifting down into gravel. Closed tile drains lead from the downspouts to the top of the barrel.

Another type of dry well is made of cement blocks laid in a circular hole. Joints are left without mortar. The top is covered over with boards and then wire mesh or metal lath. A layer of concrete is then applied which makes a re-enforced top for the dry well. The location will need to be such that its top is lower than the drain around your foundation walls. The drain tiles are led into such a dry well just below the top. The water seeps away into the ground. The diameter of the cement block dry well can vary from four feet to six feet or more, the depth averaging between four and six feet, all inside dimensions.

Shellac For Floors

Shellac produces a very effective finish for practically every type of floor. It is very easily applied and dries very quickly. However, to obtain the best results, experts point out, the shellac should be applied in very thin coats. The shellac should be diluted with a good grade of denatured alcohol.

Have Colorful Bathroom

There was a time not so long ago when plumbing was taken for granted. The builder gave it only the most casual attention. "Put in a bathroom," he told the plumbing contractor, and that was that. This of course, was "way back when" the bathroom was just a utility room and before artist-designers took the tub, lavatory, sink, closet and faucets in hand and gave them smart styling, color, and eye appeal.

Today it's different. Fixtures are carefully chosen and everyone knows that the ratio of bathrooms to bedrooms has been stepped up in recent years. The bathrooms may, of course, be set back to back, effecting a substantial saving in supply and waste piping as well as labor.

The choice of the fixtures for the bathrooms and powder rooms is all important.

Remember These

Here are a few points to be kept in mind in selecting plumbing fixtures:

1. Choose fixtures that are smart and distinctive. A few dollars more will give you a fixture that will be far superior in appearance.
2. Select well known branded fixtures in matched sets; that is, fixtures that harmonize in design as well as color.
3. Devote particular attention to the selection of the lavatory. It should be the most beautiful fixture in the bathroom. Choose one of generous size. Keep in mind the fact that the lavatory will be used as a make-up table. See that it has generous space for bottles and toilet articles.
4. Go in for tubular lighting on each side for the medicine cabinet.
5. By all means have a good shower, either over the tub or in a separate waterproof compartment. Provide handsome shower curtains of oiled silk matching the drapes.

Use of Colors

Color treatment in the powder room is essentially different from that for the bathroom. The bathroom, as a larger room, should be treated with more restraint than the powder room. It is a generally accepted rule among interior decorators that smaller rooms will "stand" stronger contrasts in colors. Hence such combinations as black fixtures with the walls in yellow, tan, or peach; blue fixtures with mottled blue or silver walls; red fixtures with ivory walls may be used in the powder room with stunning effect.

Prefer Pastels

In the bathroom, on the other hand, the preference is for fixtures in the pastel shades — soft ivories and yellows, cool greens, tasteful blues and pinks. Such combinations as ivory fixtures with peach or apricot walls or tan fixtures with ivory walls are in good taste. Ivory, in particular, is an extremely versatile color. Its prominence in interior decoration today is because of its adaptability and conservatism. It can be used successfully under various lighting conditions and in innumerable combinations with other colors.

The fundamental rule in the creation of a bathroom color is to start with the fixtures. The color of the fixtures is the basic or tonic color for the room. Colors for the walls and floor, woodwork, shower curtains, drapes, and accessories should be selected with harmony or contrast to the fixtures in mind.

Building Costs Remain Unchanged

The man with $2,000 in hand and an income warranting rental payment of $45 to $50 a month is in a favorable position to undertake the building of a house for himself with a mortgage value of $7,000 at 4½ per cent, repayable over 20 to 30 years.

That was a comment from a source close to the building industry in a reference to the continuing work that has been carried on in the favorable weather conditions of this winter.

Realty information here and elsewhere is that cost of new building, generally speaking, is about the same as last year while rents in many instances have been boosted. One result of this change in the position of the tenant is reflected in various enquiries that are being made these days about building or buying. The same trend is reported from other centres in the province.

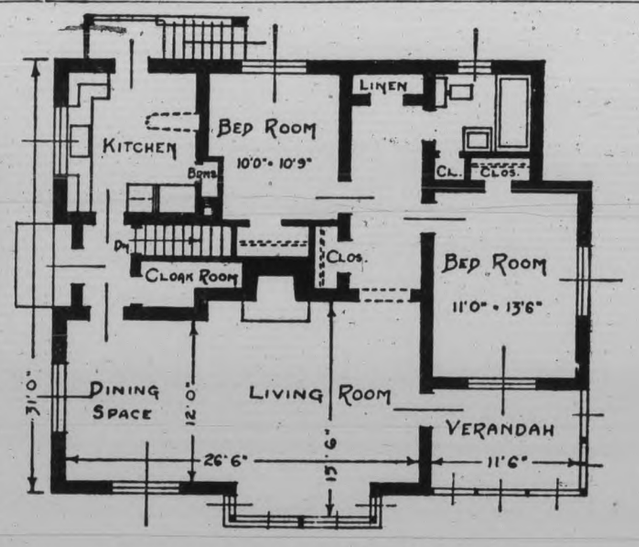
Government projects for rental purposes have been terminated, and there will be no continuance of the Central Mortgage housing as is now being completed in the southwest end of the city. And that project is restricted to ex-service men and their families.

Indications in realty and building offices point at present to probable activity by tenants who feel that they can finance a home for themselves and escape the higher rental levels. Several tenants have been combing the city for suitable houses in the necessity of having to move from their present quarters. Their story is that owners in many cases are willing to sell, but are not interested in leasing.

The present evidence is that rentable houses are just as scarce as they have been at any other time in the last five years. Solution of the difficulty is in the direction of ownership. Some of the reported increase in rents have been regarded as excessive by tenants, and out of line with actual housing value, but the tenant has almost no choice but to accept the higher rate or move. And when he looks around the city for available houses for rent he finds the Peterborough realty market just about bare.

It is this enquiry and prospect of private building which is now being shown in the offices of building supply companies. It is said that the outlook in the cost of building is no more than last year, but neither is it much less.

Rental pressure on the tenant is forcing him to investigate the conditions of building this year and it may be that the volume of the business will continue in 1950 at close to the same level as in 1949.



NO. 84—In the Brakenhurst section of West Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Templeton decided to build their dream cottage. They chose a rocky site on the mountain slope overlooking a great sweep of water, and the city of Vancouver in the distance. Clearly visible is the famous Lion's Gate Suspension Bridge, which provides quick access to the city. House contains five rooms and large glassed-in verandah. Exterior walls are of stained cedar siding. For further information, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Well Planned Bathroom Saves In Piping And Labor

Bathroom planning can be a lot of fun if you will assemble your information and do your thinking in logical order around these four main points: 1, Location and size of bathroom; 2, Choice of fixtures; 3, Arrangement of fixtures, that is layout of the room; 4, Wall and floor materials.

First, about the location of the bathroom, you will want to keep in mind the fact that there are economical and uneconomical locations for bathrooms. That's another reason why it is well to plan your plumbing carefully even before the plans for your house reach the blueprint stage. Get competent advice. A slight shift in the location might result in substantial saving in piping costs.

Close To Kitchen

For instance, if you can bring your bathroom reasonably close to the kitchen, it may be possible to have the bathroom fixtures connected with the same branch supply lines that serve the kitchen sink. Similarly there may be some economy in waste piping. If the same stack can be used, the saving may amount to as much as $50 to $75.

If you are having two bathrooms the most economical location is back to back. With such an arrangement there is a decided saving in piping and labor.

On the other hand, the most economical location for your bathroom may not be the most convenient. After all, you are building the house of livability and convenience.

How large will your bathroom be? While it is possible to crowd all three bathroom fixtures into a space five feet square, this is the minimum size. Furthermore, it is not a convenient size. It is far better to have a bathroom, say, six by eight feet or better still eight by seven feet.

Consider Size

A larger bathroom is much more serviceable. You should keep in mind the fact that two people may occasionally find it necessary to be in the bathroom at the same time. A small, crowded bathroom is particularly inconvenient for older people. Therefore, think about the size of your bathroom before your architect makes the final plans for the house. Indeed, you will find a bathroom large enough to accommodate a linen cabinet very serviceable.

You should know the approximate size of your bathroom before you select your fixtures. Fixtures vary in size. In a larger bathroom, for instance, you will have room for a lavatory size 27 x 22 inches. If the bathroom is smaller you may have to use a smaller lavatory as for instance 24 x 21 inches. By the way, when your plumber mentions lavatory sizes, the size he gives first is the width of the lavatory along the wall. The last figure is the depth of the fixture front to back.

HOUSE NO. 448—It is rare indeed that house and site compliment each other to the extent they do here. Each appears to be made for the other. And the picture above fails to tell the whole story, for the rear garden reaches down, by gentle slope, to the banks of a river. This is the reason all principal rooms in the house have large windows at the back—to take in the fine vista of the river and opposite shore line. After examining the floor plan shown we believe that you will agree it reveals a layout that's hard to equal. Not shown are the many built-in features, such as the dining-room corner cupboards, and the living room book shelves. Notice that there is no basement provided, and that the utility room contains the oil furnace and laundry facilities. Roof shingles are painted blue-gray, as are the shutters. Clapboards and trim are white.

Garden Needs Planning Carefully As New House

Careful planning of the garden is no less necessary than careful planning of the house. Unfortunately, however, the landscaping of all too many new homes is allowed to "jes grow" without benefit of plan . . . or else is rushed through to haphazard completion in the one season.

The wise gardener will plant first with pencil and paper, determining where everything is to go, carrying out the actual planting over a period of time. Here is a suggestion for planting a typical 65' x 125' property over a three year period.

Foremost in importance the first year will be the establishment of shade trees around the house. As it takes longer for trees to become effective than any other type of plantings, buy them as l.. ge as you can afford. Foundation planting to soften the junc-

NO. 41—Simplicity in good design will last many years. It is not a fad. It is a direct expression of good taste in architecture. In this house, the simple character of the low pitched roof, the simple detail of the windows to add interest and the relation of these elements to the wall surface and landscaping are all part of this straightforward design. NO. 306—This architect-designed Colonial house of gleaming white clapboards encloses a simple rectangular plan of good proportions. While it has a centre hall, the stairs to the second floor rise at one side of the entrance, rather than directly in front of the door. This overcomes a common objection to the centre hall plan. It will be noticed that the living room is spacious and has four fine windows. The big open fireplace is centred on the long outside wall. Most housewives will like the roomy "L" shaped kitchen with the window directly over the sink. The service entrance and broom closet are close by.

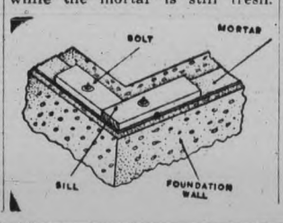
Upstairs are two family bedrooms. The largest has a front closet marked "storage." This big area is actually used as a nursery at the moment — and a very good nursery it makes too! For further particulars, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Put Sills On Foundation When Building

Foundation sills are planks or timbers which rest upon the foundation. They are the base for the walls and first-floor joists. Sills are sometimes omitted to allow the floor-joists to rest directly on the foundation. This is not recommended as it is difficult to obtain a level surface for the joists. For light frame construction the sills are usually two by six inches. Sills should be embedded in mortar to make a more satisfactory bearing surface. Where the sill is bolted into the foundation, as in sections of the country that have high winds, the bolts should be three-quarters of an inch thick. They are spaced at intervals of from five to eight feet, extending into the basement wall about 18 inches.

Mortar is first spread on the foundation wall. The sill is laid while the mortar is still fresh.



Care should be taken to ensure an even and airtight bearing. The nuts and bolts are not tightened by a wrench until the mortar has set.

Material for sills may be of almost any wood. No. 1 common grade is preferable for standard construction. Because one of the principal requirements of a sill is to withstand decay, many builders use sills which have been chemically treated to withstand rot.

THIS STOREY-AND-A-HALF HOUSE is very popular, especially in small towns and rural areas. It combines a pleasing exterior appearance with a simple and practical floor layout. Designed for comfortable living throughout the year the plans include two porches and large, airy rooms, including three bedrooms. The large living room (15' 0" x 11' 8") is well lighted by two wide windows. A small central hallway connects the living room with the "country" kitchen. One entire wall is devoted to shelf and sink space. A rear entrance connects the kitchen with the back porch. Another door leads to the basement where there is ample space for storage, laundry and heating facilities. The large master-bedroom completes the first floor layout. On the second floor there is one large bedroom on each side of the house. Each bedroom contains a large stand-up closet. There is also an additional linen closet near the bathroom. The front dormer window provides light for the completely equipped bathroom. For estimating purposes the total floor area is 1,064 square feet; cubic content 15,399 cubic feet. (Working drawings may be obtained from any office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.)

Give Personal Attention To Measurements in Kitchen

Correct working helps play a very important part in the kitchen. Work areas too high or too low can spoil even the most efficiently planned kitchen. The three work centre of your kitchen will be only as efficient as they reduce reaching, stooping, lifting and walking.

To estimate the best working height for you as an individual, let some one with a measuring tape help you to take your kitchen measurements. For stand-up jobs requiring muscular action, stand erect and at ease, with feet slightly apart and arms down at your sides. Raise your forearms from the elbows until the palms of your hands rest on a table height you could mix food on without stooping. The distance from the floor to your hands will be the working height for your mixing centre.

Many housewives prefer this height for the base of the sink basin, too. This will be 32 to 36 inches. If you have drainboards to a 6-inch sink, this brings them up to 38 inches. If the sink is 8 inches deep, the drainboards will be up to 40 inches.

Varies Between 32 and 36 Inches

Your arm reach from side to side will be about 48 inches, without off-balance stretching or stooping. The last shelf up that you can use with a finger tip will be about 72 inches from the floor. You will reach down easily to about 28 inches from the floor. Keep counters within 24 inches from front to back for easy reaching, cleaning and working space.

A good standing or sitting posture requires toe space at floor level. This is about 3 to 4 inches. Manufactured equipment that is 36 inches high will be all right for the jobs requiring wrist action.

For sitting down jobs, sit at ease in a comfortable chair with a back support. Have your feet flat on the floor and arms down at the side. Raise your forearms from the elbows until they are parallel with the floor. The distance up from the floor to your wrist is the height for your lapboard. It is also a good work counter height for your junior cooks. The heights will be 25 to 30 inches. Keep these same measurements in mind for work-counter extenders.

When planning the kitchen of your new home, be sure to locate windows where they will not interfere with plans for the wall cabinets. The jamb of the window should be at least 16 inches from a connecting wall to make room for installation of wall cabinets on adjacent walls.

Most home-owners prefer having the window located above the kitchen sink. Another window, located near the mixing centre or dining area, will provide additional light and ventilation. Supplementing windows with a ventilating fan will improve the circulation of air and carry off fumes and odors.

Placing two windows in the corner is a good way to use a space that is unsatisfactory for cabinets since it is difficult of access. It is pleasant, moreover, to work at a counter under corner windows. The kitchen stool can be placed under the counter when not in use. A sink across the corner is another excellent way to use the wall space under corner windows.

Simple To Build Your Home In A Jigsaw Fashion

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 22 —(CP)— How to beat the housing shortage: Build your own home, jigsaw fashion.

It could be as simple as making a toy airplane, says Henry Usborne, 41-year-old Labor member of parliament for the Yardley Division of Birmingham.

Convinced that any handy man can do his own building, Usborne gave the House of Commons this blueprint for the beating what he termed an "appalling" shortage of accommodation:

1. Local authorities must provide site and foundation.

2. Small factories should manufacture "parts" of houses designed for easy assembly. These would be stored in depots across the country.

3. When the site is ready, "all the parts of the jigsaw" should be delivered there by truck, along with full instructions.

"When," said Usborne, "the individual pays for the parts, and sets out to build his own home."

"The people of Birmingham need 100,000 houses. Given adequate instructions, sets of standardized materails and the will to do it, almost any enterprising and intelligent person who knows how to use hands can build the most beautiful mechanisms.

"Why can't they build houses, too?"

If amateur builders needed coaching, local authorities should provide schools where the fundamentals of house construction could be studied.

The speech, coming from a labor back-bencher, caused surprise. In the absence of Health Minister Aneurin Bevin, who is responsible for housing, there was no reply from a government spokesman.

A HOUSE WITH A FUTURE is this attractive 2-storey brick veneer dwelling. One of the most popular of Canadian designs, this 3-bedroom house is suitable for building anywhere in Canada. The pleasing exterior appearance of this solid two-storey house is the result of a clever combination of brick, cut stone and a steep roof. The interior of the house is well laid out for the utmost in comfort and convenience. The large living room is well-lighted by a wide front window and has an attractive fuel fireplace. The dining room is adjacent to the main living room and is also joined to the kitchen. Two walls of the kitchen are devoted to cupboards. A handy side door entrance affords access to the basement. Sleeping quarters and the bathroom make up the second floor. Three large and airy bedrooms, each of which is equipped with a large clothes closet, provide adequate sleeping accommodation. The fully-equipped bathroom is situated at the head of the stairs and within easy reach of all bedrooms. Plans for this house provide for a full basement with storage space and room for heating facilities. For estimating purposes the total floor area is 1,184 square feet; cubic contents 16,054 cubic feet. (Working drawings may be obtained from any office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.)

Best Plumbing Goes Beyond Good Fixtures

The water supply, and drainage systems of the house, included in the general name of plumbing, are of the highest importance. The materials chosen should be good, but beyond this, the man who does the work must be capable. The competent plumber is familiar with the principles of mechanics and hydraulics which govern his work, and in some provinces he can only practise his trade under license. Before he is allowed to undertake regular work he must undergo a rigid examination. He must live up to all building-code regulations in the performance of his work under penalty of losing his licence. As a consequence the builder of a home is protected and in a measure guaranteed a plumbing system that will be adequate and efficient.

In building a house in a rural district the owner could not do better than employ a well-known workman for the plumbing job and insist that all the regulations of the city code be complied with.

In a locality where water comes from a community system, mains are tapped at the street line. Supply pipes leading from the main to the house are of different sizes for different sizes of houses.

For the average house of 2½ storeys a pipe of 1-inch diameter is considered sufficient. Pressure at the outlets of pipes on the upper floors should be five pounds to the square inch if automatic flush valves for toilets are to be installed. The amount of pressure is governed not only by the pressure in supply pipes but by the number of bends and joints in all the pipes of the water-system. While the 1-inch pipe is sufficient for average conditions, a larger pipe is needed where solid matter or chemical content of the water is likely to cause filling or corrosion.

Quality of Pipe

Water pipes are of copper, brass, steel, black or galvanized, wrought iron and lead, giving the builder a wide range of choice. Copper pipe lasts longer and can be used in smaller sizes because it does not rust. The choice between iron and steel should depend upon the corrosive action of the water.

Pipes should be laid on a grade. The slope of horizontal piping should be about one-tenth of an inch toward the main supply pipe. This will drain sediment toward the lead-in at the basement wall where an outlet valve for the drainage of the whole system is installed. All lines should rest on hangers at intervals of not less than 10 feet. A sleeve for the pipe should be provided wherever it goes through a wall. Expansion in pipes due to heat is overcome by loops or bands.

House Sanitation

Sanitary drainage as well as water supply is a part of the plumber's job. The system serves to take off all toilet and kitchen waste except solids and greases. The soil pipe is provided with a vent through which air is introduced into the drainage system to prevent the flow of foul odors into rooms. The vent serves also to release the suction when water flows toward the drain pipes, thus preventing the siphoning out of the water in the trap seal.

In plumbers' parlance, vertical drainage pipes are "stacks." Their dimensions are determined by the volume of water and water likely to flow from the various fixtures discharged into them. Cast iron is the material used for large drainage pipes. The joints are usually of lead which is not affected by acids flowing through the system.

LOS ANGELES, April 22 (AP) —A student nurse was abducted and raped early today by a gunman who slugged and robbed her boy friend. It was the latest in a wave of "Lovers Lane" hold-ups here. The kidnapper drove off with Carol Ann Cope, 22, in his car but let her out before long. She told detectives that he raped her.

A New Tyrany

VICTORIA, B.C., April 22—(CU)—Canada's adjutant general said Thursday there has risen in Soviet Russia a "tyranny just as monstrous as that of the Nazis and Japanese." PETERBOROUGH'S FLORIST FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

PLAN NO. 50-61—Inside and outside, this 1½-storey dwelling has many attractive features which have made it extremely popular with small-house builders. The pleasing exterior finish is clapboard with vertical siding on the gables and over the large front dormer window. This is an ideal house for the family of three or four and is economical to build. It is of frame construction and plans include a full basement. Large, comfortable rooms are part of the interesting floor layout. The living room at the front is next to the dining area which is combined with the kitchen. A cased opening at rear of living room leads to the stairs. The bright and airy kitchen (11' 0" x 8' 4") is conveniently located and provides ample cupboard space. Also included on the ground flor is the completely equipped bathroom. There is a small porch and back entrance at the rear of the house. The second floor is devoted entirely to two large bedrooms. These are both equipped with storage closets. There is also additional closet space in the front hallway. For estimating purposes, the total floor area is 1,028 square feet; cubic contents 14,904 cubic feet. (Working drawings may be obtained from any office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.)

$3,781,799 Cost Of Building Houses In Peterborough January To December, 1949

Peterborough almost bust its buttons building last year. Altogether 3,781,799 was spent putting up new houses, garages and other buildings. This was an increase of nearly one-and-a-half millions over 1948. Total spent on new building for the past two years was $6,137,986, and this did not include suburban building in the townships bordering the city.

During 1949, nearly 500 houses were built, more than half of them by private individuals. In the same 12 months, 1121 building permits were issued and in December, permits were issued for buildings valued at $68,310.

A breakdown of 1949 building shows 270 houses built privately, 131 garages, and 720 miscellaneous buildings.

Suburban building value has not been estimated, although a rough figure of half a million has been given for Smith township. Figures for Douro, Otonabee and North Monaghan are not known

As of 1949, there were 9,059 dwelling units in Peterborough not including shared accommodation. Of this number, 7,544 are single residences.

In the city, 69.2 per cent of the houses are owner-occupied. This was termed "an excellent proportion" by assessment commissioner Norman A. Wilkes.

Recently, federal government housing authorities forecast heavy building in Canada during 1950. They said they based their prediction of the 72,000 homes built across the land in 1949.

Predict Good Year

City building material suppliers also predict a good year for Peterborough building.

"There's every indication of a bumper year," said one. "Although it's a little slow starting within a month it should be in full swing."

"It's a little early to make a guess," said another, "but I'd say prospects make this year somewhat similar to last year. There is no great bottleneck in supplies as dealers anticipate a good year, and have built up their stocks accordingly."

No Serious Shortages

No serious shortages are predicted for this year. Cement and nails, building bottlenecks since the end of the war, are in good supply, although one dealers warned there might be a shortage of nails by mid-summer.

The only shortage expected to affect Peterborough building is one of West Coast lumber, which, due to severe winter storms in British Columbia, is scarce.

"They're pricing West Coast lumber right off the market," commented one supplier.

Yet another dealer said he thought there might be some shortages in materials by mid-season. "Dealers have built up their stocks in anticipation of a good year," he said, "but by the halfway mark of the season some shortages will probably develop which could not be forecast at the beginning."

However, the consensers of the supplies was: Another good building year for Peterborough.

U.S. Ice Breaker At Work In Soo

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 22 (CP)—The U. S. coastguard icebreaker Mackinaw was hard at work Friday breaking up heavy ice in the lower St. Mary's river. Today it will perform the same chore in the upper river leading into Lake Superior. Navigation upbound is expected to start sometime next week.

The weather remained chilly Friday and ice was more than a foot thick in the lower St. Mary's river channel, with more ice jamming the upper river. The Mackinaw may take two days more to clear a passage into open water into Lake Superior, after which she heads for Duluth and Superior to loosen the ice in those harbors, returning to the Sault to assist early vessels through the upper river ice sometime next week.

Marine officials here said Friday night they knew of no vessels bound for the lakehead so far, although at least two vessels are headed for this port. The Algocen cleared Detroit early Friday and the Translake cleared Cleveland about the same time. Both are due here this afternoon.

Should Build Chimney Two Inches From Framework

The performance of your heating unit will be governed largely by the adequacy of the chimney to provide draft and to carry off smoke and gases.

Of basic importance is the size of the flue—the open shaft inside the chimney. The flue must be of sufficient size to meet the draft requirements of your furnace. Advice of your heating contractor is therefore necessary in determining its dimensions. Flues should never be less than eight and a half inches square or seven inches in diameter.

Flues lined with glazed clay tile permit smoke to escape easily. If the lining is omitted and the sides of the flue are rough, the flow of gas and smoke from the furnace will be impeded. This could hamper the efficiency of the heating unit.

A clean-out door, at least three feet below the smoke inlet at the bottom of the flue, is required to facilitate removal of soot.

Fire prevention demands that no wood joists or beams be built into or rest on the brickwork of the chimney. Framing should not be within two inches of the masonry. The chimney must extend at least two feet above the highest point of the roof unless it is at least 12 feet away from the ridge.

No Room For Eccentricity In Chimneys

Chimneys and fireplaces are likely to be pretty eccentric if not constructed according to rigid and scientific principles. For example, where homes are close to sea level greater draft is needed because of the relatively sluggish atmosphere caused by density of the air. In high elevations, the air is rare and the chimney can be smaller.

It is recommended that fireplaces and chimneys be built by experienced men. The reason for this is obvious; the technical details of chimney construction demand a broad knowledge of draft peculiarities.

The chimney should extend beyond the highest point of the roof to smoke, by providing a throat of uniform size the full width of the fireplace. Other advantages of dampers are: They provide fire control by cutting down the flow of draft, keep room heat in when the fireplace is not in use, and vent the home during the summer.

All chimneys should be lined with close fitting, vitrified clay flue lining. The smooth surface gives a better draft — but more important, it reduces the fire hazard.

Simple lines should be used in fireplace and mantel for the small home. The ornate is distinctly out of fashion. The modern fireplace, often without mantel, is actually just a hole in the wall.

Outside chimneys are often incorporated in the design of a home as a distinct decorative feature. Again duplicity is desirable so the chimney will blend with the house as one architectural unit. A chimney which serves an inside chimney usually has flue lining extended well above the cement cap. Below is a cement cap, usually painted black so smutting will not be noticed, while at the point where the chimney passes through the roof is the metal flashing needed to make the point watertight.

Likely To Settle

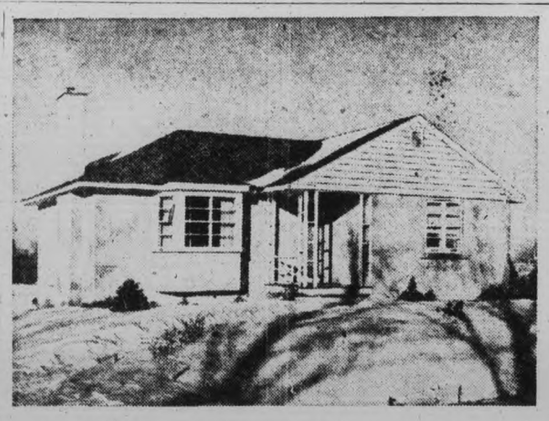
Contrary to common belief, a chimney is not a prop or a structural column to give support to framing members of a house, such as joists and studs. Due to the weight of the materials used in its construction, practically any chimney built on the average soil is likely to settle slightly. If the framing members of a house are attached to the chimney, settling will cause the framing members to settle also, resulting in cracked plaster and sagging floors. Furthermore, the masonry may become very hot when the furnace or other heating-unit fire is burning.

Cracks in the masonry due to settling may develop especially when the framing members are built into the chimney in order to give some support to the upper position of the chimney. Cracks may permit the passage of flames or air currents of high temperatures and result in a fire starting in the walls, floors, or roof around the chimney. It is essential, therefore, that the chimney be self-supporting and constructed as to be absolutely independent to the house framing.

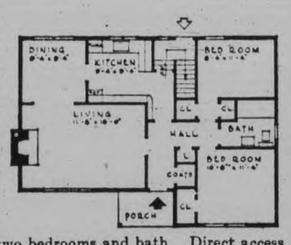
It should rest on a solid foundation. Its base should extend below the frost line. The looser and less compact the soil, the larger should be the footings.

BARD'S BIRTH

William Shakespeare was born on April, 23, 1564.



The modern concept of the "ideal" house plan, at least to families of average income, is one which affords spacious living accommodation within a minimum-sized and moderately-priced house. Typical of post-war houses designed to meet both of these requirements is this attractive bungalow in which every foot of available floor space has been utilized to the utmost advantage.



The house has been designed primarily for a wide inside lot and boasts a good-sized living room, a separate dining room, kitchen, two bedrooms and bath. Direct access to most rooms is afforded by the entrance hall which contains a coat closet.

Measuring 11'8"x18', the living room features a fireplace and enables good furniture arrangement. The large living room window—which the Ottawa owner of the house illustrated has changed into a bay window—greatly enhances the appearance of the house.

The bedrooms are situated on one side of the house with the bathroom conveniently located between them. There are four closets in addition to the coat closet off the entrance hall.

Stucco has been used as the exterior finish for the house illustrated with wood siding applied horizontally on the gable ends. However, any other type of finish could be used although the exterior dimensions would have to be increased approximately one foot for brick veneer or solid masonry.

For estimating purposes, exterior measurements of the house are 3[illegible] feet, eight inches, by 27 feet, and the area is 905 square feet.

Complete construction drawings for this plan, known as Design 50-1, are available from any office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Bank Robbed

TORONTO, April 22 (CP) — Two men escaped with between $800 and $900 in silver from a Bank of Toronto branch office in suburban Scarboro Friday. Donald Dillon, accountant-teller, was working late and as he returned from having coffee in a nearby restaurant, a voice behind him said "just keep going straight on in." He did and was pushed down the cellar stairs, he said. When he emerged, the men and silver from the open safe were gone.

before Building

A person rarely builds more than one home in a lifetime, and that home usually embodies all the special features of which he has always dreamed.

To make absolutely certain that the home you have planned and saved for is exactly as you want it, your builder must really know his business, he must be a builder with experience — one who knows how to specify the right materials, — buy properly and economically and who has men who are craftsmen for fine finishing and detail work.

Arnold Steele can qualify on all these counts — and assures you that your interests are uppermost in his mind while working for you.

Splatter-Dash Painting Not Difficult To Apply

Let's re-introduce splatter-dash floor painting . . . not a new idea we know, but always a "sure-fire" treatment that's sure to please with its simple charm, practicability and ease of application. Neglected in an age rife with new and scientific ideas, splatterdash finish is right at home in the modern home.

Its artistic possibilities were perhaps accidentally discovered by someone splattering wood in a test for a newly mixed color . . . or while attempting a clean a brush. Or perhaps some domestic genius might have thought up splatter-dash to hide the tracked-in mud on solid colored floors.

Not Difficult To Apply

The tools for applying a splatter-dash finish are as few and plain as the method is simple. Although calling for a definite technique, a little practice will soon make the novice a master at the Jed whisk. Dip the brush or whisk in the paint and bring it out so that paint doesn't drip. Hold the brush firmly about two feet above the section of the floor that has been coated last. Tap the brush smartly with the stick. Move over the gluey section and repeat this procedure. Concentration of splattering is left to the individual as tastes will, of course, differ widely.

As has been mentioned before, some may want to hit the stick with the brush . . . we prefer tapping the brush with the stick, but it really doesn't matter. Of course you want to remember that paint splatters up as well as down, so it's a wise measure to wear old clothes or coveralls.

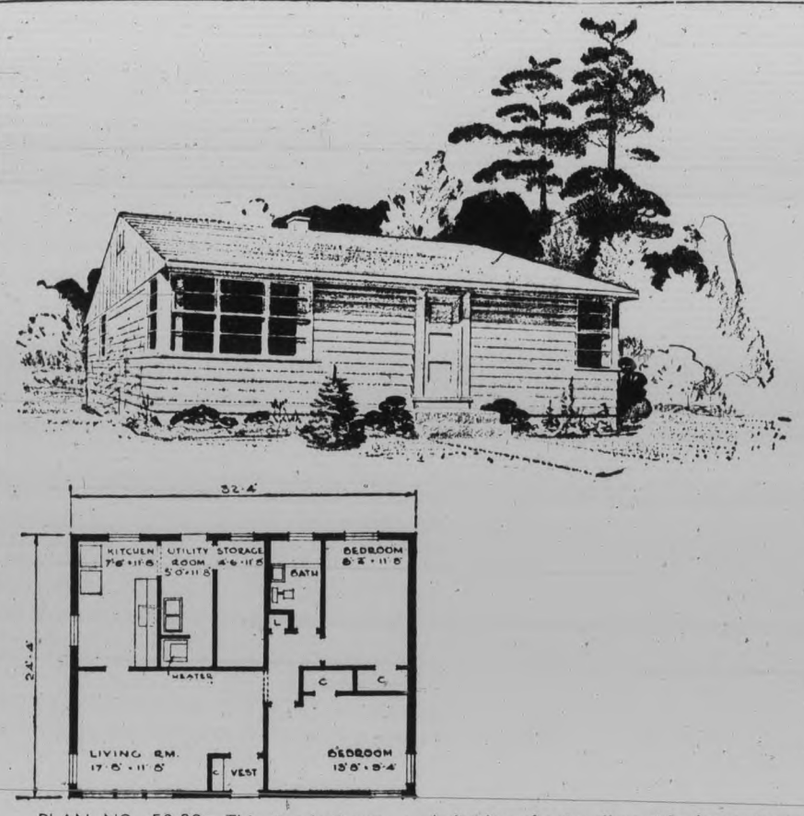
The first thing to do is to fasten old newspapers to the walls with thumb tacks up to a height of three feet. If you want the dado finished in the same manner as the floor, don't cover it. Now apply the ground cover on the floor . . . blue, grey, green or black all being good ground colors on which to splatter-dash with white. Pumpkin yellow splattered with brown is another possibility. If you floor absorbs the first coat quickly and unevenly then there is need for a second.

After the initial (or second) application is completely dry, lay on another coat of the same color in a section of the floor about four feet square. When this coat attains a gluey condition splattering must follow immediately so that it will consolidate in with the base coat and not remain on top to wear off. Don't try to splatter part of the flood that is dry and when you come to apply the final base coat streaks of the second will be seen.

Practice is a good precaution to avoid bad results and a dress rehearsal in some convenient spot would pay handsomely in the major undertaking.

Not satisfied with plain splattering, splatter-dash advocates have improved on the original idea by adding decorative designs such as leaves or trees or lightning flashes. This is easy, too, because all you have to do is select a suitable simple motif and cut enough of them to cover a section of the floor. Just before applying the final base coat, the one which you splatter-dash, take a number of these cut-outs and tack them in whatever manner you desire on the section to be worked on first. Once you have the designs laid out to your satisfaction, apply the final base coat and splatter-dash in the manner previously described. When the splatter-dash is completely dry outline the design lightly in pencil and take up the cut-outs. Paint in the outline the same color as the splatter-finish, or a third color.

The possibilities for variations in the final appearance are unlimited. With a little thought it should be easy to dream up a suitable motif for any room in the house . . . maybe miniature teapot outlines in the kitchen or sail boats in the nursery. Give it a try . . . you'll find it interesting work and a colorful decorative idea hard to beat.



PLAN NO. 50-39—This two-bedroom bungalow is designed for the small family of three or four. Economical to build, this popular Canadian-styled dwelling has many distinctive features, including a low, modern roofline and wide corner windows. The large living-dining area is 17' 8" x 11' 8" and is adjacent to the kitchen. The bright and airy kitchen is well lighted by two windows and is provided with ample cupboard space. The two bedrooms, which are ideally located on the same side of the house, are within easy reach of the modern bathroom. A dividing closet-wall provides large storage space for each bedroom. There is also additional closet space in the front vestibule. Large windows ensure proper ventilation throughout the house. The bungalow illustrated above is of frame construction and erected on a concrete slab floor. The exterior is of clapboard and gables are attractively finished with vertical siding. For estimating purposes the total floor area is 785 square feet; cubic contents 12,952 cubic feet. (Working drawings may be obtained from any office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.)

Garden Planning

tion of your house with the ground should be gone ahead with as far as possible.

At least get in your most dominant evergreens and flowering trees, assigning locations for later additions of smaller shrubs on the plan.

Seek Nurseryman's Help

Grade and see the front and side lawn. Seek your nurseryman's advice about a good lawn in your district . . . soils and many other considerations vary greatly and you'll find his suggestions invaluable. The need for good soil and drainage naturally goes without saying.

Enrich and work the ground behind the house. Right at the start is a good time to begin a composite pile, too. Lay stepping stones to future service yard and picnic grounds. Make a start on growing flowers in a bed behind the house.

Start your second year program by grading the rear lawn and garden areas. Plant shrubs bordering both the back and side lawns. If you buy small sizes, remember not to plant them too closely . . . they'll soon fill out. Here again, avail yourself of a nurseryman's experience in choosing the most suitable type of shrubs for your purpose.

The combination of two or three types of deciduous and coniferous shrubs will often give greater enchantment than the use of only one type of material. Though foundation planting might seem to be the simplest of landscape plantings, much more abuse has been made of this type of planting than possibly any other feature . . . so go carefully.

Plant Hedge

You'll also want to plant the hedge around the flower garden. Good quality evergreen stock will prove a year-round investment. Additional flower beds may be started and your perennials, bulk and rose collection begun. You might choose between paving the terrace or building the trellis fence along the side and back lines. The fence will complete the garden's enclosure and furnish support for grape vines.

With your permanent plants in place, the pool, terrace and cooking grill can be established in the third year or may be apportioned over an additional year or two. The same with the bench, sundial and other finishing details. Lay a good surface of clean gravel, brick or concrete for the picnic and service area connecting with the flagstone walk leading to the drive.

Put up an attractive fence around the picnic and service area with gates leading up to the vegetable garden and lawns. Various flowering climbers are available to completely screen this area if you wish. Thoroughly work and enrich the soil of the vegetable and cutting area and start vegetables, a bed of strawberries and flowers for cutting in this area. A couple of short rows of raspberries might also be worked in. Increase you collections of perennials, bulks and roses for the shrubbery borders. While your basic plan is now near completion, home grounds are never quite finished; each year's growth adds to their beauty.

Think Before Rejecting Plan For Dining Room

We are not going to get [illegible] an argument [illegible] whether you should have a dining room, or not — we intend to remain strictly neutral. We do know, however, that more people are thinking about the finer things in life again, and want to get away from cramped quarters. They want to live like dignified human beings again. This feeling reflects itself in the desire for a separate dining room. Surveys prove that more than 69% of Canada's home-builders will provide for a dining room when they build.

Nothing Like Dining Room

Breakfast nooks and kitchen bars are very nice indeed, but when it comes to "high days and holidays" there's nothing that quite compares with charm and dignity that belongs exclusively to the dining room. Here lies part of the strength in family unity. It is here that Dad still occupies his traditional position as head of the house, and where the children learn a great part of life's lessons in etiquette.

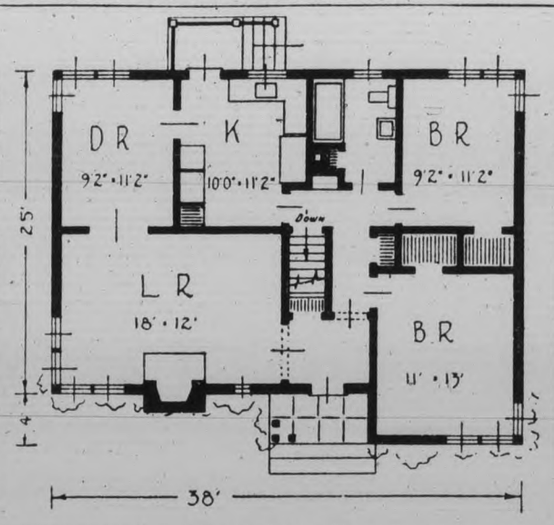
It is often true that our fondest memories of home centre around festive occasions when the family gathered in the dining room. Can't you picture right now some long past Christmas or Thanksgiving dinner with all the trimmings Mother had on display the best china, linen and silver — and perhaps candles added to the glamour of the occasion.

Of course the breakfast nook enthusiasts will tell you this is all a lot of nonsense, and that the dining room is only used for less than an hour a day. They will also point out the extra cost of a dining room in terms of labor and materials, to say nothing of furniture. Well, maybe they're right. We still think that you should think seriously before you eliminate the dining room.

The spirit of compromise is in the air these days, and you may do well to consider the dining room as an adjunct to the kitchen or living room in the form of an "L". Both ideas are very successful, and it preserves much of the dignity of the separate room. Many people prefer curtains or a screen to make the room quite separate during the meal hour, but this is a matter of choice.

Choose Furniture Carefully

If you are buying furniture for your new dining room, try to keep in mind the size of the room.



NO. 553—While the house pictured above was erected in Vancouver, British Columbia, it is entirely suitable for any part of Canada. One was recently completed using the same plans in Cooksville, Ontario, and it has captured all the beauty of the home as shown. Carefully tailored to meet the needs of a discriminating owner, this little white clapboard cottage would be a joy to behold on any street. Containing only about 16,500 cubic feet, it has five well proportioned rooms designed for modern living. In spite of restricted size, criss-cross traffic has been eliminated. Bedrooms are private. Arrange Lighting Properly For Best Use Of Your Home

This new home you are about to buy or build is just about the most important thing you ever bought. You want to be sure that it contains every necessity and convenience you can afford. Right at this moment your head is probably buzzing with details about construction, location, financing, equipment, and furnishings . . but have you given much attention to its lighting plan?

Too many people overlook the lighting plan until their home is finished. Then they often find changes must be made to give them proper lighting.

Much of the charm, liveableness and safety of your new home will depend upon its lighting. You want lighting that brings out the true colors of your upholstery, wallpaper, and draperies. You want lighting properly arranged so there are no unlighted halls or stairways where you might fall in the dark. And about all you want lighting that makes reading, studying and sewing easy for the eyes.

The Lighting System

Every lighting system is composed of four elements, wiring, lighting fixtures, portable lamps, and lamp bulbs. Each element should receive your personal attention, so we will discuss each briefly.

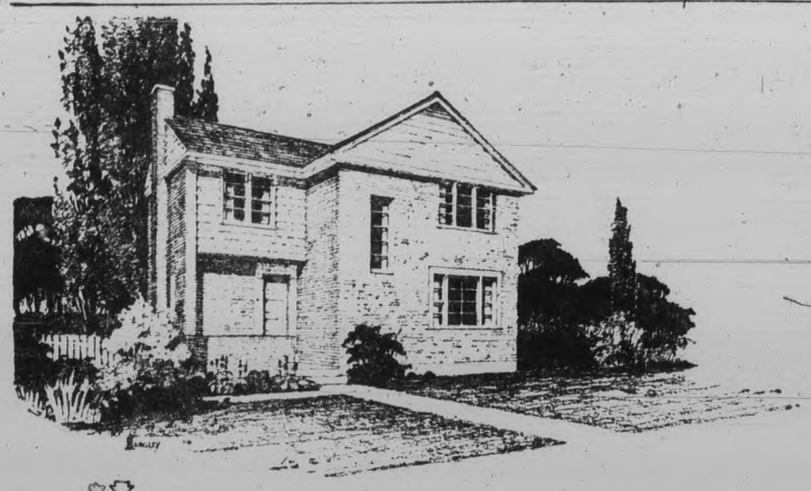
The Wiring System: The wiring system compares with the veins and arteries of your body. Through the wiring flows the electricity which lights the lamps and fixtures and operates your appliances. A good wiring system necessarily must include (1) fixture outlets properly located for good general illumination; (2) convenience outlets located to serve all possible furniture arrangements; (3) switch control of outlets and fixtures so arranged that passage through dark room does not require groping in the dark to find the light switch and (4) adequate size wire to assure efficient operation of lamps, fixtures and appliances.

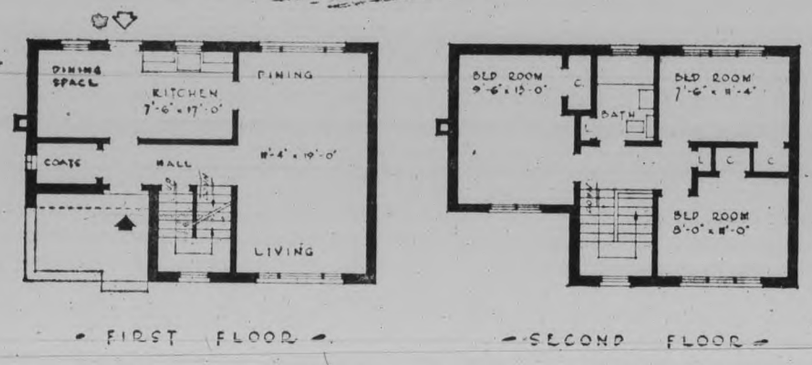
Remember that your contractor does not know all your wiring needs unless you sit down with him and discuss them. Do this now. Go over the wiring layouts with him.

Lighting Fixtures: Most rooms of the home employ generally illumination supplied by ceiling and wall fixtures and localized illumination supplied by portable lamps. A lighting fixture serves two functions in nearly every room; to provide surrounding light to soften the effect of the strong local light and to harmonize with and complement the decorative plan. In kitchen, bath, and laundry, the fixture does not require as much styling as in the living room. However, care must be used to see that the fixtures selected provide a prescribed quantity for good vision.

For the living, dining room, and bedrooms there is a great demand for highly styled fixtures. In fact there is a tendency on the part of many to buy fixtures that are purely decorative and not good light sources. Today there are many well-designed and well-styled fixtures that meet the requirements for good sight and appearance. Your contractor has access to fixtures of these types in styles to fit any decorative scheme.

Budgeting the Cost of Lighting Fixtures: To have properly designed and styled fixtures, a minimum allowance of 1½ per cent to 2 per cent of the total home cost should be provided in the budget for fixtures. Such an amount is very small when the benefits are weighed. Eyesight is priceless, good light is cheap. Don't risk eyestrain by economizing on the lighting fixtures and lamp bulbs.





FIRST FLOOR — SECOND FLOOR

THE INTERIOR OF THIS SIX-ROOMED HOUSE is as distinctive as its exterior. Designed by architects Wilson and Newton, its large bright living room is a special feature. Dining space is provided at the end of the 17' long kitchen for informal meals, but a door also leads to the living room which could provide additional space on occasion. There are large clothes closets in each of the three bedrooms on the second floor, with linen closets in the bathroom and off the hall. The dimensions of this house are approximately 31' wide by 21' deep, and are so arranged that it may be built of solid brick, brick veneer or frame construction. The minimum required lot width is 40', and the area—for estimating purposes—is 1,130 square feet. (Working drawings may be obtained from any office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Poor Stairway Cause Of Many Accidents

Treacherous treads have no place in the modern home. Follow these minimum safely dimensions required under the National Housing.

A stairway may be pleasing to the eye . . . but how does it rate for safety? More than 25 per cent of all accidents in the home occur on the stairs . . . attributable in large measure to poor stairway design. Here are some recommended minimums for stairway construction as required for home building under the National Housing Act.

The use of a single riser on stairways is not recommended because of the accident hazard.

Treads shall be not less than 9" wide measured from face of riser to face of riser, and the width of the tread, including the nosing, shall not be less than 10¼". The maximum rise permitted is 8". Stringers shall have solid bearing at top and bottom and the minimum effective depth of wooden stair stringers shall be 3½".

The main staircase shall be of neat construction designed in keeping with the general character of the house. Treads shall be of hardwood or edge grain Douglas Fir having a minimum finished thickness of 1⅛". Hand rails shall be of hardwood.

The maximum riser permitted is 9". Stair stringers shall be not less than 2" x 8". Stairs shall be substantially built and shall have a solid bearing top and bottom.

At least 6' 4" clear headroom shall be provided on all stairs measured vertically from the nosing of the tread. Clearance between handrails on main stairs shall be not less than 2' 10" Clearance between enclosing partitions around main stairs shall be not less than 3' 0". The clear width of stairs to attic storage space and basement shall be not less than 2' 6".

Handrails shall be provided on basement stairs and around the stairwells of attic spaces.
